Textbooks Will Be Free For Grades 9 And 10

Educators, Publishers Hail Move of Minister

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario schools and universities got what a Toronto trustee called "the best back-to-school news in years" Tuesday as Education Minister Davis announced increases in provincial grants.

Textbooks will be free next year to all pupils in Grades 9 and 10 with a doubling of the per pupil textbook grant to $6 from $3. The plan will be kicked off with a $12 grant in 1964.

Mr. Davis predicted an extension of the free textbook plan to higher secondary school grades in the next few years.

In addition, grants to the provincial universities will be boosted by $25,000,000 to at least $70,000,000 by the end of this year.

Evaleen Baker, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, described the textbook grants as "a tremendous step forward" and said the government should be commended for its action.

Percy M. Muir of Toronto, executive secretary of the Ontario Trustees Council, and Rev. R. Douglas MacDonald of Tillsonburg, president of the Public School Trustees Association of Ontario, also praised the government action.

Mr. Muir said the trustees have been pressing for the free book plan for several years.

Gordon Scott, vice-chairman of the Canadian Textbook Publishers Institute, said the raise in textbook grants, the first in 15 years, has been needed.

School boards will be expected to make up the difference between the grants and the cost of textbooks, but the minister said the cost to local ratepayers should be small. Textbooks are already free in Grades 1 to 8.

Mr. Davis said the grants plan was based on an allowance of $18 to $30 worth of books for a pupil in each grade, and the calculation that books can be made to last three years.

Money could also be saved by quantity buying and by the standardization of texts—the said. The University of Toronto and province would end problems found by pupils who move in districts.

Mr. Davis also announced a

Plane Falls Apart On Impact, Just Misses House

Crashes Shortly After Taking Off From Zurich

CP from Reuters-AP

ZURICH — A Swissair Caravelle jet airliner exploded and plunged into a field in flames near here today, killing all 80 persons aboard.

The Rome-bound airliner disintegrated and set fire to a house 100 yards away from the point where it hit the ground.

It narrowly missed the village of Duerrenaesch, situated between two small lakes 25 miles west of Zurich. No one on the ground was injured.

Police combed off the giant crater it made and began to collect bodies, many of them too charred for immediate identification.

A Swissair spokesman said there was no indication of the cause of the accident. It was the first major air disaster in Switzerland since the Second World War.

Swissair was checking over copies of tickets to establish a complete passenger list, expected to be issued later today. Under new international regulations, companies are no longer obliged to keep complete passenger lists for each flight.

BRITONS ABOARD

No Canadians were listed among the passengers. The spokesman said six foreigners were aboard—an American, a Briton, an Israeli, an Egyptian, a Belgian and an Iranian.

Scientific and safety experts moved in after reports that the jet apparently caught fire and began shedding pieces of fuse.

Farmers in the village of Berlikon, seven miles northeast of Duerrenaesch, reported seeing a "glowing fire" moving at great speed through the early morning mist. They said the plane was making a loud, roaring sound.

The tremendous impact of the crash scattered bits of wreckage and human remains over an area of a square mile. Not even a search for identification was "completely hopeless." There were reported to be no survivors. Only 20 could be seen. Human hands and bits of limbs were strewn over the crash area.

The disaster plunged the little Swiss farming village of Humlikon, 50 miles northeast of here, into mourning. Forty-four of its inhabitants—one-quarter of the population—was on board the ill-fated Caravelle.

Many of them were married

May Take Fair To New Site

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government appears to be faced with the problem of having to decide whether the 1967 world's fair should be postponed or moved to another Montreal site.

A source close to the Canadian World Exhibition Corporation—a Crown corporation established to organize the fair—told The Canadian Press Tuesday that technical experts are advising the government they are convinced the fair will either have to be postponed to 1969 or held at a location other than a combination of islands in the St. Lawrence River.

The technicians are convinced that "it will not be physically possible in so short a time" to prepare an expanded St. Helen's Island opposite Montreal Harbor for 1967.

The fair is to run from April 28 to Oct. 27, 1967.

GIVE ALTERNATIVES

Corporation experts are giving the federal government two alternatives:

1. That the federal government apply to the International Bureau of Exhibitions in Paris for a postponement to 1969, or,

2. That the fair be held in southwest Point St. Charles district with a bridge connecting the point to St. Helen's Island as it now exists.

The disputed present site is still partly under water. Until now, the plan has been to create a huge 620-acre island, already named Notre Dame Island, which would swallow existing Moffat's Island and a string of smaller islands, and then be expanded to St. Helen's Island, a Montreal park area now.

Prairie Men and Horses Ailing, Confirm Sleeping Sickness Case

HANNA, Alta. (CP) — A district farmer is the first person on the Prairies to have a confirmed case of sleeping sickness.

Dr. Agnes O'Neil, Hanna district medical health officer, said Tuesday the man, in his 30s, was admitted to hospital Friday with a mild case of the disease and is on his way to recovery.

She said there are 12 suspected cases of sleeping sickness among horses in the Hanna district 82 miles northeast of Calgary. The latest case in the stricken man's farm was about two miles away.

She said more than 900 doses of vaccine have been used to treat horses in the district.

Saskatchewan health authorities continued their investigation into an ailment that caused the death of one man, put at least 50 others in hospital and afflicted 122 horses, killing 17. It was thought it could be sleeping sickness and was confirmed in eight horses.

In Manitoba, three horses have died from the disease and 20 more have been affected. Hardest hit was the Neepawa area 120 miles northwest of Winnipeg but two cases were reported in the Inter-lake area north of Winnipeg.

The Hanna farmer was the first reported case of a human with the disease in Alberta although about 30 horses were believed to have sleeping sickness. One case was confirmed.

Dr. O'Neil said it was not determined if the human had sleeping sickness the Hanna man had. Some types—western equine encephalomyelitis—affects the spinal column and the brain.

Symptoms are nausea, paralysis, convulsions, drowsiness and mental confusion are symptoms.

Provincial health authorities in Saskatchewan said the disease that caused the death of a Regina South, Dr. Herbert Schweitzer, about 70, and put at least 50 persons in hospital may be sleeping sickness. Laboratory test were not complete.

In 1941, there were 5,422 cases of sleeping sickness among humans and 44 deaths in Saskatchewan in one of the worst outbreaks in North American history.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Brisk northerly winds brought cooler weather to southern Ontario overnight. Weak disturbances over the Prairies and central states early today threaten considerable cloudiness and scattered showers for most sections of Ontario on Thursday.

Defence Policy Shaping

OTTAWA (CP)—A new defence policy based on a small but mobile and airborne army with tactical air support is beginning to take shape, informed sources say.

The object is to create a conventional multi-purpose force which could serve the North Atlantic alliance or the United Nations.

This will mean eventual integration of the armed forces into a single service, long an idea of Prime Minister Pearson.

Sometime in 1966 Canada is expected to inform NATO that it will allow the RCAF low-level nuclear bomber force in Europe to run down but that it has started to build up the 6,000-man brigade in West Germany into a fully mechanized formation with its own planes for transport and fighter support.

Informants say the brigade will be strengthened so that it will be a light division of some 10,000 men able to move anywhere in the world at almost a moment's notice.

Defence Minister Hellyer has already rejected an RCAF proposal for procurement of some 66 more CF-104 jet bombers for the air division in Europe.

He has indicated that he will cancel the frigate construction program initiated by the former Progressive Conservative government.

Sources say the tactical fighters for the brigade could serve a dual role: Some could be relegated to independence and economic prosperity far quicker

Election Campaign Hotter As Leaders Take off Gloves

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Robarts came on swinging in the second week of Ontario's election campaign Tuesday and, in contrast to last week's relaxed approach, announced in Fort William he had embarked on a "gloves off" policy.

He launched a stinging attack on the Liberal party, denouncing it for "substitution of slander for policy or platform." He accused Leader John Wintermeyer of trying to seize power through a campaign of "vilification and falsification."

Earlier, he told a Conservative rally in Elmwood-Kenora riding "our aid to municipalities has been constantly increasing and we intend to keep it that way."

The premier was to travel to Toronto today to visit several Metropolitan constituencies.

Mr. Wintermeyer centred his campaign Tuesday in Penetanguishene, northwest of Ottawa, and continued to question Mr. Robarts' stand on the issue of the federal pension plan.

He planned to visit Parry Sound, Stevenbury, Orillia and Barrie today.

Verwoerd Wants to Control 3 British Protectorates

PRETORIA (Reuters)—South Africa's Premier Hendrik Verwoerd has made a surprise offer to take over the administration of three neighboring British protectorates.

But the offer appeared today unlikely to attract much enthusiasm outside South Africa.

Verwoerd "challenged" British Tuesday night to allow S. Africa to take over Bechuanaland, Swaziland and Basutoland and convert them into self-governing Negro states called "Bantustans."

He told the annual congress of his National Party: "We could lead them to independence and economic prosperity far quicker and more efficiently than British.

"Britain may be the guide to their political freedom but it is powerless in respect of their eventual economic freedom."

In London, a foreign office spokesman refused to comment on the offer but remarked that Sir Patrick Dean, permanent United Nations delegate, laid down the status of the protectorates in debate last year.

At that time Dean stressed repeatedly that the three territories were politically independent of South Africa, and "this

Freighter Afire In Port

HAMILTON (CP)—The chief steward of an Egyptian cotton freighter was kicked today when flames swept the crew quarters and threatened to sink the vessel.

Six hours after the fire started, firemen were still battling the blaze while harbor officials were debating whether the ship, the 8,188-ton Salah-el-Din, should be floated into Lake Ontario.

"If she's going to go down, it'll have to be out in the bay," said Harbormaster Floyd Day. "If she settles in the dock, it will tie up the busiest berth in the harbor."

Barefoot, half-naked Egyptian crew members struggled with firemen when they tried to bring the body of the chief steward, Mohammed Fazewi, 42, of Alexandria, ashore.

MANY IN TEARS

Officials intervened and the crew, many of them in tears and some collapse with shock and exhaustion, carried the body to a nearby ambulance.

"I've never seen anything like it before," said Fire Chief Reg Swansbrough. "Apparently it's a custom of theirs that his body must be removed from the ship by his own mates."

Firemen found the steward's body at the front of the crew's quarters four hours after the fire started in cabins reserved for passengers.

Early reports said he was clad in pyjamas. Firemen said

At Granby Convention

Socreds May Have Met Waterloo

OTTAWA (CP) — The weekend Quebec Social Credit convention held in Granby, Que., could well have been the "Waterloo" of Quebec Social Crediters and indirectly their leader, Real Caouette, deputy national leader of the federal party, political observers say.

Mr. Caouette appeared to use all his prestige to induce the convention to disregard advances by separatists advocating secession of Quebec from Canada so that he would be left free on the national party level. However, he saw his plans for the formation of a new national Social Credit movement seriously compromised by the repudiation of his leadership by 60 per cent of the Quebec Social Credit MPs.

Mr. Caouette is scheduled to make another attempt in Quebec City tonight to rally the support of the MPs in his running battle for party leadership with a national chief Robert Thompson. He sent telegrams to the 19 MPs in his capacity as leader of the Quebec wing of the party.

The consequences of the split could break off both the separatists and the supporters of Mr. Thompson from Mr. Caouette's Le Ralliement des Cred-itistes.

At the Granby congress, Mr. Caouette attacked the separatists and the public resolutions of a separatist nature inspired by succeeded in temporarily halting such aspirations, confining them within the framework of Quebec nationalism, observers said.

"We are going to fight for the respect of the French fact within Confederation," he told the delegates, only to be interrupted by cries of "it's impossible" from some Social Credit-ers.

"We are still going to try," Mr. Caouette said. One delegate retorted "that's been impossible for 100 years."

About 30 separatists attended the convention, including representatives from Marcel Chaput's Quebec Republican Party, and their influence was felt in the background although they did not succeed in speaking in either the committees or to the full convention.

Mr. Caouette opposed their viewpoints with his plan for a new national movement and emphasized he had the support of three Ontario Social Credit-ers at the convention led by

Alabama Negroes Enrolled

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Two Negro pupils entered all-white Graymont Elementary School today without any interference from Governor George C. Wallace, who had sent state troopers into the city on the eve of Alabama's first public school integration.

The pupils, brothers, were escorted to a side entrance of the school by four Negro men.

In a surprise move, the segregationist governor sent not one state trooper to the school ground, which was heavily guarded by about 60 city and county policemen.

The Negroes went into the school shortly after white pupils began classes.

At the time, Wallace's press secretary said the governor was in his mansion in Montgomery, 100 miles away.

The Negroes entered the building at 8:30 a.m. without what had appeared to be an impending showdown between Wallace and both federal and local authorities, who had asked him not to interfere.

He apparently decided to accede to that request, but there was no immediate statement from him.

WOMEN PICKET SCHOOL

White women picketed on the ground in front of the school as the Negro pupils made their historic walk through a doorway of the red brick building.

Some white spectators and small groups of Negroes watched from street corners, white parents, mostly mothers, left their children to school.

Some of the pupils and parents were stopped by the picketing white women, but the pickets and went into the school for enrolment.

One white woman handed segregation signs to two schoolboys, who picketed briefly and then gave it up. The boys looked to be about eight and 12 years old.

Meantime, three other Negro pupils were to enroll at two junior high schools in the city, but they had failed to do so at the opening hour approached.

Governor Says Negro Student Marriage to White Is Illegal

ATLANTA (AP) —The marriage of Charlayne Hunter, first Negro girl to enter and graduate from the University of Georgia, to a white southerner is void in Georgia, Governor-elect General Eugene Cook.

Miss Hunter, 21, disclosed Monday in New York that she secretly married Walter Stovall, 25, of Douglas, last spring. She said they are expecting a child in December.

"They are not married under Georgia law," Cook said Tuesday. "It's unlawful for a white person to marry a person who is a white person, and any marriage in violation of this law shall be void."

The couple, who met at the University of Georgia, engaged students, declined to give the correct time and place of the wedding, but said it was in the north.

Cook said any marriage solemnized in another state by "parties intending at the time to reside in this state" shall have the same legal consequences as though it were solemnized in Georgia.

The attorney-general said he is investigating to ascertain where the marriage took place.

He said he would submit his findings to the solicitor - general and a grand jury to determine whether the couple may have the same legal consequence in a criminal law. He said a grand jury would not try to return an indictment against the couple in order for him to take any action.

Mrs. Stovall graduated from the university in June with a journalism degree. Stovall lacked only one quarter of work to get his journalism degree.

Meanwhile, university officials expressed shock at the marriage. University President O. C. Aderhold said that neither of them would be permitted to enter the university again.

"Interracial marriage is prohibited by Georgia law, and as a result marriages solemnized in University of Georgia regulations," Aderhold said in a statement. "Students guilty of such are subject to disciplinary action. Dismissal rules have been applied to Charlayne Hun-

Hastings county council deferred action Tuesday on a request for the establishment of a county health unit.

A committee of Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine as chairman, with councillors Frank Rabel of Frankford and Tom Burnside of Madoc, along with County Warden Charles Long and Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman will make further investigation into the matter and report to the December session of council.

The request for the county health unit was headed by Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson, obstetrics department supervisor at Belleville General Hospital who said she was greatly concerned over the health of babies from the rural areas where in many instances there was little provision for post natal care.

Mrs. Donaldson's request was supported by many county women's institutes and other rural organizations.

NEED POST NATAL CARE

In addition Mrs. Donaldson council was addressed on the health unit question by Mrs. Basil Caplin of Foxboro, and by Dr. Martin representing the Ontario Department of Health.

Mrs. Donaldson said a county health unit would provide much needed post natal care for infants in areas where such service did not exist, as well as immunization.

Regular health inspections at the public school level would assure that physical defects would be referred immediately to the family doctor.

Mrs. Caplin, a former public health nurse, gave graphic statistics showing the big need for health inspections at the early school level.

Citing the example of a service club sponsored inspection program carried on among 17 schools in the Stirling district involving 468 pupils a high prevalence of defects had shown up.

MANY DEFECTS SEEN

There were 79 pupils with vision defects, 128 with apparent infected tonsils and 42 with dental defects.

The inspections had shown that even her own daughter required glasses, Mrs. Caplin said.

In her own case the trouble was remedied with the provision of the needed glasses, but Mrs. Caplin spoke of the weakness of such a locally operated inspection program was that there was no follow-up. There was no guarantee that the individual cases were actually referred to the family physician.

"A county health unit would assure the referral of such defects," she said.

Dr. Martin said the county health unit program got started in Ontario with the establishment of one unit in 1935. There were 12 units by 1945 when a rapid development took place.

37 UNITS IN ONTARIO

Today there were 37 county health units in the province covering 87 per cent of the population either through county units or city health departments.

An minimum population of 35,000 was required to set up a county health unit.

The province's average per capita costs for the operation of county health units was about $2 with a range of $1 to $3 in the counties. This meant a per capita cost of about $1 and in the case of the county with $42,000 population would mean slightly in excess of a mill on the tax rate.

He emphasized, however, that this cost of $1 per person was not in addition to the cost of present health services which would be in the main, business be taken over by the health unit.

Councillors had no actual figures at hand but estimated after that the cost of existing local health services ranged from 40 cents per person up to about 75 cents.

NOT PUBLIC SERVICE

Warden Long said that in the case of his own municipality (Tyendinaga township) the medical officer of health did a great deal of his work as a community service.

Dr. Martin said this was the case in many municipalities but this depended on full public health was too important for it to be considered as a public service.

He said that if Hastings decided in favor of a county health unit July 1st, 1964, should be earliest date considered for its establishment.

This date would be most suitable for securing a needed staff nurses and for lining up school inspection programs for the following September.

Gas Pockets Building up Says Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Pockets of explosive gas are building up under parts of a four-block section of west-central Ottawa, the city board of control was told Tuesday.

The board decided to ask for a full investigation report here with the Ontario Energy Resources Board, which regulates installation of gas mains.

Planning and Works Director Fred Ayers recommended that the Ottawa Gas Company should be asked to prove beyond doubt that its gas mains in the area are not leaking.

The report written by a consulting firm said that three leaks in gas mains were discovered during its nine-month investigation. It also said gas is escaping from bedrock towards the surface of the ground at a low velocity, and building up under paved areas.

"The situation at the present time is not considered to be hazardous," the report said. "However, should the gas build up to a higher pressure gradient a dangerous situation would occur."

Ron MacKenzie, gas engineer with the company's metropolitan Ottawa manager, said that laboratory tests of gas samples in the area last year showed the gas was a combination of sewer gas and natural marsh gas from an old creek bed.

Russia Vetoes Censure Motion Against Syria

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Syria and Israel pledged to maintain a cease-fire on their uneasy border Monday as Soviet Union Tuesday vetoed a United Nations Security Council resolution censuring Syria in the slaying Aug. 19 of two Israeli farmers.

The U.S.-British resolution won the support of eight members of the Security Council. Morocco and Ivory Coast abstained, and the Soviet Union voted against it. Venezuela abstained.

Council President Jacinto Castel Borja of the Philippines declared the fighting between Syria and Israelis to maintain the cease-fire they promised the UN truce supervisory organization after the shootings. He also asked them to exchange prisoners.

Calling for Syria's part a moral condemnation of Syria, Israel's UN delegate, Michael Comay, pledged continuation of the cease-fire. He said his government would welcome the return of prisoners.

Salah El-Dine Tarazi, the Syrian representative, also promised to cooperate with the UN truce chief, Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, in maintaining the cease-fire. But he made strenuously negative the council to force Israel to halt its border disputes with the Mixed Armistice Commission. Israel has been boycotting the commission.

IS NOT AWARE

In Ottawa, a source close to Prime Minister Pearson said that while the government was not officially aware of any difficulty with regards to the fair site, there has been talk of a deferral.

However, the Ottawa spokesman said, the government is proceeding with plans for a 1967 fair. The government planned a statement within four days "clarifying the whole fair picture."

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, chief proponent of the mid-St. Lawrence islands site, reacted quickly and said: "These so-called experts don't know what they're talking about."

He said there was "every indication" the site would be ready to be turned over to the fair corporation by the June, 1964, deadline.

Vyacheslav Molotov Almost Forgotten Man in Russia

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—A short man with gray hair and blagbush moustache got out of a big car at Berlin's Reichskanzelory in 1940 and was whisked into an important conference with Adolf Hitler.

This honored guest of the German Reich was Vyacheslav Molotov, Soviet foreign minister and right-hand man of Josef Stalin. Where is he today?

On extremely rare occasions, he can be seen strolling with his wife in a park, not noticed, not wanting to be noticed. Vyacheslav Molotov is nobody's honored guest.

That happens to those who lose out in the Soviet Union.

Molotov, now 72 and his moustache turned white, has run out in one of the most dramatic struggles of Soviet history. In 1957, four years after Stalin died, he made the mistake of trying to drive out of power a ruling clique named Nikita Khrushchev.

He and several of his associates — Bulganin, Kaganovich, Malenkov and Shepilov—all lost party and government people, went out with him. They hardly have been heard of since except in the case of Shepilov, they are denounced for their alleged part in the thousands of murders committed in the Stalin period.

For a while, it seemed that for this man who once helped shape the government and foreign policy of the Soviet Union, something better was in store for him.

He was made Soviet ambassador to Mongolia. Later he was transferred to Vienna as representative to an international organization dealing with peaceful uses of atomic energy.

DEALT WITH GREAT

It was a soft spot, but a letdown for a man who dealt with cold stares and colder words with the greats of the world—Eisenhower, Churchill, French Premier Bevin, Dulles, Gen. Marshall.

How humble his status truly was appeared in 1961 when Khrushchev met President Kennedy in Vienna. There was a great lineup of Russians as the train came in from Moscow. At the head of the list were personalities of the Austrian government, the Soviet ambassador and foreign personnel.

Far down the line, among many junior clerks, stood the graying giver in a revived attack on the "cult of personality." Not in the entourage of the Soviet Party, Molotov and his wholesale list were denounced.

At the time of the 1961 party congress, Molotov still was in Vienna. In November, a month after the congress closed, he returned to Moscow by train. His only official duty to meet him were the secret police. But his wife Polina, a Jew, was arrested and Mrs. Molotov to a car. They walked down the platform to a waiting car, the Western newspaper men. There were no Soviet reporters present.

RECOGNIZED

A year ago Western reporters discovered he was in a hospital with gripe. Not a word in the Soviet press about it.

Last summer he showed up in Sofia to cast his vote in the voting station as Khrushchev. They didn't meet.

Then, suddenly, who once was premier, is reported to have received a pension of about $300 a month. Not a word in report that Molotov was pensioned, but he doubtless is. He and his wife are living with their daughter and her husband in an apartment not far from the Kremlin offices.

He can't travel abroad, nor apparently even in the Soviet Union. He is not known publicly what he does.

Soviet Leader Pleased With Visit to Tito

BELGRADE (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev clutched Yugoslav President Tito to his warm farewell embrace Tuesday and Yugoslav officials hailed Khrushchev's two-week visit here as a triumph for Yugoslavia's independent brand of communism.

The ever-worsening split with Red China was one of the chief subjects Khrushchev and Tito discussed during their junkets around Yugoslavia by train. It dictated they plotted strategy to keep the Chinese from undercutting them in the new nations of Asia and Africa.

But, in Yugoslav eyes, the most important result was the public stamp of approval Khrushchev gave Tito's maverick communism.

"Relations between our two countries," Tito said at the airport, "have been put on a realistic and firm basis which permit their further successful development."

His spokesmen, nevertheless, continued to make clear that this did not mean Tito would return to the Soviet bloc fron, which Stalin expelled him in 1948. His policy would still be, they said, to keep relations as smooth as possible with both East and West.

OTTAWA—A Federal loan of $150,000 to Picton for repair and expansion of its sewage treatment plant, today was approved by Revenue Minister John Garland through Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. The $150,000 figure was set for Picton when the cost of the $228,000 cost of the project, which includes installation of a prefabricated building and construction of a chlorine chamber and drying beds.

Kenya Quarrels With Somalis Over Territory

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Tension has risen sharply in East Africa over the Somali frontier district since the failure of the recent Rome conference on the territory's future which observers said today.

Political sources within the district have hinted at possible violence and troops of the British King's African Rifles and police are standing by for trouble.

About 280,000 Somalis live in the frontier district of the Somali Republic seeks secession of the district from Kenya before it has gained country's independence, scheduled for Dec. 12.

The Rome talks adjourned has declared it will keep the door open for further negotiations but "determined not to yield a single inch of Kenyan territory" to Somalia.

Kenya has suggested that should further direct talks between Somali and Kenya leaders fail, the dispute should be taken to the Pan-African Conference. But Kenya would not necessarily be bound by any decision made by the conference.

ON SOMALI SIDE

On the Somali side there has been no enthusiasm for Kenya's offer to talk, and an uneasy calm existed with all sides in which could turn the issue into the first major conflict between the two African states.

Political observers say Kenya's northern neighbor, Ethiopia, would wholeheartedly back Kenya's strong stand because it would help solve their frontier dispute and ease the perennial friction between Ethiopia and Somalia.

Observers believe Kenya's diplomats will launch a campaign to bring African opinion on the facts of the dispute before Kenya's independence.

The move will help to clarify Kenya's position in a dispute which has dragged on for some that would have to go before some form of African summit or possibly even the United Nations.

The sparsely-populated, barren district has a few villages, often isolated when rains bog down mud roads.

Probe Death Of Woman Given 'Cancer Serum'

TORONTO (CP) — The chief coroner of Metropolitan Toronto Tuesday advised a doctor to produce witnesses who could testify to the effectiveness of his anti-cancer serum.

Dr. Thomas J. Glover told a coroner's jury he treated a woman for breast cancer by injecting a serum into the muscles of her back. The serum was produced through inoculation of horses with pleomorphic microorganisms, a tiny form of life. He said he kept three horses for the purpose of producing the serum.

The jury is investigating the death of Elizabeth George, 66, who died Aug. 12 following bleeding from a cancer-eroded blood vessel.

Chief Coroner Dr. Morton Shulman adjourned the inquest to allow Dr. Glover time to bring witnesses to the serum's value.

In reply to questions from the coroner, Dr. Glover denied he ever offered a cancer remedy for sale by mail.

Mrs. George's husband, Albert, and her daughter, Irene Lock, both told the jury Mrs. George was frightened of surgery. The woman started going to Dr. Glover in March, 1962, the doctor recommended an operation.

Dr. Glover told the jury he advised Mrs. George to see a surgeon, that the cobalt ray-treatment injections would help ease the pain of cancer.

Rcbt. Schuman, Former French Premier, Dies

CP from AP-Reuters.

METZ, France—Robert Schuman, former French premier who was often called the father of European unity, died today following a long illness. He was 77.

Schuman laid out the plan for the European Coal and Steel Pool, a production and marketing organization linking France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

The same countries later formed the Common Market, or the European Economic Community. Promoters of European unity hope the Common Market will develop into a Europe welded together politically as well as economically.

The Schuman Plan was unveiled in 1950, when its author was foreign minister of France.

Schuman was taken seriously ill by months of increased duties of the Roman Catholic Church. He was suffering from a stroke and respiratory trouble. But he rallied and was able to receive friends. Death came this morning at Schuman's estate near this city in eastern France.

UNITY WAS PASSION

Schuman, a native of tiny Luxembourg, was schooled as a lawyer and entered public life shortly after the First World War. His goal soon became European unity which he pursued as virtually his sole passion in a lonely, secluded life.

He had been in failing health since early in 1961 when he collapsed while walking through the hills near his estate. He spent the winter night lying helplessly on a hillside and was discovered the next morning by a search party.

After a long recuperation, he attended the political activity finished an autobiography which is expected to be published soon.

Schuman studied law at Bonn, Munich, Berlin and Strasbourg and for a time practised in law in Metz during the occupation of Lorraine by Germany.

He was called up to serve in the administrative service of the German army in 1914 but was invalided out two years later.

After Lorraine was restored to France in 1918, he immediately became a Popular Democrat deputy in the French government.

IS DEPORTED

But during the Second World War, his anti-Nazi attitudes led to his deportation to Germany. He escaped and returned to southern France where he hid in a Benedictine monastery as a lay brother.

A confirmed bachelor, Schuman came to the premiership of France in the early years of the unstable Fourth Republic. He was punished after the Second World War. He served as premier for about seven months, beginning in late 1947, and again for only three days in late 1948. Later he was foreign minister for more than four years.

He was twice finance minister and brought his almost monastic way of life to the ministry. He cut off numerous telephone lines and was sometimes seen going through ministry offices putting out lights. He didn't own a car and frequently travelled about Paris on public buses.

Bald, lanky and stooped, he wore gold-rimmed spectacles to correct severe nearsightedness. His physical characteristics were the delight of political cartoonists. He had a gentle, scholarly manner, liked beer, detective books, poetry and books.

Will Investigate Administration Of Universities

TORONTO (CP)—An investigation of the administration of Canadian universities will be undertaken with the aid of funds from the United States, Dr. Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, announced Tuesday.

Dr. Bissell, chairman of a committee set up to administer a $50,000 grant from the Ford Foundation, said there is intense interest in Canada in the problem of university administration.

The investigation will be sponsored by the Canadian Association of University Teachers and the National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges.

Dr. Bissell said Sir James Mountford, a British author and vice-chancellor of the University of Liverpool, will act as executive commissioner for the investigation.

There also will be an associate commissioner — probably a prominent U.S. professor—but he was not named. The study will begin this fall and it is hoped the final report will be completed by March, 1965.

Underlying reasons for the investigation appear to be the increased pressure on universities as they expand facilities to meet the demands of a population explosion expected to reach its peak in 1970.

Stolen Cruiser Ends in Field, One Arrested

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A 28-mile chase involving 23 police cruisers chasing a stolen cruiser ended in a field near the Queen Elizabeth Way here Tuesday night.

The stolen cruiser had been taken from a Hamilton street while the officer made some purchases in a store. Moments later the cruiser was spotted by a constable in another cruiser.

The stolen cruiser, followed over the Burlington Bay Skyway, crashed a roadblock on the QEW by driving up the wrong side of the highway for nearly a mile.

Several cars were forced into the ditch as the stolen car criss-crossed the highway several times at speeds up to 90 miles an hour.

The driver was finally forced off the highway near Bronte, just west of Oakville. A man was arrested and charged with a police officer as he fled across a field.

Charged with auto theft was James Napier, 28, of Hamilton.

DENIED RUMOURS

Rumours that they were secretly married, which began to circulate early in the summer, were denied flatly by the couple. Miss Hunter was asked by The Associated Press at least three times whether the rumour was true. She said no each time.

Stovall, who worked as a summer reporter at the Atlanta Journal, was called into editor Jack Spivey's office and asked whether the reports were true. He said they were not.

William Tate, dean of men at the university, said Stovall denied that any serious relationship between him and Miss Hunter when he called Stovall into his office.

Ray Harris, a member of the university board of regents, had said:

"I am only one regent among 15 but it would appear to me that they (the couple) should defer false pretenses and they should be revoked. University rules bar secret marriages."

Queen's Plans Winter Course For Executives

KINGSTON — The number of Eastern Ontario executives who attend annual sessions of the winter executive program at Queen's University School of Business illustrates growing acceptance of a sound principle of modern business management — a business does not run by itself. This was pointed out today by Dr. F. D. Barrett, Chairman of the Queen's Executive Programs, in announcing plans for the 1963 winter executive program.

In the past four years more than 300 executives from Kingston, Trenton, Belleville, Smiths Falls, Brockville and Prescott have attended evening sessions at Queen's Business School during the winter to learn modern business techniques. Last year there were nine executives from Belleville. This year's 12-week series of classes begins Sept. 30.

Dr. Barrett said, "Today's executives in the Eastern Ontario area are a new breed. Our mounting registration figures show an increasing desire by them to keep up to 30 with the best methods of successful administration.

This year's course will run on Monday evenings and will be geared to administrative and supervisory personnel in business, industry, civil service, and other organizations.

The two instructors on the program will be Dr. Barrett, and Professor Frank Judge of the School of Business. Professor Judge was formerly Director of the Executive Development Institute of the Montreal Board of Trade and Executive Vice-President of the management consultant firm of Lee-Thaw-Simpson Limited.

Youth Returns To Face Trial, Bail Cancelled

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard Bizier, 18, returned to Montreal from the French islands of St. Pierre - Miquelon Tuesday and wound up in jail awaiting trial Sept. 9 on four charges in connection with Le Front de Liberation Quebecois terrorism. His bail was cancelled.

The youth told reporters on arriving at Montreal International Airport after a flight from Quebec City that he had dropped a petition to the French government for political asylum.

Bizier and 17 other persons charged as a result of the FLQ terrorism this spring are scheduled to face trial at the fall assizes.

He is charged specifically with conspiracy and intent to cause an explosion endangering persons or property and conspiracy to commit and committing mischief endangering life in connection with a dynamite explosion April 13 at the rear of an RCAF technical services unit in Montreal. No one was hurt in the blast.

Bizier went to the French islands 15 miles off the coast of Newfoundland one month ago after being granted bail.

He said his petition for political asylum to the French government was still under study but he was forgetting about it because so far as I am concerned, I don't want to be the cause of complications between France and Canada."

DENIES REPORTS

Bizier denied reports he had been told by the governor of St. Pierre-Miquelon that he would not be granted asylum. It was reported earlier he was not carrying a passport or other identification papers.

A warrant for his re-arrest was issued in Quebec Superior Court Tuesday after the court granted a Crown motion for cancellation of his $2,450 bail on the basis of statements attributed to him by St. Pierre-Miquelon that he would not return unless recognized as a political prisoner.

He was arrested a few hours later.

In upholding the Crown's request that bail be cancelled despite the youth's promise to return to Montreal, Mr. Justice Maurice Cousineau said Bizier's earlier statements constituted a "clear provocation" to the court.

DENIES REPORTS

Bizier, former elevator operator, said newspaper reports quoting him as saying he would return to Canada only on a political prisoner must have been caused by "some misunderstanding."

"I believe what I said was that I would return to French Canada but not to the British Empire."

He said he doesn't like the "violence attached to the FLQ movement, but I think it will go on unless there's changes in its attitude towards the French people in Canada."

He appeared calm and at ease during a hectic press conference. Bizier parried a question, asking him who paid for his trip home by saying "that is an indirect question."

TRENTON — The town fire department answered three calls, all to motor tires, over the long weekend. Total runs included one chicken coop, and one dog to an automobile.

First of the calls was at 11.57 a.m. Saturday, when Mrs. Dardon Sabine, of Quinte Orange, phoned to report a fire at the neighboring Jack Welter farm. Mrs. Welter was at the time, lost a chicken coop, but Trenton firemen arrived in time to prevent any spreading of the fire.

At 11.54 p.m. Saturday, R. Evison telephoned to report a car fire near the Queensway Motel, in Trenton. The motorist had extinguished the fire before firemen arrived, but one fireman disconnected the car's battery to prevent another flareup.

Airman Pleads Guilty to Three Theft Charges

TRENTON — Magistrate T. Y. Wills yesterday suspended sentence on a man who pleaded guilty on three theft charges. Joseph Marcel Gillis Fleury, of R.C.A.F. Station Trenton, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing two fishing rods and reels, one camera and a set of tools from parked cars in Trenton.

Judge King of Trenton police, was investigating an accident near the east end of the town, about 1.15 a.m. on August 25, when he noticed Fleury carrying the fishing rods. When the theft alarm was raised minutes later, Sgt. King picked up the suspect just outside the gates of the air station.

Yesterday, the airman pleaded guilty to the three counts separately. Magistrate Wills noted that it was his first offence and that a jail sentence would probably take disciplinary action. He imposed a one-year suspended sentence.

Phillip Jones, three-and-a-half, was left in the car at the Trenton municipal parking lot, on Front St., with his brother, Stephen, two-and-a-half, while his father, Gordon Jones, did some shopping. The car was parked along the centre line of parking meters in the lot, about 100 feet from the water, about 11.45 p.m.

Apparently, both boys left the car, walked down to the river, removed their shoes and began wading. When Mr. Jones returned to the car, about 11.57 a.m., the boys were missing. Mr. Jones found Phillip about eight feet from the Carr's Electric dock, in three-and-a-half feet of water. The boy was dead.

OTTAWA (CP) — Work stoppages in July involving 17,010 workers caused the loss of 181,030 man-days, the labor department said Tuesday. The department said in a written statement that 68 per cent of the time lost was accounted for by disputes involving fishermen on the British Columbia coast and construction workers in Toronto.

Plea for Toddlers

Life is funny!

Every so often, somebody does something that makes one feel ashamed, because one has seen the need for that action, but lacked the courage to perform it.

One would not think that this uncomfortable feeling could be blended with a comforting thought of satisfaction with the world, but one of our infrequent visitors accomplished that miracle mixture the other day.

He dropped in to call our attention to a mistake—not for the satisfaction of proving that we are less than perfect, which we know as well as he, but for the sake of saving us from a possible repetition, which would more than likely have occurred but for his intervention.

In short, as he himself avows, he remarked: "Some time you have a few inches to spare, you might write a piece about these women who stride along at a pace so fast a child has to run to keep up with them."

We knew just what he meant. Many a time we have felt sorry for some toddler being relentlessly dragged along behind a clicking pair of high heels, half-supported by an arm clutched in a strong hand. We have felt sorry—and looked the other way.

"These women don't realize what they are doing," declared our visitor. "I stop them; I say, "Madam, that child has to run to keep up with you'."

And that gave us a warm glow to wipe out the chilly feeling of cowardice.

Perhaps, you have to be a grandfather, or to be a grandfather's age, anyway, before you get that kind of courage. But, anyway, before that time arrives, the least we can do is grant his request and write a few lines about these harassed tots and their plight.

It may even be that some equally harassed mothers, caught between the necessity of shopping in a hurry and the impossibility of doing it without taking Junior and Baby Sis along, will even say, "Why thank you! I never realized."

That's all right M'am; don't thank us, thank our visitor.

Bodyguards

Tuesday was a school day for more than children.

Driving to work, we were surprised by the number of women we saw with a child, or children, in hand.

Some of these children looked to be not out of the toddler stage, apparently off to kindergarten. But others were older.

We presume that the older children were going to a strange school for the first time. It is understandable that they would be shy about making the venture themselves, and many parents, too, would hesitate to let a young child go to a strange school unguarded.

Still, we could not help wondering whether having mother for a bodyguard on the first morning of school was an ideal way for these youngsters, particularly the boys, to commence the task of making friends in a new environment. We are not even sure that the one we saw holding the hand of his father might not find the future a little rocky. (Most fathers, of course, have to be at work by school time.)

Some high schools start classes at different times for the new students, fresh from public school, and the "veterans" of a year or more.

Might this provide a guidepost to a change in system in elementary schools, new students, of whatever age, could be asked to assemble earlier than those returning to familiar surroundings. That way the parade of mothers to school could not cause the youngsters future embarrassment.

Turnabout

Four civil rights demonstrators in Americus, Georgia, are being held on charges of attempting to incite insurrection, according to a recent AP report. The offence of "attempting to incite insurrection" carries a possible death sentence in Georgia.

The situation, if a death sentence were imposed on civil rights demonstrators, would be most interesting. In this case, one would assume, the judge, the prosecutor and the executioner at least, would be in danger of the same charge. If executing a civil rights demonstrator on a trumped up charge could not be considered "attempting to incite insurrection" in the U.S. these days—what on earth could the charge cover?

Politicians are marvels of energy and principle when they're out of office, but when they get in, they simply run behind the machine.—John Galsworthy.

Iran's Dictator-Shah

By Arnold Beichman in the London Spectator

Perhaps it is unsociable to call the 44-year-old Shah of Iran a dictator, but I know of no other designation more suited to his rule.

Opposition leaders of the non-Communist National Front are in jail with no charges against them, no trial or sentence. The press is totally controlled by the regime and its secret police, the Savak.

Most recently, Sadegh Behdad, publisher of the newspaper Ettelaat, was arrested in mid-June for an editorial. His paper is no more, along with seventy-five magazine and newspapers, which were also suppressed.

The labor unions are fictions, since they have neither the legal right to strike nor the right to form a national trades union congress.

For more than two years the Shah and his cabinet have ruled by imperial decree and now under martial law, since there is no Majlis (Parliament). It was dissolved after two elections proved to be so obnoxiously rigged that it was felt better no Majlis than rule by fraud.

The Shah can choose the premier and, politically speaking the cabinet. He appoints one-half of the sixty-member Upper House.

He can dissolve one or both houses. He can reject a Majlis bill by forwarding his reasons. He is commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

His power is such that Abul Hasan Ebtehaj, an internationally-renowned Iranian banker-economist, sat in prison for 210 days during 1961-62 while his administration of the Plan Organization was under years earlier was investigated.

No charges were ever brought against him and he was finally released on "bail" of £52.5 million — by ministers of the body in Iran, except the Shah, might be said to possess.

One can catalogue further examples of what is an undistputable indictment over 23 million Iranians; excepting, of course, over the so-called "1,000 families," who own many of them, at the moment, are disenchanted with the Shah because of his land reform program.

The Shah undertook 18 months ago to wipe out the feudal system of land holdings by selling 40,000 out of an approximate 50,000 villages now privately owned, another 1,600 by the Shah himself, 1,450 by the government and 900 by the mullahs, a highly power in this Shi'a Moslem country.

In March, 1963, the government reported that 3,700 villages valued at 1,000 tomans had been distributed among 120,000 farm families.

It is here perhaps, that one should say. "Don't shoot the pianist; he's doing the best he can."

For there is an enormous amount of genuine, non-Communist criticism among Iranians that the land reform law is producing a collection of bankrupt villages which will end by reducing food production.

These criticisms come from trained Iranian economists, none of whom can be vouch are disgruntled landlords, mullahs, right-wing reactionaries, or Utopians.

The money for implementing this highly desirable program would be available if the Iran's swollen military budget were cut.

It now stands at $225 million though there are reports that the Shah plans a 20 per cent increase over the two years in the 200,000-man army.

The perfectly absurd fact about Iran is that it is not a poor country. On the contrary, it is one of the world's major oil producers.

Iran established a record of 130 million barrels for the first quarter of this year and by December 31 will have produced more than half a billion barrels.

Its revenues for 1963 are being estimated at $375 million or more than a million a day. Yet 60 per cent of this income goes to support a military force supposedly against an improbable Soviet invasion. Yet without this income the Shah would the Shah be today?

In a world where U.S. aid is allocated to France, Tito, Gomulka and Nasser, it should be easy to suppress moral indignation about the state of affairs in Iran. It should be, but it isn't.

Iran is different than other less developed lands because its people are extraordinarily intelligent and likeable, from the Shah down.

Rich or no, they are easy-going, friendly, warm-and, where they have had educational opportunities, are a gifted and sophisticated a population as is to be found anywhere.

An extraordinary tolerance characterizes the educated Iranian, who lacks the usual anti-western emotionalism to be found in other parts of the Middle East.

But the people lack the leadership worthy merit from a ruler whose instincts, it is agreed by his bitterest critics, are good but who finds dissent impossible to bear.

Strictly Personal

Add Lax Parent To List of Social Devils

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Every so often, with almost predictable regularity, the newspaper judge breaks into the newspapers with the firm announcement that parents have the obligation to hold the parents "strictly responsible" for cases of juvenile delinquency.

Loud applause from the galleries, sage shaking of heads by the older generation, and general approval from the editorial-ists — but only a weary sigh from the parents who happen to have a wayward or difficult child.

Society is a collective coward: It refuses to take the blame for its own ills, but prefers to parcel them out to smaller segments of the population. No matter what is wrong, we never blame ourselves as a people, but always indict a selected portion of the public as the Devil.

We blame Big Business, or Bad Labor, or Corrupt Police, or Poor Schools, or any convenient abstraction. In this way it is more comfortable for our sense of self-righteousness, and it relieves us of the responsibility for looking more deeply into the matter, and taking realistic steps to remedy it.

Now we have the Lax Parent added to the list of social devils. All we have to do is punish the adults, and juvenile lelinquency will diminish to a harmless prank.

The only thing wrong with this grand theory is that it ignores the small and stubborn facts; the most stubborn fact being this — that quite often the very best parents have the very worst children, and vice versa. If there is a law of character transmission from parent to child, no one has yet discovered it.

Children may become delinquent for any one of a dozen reasons: because the father is too strict or the mother too permissive; because of underprivilege or overprivilege; because the family is too puritan or too permissive; because too much is expected of the child, or too little demanded; because of a hundred different combinations of circumstances over which the parents have little, or no, conscious control.

Of course, in a few flagrant cases of drunkenness or brutality, the corroding effect can easily be traced. But in most of the thousands of decent, well-meaning and perplexed parents wake up one morning to find that somewhere along the line a cable has broken, an emotional bulb has burned out, and their boy has become a stranger and, often, an alien — the family!

There are menacing currents in the modern world that tear people from their roots, and that turn standards upside down. That threaten to capsize even the most stable craft. Juvenile delinquency is perhaps the most dramatic example of the tremors convulsing society; to point to the anguished and, frightened parents as the prime cause is a cheap and wicked evasion of the facts.

Everyone knows the difficulty there has been in securing jams, marmalades and jellies. The grocery trade has done its best in voluntarily rationing their commodities for some time but the problem remains. Barely is a jar of one of these left on a shelf for any length of time. Word now comes from a spokesman of the Prices Board that rationing of these also will be under consideration for some time.

Suspected of being a German prisoner-of-war, escaped from either a Canadian or American internment camp, but telling contradictory stories of his true identity, an unidentified young man is being detained by Belleville police following suspicions aroused when he attempted to enlist with the RCAVPC recruiting unit here last Friday. The young man who claims to be only 20 years of age, stated since his apprehension that he escaped from Bowmanville; that he, escaped from Sherbrooke internment camp, and from an American prisoner-of-war camp in Alabama. In his latest story told police he stated that he was born in Georgia, U.S.A., and that his name was James Edward Alewain.

Letter to The Editor

St. John Ambulance Role Is Expanded

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

Inquiries coming to our members, following news articles in the Intelligencer, indicate that we should clarify the role of St. John Ambulance in this community.

St. John Ambulance does not operate any ambulance service nor does it train persons specifically for the work. We are not connected with nor do we receive any remuneration from any ambulance company which is present where we are on duty.

No member of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, the uniformed people where usually seen on public duty at the fair, horse races, Zwick's Island, city parades and on other occasions, is allowed to receive any remuneration for services rendered or for supplies used. These people are absolutely volunteers and they cannot appear on duty at any affair unless the organization holding the event has asked St. John Ambulance to place personnel on duty. Even then we are not always needed. We fall only when and if we wish, since our members must volunteer to serve on each occasion.

There are variations also in first aid courses from the preliminary course which is given under sixteen years of age such as Scouts, Guides and others, the primary first aid course and the senior St. John Ambulance course. Any person who holds a valid senior certificate may teach the preliminary course. Thus Scouters may teach their boys or teachers may instruct their classes. Only qualified instructors, who have passed a [illegible] examination may give the senior course and for this they are paid a small fee. All St. John Ambulance qualified cations have a five-year life span only. First aid is a subject requiring much repetition and practice in order to be proficient. Every Brigade member whom you have seen on duty in full uniform has passed at least senior examinations, some of them up to twenty such tests over the years. We are regularly instructed by a surgeon.

The St. John Ambulance branch in Belleville with its four Divisions is supported almost entirely by funds received by allocation from United Appeal and from individuals who want to see our service grow. Not one cent of this goes to any member for his or her public service.

John W. Hodgson,
Divisional Superintendent,
No. 329 Ambulance Division.

Hypertensive Vascular Disease Described by M.D.

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Doctor: Kindly describe hypertensive vascular disease. — H. N. M.

Hypertensive vascular disease is high blood pressure with some degree of blood vessel and heart involvement.

"Hypertension" is quite understandably a misconstrued term. For whatever reasons, we all think first of "tension" in terms of "nervousness."

That isn't what it means in "hypertensive disease." Hypertension (or low-grade-tension"), simply means too much pressure. High blood pressure!

We are commonly confused further because too much nervous tension is a frequent companion of too much blood-pressure tension. They often go together. But not always.

There is a further complication in the term, hypertensive vascular disease. The implication is that it is of long standing. There isn't any reason to be disturbed over a temporary increase in blood pressure. You "blow your top" at some situation or other; or you are frightened; or you have to fight to call your energy and alertness for an emergency; or you are scared. Your blood pressure rises. If we could measure blood pressure on the run, we'd find a number of the players on a football team have a "high blood pressure" or "hypertension" just before the kick-off.

That's a natural response. It is good. But it should be temporary. If the pressure, for no valid reason, continues indefinitely, it is then that it makes it "vascular"). The heart becomes enlarged. There may or may not be the symptoms of weakness — shortness of breath, swelling of the ankles. Or heart pain.

An electrocardiogram may or may not reveal changes.

Temporary high blood pressure is to be expected. Continued high pressure is not. Therefore, whatever can be done to make it easier implies that the trouble is continuing, and is producing other changes.

The seriousness depends upon the duration and height of their pressure, plus any sign of heart involvement.

Not all cases of high blood pressure need heart complications. But when your doctor says that you have hypertensive vascular disease, it is time for strict attention-to such things as he may advise to, bring th a t more down.

All of us can have brief instances of high blood pressure which will not hurt us and may, indeed, be very helpful to us. But if we fall into a habitual habit of continued high pressure, we'd better do something about it.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To review the facts of my pamphlet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 3338, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and 15 cents in coin to cover handling.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about fungus growth beneath fingernails? Some of T have them and there is a long treatment of perhaps nine months to a year. — Mrs. E. T.

Griseofulvin has been effective in treating fungus infections of some types. Since the nails grow slowly, the treatment must be spread over a long time before you can be entirely rid of infected tissues. The drug should be taken under medical supervision.

Dear Dr. Molner: My mother in her 60's, has been troubled with polyps in the rectum. She told me of the cause and the cure. — Mrs. H. K.

The cause of polyps in the colon (just above the rectum, and I suspect that is what you mean) is not known. They should be watched for any sign of change or bleeding, in which case they should be removed surgically. This is the only procedure — and the only way to be safe since changes in such polyps may be a forerunner of cancer.

Wolf Given Invitation

Brantford Expositor

How many of the married women who go out to work really want to? How many can honestly say they enjoy doing double duty and don't feel the strain of it? How many do it in resentment and desperation?

One of the franker sort has a refreshing way of stating, "Going to work means doing half a day's job before you even leave the house, and coming home to work for the family, seeing that the cat is fed, the beds made, Johnny has a music lesson and Mary is nearly combed, the meat put on to thaw for supper, etc. I'd rather stay to home. I believe millions of other working women would, too."

Then why do they do it? They need the money, and most of them say, "to help pay household economy". But is it altogether today's economy? "It's not fun to raise a family with the wolf at the door", said the frank working mother quoted above. But who brought the wolf to the door? In most cases, he didn't come of his own accord.

He fared with bills and the bill collector simply because consumer credit dropped waiting for things till they can pay for them. Grandma was no stranger to the wolf at the door when pay was far lower than now. On today's incomes, higher at every economic level by far they have ever been, she could have kept the wolf a mile away. Mother, for instance, would herself be influenced by the fact that the family next door is getting things and she feels essential to a reasonably comfortable standard of living. She had the moral backbone to let her own spending pace geared to her husband's, but for some one else decide it for her. Balance of her cash went into the household budget, as much of each "easy payment" does today.

But that's the way of it. Today, to get the things they want, but don't always need, people take on obligations, sometimes often beyond what prudence would dictate. Then they need more income, and the only way to get it is to put mother on a payroll. So out to work she goes, the envy of many of the family doing double shift. Once she starts, she finds it hard to stop. There is always something else the family want, but not necessarily need.

So let's not blame today's economy. Most mothers working by any outside-the-home standing so by choice. If they don't like it, the remedy is at hand. If they have the industrial fortitude to wait for the things they would like to buy.

tained in Canada for reconnaissance. The plane to be chosen may be the U.S. F-111, still under development.

Canada is expected to drop out of the jet interception role but maintain its detection and tracking systems in North America and the North Atlantic in co-operation with the United States.

The background to the emerging defence policy is the nuclear stalemate.

Authorities here say the nuclear missile forces of the U.S. and Russia are invulnerable to the extent that neither could knock out the other at the first blow. Thus neither would dare to attack the other.

In these circumstances, officials see no meaningful nuclear role for Canada once the Voodoo jet interceptor and Bomarc anti-aircraft missile have served their time—another two or three years.

Students Storm Downtown Stores for School Equipment

Downtown bookstores did a voluminous business yesterday as the entire district school population — now greater than ever — exploded around their doors.

Buying everything from brand new text books to brand new pencils, secondary and elementary pupils thronged the city business area through the day.

One of the stores estimated they did business with some 5,000 elementary and secondary pupils during the length of a busy, bustling day.

Total registration at city high schools is up 200 over last year.

A breakdown shows registration at the three city high schools for the new educational year at: BCVS — 1,160; Quinte Secondary — 1,060; Moira — 1,120.

Protest Lack Of Bus Service

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—About 100 children were refused from re-starting to school here Tuesday when their parents objected to the lack of bus service.

A school board meeting was called Tuesday night to discuss the matter. The children attend Ontario Street Public School, St. Joseph's Separate School and Bowmanville High School.

One woman said it cost her about $120 to send her three children to school by bus last year, at $1 a child a week.

"We should not have to take off the table to send our children to school," said Mrs. Gordon Peterson. She said her three children would not return to classes until transportation is provided.

SIGHT COMET

GREENBELT, Md. (AP) — Goddard Space Flight Centre said Tuesday that a faint comet has been discovered near the sun. The centre said a Belgian astrophysicist, Dr. Francois V. Dossin of Liege, discovered the comet July 20 during the total eclipse of the sun.

Excited Egyptian seamen hampered by language difficulties, spread rumors that three bodies had been found. One of these turned out to be Capt. Abdullah Attia's pet labrador retriever. His two siamese cats were still missing.

Two firemen were injured, but both were reported in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Tom Simpson suffered pastilis fractures when he plunged 35 feet to the concrete dock when a high - pressure hose whipped across the deck and knocked him from a ladder. Dougl Howerd was burned when hot glass fell into his boots.

"It's my legs and back," Simpson moaned as the bare-footed ship's doctor, Hanaly Mabood of Alexandria, tended him until an ambulance arrived.

FIND GIRL NEARBY

Firemen and police arrived at the dock shortly after 4:30 a.m. to find blonde Kitty Bahlstar of Toronto in hysterics at the ship's side. She had been aboard earlier in the night with a girl friend, Sally Cyrette, also of Toronto.

"My girl friend's still on board," Kitty screamed as she ran towards police.

Firemen discovered Sally had left the ship a few minutes before the alarm was sounded.

Fire Chief Swanborough said the cause of the fire was not known.

"There were two females on board and, as I understand it, some sort of party," he said.

Historical Society Members Make Tour of Madoc Area

The Hastings County Historical Society held a highly successful tour to the Madoc area last Saturday.

The tour was arranged by Mr. Roy Cadwell, executive director of the Madoc Art Centre and the headquarters for the group was at the Madoc Art Centre, located just west of Actinolite on Highway 7.

During the morning Mr. and Mrs. Cadwell were hosts to the visitors and an enjoyable time was spent exploring the land around the Art Centre. Evidences of an old mill and a deserted mine shaft recalled the days when this area around Actinolite and Bridgewater was a bustling community, thanks largely to the enterprise of Bills Flint.

Tour members took advantage of the picturesque setting of the Art Centre to relax and enjoy a leisurely coffee break and lunch. The tall pines, the white clouds floating in the blue sky, the sounds of the wind and the Black Creek meandering nearby, and the interesting conversations covering a host of historical topics, combined to make this a day to be remembered.

At the conclusion of the lunch, the appreciation of the group was voiced to Mr. and Mrs. Cadwell by Mr. Lloyd Boyce, the president of the Hastings County Historical Society. As a tangible evidence of appreciation, a donation was made to the Art School's Scholarship Fund and an 1826 coloured map of Hastings County was presented to the Art Centre.

Tour members then left by car to visit other nearby points of interest. First on the list was the picturesque village of Queensboro where several interesting styles of architecture were seen. In McMurray's General Store, several local residents including the reeve of Elsevir Township and executive members of the Women's Institute described the beginnings and growth of Queensboro. An interesting discussion was held concerning that part of the county and also the growth of Actinolite and Bridgewater.

From Queensboro, the tour moved to Madoc, where Connor's Hardware Store and the Madoc Art Gallery were visited. Next on the agenda was the historic O'Hara Mill, restored by the Moira River Conservation Authority. Unfortunately, a very low water level in the mill pond now prevents operation of the mill.

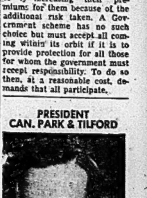
Returning to the Madoc Art Centre for afternoon tea it was unanimously decided that similar tours should be held in future and Mr. Cadwell expressed his wish that the historical society would soon be able to visit other historic points of interest in the vicinity of the Madoc Art Centre.

Unemployment Insurance Questions and Answers

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Following are some questions with answers which may be of interest to you.



Q. The union I belong to is our company for a guaranteed annual wage. There has been some objection to our going after this form of security on the grounds that we would no longer be eligible for unemployment insurance benefit when laid off. Is this correct?

A. Full particulars of the proposed plan would be required before a definite answer can be given as to whether money received under such plan would affect the right to receive unemployment insurance benefit.

Q. If unemployment insurance is comparable to fire insurance and thus only insures a person against a risk of losing his employment, why is it compulsory?

A. Unemployment insurance is comparable to fire insurance in that in both cases protection is afforded against a risk. But often unemployment insurance is regarded as a savings account and the public makes that "because I have paid in for so many years, I should get something out". Many persons insure their property against fire and theft, dispose of some such property on which no fire took place, would not think of going to the insurance company and asking for a refund because of no claim. As to the compulsory feature of unemployment insurance the reason is this. It is desirable and re ascheme of social insurance cover the person. This is facilitated if the scheme is compulsory because the risk is spread over a large group. However, if the matter of protection were left to the individual it is safe to assume that mainly the poorer risks would participate, while those who thought they were unlikely to require the protection, would not. Commercial insurance, which is voluntary, copes with this by refusing bad risks or by increasing their premiums for them because of the additional risk taken. A Government scheme has no such choice but must accept all coming within its orbit if it is to provide protection for all those for whom the government must accept responsibility: To do so then, at a reasonable cost, demands that all participate.

couples and at least a dozen children in the village were reported orphaned. The couples were flying to Geneva on a visit to agricultural institutions.

Small pieces from the plane were found scattered around the countryside as far as eight miles from the crater. Experts said these must have broken off before the explosion as the wreckage could have not been scattered so far by the impact.

A Swissair official said there were 74 passengers aboard the plane and a crew of six—pilot, co-pilot, three stewardesses and a steward.

He said the Zurich airport lost contact with the plane five minutes after it took off.

Mrs. Emil Leuenber, wife of a Duerrenaasch baker, told reporters she and her family "first thought the cork factory across the road had exploded. The whole house shook, all the window panes went to pieces.

"The plane came down about 200 yards from our house. When we got there we saw only a part of the fuselage sticking out of a deep crater. The rest of the plane was strewn in bits and pieces over the houses in the area.

AMBULANCES NOT NEEDED

"Several fire trucks and ambulances had arrived within minutes. But the ambulances left again soon. They were of no use.

"Human remains were thrown all over the place. It was horrible."

The plane damaged the village's main power line, tore off the roof of a barn and destroyed the upper part of the home of Heinrich Lienhard, 72-year-old farmer and businessman who was having breakfast in his kitchen. He escaped injury. Firemen quickly doused the flames.

"I felt and heard the roof of the house being sliced off and thrown over my bedroom balcony," Leinhard said.

"I was tremendously lucky. My room was at the far end of the house from the crash.

"I missed death by a hairsbreadth."

Charred pieces of luggage and broken umbrellas were scattered around the smoking crater. Pieces of the Caravelle were found 700 yards from the crash scene.

Mrs. Oskar Sager said she and her husband were in the kitchen when they heard a massive explosion which shook their house.

"I looked out into the early morning mist and saw what looked like a great burst of fire break through in front of the house," she said.

The French-designed twin-jet, medium to short range Caravelle was designed to carry 64 first class passengers or 80 tourist class.

The crash was the third involving fatalities in operation of the Caravelles.

The first, at Ankara, Turkey, Jan. 19, 1960, killed 41 persons. The second, at Rabat, Morocco, Sept. 12, 1961, killed 77.

municipal scandals in Ontario has been "breaking out like a pox on the body politic."

They claimed the Conservative government refused to investigate municipal scandals and now they had reached "epidemic proportions."

Earlier in Hamilton, he criticized the Roach royal commission on crime as having failed to solve the problem of organized underworld activities in Ontario.

Mr. MacDonald's itinerary for today includes a visit to Toronto.

CHARGES 'SMEARS'

In Fort William, the premier charged Mr. Wintermeyer with delivering "innuendoes and smears" on matters which he had not mentioned in the legislature but had "treasured up" for the election campaign.

"One would think he would have learned that you can't make progress by throwing mud."

Arthur Reaume, Liberal member for Essex North, also came under the premier's fire for a recent prediction that the campaign would be the wildest since the Boston tea party.

Mr. Robarts said he could only conclude Mr. Reaume was the manufacturer of poison in the campaign and Mr. Wintermeyer the chief dispenser.

He denied Liberal charges that he has been trying to sabotage the federal Canada Pension Plan.

Mr. MacDonald said in St. Catharines that no provincial government in Canada ever experienced "such a relentless succession of scandals" as has the Progressive Conservatives in Ontario during the last 18 years.

"The situation has gone from bad to worse because the provincial government has persistently tried to cover up, rather than clean up, its own mess," he said.

But the NDP chief managed to save some criticism for Mr. Wintermeyer, "the one man who hasn't got a political leg to stand on over the Northern Ontario Natural Gas affair."

He said when the Liberal leader proceeds to run down the Conservative administration, the public is entitled to ask: "Where were you, John, when these issues were first raised in the legislature?"

Mr. Wintermeyer told 124 persons at a Liberal rally in Pembroke it was time Mr. Roberts announced his stand on the issue of the federal government's Canada Pension Plan.

"This is a situation where only a yes or no will do," he said, stressing that voters are entitled to know the premier's stand before they vote Sept. 25.

"If the Canada Pension Plan stays, great chunks of the Robarts pension legislation will have to be cut out," the Liberal leader said. "The guts will have to be ripped out of it."

HAS 29 MEMBERS

Ontario party spokesmen said this group, calling itself The League of Social Credit Action, is a splinter group composed of only 30 members.

However, MPs did not support the Granby resolutions disowning Mr. Thompson and calling for new national and parliamentary leaders in a caucus held right after the vote Sunday. Only seven publicly supported him.

Mr. Caouette, trying to head off dissidents, threatened to campaign in the home riding of any Quebec Social Credit MP who did not support the convention resolutions.

This did not deter six MPs who invited not only Mr. Thompson but Dr. Guy Marcoux to a Montreal meeting Monday after which they issued a statement in support of Mr. Thompson. Dr. Marcoux, elected a party MP in Quebec — Montmorency, quit the party after the April 8 federal election following a dispute with Mr. Caouette.

He said he was ready to return to the party and lead a reorganization of Quebec Social Credit forces under Mr. Thompson's leadership.

Mr. Caouette had predicted the repudiation of Mr. Thompson's authority would be opposed but reliable sources said he was taken aback by the immediate opposition of the six MPs.

HAVE 19 BACKERS

The present line-up in the power battle gives Mr. Thompson's side 19 MPs, including the three other Western Canada Social Credit representatives, as well as a future supporter in Dr. Marcoux.

Mr. Caouette's 10 in Mr. Caouette's group and three remain undecided.

Maurice Cote, Chicoutimi; Marcel Lessard, Lac St. Jean; Gerard Ouellet, Rimouski; party whip Jean - Louis Frenette, Portneuf; Gerard Girouard, Labelle, and Gerard Chapdelaine, Sherbrooke, were the Quebec MPs who supported Mr. Thompson Monday.

None of these was among the six Quebec Social Credit MPs who created a turmoil in the party April 12 by announcing they intended to support the new ministry of Liberal government, a pledge they later withdrew. Dr. Marcoux resigned shortly afterwards.

The nine who supported Mr. Caouette are: Gilles Gregoire, Lapointe; Gilbert Rondeau, Shefford; Raymond Langlois, Megantic; Gerard Perron, Beauce; Charles Gauthier, Roberval; Pierre - Andre Boulin, Dorchester; Antoine Belanger, Charlevoix; Gerard Laprise, Chapleau and Henri Latulippe, Compton-Frontenac.

Of these, four had announced their support of the Liberals comprising Mr. Perron, who acted as spokesman for the group, Mr. Boutin, Mr. Langlois and Mr. Rondeau.

The other two who signed the Liberal pledge are Lucien Plourde, Quebec West and Robert Beaule, Quebec East, who have remained uncommitted in the Caouette-Thompson dispute along with Charles - Eugene Dionne, Kamouraska.

change in regulations covering the $600 Ontario scholarships for students who average 80 per cent for eight Grade 13 examinations.

CAN COUNT MARKS

Bright students who take senior matriculation subjects as extra work while in lower grades now will be allowed to count the marks toward their scholarship average.

Other than that, the 80 per cent average will still have to be obtained in a single year's work.

The minister said supplemental examinations, similar to the system in use in most university's, are being considered by the department for students who fail one or two Grade 13 examinations.

The students, he said, would be allowed to rewrite the examinations during the summer and start university or Teacher's College without repeating the whole year.

The supplemental examinations were once offered applicants to Teacher's College, but they were dropped a few years ago.

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Liberal Leader Wants Premier To State Stand

By BEN WARD

PEMBROKE (CP) — A flat challenge to Premier Roberts to state exactly where he stands on the issue of the federal government's Canada Pension Plan was issued Tuesday night by Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer.

"This is the situation where only a yes or a no will do," Mr. Wintermeyer told an election rally.

Mr. Wintermeyer spoke to 194 persons in the Royal Canadian Legion hall in support of George Wallace, Liberal candidate in Renfrew North, and Len Gulley, the party's candidate in Renfrew South.

The Liberal leader said the national pension plan and Mr. Roberts' portable pension plan cannot exist together. Ontario could not afford two compulsory pension plans and the federal proposal contains far greater benefits for the worker.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the voters are entitled to know where the premier stands. They should be told before the province votes in the Sept. 30 election.

"If the Canada Pension Plan stays, great chunks of the Roberts pension legislation will have to be cut out," he said. "The guts will have to be ripped out of it."

WANTS CLEAR ANSWER

He demanded there be "no weasel words" in Mr. Roberts' reply. "Let there be a clear yes or no."

Mr. Wintermeyer said he had been trying to smoke Mr. Roberts out of the bush on the pension issue ever since the election campaign began.

"First the Tory leader said it was ridiculous to say he was opposed to the Canada Pension Plan. That got us nowhere because his own partial pension scheme shows he is opposed to the Canada Pension Plan.

"Then he said he wasn't going to endorse or oppose a Canada Pension Plan because he was awaiting further information. That was a small step forward because it meant we had sighted a new ridiculous policy.

"Then he said he would send one of his Tory colleagues to the federal - provincial conference on pensions in Ottawa next weekend. That was progress indeed, because when the Tory leader called this election, he told the press he would not go to the conference and he hadn't chosen any colleague to go."

Mr. Wintermeyer said the latest word from the premier is that he will make a public statement on pensions sometime next week.

GETTING THERE

"So we're getting there. It's just possible that sometime next week the leader of the Tory party will indeed consent to tell the voters of Ontario where he stands on pensions."

Earlier the day, Mr. Wintermeyer flew from Sault Ste. Marie to Ottawa in his chartered DC3 airliner and then boarded a bus for a tour of the Ottawa Valley.

At Renfrew, the Liberal leader visited the Bonnechere Home of the Aged and spoke to 53 elderly residents in the home's auditorium on the need of a Canada Pension Plan.

There were gasps and laughs from his audience when he stated that under the Canada Pension Plan would provide a total old age pension of $175 a month after the first 10 years of operation.

"I know that's an ambitious goal," Mr. Wintermeyer assured his audience. "But we are determined that if a Liberal government is elected in Ontario it will be accomplished."

Ontario Rocked By Scandal Says NDP Leader

By DAVID DAVIDSON

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Tuesday a rash of Ontario municipal scandals has been "breaking out like a pox on the body politic."

No provincial government in Canadian history has been rocked with "such a relentless succession of scandals" as has the Progressive Conservative administration in Ontario in the last 10 years, he said at a press conference.

The NDP chief said the "situation has gone from bad to worse because the provincial government has persistently tried to cover up, rather than clean up, its own mess."

Mr. MacDonald said it has been Queen's Park policy to refuse direct action on municipal scandals whether in Eastview, Belleville, York Township or Mimico. Breaches of the Municipal Act had reached epidemic proportions.

He said at a public meeting here, he said that equality of educational opportunity was the right of every child in Ontario.

"A greater equity in the distribution of the burden of education finances is the need in Ontario," he said.

COULD BE NET

The top objectives could be met through what he called the foundation program in education finance, which could be worked out in this manner:

1. Vigorous implementation of the long-standing policy of equalized assessment in municipalities across the province.

2. Determination of an adequate standard for local education programs, bearing in mind the higher educational requirements of today.

3. Establishment of a uniform tax rate for the whole province and this would reveal the revenue capacity of each school district.

Mr. MacDonald said any school district would be free to raise further revenues to improve standards beyond the province-wide standard.

RITE COMMISSION

At his afternoon press conference, which followed one earlier in Hamilton, the NDP leader claimed the Roach royal commission on crime established by the Conservative government was not enough. The problem was how to deal with organized underworld activities in the province.

"Investigation of crime is a continuing thing. One possibility of dealing with it would be to set up certain investigative branches of the Ontario Provincial Police."

He also called for greater liaison between the RCMP and the Ontario Provincial Police to avoid what he described as duplication of efforts in fighting crime.

FLOWN TO SCHOOL

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — A two-week airlift has brought 200 Eskimo children from the far corners of the central and western Arctic to school in this northern community 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton. Arctic bush pilots searched out Eskimo families throughout the Northwest Territories and passed on the word that the school bus—a Pacific Western Airlines four-engined DC4 was on the way.

Premier Takes Gloves Off, Changes Tactics

By JOHN LeBLANC

PORT WILLIAM (CP)—Premier Robarts Monday night began preparing for the second round of the Ontario general election campaign Tuesday night and accused the Liberals of trying to unseat him by a campaign of "vilification and falsification."

Dropping his relaxed approach of the campaign's early stages, he announced that "the gloves are off" and charged Liberal Leader Wintermeyer with dispensing "poison" and substituting slander for policy.

He said the Liberal leader now was delivering "innuendoes and smears" on matters which he had not bothered to talk in the legislature but had "treasured up" for the campaign in the Sept. 30 election.

"It is the substitution of slander for policy or platform," he said.

The premier also attacked Arthur Reaume, Liberal member of the legislature for Essex North, who recently said the province's health plan is the widest since the Boston Tea Party.

REAUME MAKES PI

He drew the conclusion, Mr. Robarts said, that Mr. Reaume was the manufacturer of poison in the campaign and Mr. Wintermeyer the chief dispenser."

Mr. Robarts slammed the Liberal leader for his part in connection with the Ontario royal commission on crime, which resulted in charges made by Mr. Wintermeyer.

The opposition chief had "wilfied and slandered ministers and accused them of being in cahoots with criminals, but," the premier said, "commissioner Mr. Justice W. D. Roach had found the charges false.

"Mr. Wintermeyer was left without a leg to stand on, without a feather to fly with," Mr. Robarts said.

"One would think he would have learned that you can't make progress by throwing mud. But Mr. Wintermeyer was "back at the same old stand — new innuendoes, new charges of corruption."

(An aide said Mr. Robarts was referring particularly to Mr. Wintermeyer's allegation that Naldo Bacci, Conservative politician and administrator of the White River Provincial Forestry District, was able to profit by land purchases because of advance knowledge of the Trans-Canada Highway route plans. Mr. Robarts has ordered this investigated.)

"He doesn't want charges investigated," the premier said, "he wants to hurl mud and hope that it sticks.

"I will say tonight," Mr. Robarts said, "that the gloves are off in this campaign. If they have any decency at all I could take this campaign of vilification, innuendo and falsification lying down, but I cannot and think coming."

He told a 6-a-plate buffet dinner attended by about 400 that if his government is returned he will call a legislative special session of the legislature to pass legislation enabling Ontario municipalities to take advantage of the federal government's new $400,000,000 municipal development loan fund.

MAKES ANNOUNCEMENTS

He also announced that:

1. The special sitting would reconstitute committees dealing with municipal law and investigating high interest rates on borrowing. These committees expired when the house was prorogued for the election and Mr. Robarts said he wants them to resume work so their reports can be tabled at the legislature at the next regular session.

2. After the election, he would hold periodical sessions of the cabinet at different places in Northern Ontario so the government can be made more aware of problems of the North.

Dealing with the municipal loan legislation, he said the federal bill was largely rewritten from its original form in line with suggestions made by himself and he now feels that Ontario municipalities will be able to take full advantage of $141,000,000 which would be allocated to Toronto.

"I am determined that our municipalities will be able to avail themselves of the fund this year," he said, adding that his Sept. purpose is to create jobs immediately.

Until the special session was held, technical officials of the Ontario government would work at setting up machinery so that loans could be taken up in Ontario as soon as they become available from the federal treasury.

Discussing another piece of federal legislation he denied Liberal charges that he has been trying to sabotage the Canada Pension Plan. He said he had already informed Prime Minister Pearson that he would raise no constitutional barriers to the federal plan and he did not see what other barriers he could raise.

"The statements of Mr. Wintermeyer that I am sabotaging the pension plan are the height of irresponsibility," he said. He said it was part of the Liberal system of trying to create chaos so they could seize power.

Earlier Tuesday at Kenora, Mr. Robarts said that his government intends to continue increasing aid towards the cost of municipal services.

Campaigning in Liberal-held Kenora riding in northwestern Ontario, he told a party luncheon meeting that "our aid to municipalities has been consistently increasing and we intend to keep it that way."

Mr. Robarts, whose listeners included several area municipal officers, pointed particularly to Conservative spending on schools and public welfare. Comparisons with the record of previous Liberal administrations he said were in many cases ridiculous.

During a crowded day Mr. Robarts—leading off the second week of his campaign for the Sept. 30 election—started off with a flying circuit of a large area of the big constituency, then flew to the Lakehead for a night speech.

The premier, who flew to Kenora Monday night, switched to a single-engine float plane Tuesday and inspected the proposed route of a 1,000-mile road between Kenora and a mining development at Werner Lake to the northwest.

He told the Kenora group later it was possible the route might be developed from the tourist standpoint. He also dropped down at the paper-making town of Dryden where he chatted informally with about 30 residents who came down to the wharf for his unheralded appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. Terrence W. Foley are shown following their recent marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Shirley Ann St. Denis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rene St. Denis, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Foley, also of Belleville.

FOLEY — ST. DENIS

Pink, red and white gladioli formed a colorful background setting in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville when Shirley Ann St. Denis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rene St. Denis, Belleville, became the bride of Terrence W. Foley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Foley, Belleville. Father T. Boyle officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss D. Grant at the organ rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Bob Burke in his renditions of "Ave Maria," "Mother At Thy Feet," and the "Wedding Hymn".

The bride given in marriage by her father wore an elegant gown of white sata peau featuring a fitted bodice and controlled bell skirt. The bodice with high round neckline and long lily-point sleeves dipped to a V in back. The bell skirt dipped gracefully to a chapel train in the back and was trimmed in front with a panel of satin ribbon studded with French bows. Her four-tier absolutely bell with the double-looped edges fell from an organdy multiflux adorned with organdy roses and seed pearls. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

Mrs. Robert Brooks, Belleville as matron of honor and the bridesmaids, Miss Elaine Foley, Belleville, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Gwen Jones of Kingston were identically attired in gowns of white chiffon featuring draped bodices with shoe string straps and slim sheath skirts. Over these were worn jackets of chiffon which flowed into two floating panels in the back. Their headdresses were made of three satin roses with white at leaves. Each carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white shasta 'mums, deep pink carnations with trailing ivy. The little flower girl Miss Karen Brooks, niece of the bride was dressed in a short white organdy dress with white satin ribbon belt. Her headpiece was a ring of deep pink carnations and white 'mums and she carried a tiny semi-cascade bouquet of deep pink carnations and white Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Douglas Foley of Morrisburg, brother of the bridegroom was best man, while Mr. Leo St. Denis, Picton, brother of the bride and Mr. Blake Griffin of Kingston were the ushers.

A reception for 70 guests was held at Club Canara, Belleville, where the bridal table was prettily appointed with white damask cloth, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake and flanked with lighted tapers in crystal candelabra. The bridal bouquets acted as the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a dusty rose silk chiffon sheath, pink accessories and a corsage of deep pink roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a silk chiffon sheath dress, turquoise tulle hat, black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to New York City and home by way of Niagara Falls the bride chose a three-piece cotton suit consisting of a chocolate brown skirt and mottled white and brown jacket trimmed with brown white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Detroit, Michigan; Bancroft; Trenton; Kingston; Port Hope; Picton; Toronto; Morrisburg; Ivanhoe and Belleville.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored with a presentation of a statuts of Our Lady of Fatima from Sodality; a presentation of crystal salad dish and serving dishes from the fellow teachers at St. Joseph's School; at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Barry Box with Mrs. Cathreine Brennan as co-hostess; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Cecil Smith and at a crystal and china shower at the home of Miss Patricia Pigden.

Mr. and Mrs. Foley will reside at 134 Arthur Street, Gananoque, Ontario.

WEDDING

WEBB — FOLLWELL

NIAGARA FALLS — Drummond Hill Presbyterian Church, decorated with altar vases and two standards of white and aqua gladioli, formed a pretty setting for the marriage of Miss Margaret Eleanor Amy Follwell and Mr. Bruce Malcolm Webb, on Saturday afternoon at 4.00 o'clock. The Rev. William J. McKeown officiated and the wedding music was played by Mr. Fred W. Timms.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Charles Follwell, Armoury Street, this city. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reginald Webb, Brimorton Drive, Scarborough, Ontario.

Radiant in a floor-length gown of white sata peau, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Featuring long sleeves and a bateau neckline accented with Swiss appliques and string pearls, the fitted bodice of her gown dipped into a deep V in front and back to emphasize the tiny waistline. The full skirt formed an inverted pleat in the front framing a front panel of appliqued Swiss embroidery and pearls. From a wide French bow in the back, the pleated skirt fell softly into a chapel train. Her bonnet fingertip veil was held in place by a pearl trimmed wedding ring crown and she carried a cascade of red roses, white stephanotis and ivy foliage.

The maid of honor, Miss Diana Cox, Buffalo, N.Y., cousin of the bride, and bridesmaids, Mrs. W. E. Follwell, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. R. C. Pratt and Mrs. L. Mepham, all of Toronto, were attired similarly. Their patterned white French lace over aqua gowns were styled with controlled bell skirts, scoop necklines, and three-quarter length sleeves. They wore flat hoop headbands of aqua. Turquoise shasta 'mums with white stephanotis and ivy foliage formed their crescent cascades.

The bridegroom's attendants were: Mr. Lawrence Mepham, Toronto, best man and ushers, Mr. Roy Webb, Scarborough, brother of the bridegroom, Mr. William E. Follwell, Toronto, brother of the bride and Mr. Edward Densmore, also of Toronto.

Autumn hues of golds and greens patterned Mrs. Follwell's gilded organza sheath fashioned on softly side-draped lines. Beige accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses complemented her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother, favored a turquoise silk shantung sheath accented by beige accessories. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses.

Before leaving on a honeymoon trip to northern Ontario, the bride changed into a sea foam green silk shantung ensemble featuring a shift dress with a mandarin three-quarter coat of the same material. She chose white accessories and her corsage was of pale pink cymbidium orchids.

The future residence of the newlyweds will be Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario.

Hospital Auxiliary Opens Opportunity Shop Tuesday

With a fresh stock of used clothing, household goods, books, handicrafts, shoes, hats and other useful items, the Opportunity Shop in the Market Square opened its doors on Tuesday afternoon for another season. Every day except Wednesday the shop is open from 2 to 4, on Fridays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. as well, and on Saturday from 9.30 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is operated by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital.

A new table with eight bins has been installed this year to hold the extra merchandise, and here are displayed men's wear, children's clothing, bedding and woollens.

Mrs. Herbert Brown is this year's convener for the shop. Her assistants are Miss Ivy Eggleston, bookkeeper; Mrs. W. W. Shand, treasurer; Mrs. E. D. Tennant, staff convener. The pricers are Mrs. Robert Long, Mrs. R. E. Van Everdingen, Mrs. J. C. Young and Mrs. F. C. Gelsthorpe. There are 75 volunteers who come in regularly to assist.

"The shop is the opportunity to sell last year's outgrowns and buy this year's right size," Mrs. Brown explained. "Last year the shop had a profit of $5000. The money is used to buy modern equipment for the hospital and to make the patients' stay there happier."

All stock is either donated or given on a consignment basis. Every one is asked to look around the house for things to give to the shop, or to look around the shop for things to give to the shop, or to look around for things to buy.

No Fanfare For Princess Of Romania

WINNIPEG (CP) — When a royal princess left Winnipeg's International airport on a flight to Detroit recently there was no more fanfare than for any other passenger going through the busy terminal.

During her two-week stay in Manitoba there were no state dinners, no receptions and no afternoon teas.

For Princess Ileana of Romania now is a nun in the Orthodox Romanian Church and spent the two weeks teaching religion, catechism and the beliefs and philosophy of her people at a church - sponsored summer camp at Shell Valley in the west-central part of the province.

She wore a stark black colored veil over a robe and black leather belt. While the adults hovering about her knew who she was, her Girl Guide charges knew only that she was the cheerful, blue - eyed lady with whom they enjoyed a church camp.

Princess Ileana retired from public life 18 months ago in France but came to Canada at the invitation of Rev. Martial Ivanovici from Vatre, the church's North American headquarters near Detroit.

She asked here she enjoyed her trip and the youngsters with whom she worked, she replied: "Marvellous, the best pupils I ever had."

DUNDAS STREET WEST, BELLEVILLE

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

SAFETY FIRST

If there is one thing this writer would not want to do, it is to act as a judge at a baby show. I think I would do the cowardly thing and give every one both a prize and send them home. To choose winners from among the 108 winsome infants at the Belleville Fair this year would be impossible for me. It is quite an ordeal for both mother and baby, and whatever the judges decided, they would never convince the ones that didn't win, that theirs was not the best in the show, and that is the way it should be. But I would pin a medal on those intrepid souls who act as judges each year — with a safety pin.

OPEN, PLEASE

I've been trying to remember who first referred to the "obstinacy of inanimate things." You know the sort of thing I mean — You pick up a box of detergent, and on one side it says, "Press here to open." With a touching faith in the printed word you press. And press. And press. By this time the box is squeezed into a hopeless shape. After five minutes and two broke thumb nails, you grab a paring knife and stab it right in the middle of the press here instruction. The knife slips and cuts your wrist, but you had almost reached the point of doing that deliberately anyway — to both wrists.

Or you go to hang a dress away in the clothes cupboard. You reach for a hanger and out comes a tangled mess of hangers clinging together like barnacles on a boat, that it would take a Houdini to unravel.

Another offender is the sardine tin that opens with a key. You hook the key on the little lug and turn. It immediately goes into a bias curve and sticks there, and no amount of backtracking will budge it. So you dig the contents out with a fork, and serve sardine hash.

Or take one of those tins that spices or dried parsley comes in. You have to pry the lid off with a good strong knife or a screw driver. Then one of two things happens. The lid either flies up and hits the ceiling and comes down behind the refrigerator where it takes refuge and is never seen again; or it falls into the tin and you have to excavate to find it. When I pointed out to a clerk in the supermarket that this was an awkward tin to open, and it needed a knife to pry the lid off, he said, casually, "Oh I just use a dime." Now what self-respecting housewife has a dime lying around loose in the kitchen?

How to spot an old-timer in Belleville: the person who looks BOTH ways before crossing Front or Pinnacle Streets.

Ann Landers

Son Will Attend Mediocre University in 'Hick Town'

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Soon our brilliant, handsome son will be leaving for a mediocre state university which is situated in a hick town. Why? Because his "Know-It-All father wouldn't listen to me, or to the boy's high school advisors.

My husband, a prominent and successful business man, was determined that our boy would go to Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth or Rutgers. Against everyone's advice, he took it upon himself to write letters to the presidents of these schools offering gifts, with promises of more.

He pressured his influential friends and business associates, who were graduates of these schools, to write letters on behalf of our son.

I feel certain that with the boy's fine scholastic record, his extracurricular activities and his high rating in the college boards he would surely have made one of these schools if his father had not put the heat on. Please print this letter as a warning to other fathers to lay off. — HEARTSICK MOM.

DEAR MOM — Your husband acted unwisely, to be sure. But it would be incorrect to say his actions ruined the boy's chances. The kind of pressure he exerted neither helps nor hinders. Usually, it is ignored.

Heaven only knows why some students are accepted and others are not. Saddest of all is that the kids are often made to feel like failures if they aren't accepted by the schools their parents prefer.

Meanwhile, take comfort in the fact that your son may well be happier, and do better, at the state university (hick town and all) than he would have done in all that ivy.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This is one for the books. I have heard of married men telling girls they are single but have you ever heard of a single man telling a girl he is married?

I met this fellow when I was waiting tables in a respectable cafe. He was a customer. He told me on our first date that he was married, that he and his wife did not get along but he was staying with her because of the children.

Every time we went out and I mentioned his wife he changed the subject. I got suspicious and questioned a woman who worked in the same company. I found out that he is not married and never has been. What do you make of this? — DYNAMITE DOROTHY.

DEAR DYNAMITE — The man is a slippery eel who is interested solely in entertainment. By telling you he was married he was making it clear that he was no candidate for the altar.

And strictly for your information, T.N.T., a man who really is married "but is not getting along with his wife" is no red-hot candidate either.

DEAR ANN — My wife and I have been married seven years and are ready to build a home. My wife's kid brother got out of college recently and is a struggling young architect. He has offered to design our home "as a gift."

To put it bluntly I don't care for his ideas. He goes for far-out modern design which leaves me cold. My wife is even more conservative, but she doesn't know how to turn down her brother's offer.

We've managed to steer clear of commitment so far but whenever we get together her brother wants to talk about it. What can you suggest? — VOOM.

DEAR VOOM — Unless you or your wife speak up you may wind up living in a house you hate.

The brother should be told that his offer is generous indeed but you can't accept it because you have some goofy ideas of your own which you're sure won't be compatible with his.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

GRACIOUS GUESTS RESPECT INVITATIONS

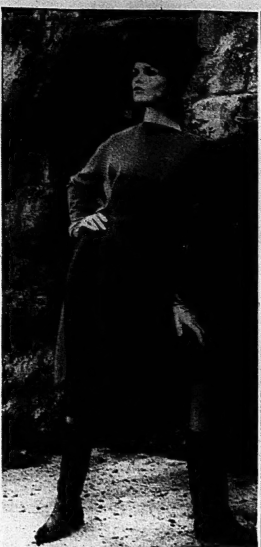
Some people have the most fantastic self-assurance.

They think that when a friend cordially invites them to his home, his wedding, a picnic, or just to drop in and see his etchings, it means "come one, come all," and includes all sorts of relatives and miscellaneous friends.

Of course, a young lady might prefer to bring along a guard if she accepts an invitation to a private showing of etchings. But aside from this rare exception when there's help in numbers, there are precious few other occasions when it's proper to accept an invitation and then shoot up with enough extra people to start a rival party.

I was reminded of this rather sore point at a party my husband and I attended last weekend. We were invited to a small buffet for about a dozen people, so naturally we were surprised when we arrived to find the living room crowded and the den filled to overflowing. Our hostess, while chronically smiling, seemed a bit distracted, so we proceeded to meet other guests on our own. While most turned out to be good friends of the host and hostess, at least four or five couples were there because they were brought along by other guests.

Luckily, the hostess is the sort who makes twice as much food as necessary, so there was no danger of the cupboard — or the sideboard — being bare. But it did give her some mental strain, what with having to remember ten additional names for introduction purposes and worrying about their mixing ability.



After everyone left and we kicked off our shoes to hold post-mortems, she confessed that one woman called in advance for permission to bring a visiting couple, but the other arrived with their own guests in tow, as it turned out, the party was bright and lively, the food was excellent and everyone had a marvelous time. But if she hadn't been so adaptable a and good - natured, as well as being thoroughly prepared, it could have been another story, indeed.

ASSURE TOO MUCH

This case, though, does illustrate how thoughtless guests sometimes can be and how it's possible to assume too much. A person may think an additional guest or two won't tax the hostess too much. But there's always the possibility that others have the same idea; and while one extra couple might not upset a party, five could swamp it.

Further, the standpoint of fair play — let alone good manners — it's only cricket to consult with a hostess before asking her with additional guests. If the party is fairly large — a buffet or a cocktail party — the chances are the hostess won't mind some extra guests. She might even welcome newcomers who are entertaining and interesting and can add to the party. But it's still polite to ask in advance just in case space is limited and the guest list necessarily has to be equally so.

If the dinner is a sit-down affair, or is held in a hotel where she's charged for each cover and for each drink consumed, then it's thoughtless to even ask. Common sense should whisper when it's permissible to bring additional guests. But it's always a good rule, whatever the circumstances, to check first for the comfort and peace of mind of guests and hosts, alike.

HIGH FASHION WOOLS — This stripped and grey wool jersey tunic dress (by France Davies), shown at the Association of Canadian Couturiers' fall and winter collections, in Montreal Sept. 3, illustrates the adaptability of wool to high fashion. Sporty Outfits in off-Beat Fabrics Highlight Review

By JANET KASK

MONTREAL (CP) — Sporty outfits in off-beat fabrics for gala events highlight the Association of Canadian Couturiers' fall and winter games review.

Shaggy full-length orlon or soft wool gowns, bulky pullovers for formal evening wear and unconventional at - home costumes were shown many in Canadian-made fabrics.

Montreal designer Marie Antoinette displayed a bollection emphasizing ma. Angled seams made the tunic-top of a pink wool suit appear slim and almost fitted. In other numbers heightened waistlines were used. Her favorite creation was a champagne lace shift over a matching silk under-dress with indented waistline.

France Davies, also of Montreal, used layers of fabrics for unusual effects and the great-coat and "waistcoat" look.

A gold, fitted-in-front chiffon cocktail dress had a flowing cutaway back.

COMBINES FABRICS

The designer combined thick fall and thins fabrics in a white shaggy orlon pullover over a black nylon jersey full-length dinner skirt.

Mario Di Nardo of Montreal used large, stiffened turnover collars and various vivid shades of red for his collection he called "Mia."

Waistlines varied from above the waist to below hip level. A night costume in tweed had a full-length skirt, greatcoat and black velveteen pullover top. An interesting striped wool jersey sport costume came with jumpsuit, shirt-jacket and knee-length skirt.

Montrealer Raoul-Jean Foure, president of the association, showed a collection made of lavish fabrics he called "extravaganza." A cloak-like coat in grey wool had sleeves of natural grey lamb. Dresses were slim, sometimes with the apron skirt effect achieved by seaming.

Foure used the double-breasted coat in waist and hip-length jackets as suit toppers. In a black dress and coat costume of nylon jersey he lined the coat with natural monkey which appeared on the outside as a fringe edge.

HAS PULLOVER LOOK

Eve Lyn of Montreal featured the pullover look. A white, floor-length sleeveless pullover dress was worn with a belt. A tunic-length pullover top and matching skirt combined to make a colorful plaid suit costume. For rainwear, Eve Lyn's specialty, she showed a matching green terylene and cotton raincoat, rainskirt, hat and spats with tiger-striped jersey pullover.

Olivia of Hamilton showed the wrapped silhouette in dresses and coats, all with attached hoods. A sleeveless wrap-around corduroy jumper-dress covered a brown wool jersey chemise. A convertible hood changing to a cowl collar appeared on a yellow chiffon evening gown.

Rodolfe of Toronto has a more casual collection, including a sleeveless jacket of black and white civet over a lime terylene and wool dress, a red greatcoat with almost hidden pleats in front and on the sleeves and a white orlon poncho covering slim blue overalls.

Ottawa's Frances Stewart, featuring the costume look, combined two or more colors and fabrics, using some cloak effects.

Again, casual elegance was the keynote. An evening suit in brown and white hounds-tooth lamee had a pleated crepe blouse. A striking full-length ball gown, her only non-costume number, was shaped in front and full in back. The material was imported wool brocade, of muted purple, brown, green and red.

Mother's Helper

KNIT SHIRT too tight to slip off over your young man's head, without a struggle? For baby or boy, it seems to make no take the same out first and then turn the shirt around so a shoulder seam is under his chin. There's a bit more stretchable length that way, and the shirt should come off without so much tugging.

Hot Air

by Mary Moore

I am after you again to become experts at making one of the most elegant of French desserts — soufflés.

For the timid girls in our company I have one that may be chilled before serving. That will eliminate their doubts about the close timing between removal from oven and serving at table, which is necessary for the perfection of a hot soufflé. However the first recipe is for a hot one, for the girls with cooking experience . . . or nerve!

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

De Luxe Lamb Stew; Buttered Noodles; Shredded Cole Slaw; Plum Cobbler; Pouring Cream; Coffee.

LIME SOUFFLE A LA PEARDY

Note: Substitute small lemons for limes if desired.

In top of double boiler mix together the juice and grated rind of two large limes, 7 large egg yolks, 3 tablespoons sugar, ⅓ cup butter (do not substitute) and then stir them over gently boiling water until this mixture thickens a little. Remove from double boiler and let cool to room temperature. Add 3 tablespoons sugar to the remaining 7 egg whites and beat them together until whites are very stiff. Don't save your energy here. This meringue must be very stiff — as stiff as if you were making an angel food cake. Fold cooled yolk mixture into the beaten whites gently but until well blended. Turn into an unbuttered baking dish, about 8½ x 2½" (we used a heavy white English ironstone basin). Stand baking dish in shallow pan of boiling water and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes. Serve at once. If you figure that it takes your family about 20 to 25 minutes to eat their main course, put this in the oven 20 to 25 minutes before announcing dinner so you can bring it directly to the table from the oven — being sure to have a trivet or insulated pad in place on which to stand it.

JEKYLL AND HYDE SOUFFLE (fruity):

This has four different characteristics: it may be served hot or cold and it separates into 2 layers — the top one fluffy and cakelike and the bottom rich and juicy.

Sift together 5 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon salt and 3¼ cups sugar and beat into them 5 tablespoons soft butter. Beat 6 egg yolks until light and add them. Also add 2 cups milk and stir well. Stir in ¾ cup lemon juice and the grated rind of 3 lemons. Beat the 6 leftover egg whites until stiff and fold them in. Add 1 cup chopped stoned dates and ¾ cup finely chopped walnuts or pecans or blanched almonds. Pour into buttered medium-large baking dish, stand in pan of warm water and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 50 minutes. This will not rise as high as lime soufflé above and if you like may be baked and cooled and chilled in refrigerator for 1 hour before serving. Of course it may be served hot.

"Have fun making your soufflés" she said airily.

The boom and counterweight are removed for road travel, but even then it requires a special permit. The machine rides at about forty miles per hour on tandem front wheels and tandem-dual rear wheels.

Strong Legislation Needed To Stamp Out Discrimination Canadian Bar Assoc. Told

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Discrimination exists in Canada and only strong legislation at both the federal and provincial levels can stamp it out, says Dean W. F. Bowker of the University of Alberta faculty of law.

He told the civil liberties section of the Canadian Bar Association Tuesday that constitutional safeguards such as the Canadian Bill of Rights had no effect in solving the problem.

Anti - discrimination legislation merely ensures that all individuals will be treated as equals. It does not make a discriminator love the man of a different color or race.

The civil liberties legislation was one of four sectional meetings held Tuesday as the annual bar convention swung into high gear. More than 1,500 Canadian lawyers are in attendance.

DEMAND AS RIGHT

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta warned lawyers changes in social concepts have led people to begin to demand personal services as a democratic right.

It was better for the professional to initiate steps to meet the pressures head-on rather than "turn your backs upon the problem and wait for public pressure to bring them about."

Association President R. A. Ross MacKimmie of Calgary added that lawyers "are required to assume responsibilities of citizenship well beyond the basic requirements."

"We must serve clients with limited means . . . and the nation's business and commercial communities. The minority groups should be able to reply on lawyers . . . for support of, and to champion, any legitimate cause they may have."

DOES NOT SOLVE

Ontario's new Expropriation Procedures Act does nothing to solve the basic problem of unfair compensation for land expropriation, Professor Eric Todd of the University of British Columbia said.

He described the absence of some provision to meet the problem in the act—to go into effect Jan. 1—as "prank disgrace."

The legislation is little better than legislation which had been in existence in the province previously and which precipitated discontent among land owners, he added.

There is a need for greater Criminal Code authority to ensure arrested persons are brought before the courts within 24 hours of their arrest, a Quebec report to the civil liberties section said.

The report charged current provisions of the code are not adequate. It often arrested persons are held "incommunicado" for several days at a time.

PRESIDENTIAL ADVISERS IN SOUTH VIET NAM — Ngo Dinh Nhu and his wife, advisers to South Viet Nam's President Ngo Dinh Diem, are powers the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency has been trying to eliminate according to story in the English-language, government-sponsored Times of Viet Nam. The newspaper charged that the CIA was financing a plot to overthrow Diem and to exile his brother, Nhu, and the latter's wife. It is believed in Washington the Nhus are responsible for repression of Buddhists in South Viet Nam. — (AP Wirephoto)

100-Ton Crane Delivered To Wilson Concrete Firm

Pride and joy of the locally-owned Wilson Concrete Products firm, a 100-ton crane delivered over the long weekend is now at work in the Almonte area. The crane, one of the largest mobile units manufactured, will later be based near Ottawa, company president Charles Wilson said today. From Ottawa, it will work on company projects and as a rental unit through the Ottawa valley.

Built in the U.S., the monster crane rides a Canadian-made 12-wheeled truck. Ready for the road, the unit weighs 50 tons, (it weighs 65 tons in working trim), and can make about 40 miles per hour. It burned 47 gallons of gas on the drive from Toronto.

The crane itself can lift a maximum of 100 tons, but Wilson's have purchased only a 40-ton capacity hook for it. More important than the capacity for weight is the crane's reach — it can carry a 200-foot boom, with a 50 jib, for a total of 250 feet.

Planning Session Of Commission Starts Today

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Eleven modest and one womans meet here today to chart the course of an inquiry into the troubled waters of French-English relations in Canada.

The 19 members and two secretaries of the royal commission on bicultiurlism and bilingualism will get together for the first time for two days of preliminary discussions in private.

The meeting is expected to produce announcements Thursday on the timing of the first public hearings, the scope of special research projects and the hiring of a staff.

The commission likely will decide such questions as whether to use interpreters for the benefit of spectators at public hearings and how to rotate the actual presiding duties between co-chairmen Andre Laurendeau and Davidson Dunton.

The commission members, who receive $100 per sitting day plus living and travel expenses, may also give an indication of the duration of their inquiry. Prime Minister Pearson has predicted that the work could be completed in one year, but commission member Jean-Louis Gagnon is quoted as saying that three years would be needed.

TO START HEARINGS

The commission is expected to launch country-wide rounds of public hearings in mid-winter and to open research projects this fall.

The first projects likely will centre on the use of French in the federal civil service and the state of French-English relations in several typical cities and towns across Canada.

Under heavy political pressure from Quebec, the government is putting the finishing touches to a short-term program to promote French as a working language in the civil service, without waiting for the royal commission's findings.

The royal commission will hold its first meeting in the West Block of the Parliament Buildings. Permanent quarters will be found later. The commission was appointed July 22 and the co-chairmen met twice in the last two weeks to prepare for their work.

HAYS IN FINLAND

HELSINKI (Reuters)—Canaster Harry Hays arrived here Tuesday night aboard a Finair flight from Moscow. Hays is on a European tour to make himself familiar with agriculture and technical problems.

Seaway Authority Opens Study of Briefs on Tolls

OTTAWA (CP) — Shipping lines, industrial and several provincial governments have delivered formal briefs on seaway tolls to the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority here, it was learned Tuesday.

About a dozen briefs were reported to have been received at the authority headquarters in response to a public call for written views on the prickly question of what seaway tolls should be raised, dropped or left alone.

Deadline for the formal briefs was Tuesday. Seaway officials declined to release a full list of parties making formal statements on the grounds their identity as well as their views are confidential at this time.

The submissions 'may be followed up early next year by public appearances by the parties at open hearings in Ottawa. These hearings would be long studied by seaway experts as part of a detailed analysis of their operation of the international waterway in its first five years.

MUST REPORT

Canada's Seaway Authority and its United States partner, the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, must report to their respective governments by next July 1 on whether present tolls are sufficient to meet annual costs and pay off the $475,000,000 capital cost of building the seaway.

By law, tolls are supposed to be high enough to earn sufficient revenue to amortize the seaway cost by the year 2003.

In the first five years, the seaway toll level has failed to produce enough money to meet this statutory requirement.

Present tolls were set in 1958, based on a forecast of cargo tonnages from the opening of the seaway in 1959 right through to 1968. But actual traffic has been sharply below this long-range forecast, even though seaway business is now booming.

Shippers and shipping companies favor low tolls. Railways and ports want tolls set at least at the level required under law to meet the payoff deadline.

REOPEN ONE PART

One aspect of the toll question — charges on traffic moving through the Welland Canal—has been reopened by the government.

The previous Conservative government decided to spend $180,000,000 to make the all-Canadian Welland Canal into a two-way channel between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. Work on the five-year project will start this winter.

In announcing the plans to "win" the Welland, Transport Minister McIlraith said "serious consideration" must be given to "the question of continuing this suspension" — in other words, slapping the tolls back on again.

Premiums Levied For Medicare Being Reduced

REGINA (CP) — Premiums levied on Saskatchewan residents for the operation of the provincial medical care insurance and hospital insurance plans will be reduced to $32 a year from $72 a year for families and to $26 a year from $36 a year for single persons, Premier Woodrow Lloyd announced Tuesday.

Premier Lloyd told a press conference the reductions are possible for the 1964 calendar year because of a surplus of about $9,000,000 has been built up in the medical care insurance fund.

In addition to the personal premiums, the medical care insurance fund receives revenue from sales tax, corporation tax and income tax sources. Personal premiums finance about one-quarter of the estimated $20,000,000-a-year cost of operating the medical care plan.

The hospital insurance is administered separately from the medical care plan and has a separate fund to draw on for its operation. The hospital plan is financed by personal premiums —collected jointly with the medical care premiums and other revenue sources including sales tax.

The reduction in the personal premium for hospital insurance for families is to $40 from $48. The reduction for the hospital plan for single persons is to $20 from $24.

The reduction in the medical care premium for families to $12 from $24. The medical care premium reduction for single persons is $6 from $12.

Rumors Persist Diem Plans To Let Brother Take Over

SAIGON (Reuters) — Tension continued to ease in strife-torn South Viet Nam today while reports persisted of a plan for Secret Police Chief Ngo Dinh Nhu to take over the presidency from his brother before the end of the month.

Sources close to the government said a plan for Nhu's takeover was under consideration in the presidential palace itself. They added that President Ngo Dinh Diem may resign to clear the way for his brother.

Nhu and his wife have played a key role in the prolonged and bitter crisis between the government and the Buddhist community, which alleges religious discrimination by the Roman Catholic-led administration.

In the past Diem has indicated privately he would like to return to a quiet life of Roman Catholic retreat. The necessary resignation of Vice - President Nguyen Ngoc Tho needed for Nhu's legal takeover was not viewed as presenting any problem.

In a sign of easing tension was an announcement Tuesday that high schools in Saigon and adjacent Gia Dinh, which closed two weeks ago under martial law, would reopen today.

Some 250 students and youths taken into custody in Hue, 400 miles north of Saigon, have been released during the last few days.

Meanwhile, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge was reported to be pressing a policy aimed at getting rid of Nhu, believed largely responsible for the fierce government crackdown against the Buddhist majority.

Informed sources said Nhu himself was pleased with the "smoothness" of the operations against the Buddhists and discrimination by the Roman Catholic-led administration.

Nhu is reported planning to lift martial law in the near future and call postponed National Assembly elections 30 days later. Since Nhu is already a member of the assembly, he could be elected chairman.

Under the constitution, he would then be in line for the presidency if the president and vice-president both resigned.

Rosy American Predictions Of Victory in Viet Nam Gone

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A few months ago U.S. generals were so optimistic about the Communist guerrilla war in South Viet Nam they maintained it no longer was a question of whether victory against the Communists could be achieved, but when.

One military leader went so far as to predict a victory date: 1965.

Now President Kennedy tells the American people victory in South Viet Nam may not come after all, unless South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem changes his repressive policies against Buddhists and students and unless he makes other changes — a subtle hint that Diem ought to get rid of his adviser-brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

While it is known the South Vietnamese government is not a democratic institution but in essence a family-controlled dictatorship, the least Diem might have done in the face of Kennedy's open criticism was to make some token gesture to remove his brother from office. This might have stilled some of the American public anxiety over the Diem government's brutal treatment of the Buddhists, vallejous representatives of South Viet Nam's majority population.

REJECTS CRITICISM

Instead, the Diem regime snarled back through a Saigon spokesman that while Kennedy ought to be thanked for continuing military aid to the South Vietnamese regime, his criticism of the Diem administration is based on faulty judgment.

It appears from this response that instead of taking the easiest road out offered by Kennedy, the Diem family has in fact closed ranks, apparently in the belief Kennedy cannot do anything anyway. It has always been stated in Washington that the U.S. administration never had much love for the Diem regime and accepted it only because no potent political alternative was available.

There are Washington reports that unless Diem makes a move towards government reform, Kennedy would be forced to reduce American aid to Saigon amounting to some $1,500,000 a day. But what purpose would such a reduction serve? The money is used in part to support the military effort against Communist infiltrators from the north. Kennedy might be cutting his own throat by cutting his contributions.

DE GAULLE HAS PLAN

Another possible way out—and one which may make Diem think twice about his own future—is that which French President de Gaulle seems to suggest. This would be to turn the two Viet Nams—north and south—into another neutral Laos.

Kennedy appears to shudder at the thought, saying the U.S. will never withdraw from the war against the Reds in South Viet Nam. Perhaps in his mind is the thought of the avalanche of political criticism he may face if the U.S. is forced into another retreat.

But such a respected American commentator as Walter Lippmann suggests the U.S. administration ought to look at this idea seriously.

"If there is no settlement such as General de Gaulle proposes, then a protracted and indecisive war of attrition is all that is left," Lippman maintains.

This would be a far cry from the American generals had predicted just a few months ago.

Trade Unionists Start Preparing for New Drive For White Collar Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — A handpicked group of trade unionists meets at a Quebec retreat later this month to prepare for a new drive by organized labor to recruit white collar workers.

The Canadian Labor Congress is sponsoring the special two-week "school" to create a skilled, expert task force of expert organizers for its planned program of white collar organization.

William Dodge, CLC executive vice-president in charge of the white collar campaign, said the school will provide the background and know that organizers will need when they try to sign-up office, technical and professional people as union members.

About 20 union representatives have been picked for the pilot training program Sept. 15-28 at Montmorency House near Quebec City. A similar course is planned for French-speaking unionists.

With top brains from the academic and union worlds as instructors, the students will delve into economics, sociology, psychology, public relations, research and collective bargaining—all angled to the problems of wooing and winning support from workers in jobs traditionally considered outside the union movement.

WILL SPECIALIZE

"These men will form a core of specialists, each assigned to his individual union as a white collar expert, but ready to work as a team on major organizing drives," said Mr. Dodge in an interview.

Unions sending representatives to the school include the Textile and Allied Workers, Steelworkers, Packinghouse Workers, Rubber Workers, Electrical Engineers, Glass and Ceramic Workers, Office Employees, Postal Employees, Retail Clerks, Municipal Electrical Workers and the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The committee includes all the major unions interested in expanding their membership and professional people as union members.

Economist Sylvia Ostry, a professor at the University of Montreal and one of the teachers at the CLC school, estimates that white collar workers totalled 3,145,000 in 1961—exactly half of the total labor force.

CLASSROOM UNUSUAL

OTTAWA (CP) — A race course Tuesday became a public school. The cafeteria of Rideau - Carleton Raceway was chosen as the temporary schoolroom for 55 Gloucester Township children until their new school is completed in about a month's time.

Canada, Other Bystanders May Get Hurt in Fight

WASHINGTON (CP)—Canada and other innocent bystanders may get hurt if the United States actively considers tariff counter-action against the European Common Market in the latest chapter of the so-called transatlantic chicken war.

Hearings open today before an administration committee to get public reaction on the 19 items the U.S. has listed for possible tariff increases. Canadian exports likely will have their eye on three specific products: Photographic film, wire screen and chicken.

Canada is not involved in the tariff fight between the U.S. and the European trade bloc, but if the U.S. decides to impose higher rates on any of the selected items — be it on motor trucks to flower bulbs, the higher duties will apply on all shipments to the U.S.—no matter what the source may be.

The U.S. has assured members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade there will be American compensation for any trade damaged by retaliation outsiders from the U.S. fight with the common market.

But while the compensation may be in the form of a lower U.S. tariff on some other product, this may not be of much help to the exporter of the product hit by higher rates.

TWO ISSUES

Difficulties between the U.S. and Europe developed when the Europeans increased its tariffs on frozen American chicken to 14.4 cents a pound from 4.4 cents as a result of the booming American market for frozen chickens in Europe. In 1962, $41,000,000 - a - year from $48,000,000.

While this appears to be relatively small in comparison with total U.S. agricultural exports to the European bloc of some $1,200,000,000 a year, the American authorities argue that the Europeans have acted somewhere to prevent complete erosion of the principles of reciprocal trade.

After completion of testimony, the U.S. government will select from among the 19 items the ones that will bear higher rates. An official said rates will be so adjusted that the net effect will be to reduce imports from the common market by $46,000,000 a year.

Cold Strip Mill Will Cost $30,000,000

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — David Holbrook, chairman and president of Algoma Steel Corp. Ltd., announced Tuesday that work has started on a new 80-inch, cold strip mill that will cost between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

The firm's latest $30,000,000, 56-inch, white hot strip mill here has just begun commercial production.

The cold strip mill will cover an area of nearly 400,000 square feet and will be larger than the other mill.

It will consist of a 720-foot pickling line, 80-inch cold reduction and temper mills, annealing furnaces, shearing and finishing lines, and other auxiliary equipment. Products from the mill will be used mainly in the automotive and appliance industries.

The hot strip mill now has an output of 1,900,000 tons a year and this will be increased to 2,200,000 tons.

CATCHING UP WITH THE HOLIDAY MAIL

Missive from Lorne Cook, pelt president of the Ontario Hockey Association, and well-known in these parts, says he has been doing his utmost to find a place in senior hockey this season for Kingston, and he hopes, Belleville.

Lorne says he has travelled some 6000 miles and contacted several hockey men. He attended a meeting of the Ottawa District at Winchester and has been to Kemptville, and Cornwall and got in touch with Pembroke. "With the hope" he says "that we may be able to play once around with clubs in the Ottawa valley potato to count. Belleville and Kingston, says Lorne, "would then play a series the winner to meet the western Ontario champions."

He says a meeting will be held at Kemptville on September 6th and would like to see a representative from this city in attendance. That incidentally is today and as we know nothing definite has been done about the matter.

Kingston it appears is ready to enter a club. A story out of there says seven businessmen have indicated their willingness to back a club in the "down-east" league. The move is headed by Harold Langabeer, Joe King and Lorne Cook.

The current OASA bulletin reveals the sport's topflight hurlers are up to their old playoff tricks. Some outstanding performances have been reported with the mighties of the rounds making life miserable for batting averages.

In the Intermediate "A" series Elmwood HIH hurlers Hustled Brantford to no hits in 17 two-thirds innings. The Great Judd won 3-0 with no hits, no runs, no errors and twenty strikeouts. His buddy Bren Selvage won 4-0 allowing one hit after two are out in the ninth.

Toronto and Lakeshore played to a 3-3 nine-inning tie then repeated with a nine-inning 1-1 draw. Toronto won the series in five games.

St. Catharines eliminated Hamilton in two consecutive 10-frame contests — and got this — NYASA hurler Murvey Auger whiffed no less than thirty-one Scarboro batters in a 12-inning thriller only to lose 2-1 in the 15th frame. A peewee Scarboro hurler Gary Cook tossed a no-hit no-run game at West Hill.

Statistically speaking, no less than 27 series have gone to a third game; eight games have gone in extra innings; 47 games have been won by one run and 37 shutouts have been recorded with four of these being 1-0 scores.

HODGE PODGE

John "Jolly Jack" Adams newly appointed president of the Central Professional Hockey League and Mrs. Adams were guests of the Truman Cullens at Rossmore over the holiday. Had a long chat with Jack which will appear in another column. His advice to good young hockey players "You have a God-given talent—Use it — don't abuse it" . . . Speaking of talent young David Hurst is using his to fine advantage. He won a couple of tennis titles over the holiday weekend and is headed for the top places . . . The Dominion Tire at 74 West Bridge is holding a free gun show tomorrow evening starting eight o'clock. Refreshments and everybody welcome

Looks like the Celebrities Dinner of those good Legionaires of Tweed will be a solid success. I understand practically every ticket has been sold and in case they are not, today is the deadline. The veterans have lined up a scintillating array of sports luminaries. These include "Red" Storey, guest speaker, Trent Frayne, master of ceremonies, baseball's great Bob Feller; Dave Mann, Lloyd Percival, and hockey figures, "Tredar" Kennedy, Rudy Pilous, Dit Clapper, Syl Apps, Frank Nighbor, Gordie Bell, Red Kelly and Lou Fontinato.

Etcheverry Remains With Denver

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)—Denver Broncos cut their American Football League squad to the final limit of 37 Tuesday. The 33-man squad does not include Sam Etcheverry, former Montreal Alouette and St. Louis Cardinals quarterback, who came here this week to work out on a trial basis.

SIGN HALFBACK

OTTAWA (CP)—Newest acquisition of Ottawa Rough Riders in their search for more beef in their offensive backfield is halfback Cotton Clark, leading scorer of the Southeastern Conference last season who was recently cut by Oakland Raiders of the American Football League.

Argos Pick Up Stephens On Waiver

BY PHIL DECHEAN

TORONTO (CP)—Sandy Stephens is so anxious to play football that he has even offered to run back kicks for Toronto Argonauts.

Stephens, placed on waivers by Montreal Alouettes Tuesday and claimed by Argos hours later, could see lots of action with Toronto—but not returning punts.

He may be used at any one of three positions, quarterback, or where the Argonauts appear to need help—halfback or fullback.

The speculation began immediately after Toronto paid the $350 waiver price to get Stephens, the controversial quarterback who was suspended recently by the Als for failing to get his weight down to 210 pounds.

He was removed from the Canadian Football League's suspended list after weekend negotiations with Montreal by Stephens and his lawyer, Sam Greenblatt.

Stephens, 23, was a quarterback during his collegiate years, then he wasn't an all-America choice at Minnesota, and with Montreal since coming to Canada in 1963.

TOO MANY QUARTERS

But the Argonauts are overflowing with quarterbacks—they have four already under contract: Nobby Wirkowski, although he said it was still too early for definite plans, did not rule out Stephens as a possible halfback.

When Cleveland Browns of the National Football League had Stephens on their negotiation list, they had plans to try him out as a halfback.

One man who thinks Stephens will help the Toronto is Ralph Sazio, coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats. He thinks Stephens and Jackie Parker, Argonauts' regular quarterback so far this season, could both play in the same backfield.

Both men can play as either a halfback or a quarterback, said Sazio Tuesday night in Hamilton. "They complement each other."

He said he thought Stephens could step in right now and play quarterback for the Argos, as he is fatally acquainted with the system rolled style. But he added another possibility:

"Argos are a big fullback the Argos have been looking for, he's big and strong."

ARGOS ARE HAPPY

Wherever he plays, the Argos are happy to have him. Both Wirkowski and general manager Lew Hayman, who will discuss terms with [illegible]

Stephens is a talented football player.

Stephens joined the Alouettes for the 1962 season billed as the man who can shoot the moon to Sam Etcheverry, who had departed to try his luck as an NFL quarterback.

He was in-and-out last season when Montreal barely edged out the Argos for a playoff position, and then lost to Hamilton in the eastern final. He played the first two Alouette games last year, but were trounced in each—before his suspension. They have since won twice in two starts under quarterback Bubba Marriott.

It is learned an agreement was reached with Montreal on Stephens' no-cut contract to allow him to play elsewhere. He signed a three-year contract in 1962 for a salary estimated as high as $113,000.

Tigers Nip Yankees In Fifteen

BY JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that the pennant race has all but run its course, there are other monumentous developments in the American League.

Such as Steve Barber becoming the top winning pitcher in Baltimore Orioles' modern history. And Dick Stuart of Boston Red Sox becoming the first player ever to bat in 100 runs in a season in both major leagues.

These events took place Tuesday at Boston and Baltimore trimmed Stuart and Boston 4-3. Barber, with relief help, gained his 19th victory—he went by an Orioles pitcher since Baltimore came back into the league in 1954.

Stuart tagged his 36th homer off Stu Miller with a man on in the eighth inning, giving him an even 100 RBI. The first baseman, who went to the Red Sox in an inter-club trade during the winter, knocked in 117 for Pittsburgh in 1961.

Detroit Tigers outlasted the front-running New York Yankees, winning 3-2 on rookie George Smith's one-out single in the 15th inning, and Ed Charles' sacrifice fly in the eighth inning sent in the run that gave Kansas City Athletics a 3-2 decision over Minnesota Twins in the only other AL games played.

Baltimore touched loser Dave Morehead for two unearned runs in the first inning, made it 3-0 in the fourth, and got the clincher in the seventh on Lois Aparicio's dazzling base running. Aparicio beat out an infield single, stole second and third—giving him 35 steals—and loped in on Boog Powell's double.

Barber, 19-10, gave way to Miller after a leadoff walk to Felix Mantilla in the eighth, and Stuart belted his homer against the slow-balling lefthander two outs later.

Smith's single was only the fifth Tiger hit off Yankee pitching at Detroit, and came after Bill Kunkel had issued consecutive walks to Norm Cash and Bill Freehan.

The Tigers took a 3-0 lead against Al Downing in the first four innings but were blanked over the next 10 by Downing, Tom Metcalf and Hal Reniff. Jim Bunning, striving to get his first victory over the Yanks in four years, blanked them on five hits through seven innings, but was tagged for home runs by Joe Pepitone in the eighth and John Blanchard in the ninth.

The setback left the Yanks with an 11½-game lead over Chicago's second-place White Sox.

Harmon Killebrew pulled the Twins even at 3-3 in the seventh inning, socking his 35th homer with a man on, but Camilo Pascual was unable to hold off the Athletics and failed in his bid for a 19th victory. Kenny Hamlin and Charley Lau rapped singles off the Cuban curveballer to fill the bases, then Charles delivered the go-ahead run with his fly.

Indians, Chiefs in Flag Drive

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indianapolis Indians, winners of the International League's Southern Division championship, take on Syracuse Chiefs, the Northern Division winners, in a five-game series for pennant honors. The Indians won the division title Tuesday night beating Atlanta Crackers 1-0 in a one-hit, one-run, nine-inning game. Johnny Lewis got the only hit off Branch but combined two of them with a walk for the winning run.

The Crackers got only two hits off Ackley, the Indians' fifth-inning starter, in the single hit in the first inning and Joe Morgan doubled in the second.

The Indians once trailed Atlanta by eight games and later led by 9½. Atlanta led by 3½ with only four days to play but Indianapolis caught up Saturday night, took a split-game lead Sunday and dropped back into a tie Monday night in the final doubleheader games.

The playoffs open tonight. Syracuse plays at Indianapolis in the first of a best four-out-seven for the pennant. The Northern Division second-place team, Toronto Maple Leafs, play at Atlanta in the first of another best-four-of-seven.

The winners will play another best-of-seven for the Governor's Cup.

Dodgers' Davis Wins 4-3 Squeaker

—Cards Win—

By MIKE EATHERY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tommy Davis, trying to become the first National League batting champion in a decade to retain the title, lost ground to Dick Groat in his latest effort but kept Los Angeles Dodgers wheeling toward their long awaited pennant.

Davis collected only one hit Tuesday night, but it was a clutch single in the 10th inning that drove in the winning run in a 4-3 victory over Houston Colts and maintained the Dodgers' six-game bulge over the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

Davis, 34-year-old right hander swinger, trudged off the field last October with a .346 average and the batting title after the Dodgers went down to defeat in the third and deciding game of the pennant playoff with San Francisco Giants.

Now the Dodgers are heading for the champagne they missed last year and Davis is struggling to become the first repeat batting champion since Stan Musial of St. Louis in 1950-51-52. Davis, hitting .322, is tied with Vada Pinson of Cincinnati Reds for second place.

ALSO WON TITLE

Groat, batting king at Pittsburgh with a .325 mark in 1960, is hitting .327 this year while playing shortstop for St. Louis. He went 3-for-4 as the Cardinals ran their longest winning streak of the season to six games by walloping Pittsburgh Pirates 10-3.

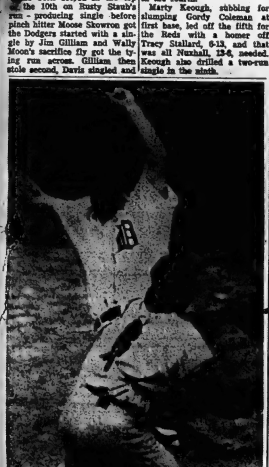
Juan Marichal joined the 20-victory club as third-place San Francisco blasted Chicago Cubs 16-3. Philadelphia's Ray Culp shut out Milwaukee Braves 3-0 on two hits and Cincinnati's Joe Nuxhall blanked New York 5-0 on three hits.

The Colts scored in the top of the 10th on Rusty Staub's run - producing single before pinch hitter Moose Skowron got the Dodgers started with a single by Jim Gilliam and Wally Moon's sacrifice fly got the tying run across. Gilliam then stole second, Davis singled and reliever Ron Perranoski, 14-3, had another victory. Dick Farrell, 10-13, took the loss.

Ken Johnson started for the Colts and shamed the Dodgers for seven innings on three hits before a sore elbow forced him out. The Colts led 3-0 at the point, scoring single runs in the second, fourth and sixth against Don Drysdale, but the Dodgers tied it in the eighth with Ken McMullen's single and Davis' sacrifice fly driving in the runs.

CARDS TEE OFF

Trailing 3-4 going into the sixth, the Cardinals tied the score on an error by reliever Roy Face, and moved out front to stay on a passed ball by Jim Pagliaroni before Tim McCarver's three-run eighth inning homer clinched it. Bill White also homered for St. Louis, hitting a career high with his 22nd.



Bob Bailey and Ted Savage homered for the Pirates, Face, 3-8, took the loss with Bobby Shantz, 6-3, the winner after three perfect innings in relief.

Marichal, 20-8, became the fourth NL pitcher to hit the 20 victory circle with Billy Hoeft's no-hit relief for two innings.

The Giants massed a 16-hit attack against Cubs starter Larry Jackson, 14-13, and his successors, putting the game out of reach in the second. Orlando Cepeda, Tom Haller and Felipe Alou added to San Francisco's lead.

Culp, 13-11, allowed only a third inning double by Roy McMillan and a single by Hank Aaron in the fourth. Don Demeter provided Culp with the only run he needed when he homered in the fourth.

Marty Keough, subbing for slumping Gordy Coleman at first base, led off the fifth for the Reds with a homer off Tracy Stallard, 6-13, and that was all Nuxhall, 12-6, needed. Keough also drilled a two-run single in the ninth.

Win Sixth Game 4-0

Oshawa Eliminates Kenmors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

LITTLE BRITAIN—Oshawa Merchants, a win-hungry ball club from the opening game of the season, clobbered the Belleville Kenmors as Lakeshore baseball champions here last night and walked off with the 1963 title by blanking the Kenmors 4-0.

Oshawa captured the titular series four games to two, regaining three of the wins here and another in Belleville.

Last night's game was played before a mere handful of fans on a muddy diamond, partly dried as the night wore on by a cold wind. Kenmors attempted to have the game postponed before it started but the Oshawa club insisted on it starting and the umpires, also from Oshawa kept it going.

Despite the weather, the game itself was a tight one most of the way. Oshawa nursed a 1-0 lead from the first to the seventh. They scored one in the seventh and a final pair in the eighth.

Ted Stone pitched a strong game to earn the victory. He handcuffed the Kenmors on seven well-spaced hits, striking out 13 and not walking a batter.

The Merchants gave him good hitting support, collecting 11 hits in all. They got a pair off starter and loser Stan Reid, who gave way to Larry Soden in the first inning. Soden struck out nine and walked four, one intentionally, while allowing 11 hits.

The wet infield cost both clubs several base runners and made for tricky ball handling as well as base running.

Wills singled to open the bottom of the first. He stole second and went on to third on the bad throw to second. After a walk, Whitely rapped a single to right-centre, scoring Wills and bringing on Soden, with one out.

Soden was in trouble for the first three innings, he worked but did not give up a run until the seventh. Wills started the trouble here too, beating out an infield hit. Moe Hunter, of the Kenmors, was ejected from the game by base umpire George Campbell for arguing the safe call on Wills. An error on Fisher's sacrifice put the lead man on third and with one out, Whitely was put on first. The move backfired, however, as Newitt hit a run-scoring single.

Another walk loaded the bases but Dowe hoisted to right to end the threat. Stone's single and back-to-back doubles by Fisher and Reid upped the score to 4-0 in the eighth.

Clarke's hit and an error gave Kenmors a chance in the third but Clarke was cold turkey at the plate, catcher to pitcher, on a short passed ball. Asselstine and Mavety gave fourth but Mavety was out at second on an alert play and the lead man died on third. Hunter was cut off in a run down in a possible chance in the sixth and Weston was nailed by a good throw from the outfield when he tried to stretch his double into a triple in the eighth.

Lucky Wills, with three singles, Ted Whitely, Stone and Gary Newitt, with two each, sparked the Merchant attack. Jack Fisher and Bob Reid hit doubles, Butch Dowe and Paul Domm singles.

Larry Mavety was the lone Kenmor with two hits, both singles, while Pete Weston doubled. Other base knocks went to Pat Asselstine, Claude Carr, Court Brailey and Glen Clarke.

KENMORS — Locke cf, Hunter 3b, Weston 1b, Asselstine ss, Mavety c, Carr rf, 3b, Brailey lf, Clarke 2b, S. Reid p, Soden p, Soule rf.

OSHAWA — Wills cf, Fisher 2b, B. Reid 1b, Whitely 3b, Newitt lf, Fipber rf, Dowe ss, Domm c, Stone p.

Willie Mays Sidelined, Exhaustion

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Nervous exhaustion will keep Willie Mays sidelined until at least Friday, his doctor said Tuesday.

The San Francisco Giants' $100,000 centre fielder slumped to home plate while batting against Chicago Monday and complained of feeling tired and weak. He was immediately sent home to rest.

Dr. E. C. Saller examined Mays Monday, found nothing wrong, and after a checkup Tuesday said again that all Willie needs is rest.

The Giants, slumping badly the last week, open a three-game series with the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night.

Until their current slump, Mays had carried the Giants' offence with an August batting mark of .387 that raised his season average to .302.

Arnold Palmer In Hope Spoof Call Me Bwana

A lot of people pay a lot of money to see the great Arnold Palmer golf champion in action but you can see him for free when you go to see the new Bob Hope comedy "Call Me Bwana," the Saltzman-Broccoli production in color opening tonight at the Park Theatre under the United Artists banner.

Bob, who's no mean hand with the mashie himself (and you can quote Bing Crosby on that) engages in a zany golf game with the great Palmer in the midst of the jungle and the game is said to be really something, quite worth the price of admission itself. You may have seen a bit of it in a recent Bob Hope TV show.

As for other goodies in "Call Me Bwana," there's Anita Ekberg sharing stellar honors with Bob and Edie Adams; and Lionel Jeffries.

Now, what are all these fine people doing in the jungle?

Bob, as a scientist is out to recover a vitally important moon capsule which fell among a primitive race, and Anita, as the exotic secret agent of a "foreign power," is out to get Bob — at any price and by any means.

Bob, it proves, is not hard to get.

No Interest in Boys

By DORIS CLARE

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — We have a lovely 15-year-old daughter, she will be in grade 12 in September and has always been an honor student. She is not interested in boys and gets angry when they whistle at her or call her to ask if she will go to a show. We have known some real fine boys who have asker her out. What is wrong with this girl, and what's going to happen when she comes out of her shell?

We do want our daughter to always be a good, straightforward girl, and we have never discussed sex with her. Every time I think about broaching the subject, my mind becomes a blank. So will you please help us by telling us the name of a good book we could buy for her to read that would explain everything to her that we can't do? — PUZZLED PARENTS.

DEAR PARENTS — There are good books on sex and I'm sending you the names of them.

But that does not settle the matter. Unless you can discuss such things with your girl, how can you ever hope she'll come to you with the desperate problems which beset teen-agers from time to time?

There's a very real connection between her assumed scorn for the other sex and your failure to deal with the subject.

DEAR DORIS — Last year my husband was given a promotion about which we were very thrilled. Now his work takes him away so much that I wish they would demote him again.

My job is something like being a housekeeper for a sorority house, along with chauffeuring him back and forth to the airport so he can go on another business trip.

When he comes home these days it seems only to play golf twice a week with the same partner. He has no friends outside his business. I play bridge with the girls and try to put on a good front of the successful housewife — whatever that is.

I am fed up with the aloneness of my life. — MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE — How about letting those sorority daughters plan their own meals and free you for an adjoining seat on that plane, at least once in a while?

How about some golf lessons for you? How about studying your husband's business so as to become his sparring partner when he mulls over problems?

You may well find that your hardworking mate is lonely too, when it comes to adult, understanding companionship.

(Putting your dilema on paper helps. Doris, who is qualified to counsel, will welcome your letter.)

Fire Destroys Summer Home At Sand Banks

PICTON — "The Hermitage" a two-storey cottage just outside the gates of Lakeshore Lodge grounds at the Sand Banks was destroyed by fire on Tuesday, an hour after Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Gollogly had left for their home in Rochester, N.Y. Smoke was seen issuing from the frame structure by a guest at Lakeshore Lodge.

A boat and some other articles in the basement section which was built into a hillside were pulled to safety but most of the contents were lost.

Bloomfield fire department was called and kept the fire under control. It was found impossible to draw water from Lake Ontario due to the green moss.

However, a plentiful supply was secured from the open swimming pool at Lakeshore Lodge.

The cottage was originally a barn owned by Mrs. W. Hyatt and later transformed into an unusually attractive cottage by N. Lafontaine who sold it to the Gollogly family. Cause of the fire is not known.

One-Time Sports Writer, Harold S. McNamara, Head Of Big Construction Firm

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — As a r explanation of his firm's try for ...e temple town'sic: constructed sports writer, Harold S. McNamara leans heavily on the old saying colleges that the bigger they are the harder they fall.

By picking on the big and tough jobs with nothing barred, McNamara Corporation — with vice-president Harold running its international division—finds itself participating in heavy construction contracts outside Canada totalling around $150,000,000, hope for any Canadian firm.

The outside business has developed almost from scratch—and after a partly accidental start — during the last year, helping reinforce the McNamara empire's position as Canada's biggest enterprise in its field.

Just recently, it's come on with a rush. In early August McNamara and three partners picked off a $70,000,000 Columbia River dam job in Oregon and by itself a $4,000,000 road project in Canada.

For the 48-year-old head of the international operation, the affinity for things in motion comes naturally. Before he was overtaken by middle-age and whiteness, he used to spend a good bit of his time—and a fair chunk of his $25-a-week sports-writing pay—playing cards with the wrestling packyderms between bouts of mayhem at Montreal's forum in the depression 1930s.

(He recently dropped in on one of his old sidekicks, Lou Thesz, during an engagement in Toronto and was mildly surprised to learn the conversation later, that Thesz is still billed as world champion.)

SOUGHT TEMPLE JOB

In the catch-as-catch-can domain of heavy construction, Mr. McNamara finds that a no - holds - barred outlook pays off.

"Pretty nearly nearly any kind of work," he says.

An extreme example cropped up a few months ago, in Egypt, the lake to be created by the Aswan high dam will flood the site of the 3,300-year-old temple of Abu Simbel, an enormous structure carved from living rock during the reign of Ramses II.

Egyptian authorities dreamed up a scheme to save it and the whole massive edifice and lift it bodily some 200 feet so it won't perch atop the water.

"It would have been the greatest engineering feat of its kind ever," says Winifred Seeler, curator of the Royal Ontario Museum's Near Eastern department, who has done archaeological work in salvaging historic treasures at the dam site.

McNamara made a pass at the elevating job, but Egypt decided eventually to cut up the temple and transport it in pieces to high ground. McNamara didn't try to get in on this simpler operation.

"You can't go into foreign countries and do the easy jobs because local people will get them," Mr. McNamara says in explaining why his firm's not bidding on the Columbia River project.

Rod Serling Pens Suspenseful Script for "The Yellow Canary"

To be sure of having a top notch screenplay, 20th Century-Fox signed distinguished screenwriter Rod Serling to write the script for "The Yellow Canary". The new Cinemascope thriller showing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre. The picture stars Pat Boone in a completely different type of characterization, along with Barbara Rush, Steve Forrest, Jack Klugman, Jesse White and Steve Harris.

Serling based his screenplay on the best selling novel of Whit Masterson, (Evil Come, Evil Go", which tells the story of a singing idol whose dream world is violently blown apart when his only son is kidnapped.

Rod Serling, who was born in Syracuse, New York, is one of the most successful and prolific writers in Television. After completing his education at Antioch College in Ohio and serving in the armed forces during World War II, he began to write for television. His plays for the U.S. Steel Hour, Studio 1, Kraft TV Theatre, Studio Video Theatre and many others have won him recognition which few have equalled.

New Requirement of TV Drama Is to 'Say Something'

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — CBS's The Defenders apparently started it, but it is evident now that a new requirement of television drama is to "say something."

The rule does not apply to pure entertainment forms — comedy and variety shows—but a message or at least a philosophy must be buried somewhere in every drama.

The Defenders has examined on a weekly basis points of view on subjects ranging from illegal operations to academic freedom, and has sometimes shown a regrettable tendency to get a little preachy.

During the coming months, point - of - view series will increase. One will be NBC's Suspense Theatre, a new Thursday night entry, which will try to present problem plays with themes of significance.

Roy Huggins, producer of the series, insists that drama must say something—and say it entertainingly.

MAY CONTRADICT

"It really doesn't matter what the statement is," Huggins said. "A few years ago in New York, there was a play on the same street making contradictory statements and both were hits.

"One was A Street-car Named Desire, with Blanche Dubois saying that if you live by illusions you will be destroyed. The other Harvey, saying that if you don't live by illusion you cannot be very happy."

Huggins expects to tackle such subjects as lack of communication between parents and children and the sterility of life that some middle-aged feel immediately from its main stream.

Movie Industry Giants 'Simply Kill' Bette Davis

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Oh, they simply kill me," said Bette Davis with a wicked glint in her eye.

"They" were the movie industry giants who decide what pictures will be made and where mine which stars will be hired. Their judgments can be harsh and costly.

"They couldn't understand the success of Joan's (Crawford) and my picture, Baby Jane," Bette said. "It had to be a freak. After all, it was a strange picture. It was made by a maverick. Robert Aldrich, at a funny little studio with a four-week schedule.

"Even after Baby Jane, Ralph Nelson was crazy to have me do Lilies of the Field and he flew to New York to try to talk United Artists into it. No, they wouldn't go for it. I wasn't box office. Baby Jane was a freak. Period.

Bette can laugh. Her old boss, J. L. Warner, brought her back to Hollywood for two of the juiciest parts any actress has had recently. She plays twin sisters in Dead Ringer, one murdering the other. Bett's comment:

IS 'RESPECTABLE'

"If this picture is a success, then and only then will 'they' admit that I had made it. After all, this one is being filmed on a major lot with a good budget and an eight-week schedule. It's respectable."

"Oh, if they would only learn! It's still names that sell movies — names that have established a reputation with the public by past performances. Those are the ones who sell tickets, not the so-called names who are used in pictures after pictures even though they can't draw flies at the box office."

Another matter that drew the Davis wrath: Ruinous costs of certain epics.

"It's absolutely scandalous to allow immense costs on a single picture to endanger a whole company," said she.

"Some of these picture-makers like to spend money because it makes them seem important. I've got news for them: They're ruining the industry."

Log Castle Pays Tribute To Our Northern Pioneers

WHITE OTTER LAKE, Ont. (CP)—The castle isn't the biggest there is, and it is by no means the grandest, but it may well be one of the most unusual anywhere.

In any event, it is drawing increased numbers of tourists each year into this area, 157 miles west of the Lakehead, and is a constant reminder of the courage, skill, strength and determination of the men who opened northwestern Ontario.

Perched on the shores of this small lake, the hand-hewn log castle towers over the tall pines.

Jim McQuout took 23 years to build his castle, using 30-foot logs, some of them 20 inches in diameter. Only once did he accept any help at all. The rest of the time he single-handedly raised the big logs in erecting the three-storey main building and the four-storey tower.

The one occasion on which he accepted assistance was from a man named Archibald who helped transport the windows for the castle from Ignace, 35 miles to the northwest, trip requiring 17 portages with canoe.

UNREQUITED LOVE

The main building is 28 feet by 30, but there also is a twin storey section at the rear, built of whipsawn timber planed to half-inch thickness, where McQuout lived.

With the uprights in place, McQuout resorted to an unusual method of raising the heavy timbers for the walls. With pegs driven into the uprights at about three-foot intervals, he raised first one end and then the other until the timbers were in place.

Why did he do it? There are at least two stories.

One is that in his native Scotland he loved the daughter of a squire but lacked the wealth or property for such a marriage. Thus, when he and his brother sailed for Canada, it was said he determined that one day he would have his own castle.

The other tale is that McQuout built the castle to prove his elder brother was wrong when he said Jim would never make a success for fur trapping.

The story had an unhappy ending, however, because Jim McQuout was drowned Oct. 8, 1920, when he was 58. His body was not found until the following July 4. He was buried 50 feet from his castle on the shore of the lake.

In 1955 the Ontario department of lands and forests began repairing the building, restoring its roof, replacing old and rotten logs and bracing the leaning tower. It's estimated that about $5,000 will be enough to complete the restoration and assure permanency of a memorial to a stout Scot and a tourist attraction in the wilderness.

UNFINISHED CASTLE — This log cabin castle of hand hewn logs 30 feet long and as much as 20 inches in diameter was built by Jim McQuout, a Scot who came to Canada to make his fortune. He spent 23 years building it on the shore of White Otter Lake in Northwestern Ontario but never lived to finish it. He was drowned in 1920 and is buried 50 feet from the castle. (CP Photo)

Helping People in Countries Where It Has Plants Is Work of Aluminium Co.

By BRUCE STOVEL

MONTREAL (CP)—A young man in British Guiana is shown how to use a blow-torch on sheets of aluminum. A university student in Jamaica works at an engineering problem. In isolated Muri, India, aluminum plant employees enjoy a movie after work.

These are some of the activities being paid for by the Montreal-based Aluminium Ltd. group of companies, a worldwide enterprise whose major component is the Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd.

Helping people in underdeveloped countries where it has plants is good human relations and good business, says the company. The faster the economy of the country advances, the more efficient operations become, and the easier it is to hire qualified personnel.

Aluminum Ltd. says it also wants people to understand the constructive role capitalism can play, and thereby consolidate the company's position as a good citizen wherever it operates.

BIG EXAMPLE

The effect of an international industrial firm on an underdeveloped country is seen at its plainest in British Guiana, where the Aluminium subsidiary, Demerara Bauxite Company Limited, is one of the country's largest industries.

The company's 3,500 employees benefit from high wages, by British Guiana standards. The average pay for hourly workers is just over $30 a week, about twice the national average.

The British Guiana government gets 50 per cent of the company's profits in income taxes, royalties and such. This is the source of nine to 12 per cent of government revenue.

The presence of one big company stimulates industrial growth. Other companies are formed to supply it.

And in British Guiana, Demerara Bauxite — Demba — developed a method of calcining or baking bauxite, the ore from which aluminum is taken. Calcined bauxite has extensive uses in the abrasive and refractory industries, and now accounts for 50 per cent of the country's bauxite sales in value.

HELPS COMMUNITY

But regarded as the most startling effect of Demba's presence is the help given the community. The company spent more than $5,000,000 on education, health and community improvements between 1950 and 1960 in Mackenzie, where its bauxite mines, bauxite plant and alumina plant are located.

The company says it hopes that its aid will create conditions whereby constructive community leadership will tend more and more to emerge from the people of the area themselves.

The company has built in Mackenzie primary and secondary schools, a trade school, a 128-bed hospital with an associated nursing centre serving the medical needs of the entire region, three churches, a sports pavilion and flood - lit cricket pitch, a pure water plant, a 15,000 - kilowatt power station, three swimming pools and a golf course. Interest-free loans have been made to employees who want to build homes. Scholarships have been given to Guianese to attend the University of the West Indies.

TRAINS WORKERS

The building of the alumina plant in the late 1950s created an extensive on-the-job training program for formerly unskilled workers. Workers are given tuition fees if they pass correspondence courses in technical subjects, and attendance at the company trade school is free.

The same pattern emerges in Jamaica, the company's other major source of bauxite and alumina, and in India, but with local variations.

In Jamaica the company's subsidiary, Alcan Jamaica Limited, has a no-strings-attached scholarship program. By 1964-65, 17 students will be attending university or college on grants totalling $22,000 a year.

The larger of the company's two plants in Jamaica—at Kirkvine—has a trades training centre where students are paid to take a six-months course. Some 150 men have completed the full-time course since it was started in 1957, and a recent survey showed a high percentage have since received promotions. So far the company has spent more than £100,000 on its training program in Jamaica.

In an effort to improve agricultural productivity in Jamaica, the company uses its acreage in the Island to breed a beef herd of 3,000 cattle, grow citrus fruits and reforest 300 acres of hillside land. The company is the largest single grower of ortanique, a cross between an orange and a tangerine unique to Jamaica.

In India, different traditions and social patterns have presented such an openly-paternal program.

But schools, recreation facilities and housing are provided at mines and plants in isolated areas. At Muri, nine qualified teachers, all full-time employees of the Indian Aluminium Company Limited, teach nearly 300 pupils at a high school considered among the best in the state.

The 4,900 employees of Aluminium Limited's Indian subsidiary are almost all Indians. Promotion is based strictly on performance. The chairman, general manager and all plant managers are Indians.

Aluminium Ltd. was formed from non - U.S. parts of the Aluminum Company of America complex in 1928. Today, ownership of the two companies has become completely, and Aluminium Ltd. is one of the giants of the free world's aluminum industry. Since 1939 it has increased its sales more than six-fold.

The ore, bauxite, is usually found in tropical or semi-tropical countries. It is mined and washed clean of most impurities by jets of water.

Alumina, or aluminum oxide — the metal aluminum combined tenaciously with oxygen, is isolated from bauxite by means of a hot caustic soda solution. The alumina is dissolved in the caustic, and is later allowed to precipitate out by adding alumina particles.

The alumina later is separated from the oxygen by an electrolytic process requiring vast amounts of electric power.

British Guiana and Jamaica both produce alumina and ship it to Canada to be converted to aluminum. British Guiana also ships bauxite to Canada. Jamaica's alumina goes through the Panama Canal to a smelter in Kitimat, B.C., while British Guiana's bauxite and alumina go to Arvida, Que.

India's aluminum industry is integrated—the bauxite is mined in India, converted to alumina there and reduced to aluminum. Fabrication into semi-finished forms — sheets, coils and such for the local market—is also done there.

TRAINEES AT WORK — Trainees work on a machine at the Demba Trade School in British Guiana, one of several schools sponsored by a group of companies whose major component is the Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd. The world wide enterprise says helping people in underdeveloped countries where it has plants is good human relations and good business. (CP Photo)

Planting and Care of Peonies

By FLORA M. SAVELLE

A Chinese gentleman noted for his flower paintings, especially those of peonies, said he tended the plants and enjoyed their odour in the winter to bring beauty in the summer and pleasure to his mind's eye. This, no doubt, was why the pictures had a dream-like quality.

The peony has been recorded in history for two thousand years. It was known in China, Japan and other eastern countries as well as Greek mythology and Roman writings. The Crusaders brought it back from the war and from there the Plymouth Brethren brought it to America. Pioneer women moving west in Conestoga wagons, took roots to their new homes.

This is a plant to last a lifetime. The Peony Society has records of many plants over one hundred years old. Now catalogs of the foremost peony growers list from 400 to 900 varieties.

Single and semi-double blooms are increasing in popularity. The large heads of the very double types are often bent and ruined by heavy rainstorms but the singles with few petals and stronger stems stand up bravely through wind and rain. For the first few days the blooms of the singles close at evening and the lustrous buds look like big round rose buds.

OUTSTANDING HYBRIDS

Many of the hybrids are outstanding in form or color but if they are still grown new they can be priced as high as $5. to $10. or even higher. Claire de Lune will take up residence at 225 Coleman St., Belleville.

For the first few days the blooms of the singles close at evening and the lustrous buds look like big round rose buds.

OUTSTANDING HYBRIDS

Many of the hybrids are outstanding in form or color but if they are still grown new they can be priced as high as $5. to $10. or even higher. Claire de Lune will take up residence at 225 Coleman St., Belleville.

One dollar will buy a good plant of the older proven varieties such as festiva maxima (white with crimson flecks) Karl Rosenfield (dark wine red) Lady Alexandra Duff (blush pink semi-double crimson) Mad. Lemoine (white with gold stamens) Sarah Bernhart (pale pink) or Felix Crousse (brilliant red). Tree peonies are about $5 each.

Growers sometimes complain that their peonies do not bloom. Deep planting is usually the fault. Two inches under the soil surface is enough covering for the crown. Heavy shade, which may have developed without notice due to tree growth, can be a cause where the plants have bloomed well for years.

The peony has few enemies, botrytis being the most common. It is a grey mould that appears on new leaves when the shoots are about one foot high in the spring. When it develops later in the season the buds turn black and wither. Control — cut off the shoots below soil level and destroy them as soon as any sign of infection appears. In the fall cut off all leaves when frost kills them and burn the stems and foliage. Do not throw on the compost pile. Dust plants and soil with semesan or other mercury compound. Spray plants when in leaf with Bordeaux mixture, Zaneb or captan.

FAILURE TO OPEN

Bud blast, failure of buds to open, is not caused by a virus. It is lack of potassium in the plant, dry weather, low temperature, when buds are forming, in fertile soil or too much shade.

If you wish to divide or transplant peonies, late August or early September is the time to do it. However, think twice before you do either of these operations. Peonies resent moving, and thrive in the same spot for years and years. All they ask is a fall feeding of low acting fertilizer and several applications of liquid fertilizer as the buds are opening.

To Support Pearson

Caouette Will Head New Party in House

QUEBEC (CP) — Real Caouette announced late Wednesday night that he has captured the support of a majority of the 23 Social Credit members of Parliament and will head a new party called Le Ralliement des Creditistes in the Commons.

He indicated that the new group intends for the present to support the Liberal government of Prime Minister Pearson "in the interests of Canada and not against the interests of French Canadians."

Mr. Caouette told a press conference following a hotel - room caucus attended by 15 other Quebec MPs that he had succeeded in obtaining the support of three more besides the nine who had previously backed him publicly.

"Eventually we will attempt to make this a national party and take it across Canada to protect the French - Canadians in every province," Mr. Caouette said following the four-hour meeting.

He said his main difference with Robert Thompson, Social Credit party leader, was the latter's "refusal to care anything about the French - Canadian point of view in national politics."

Of the 22 Social Credit MPs, 19 were elected in Quebec.

Mr. Caouette also said Mr. Thompson is afraid of being branded as if he sticks too strongly to Social Credit doctrine. The political philosophy had found a response in Quebec and Mr. Caouette didn't get along with "those who are afraid."

Following the weekend Ralliement convention in Granby which repudiated Mr. Thompson's leadership, six Quebec Social Credit MPs announced their support for Mr. Thompson. Until now Le Ralliement was the Quebec wing of the Social Credit party.

They were: Maurice Cote, Chicoutimi; Marcel Lessard, Lac St. Jean; Gerard Ouellet,

Overhaul Present System

OTTAWA (CP) — A special team of senior government officials has launched a twin investigation that may lead to a major overhaul of the present unwieldy system of classifying and paying federal employees as well as producing a blueprint for civil service collective bargaining.

A. D. P. Heeney, a career diplomat who heads the nine-member preparatory committee on collective bargaining, announced Wednesday that offices have been opened, staff hired and work started on the long range investigation.

He declined to set a target for the committee's report to the government on how collective bargaining can be established between the government and employee organizations.

"We have six months' hard expert work to do before we can begin to think in terms of a timetable," he told a press conference.

Mr. Heeney was flanked by the top leaders in the four major civil service staff associations as he outlined the ground rules and objectives of the search for a workable collective bargaining arrangement.

ENVOLVES 185,000

An annual pay bill of more than $500,000,000 involving some 185,000 civil servants will be at stakes when the government and employee organizations sit down on opposite sides of a bargaining table to negotiate wages and working conditions in a union-type contract.

Mr. Heeney made it clear that agreed "in principle" to collective bargaining as long as it does not "impinge on the rights of the individual."

Mr. Heeney indicated that he has worked out an informal agreement with leaders of civil service staff organizations to keep any differences of opinion from erupting into public during the investigation.

He said the committee's investigation will be aimed at two specific targets:

1. To find out how to streamline the "highly complex classifications" surrounding the 1,827 grades of civil servants and the pay rates attached to the classification system that has grown like topsy since it was introduced in 1919.

2. To prepare machinery for collective bargaining and arbitration.

Mr. Heeney said he has already met President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress about the work of the committee.

The British - owned, English-language newspaper quotes a refugee from China as saying the volunteers included more than 30,000 students from Shanghai.

Dynamite Blast At Negro's Home Causes Outbreak

Police Fire Into Air But Three Negroes Hit

By DON McKEE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Gunfire spouted with angry concussions in the humid night air on Center Street, making quick orange flashes in the dark.

It was like a battle.

Sirocco reports from carbines were punctuated by the blast of shotguns.

Helmeted policemen, holding firearms in military fashion, formed in lines of 12 and rushed, yelling and firing their guns into the air.

Crowds of Negroes, some of them hurling bricks and bottles, swirled away from the street corners, retreating into alleys and houses.

A group of Negro youngsters ran toward the scene.

"Nobody better not be hurt!" one said. They ran on but were stopped two blocks short of the house. Shores and his 17-year-old daughter escaped injury in the blast but Mrs. Shores was thrown out of bed and suffered a bruised shoulder.

CHASE ONLOOKERS

At half-a-dozen points in a sealed off area, policemen chased back the spectators. One cordon of officers formed and moved down a street pushing Negroes in front of them.

A Negro civil defense captain, James Lay, was blasted with white police officer to hold back. Lay had a megaphone. He had been calling on the Negroes to disperse. Already two had been shot and one of them died.

"I couldn't get them into going home," he said.

"Talking don't do no good," responded the white officer curtly. "You've been doing a good job but talking won't work."

Two of the policemen looked inside a parked police car.

"Come outa there!" one said, brandishing his shotgun.

GET OUT OF SUB

A young Negro man, his wife holding a baby in her arms, and two other Negro men got out of the sub.

"Lie down Lie down!" ordered one of the policemen.

The Negro moved his head to lie down on the grass with her baby in her arms. She handed the infant to her husband who was on his knees, trying to get down.

"Lie down!" shouted the po-

Premier, Liberal Leader Clash Over Organized Crime

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Liberal Leader Whitneyer on Wednesday night accused Ontario's Progressive Conservative government of blindness and laxity in the battle against organized crime.

And at roughly the same time, Premier Robarts was saying his government is determined to rid Ontario of organized crime. He challenged political opponents, mentioning Mr. Winterower, to produce any information they have on the subject.

While the two leaders treated a more sensational subject, New Democratic Leader Donald C. MacDonald spoke at a Liberal session and community planning planks at the campaign for the Sept. 25 provincial general election.

It was the first time in the campaign Mr. Winterower, whose speech in the legislature last year touched off a crime investigation by Mr. Justice Wilfred Roach of the Ontario Supreme Court, had emphasized the subject.

At a meeting in Orillia, he berated the Roach royal commission as being "a cruel hoax upon the public."

Accusing the government of being "completely blind to the problem of organized crime and terribly lax in the discharge of its responsibility to combat organized crime," the Liberal leader said:

"It soon became tragically apparent that the royal commission on crime was not determined to get the truth.

"Witness after witness came and went with no more than a warning that they must tell the truth. And when it became apparent to the members of the underworld that they could live with impunity, the crime commission became a cruel hoax upon the public."

The Roach report, issued in

Fifth of Villagers Killed

Orphaned by Jet Crash, Children Running Farms

CP from Reuters-AP

HUMLIKON, Switzerland —Dozens of children orphaned by the crash of a jetliner were working the fields today helping to keep life running smoothly in this peaceful farming community.

Nineteen couples and five single men—a fifth of Humlikon's population—were among the 80 persons killed when the Swissair Caravelle crashed shortly after taking off from Zurich Wednesday.

The entire village council, a teacher and the chief of the local fire brigade were listed among the Humlikon dead. The group was on its way to Geneva to visit an experimental farm at the invitation of a firm of pesticide manufacturers.

Though Humlikon's wheat harvest is in, both the potatoes and grapes have still to be gathered. So the orphans and surviving adults, who earlier had listened ashen-faced to the radio news of the crash, set to work to keep the farms running.

The tip he mailed's parish clark, Jakob Zinkel, said everybody was lending a hand on the farms, "but we must have help with the harvest."

A local pastor said 26 children and 14 youths had lost both parents in the disaster.

What can we do about the children?" was a common question in Humlikon, which is about 30 miles from the scene of the crash.

"I wish I had been on the plane," one old man told reporters. "All the young adults are dead and who is going to do the farming?"

Said Gottfried Meisterhans, 38, whose parents perished in the disaster:

"This is terrible. This is worse than war because it ripped out virtually a whole generation."

The crash occurred near the

More Aid Offered To UN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is expected to offer the United Nations a larger and more flexible Canadian force for UN duty anywhere in the world, informed sources said Wednesday.

Mr. Pearson, who won the Nobel Prize for his instigation of the 1956 UN emergency force in Egypt, will go to New York Sept. 17 for opening sessions of the UN general assembly.

Informants said Mr. Pearson, long an exponent of a world police force, will likely make a concrete offer of military manpower and equipment, possibly at first in private talks with the delegations of other nations.

He will urge other countries to maintain on a stand-by basis forces for UN duty as Canada, Norway, Denmark and Sweden now do. The three Scandinavian countries recently offered the UN a Nordic battalion.

Sources said Mr. Pearson probably will want to sound out other countries on their views before making a public commitment by Canada beyond that already in existence.

Canada for some years has

Bar Assoc. Told Police Hold Prisoners, Beat Them

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Two resolutions designed to ensure that persons arrested in this province are brought before a court within 24 hours of their arrest were approved Wednesday by the Canadian Bar Association.

The first, introduced by Lawrence Corriveau of Quebec City, urged an amendment to the Criminal Code to ensure that authorities can not circumvent present Criminal Code provisions which say prisoners must be charged in open court within 24 hours of their arrest.

Mr. Corriveau, chairman of the Quebec section's civil rights committee, told the national meeting "there are many cases in which police detain a prisoner indefinitely for several days at a time.

"He (the prisoner) is denied the right of communication with a lawyer and his family or friends. We want to re-educate the police so that they can be anyone, no matter who, has basic civil rights and if you detain him you can only do so for 24 hours."

The object of an amendment is to "give practical means to enforce the present provisions of the Criminal Code without nullifying delays."

"There would be no room for any further criticism and disparagement of the Criminal Code, which are so harmful in their consequences."

Later, in an interview, Mr. Corriveau added,

"Police play a suspect and they detain him for days trying to force a confession out of him.

Buddhists Boycotting Pagodas Handed Back to Docile Monks

SAIGON (Reuters)—Buddhist worshippers have reoccupied pagodas here today in retaliation against the South Vietnamese government's new policy of "divide and conquer."

The Buddhists were angry over measures by the government to hand back authority to established leaders while militant monks were kept in prison.

The government has even appointed former monks as new Union Committee for the Defence of Pure Buddhism.

The committee has been set up by non-militant Monks released after being arrested Aug. 21 when soldiers carried out bloody assaults on pagodas and rounded up hundreds of monks, nuns, students and opposition figures.

Buddhist sources said they were spreading word not to go to the pagodas so that the government would be unable to say everything was returning to normal.

Government agents were busy trying to encourage Buddhists to return to the pagodas, but even those few women and children who went to them were departed after talking briefly with monks and nuns.

Meanwhile, the official government press agency said that in the city of Hue, the police north of here, police have released 40 students arrested for leading anti-Diem demonstrations by the government in its crackdown against Buddhists.

It said monks and nuns temporarily detained under martial law at Tt Quoc An pagoda near Hue returned to their pagodas two days ago.

The agency said the remains of a Buddhist leader, Tieu Dieu, who burned himself to death last month in protest against the government's Buddhist policy, has been handed over to his son for burial.

Russians Stage Demonstration Before China's Moscow Embassy

MOSCOW (AP) — A Chinese embassy spokesman said today Russians demonstrated in front of the Embassy earlier this week.

He refused to give details, saying "everything has been reported by our radio and newspapers."

Peking radio said Wednesday night more than 20 Soviet citizens picketed the embassy Monday, shaking their fists and chanting:

"We do not want to die," "Shame on the Chinese" and "Shame, shame, shame."

Peking radio said the demonstrators also argued with embassy personnel, asking them why China refuses to sign the nuclear test-ban treaty.

There has been no mention in the Soviet press of the demonstration.

Meanwhile, Soviet and Chinese propagandists continued to trade insults.

The Soviet journal New Times compared Chinese propagandists with that issued by the government of Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek. The accusation was possibly the lowest insult that could be made among Communists.

The official military newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star) said the overwhelming majority of the world's Communist parties "condemn the inhuman policy of the Chinese leaders, who are ready to sacrifice hundreds of millions of people in the event of a thermonuclear war."

Despite the daily name-calling, Western diplomats believe Soviet-Chinese diplomatic relations will continue since both powers have too much to lose in a complete break.

Bundesnachrichtendienst

Former Nazi Expert Heads Vast Spy Ring

MUNICH (AP) — A white-headed wall rings a wooded estate in a fashionable Munich suburb.

This is about all the outsiders see of the tightly guarded and mystery-laced headquarters of the Bundesnachrichtendienst the West German federal intelligence service, or BND for short.

A more popular label is "Gehlen organization," named after its leader who set up the espionage network under U.S. auspices after the Second World War.

Former Lt.-Gen. Reinhard Gehlen, in the business for more than 31 years, has an outfit of perhaps 4,000 men. Recently they have weathered an unprecedented onslaught of criticism.

The agency became the target of violent attacks after a senior official, Heinz Felfe, was convicted as a Soviet agent in West Germany's biggest spy trial since the war.

Court testimony at Karlsruhe disclosed Felfe and a co-defendant, Hans Clemenz, during the Nazi era were both intelligence officials of the Reich security head office—which also employed Adolf Eichmann. Clemenz said that he took part in the shooting of 330 Italian hostages.

Critics of both opposition and government parties urged that the outfit be given a thorough going over. Newspapers spoke of a "Nazi nest in Munich."

The government took things in stride. The federal chancellory, to which Gehlen is immediately attached, let it be known that "far less than one

Plans for a 500-home subdivision, just within the city's western limits were announced today. A subdivision agreement, between the city and Belleville L. and M. Developments Ltd., was signed this morning. Realtor W. J. McCormack and contractor Charles W. Lambert are behind the scheme called "West Park Village."

Site of the new development is a 90-acre strip of land just west of Sidney St., extending from West Moira St. north to Highway 401. "Phase one" of the operation, which will include 200 houses to be built on the southern half of the property, will take about two years. Construction of the new houses in the $14,000 to $15,000 range, will be by Charles W. Lambert Ltd. and by West Park Construction Ltd. Five basic house plans with three variations on each plan, will be used in the development, according to W. J. McCormack, giving a total of fifteen essentially distinctive home layouts. Down payments will be low, he says.

UTILITIES BURIED

Because of the curved streets planned and the gently roiling land of the site, there will be no "subdivision looks" Mr. McCormick continues. There are few spots in the subdivision from which more than one house of any one design will be visible. All houses are single-family, fully detached, with full basements and features electric heating. House plans have been developed especially for this subdivision, and will fit well in the contours of the land.

Utilities will be buried, according to Mr. McCormick and the plans, as approved, call for storm and sanitary sewers and water supply connected to the city system and all roads paved and curbed. About two miles of roads will be included in phase one of the project, and the traffic pattern has been planned to avoid overloads and congestion. All roads, planned and surveyed by Bellville surveyor Tom Ransom, will follow the contours of the ground.

SELF-CONTAINED

"West Park Village," says Mr. McCormick, "will be a self-contained community, almost". Phase one of the project will include a five acre park, on land already deeded to the Parks Board. Plans two may include a small shopping centre, "not a full plaza," Mr. McCormick says, and some clean, light industry may be permitted between Highway 401 and the rear property line. An apartment house near the north end of the development will provide a "buffer barrier".

The agreement signed today marks the end of two years of planning, negotiation and study of subdivisions across the province. Final registration of the plan, normally a one-day process, remains, then construction will begin within three weeks. First model house in West Park Village will be ready for inspection by the end of October, according to Mr. McCormack.

County Council Members See Potential for Tourism In Tour of North Hastings

The lake studded Highlands of Hastings in the northern half of its 100-mile length has a big potential for tourism, members of Hastings county council were told during a day-long tour held on Wednesday.

The tour of council members covered the extreme length of the county and was the second of which will be annual trips staged to promote better understanding between the north and the south townships of the county.

Warden Charles Long said that the next county tour (in 1964) would cover the southern part of the county.

The party visited several of the larger cottage ringed lakes in the northern part of the county but was told at an evening dinner held at the Algonquin lodge at Lake S. Peter that the tourist industry potential of the area was but still only

STILL IN INFANCY

"Despite the development in recent years, the tourist business in North Hastings is still in its infancy," stated Clarke T. Rollins, Conservative M.P.P. for Hastings East in the last Ontario Legislature.

This feeling was echoed by W. Elmer Sandercock, Hastings West Legislature representative, who said that the new tour route would see even more development for the area.

Adding to the recreational interest of the area, Mr. Rollins said that the Limerick Hunting Club had been formed this year in that township with 45,000 acres leased by Dominion Tar as hunting grounds.

Lou Grills, former M.P. for Hastings South, also took in the trip and spoke briefly at the evening dinner.

And Limerick Reeve George Parks said there was also real mining potential in his municipality.

During the past year or so considerable diamond drilling had taken place about two miles west of Highway 62 where promising deposits of nickel and silver had been located.

VISIT CAMPSITE PARK

He said there was still nothing definite from an official source but he personally felt a mine would be developed.

It was noted that arrangements for boarding of the 25 men this winter in the Coe Hill area had been made to carry out further work in the area.

First stop for the bus load of county officials was at the campsite park owned by Dr. Russell Scott at LaVallee Lake in Faraday township.

Here Dr. Scott has demonstrated what can be done to develop an attractive camping area in the right location.

Although started only a year or so ago, last year up to 300 camps, many of them in American Centres enjoyed the facilities of LaVallee Park and the excellent fishing in LaValle Lake.

TOUR FARADAY MINE

Noon luncheon was enjoyed at St. Mark's United Church hall at Faudash Lake west of Bancroft and during the early afternoon the party made a tour of the Faraday Uranium Mine.

Here in groups of eight or ten the council members were taken through the mine mill where approximately 1,000 tons of uranium ore is processed daily. Close to 300 men are working at the mine on a 24-hour basis, about half of them underground.

Reeves of the various northern townships attended a reconnaissance noting points of interest as the bus passed through their respective municipalities.

The party saw the new all-Non-and-a-half dollar technical school addition to the Bancroft night school now being completed and viewed beautiful Baptiste Lake from a 1,700-foot vantage point a mile or so away.

BEAUTIFUL LAKES

In the extreme north of the county the party visited Papineau Lake, Kamaniskeg Lake, in Bangor township, described by township reeve Elzie Oram as "one of the most beautiful lakes in Ontario."

Reeve Oram said that tourism was already the biggest industry in North Hastings, bringing more money into the area than even the timber and pulpwood industry, which was in second place.

Evening dinner was held at the Algonquin Lodge on the shores of Lake St. Peter north of Maynooth, owned by Reeve Oram and his wife Doris.

Reeve Angry When He Found 3 Bears Shot

The Lake St. Peter area north of Maynooth has lost three of its living tourist attractions.

The three black bears, who were regular evening visitors to a garbage dump in the lake area have been found shot early this week.

One of the bears was shot Sunday evening and the other two the following night.

"I was never so mad in my life," stated McClure township reeve, Elgin Oram. "The bears were quite an attraction and were hurting nothing."

"I am sure the men who shot them didn't get much sport out of shooting the bears like sitting ducks," he said.

Modern Bridge Over Deer River At Coe Hill

The village of Coe Hill in Wollaston township has a modern new bridge over the Deer River replacing the former narrow structure on the 620 secondary highway route.

The new structure was recently completed along with a half mile of new paving and curbing at the east end of the village.

Cost of the road project was in the neighborhood of $100,000 it is stated.

The Bancroft Flying Club, formed last spring and recently receiving its charter, is losing no time in providing itself a landing field for light aircraft.

Former Bancroft Reeve J. N. Brown, himself an enthusiastic flyer, was mainly instrumental in the formation of the Bancroft Flying Club, which has since purchased its own plane.

Three Sections of Town Slated for Demolition If Council Decides to Act

TRENTON — Three sections of Trenton, with a total of 228 houses, may be slated for demolition within the next few years if town council decides to go ahead with urban renewal recommendations being prepared by the Toronto firm of Project Planning Associates Ltd. The three areas, shown as redevelopment areas on the firm's maps of the town, lie on both sides of the river north of Dundas Street, and on the east side of the river south of Dundas Street. Housing in these areas is considered generally below standard, by the planning firm.

Maurice Dake and Dennis Flood, representing the firm, explained the studies now being carried out, and the concept of urban renewal, to the town's Board of Health yesterday afternoon, and to the town's Planning Commission last night. The sessions lasted more than two hours each.

WILL PRESERVE VALUES

Business of the planned program will be the preservation of property values in the town, and provision for continued growth of the town, by planned redevelopment of the downtown area.

During the past few months, the planners have studied the downtown area and, in theory, divided it into four different categories. Three of these categories are residential and therefore the immediate targets of the survey. Federal subsidies, under the National Housing Act may pay about 75 per cent of the cost of renewal of areas in these categories. The fourth category covers the commercial heart of the town.

The three residential categories include re-development areas (three of them) which the planners suggest the town buy the land demolish everything, and start over again, rehabilitation areas (five of them), where the planners suggest the town buy and demolish poor properties and conservation areas where the planners suggest the town do nothing, but keep a careful watch on building and sanitation by-laws. The theory is that there is nothing worth saving in the redevelopment areas, some buildings worth saving in the rehabilitation areas, and that everything in the conservation areas is worth saving, but the time to start is now.

The plans shown the Board of Health and the Planning Board yesterday are in the nature of a progress report, on the completion of the extensive part of the survey of the town being carried out by the firm. Within the next few weeks, Dennis Flood, a representative of the firm, will be conducting the interview part of the survey.

TO CONDUCT SURVEY

Mr. Flood will be going from door to door through sample sections of each category, in the coming months, collecting information pertinent to the survey. Two questions he will be asking ir all cases, the two members of the boards were told, are "do you like living in this area?" and "where would you like to live". The answers to these questions will partially determine the other questions to be asked. The whole idea of the intensive survey, Mr. Dake said, is to make sure the recommendations are made to desires of the people of Trenton, rather than the dreams of a planner in Toronto.

When the final report is presented to the town, about next February, the town may or may not take action. If it does, it will be the only town of its size in Ontario to take a realistic and progressive approach to the problem, Mr. Dake said.

AFTER SIX YEARS AS A POLICE OFFICER, Horace Wright, owner of the Trenton Dairy Queen stand, appreciates a policeman's problems. For three years now, he has promoted co-operation with the police, with this sign, outside the stand Labor Days. In the picture his wife stands before the sign.

Death Accident Verdict of Coroner's Jury

TRENTON—A coroner's jury Wednesday night decided that William Jackson, late of Trenton, came to his death August ninth by accident, having been struck and run over by a car driven by Annie Widdicks, of Trenton. No blame was apportioned at the inquest which lasted more than two hours.

Acting crown attorney Thomas Lally, of Belleville, instructing the jury, had said there was no need for the jury to decide responsibility for the accident.

According to evidence presented the inquest, Mr. Jackson had been riding a bicycle south on Sidney St., just north of Edward St., when he was struck from behind by Mrs. Widdicks' car, about 11.45 a.m. The evidence indicated that Mr. Jackson had landed on the hood of the car, slid off, and been dragged under the car until it stopped, a short distance down the road.

NOT DRIVING FAST

The evidence indicated that Mrs. Widdicks had been driving at less than 20 m.p.h. at the time of the accident, and that she had not swerved from the paved portion of the road. Mr. Jackson, riding on the gravel side path, may have swerved onto the road just before the accident.

Mrs. Widdicks testified that she had seen Mr. Jackson a few seconds before the accident, but had not seen him move into the path of her car. Her daughter-in-law and three grandchildren were in the car at the time.

The jury's verdict was read by Jury Foreman, H. J. Capbell to coroner Dr. J. V. Byrne.

Operator of 'Dairy Queen' Assists Police With Sign

TRENTON — Horace Wright, a Belleville police constable for six years, still has sympathy with the lot of the policeman. That's one of the reasons why, Labor Day for the past three years, he has done what he could to help the police.

Mr. Wright, owner of the Dairy Queen on Dundas St. E. in Trenton, has a $3,300 "Read-o-Graph" sign in front of his business, the biggest such sign in the area. Like a theatre marquee, it is fitted with movable letters, to spell a lighted message out to the world at large.

Normally, the sign is used to advertise the Dairy Queen stand, a family business operated by Mr. Wright, his wife, and his three daughters, (his son - in - law helps out on weekends). Often, the sign boosts safety, with "cute" slogans. (Sample — "one arm makes poor driving, and lousy hugging"). On Labor Days for the past three years, however, it has been turned to more disinterested use. In big, lighted letters, it pleads with motorists to co - operate with Provincial and local police officers.

Reactions to the sign are varied, Mr. Wright reports. A few motorists have suggested, in impolite but very definite terms, that the police don't deserve co - operation. Some Provincial Police officers, on the other hand, have expressed their thanks for the public - relations assist.

Mr. Wright isn't worried about the thanks, or the insults, though. All he looks for are traffic statistics.

Planners Talk to Board Of Health, Then Make Tour

TRENTON — The Chamber of Commerce probably would not have approved of the tour of Trenton given two Toronto town planners yesterday, by Health Board chairman H. S. Pease and Medical Officer of Health Dr. E. W. Dow. The tour covered only the seamy side of the town.

But the seamy side of the town is the town planners' business, Masters Dake and Dennis Flood, both of Toronto, work for the firm of Project Planning Associates, retained by the town to conduct an urban renewal study. After speaking to the Board of Health yesterday, they went with Dr. Dow and Mr. Pease to view some of the Health Board's problems. They saw plenty.

On one town-owned lot, they saw an old fashioned outhouse within ten feet of the street. Outhouses are common in these areas, the planners were told. They saw for themselves. Also in the same area, two houses, both substandard, on a single, smaller than average building lot. Not far away was a house, little bigger than a privy, with a couple of children playing outside The rotting wood of the house could barely support the shining new aluminum door, and the unusually-large T.V. aerial.

MAINTENANCE ENFORCED

There is hope for such areas though, and the people who live in them, Dake had told the Board of Health earlier. "Even prosperous urban centre," he said, "attracts its share of permanent welfare cases. It has been shown though," he said, "that when adequate housing is provided, and maintenance and adequate housing is enforced, even the hard-core welfare cases often change their habits."

About half the people dispossessed by slum clearance projects, Mr. Dake said, will move away or provide for their own resettlement. The other half, if provided with good housing and forced to maintain it, will try to "live up to their new homes." He said that in such cases, men have improved their employment records, and often raised their incomes.

He added though, that new housing alone, was not a one-shot solution to the welfare problem.

GETS LIGHT SNOW

Slight Damage In Collision

TRENTON — Damage totalled about $75, in a two-car collision on the town's main street during noon hour yesterday. At 12.20 p.m., a Trenton police constable stopped traffic on the down town section of Dundas St., to allow a lady to cross the road. Harold J. Henderson, of R. R. 1, Brighton, stopped his car. Mr. Henderson's car stopped a car driven by Ralph Crosby, of Trenton.

Damage was about $15 to the front end of Mr. Crosby's car, about $60 to the rear end of Mr. Henderson's car.

School Enrolment up 330 Students Over Last Year

TRENTON — Enrolment in Trenton schools is up this year by about 330 students over last June's enrol ment. Three public schools and one separate school are down slightly, but the increase in enrollment in other schools more than makes up for the difference.

St. Peter's Separate School is down slightly, from 460 students last June to 430 students now. The school building, however, now houses two senior grades, about 70 children, from St. Mary's Separate School, in addition to the 430 St. Peter's students.

Marmora St. Senior Public School is down two students, to a total of 300, and Prince Charles School is down three students, to 254 now. North Trenton School is down by 12 students, to 191 now.

College St. School is up from 558 students in June to 614 now, Dufferin St. School is up from 371 to 405, and Queen Elizabeth School is up from 380 students in June to 416 now.

At St. Mary's Separate School, enrolment is up from 250 students in June to about 300 students now. Seventy of these students are taking classes at St. Peter's Separate School, to avoid overcrowding.

Enrolment at Trenton High School to date and there may be more students to come is 1,230 now compared with 1,200 last June. The increase is about 100 students more than expected, but there is no crowding at the school yet.

Is This a Conformist Society?

The Stratford Beacon-Herald, in an editorial concerning an altogether different topic, observes in passing: "The tax laws, the zoning laws, the traffic laws, all force the individual to be a faceless number and conform."

This is a familiar theme these days, that our modern society requires conformity in a manner which was not true of the past.

Most of us accept this as an axiom. It so happens, though, that the form in which the Beacon-Herald chose to voice this widely accepted idea gave us pause. When it comes to laws limiting the freedom of action of the individual, three is grave reason to doubt whether today's society is as restrictive as many others in past history.

Today's citizen may be hemmed about by ordinances, passed not only by federal, provincial and municipal law makers, but also by a proliferating group of boards and commissions, but is he not much freer than the serf in the Middle Ages?

The most conformist of all lots must surely be that of the slave.

When we contrast the present-day pressures towards conformity with the freedom of individual choice which we have inherited from less commonplace in the past, are we not confusing the lot of today's common man with yesteryear's aristocrat?

The Greeks talked a lot about democracy, but it was a democracy reserved for citizens and citizenship was not granted to all, but only to a privileged few.

It is doubly easy for us in America to make this type of mistake, because both in Canada and the U.S. there grew up a society in which everybody, except, of course, those whose skin was not white, enjoyed a large measure of freedom of choice. This, though, was not a privilege common to people in other lands. The industrial revolution forced a new kind of conformity on the humbler pepole of England, but even before that was not English society, basically, a conformist society? What can be stronger evidence of this than the fact that in England there are a variety of local accents, differing so widely that a farm laborer from Somerset may be unable to understand another of his class from Yorkshire, until they both resort to their school-taught English?

Once one starts to think about this matter of conformity, the doubt grows as to whether the pressure towards it are any greater in our present-day society than in many of the societies of the past. That they are greater than those which partained in the U.S. and Canada a century ago is almost self-evident. But that was not because of the lack of many formal restraints on conduct, such as are enacted today to order our urban living, but rather because he had on this continent an expanding society, with a wealth of opportunities.

Opportunities still abound, and they are breeding new types of non-conformists. The man, or boy, whose main interest lies in the possibilities of space travel, or in the utilization of the power that such a short time ago lay hidden within the atom, will not have the same habits of mind as the farmer or the store keeper. If their physical habits, the manner in which they house themselves, dress and eat, this way in which they seek recreation, are similar, that does not mean they have the same outlook on life.

Today's methods of travel bind much of the world smaller, and are wiping out differences between cultures. "Coke" is a byword around the world. But, by the same token, this dwindling of the world has brought us into touch with many customs and ideas once strange to us.

One is forced to ponder the possibility that today's society is far from becoming more conformist, may be one of the least stereotyped in the history of mankind.

Overlooked

A U.S. scientist interviewed for a CBC radio program recently expressed his view that war, in the modern world, is impossible. He repeated the old bromide that no big power would start a war today, because it was obvious nobody could win a modern war.

The scientist, and others who repeat the same argument, seem to have missed one of the basic facts of human nature. When people or nations start a fight, they are not so much concerned with winning themselves, as with the other party losing.

It is native personality, and that alone, that endows a man to stand before presidents or generals, or in any distinguished collection with aplomb—and not culture, or any knowledge or intellect whatever.—Walt Whitman.

Liberals Have No Holiday From Diefenbaker's Needling

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — On his very first day on his Parliament Hill job after his two-week "working vacation" fishing and "Main Streeting," Opposition Leader Diefenbaker was back at the old stand — and in good form.

Politics is the game, and at it he is still extremely good.

It might not yet be holiday time in the National Capital, with Parliament Hill often pretty much to the pigeons and the tourists, but Dief, the old fighting campaigner, would not let that interfere with his getting in a few fast licks at those mortal enemies of his, the usually Liberals, before taking off for a little globe-trotting in Europe and the Middle East.

He still swears that he is going to be Prime Minister again, and soon, the third since Confederation to successfully make the political comeback all the way from the outer darkness of the Opposition Leader's office to the "inner glow" of the power and prestige of the East Block.

And he appears to be working at it, putting some muscle into the "opposing" that the Opposition Leader is supposed to do, and swinging away at the Liberals with a lustiness that might ordinarily expect everybody to relax and take time out for the balance of the current Parliamentary Summer recess.

WHERE IT HURTS

Dief has been very long in the Opposition — in all his 23 years in the Commons, he spent only six on the Government side, so that it has became almost second political nature.

He understands the proposition that you've got to hit them often and hard where they're softest and if he hurts enough.

And this happens to be in the Finance Department where poor Walter Harris is still taking his lumps.

So among Dief swinging with a "forecast" so phrased as to sound more like a fact, that Walter Gordon was going to be the Cabinet's "burnt offering" for the economic sins of the Budget.

Dief had been "informed" by what he hinted were inside sources that the Budget days were numbered, now to less than a week, the troubled Finance Minister and the Cabinet guillotine before Parliament's September 30th reopening.

Of course, Gordon and Company trotted out a laughing denial, shrugging it off in a manner — but an edition too late. And you've got to say this way brush-offs and denials never come fast or hard enough to overtake anything but the lamest of rumors.

As he does with these things, Dief had a field day with needle rather skilfully, "sympathising" with the "unfortunate fellow" was being made the "political lamb" for the Liberal Party's Election Excesses, and lost in a bewildering financial wilderness of its own making.

He also had a few digs for the unlucky Finance Minister, remarking with a generous helping of irony that it was that the Liberals were so "unfair to the poor chap."

OBJECTORS BY THE GAME

Even now, despite all the indignant protest by Prime Minister Pearson and other Liberal brass that it is not so, chances are that Dief could be correct, and that Walter will get a new Minister of Finance before the second half of the Session opens at months end.

But, right or wrong in his forecast, whether guessing or, actually, as he claims "in the know", it really didn't matter.

For he was only doing the job an Opposition Leader is particularly supposed and expected to do — keeping the pressure and replace the Government.

In resuming the attack on Gordon, he was doing a job which the Government remains most vulnerable, casting new doubts, creating fresh, if unjustifiable about the Finance Minister and helping make his already frighteningly formidable difficulties even more difficult.

Nobody bothered to tell the Opposition Leader before he fired off his torpedoes that Gordon had returned to the Capital looking so shaken, even ghastly, partly, at least, because of an intimate personal tragedy.

It was in the first week of his fortnight's vacation that his first and favorite grandson was drowned.

The lad, the pride of the Gordons, died on the eight agonizing days, and the ordeal just about tore the Finance Minister apart.

He lost 13 pounds and came back to Parliament Hill looking more like Hamlet's ghost than at any time during the Budget Crisis, a trial which in itself had transformed him from a jaunty, even cocky political fun-medal, "whizzer" into an unhappy, uncertain and spectacularly unsuccessful Minister of Finance.

But Dief knew nothing of this

- - and anyway, politics, if you play for keeps, of necessity must be a ruthless game.

Strictly Personal

Mistrustful Should Be Mistrusted

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Show me a man who mistrusts others, and I will point out first him with a shoelace of my own; our opinion of mankind is the refracted opinion of ourselves, by hold of ourselves.

People who believe that "egotheism" is the principal ingredient of success forget that the school cheerleader is generally the fellow who can do nothing else.

I have never understood why it is that we contemptuously discount a person who praises himself — yet will not trust an institution or a corporation and does the same thing, we accept this self-praise with respect and submissive credulity.

Speaking of self-praise, one of the most amusing and informative books is Darrell Huff's "How to Lie with Statistics," which shows how modern mountebanks can use figures, charts and percentages to achieve any effect they care to. I especially enjoyed his chapter on "The Gee-Whiz Graph."

Pious people who impute a virtue to their dullness have a wide grain of justification for no religion, by making it easy for sinners to dismiss heaven as a place filled with insufferable bores. Religiously without charm or humor exercises more rebels than converts. God seems so solemn, or he would not have created such a fun-like incalculable gift of laughter.

Candor in the arts is the most dangerous device a man can use — many great novels have estranged their authors from society, for society fears it will be too pitilessly depicted. "Every time I paint a portrait, I lose a friend," John Sargent skilfully remarked.

It is difficult for some personalities to understand (until too late) that doing nothing is a form of doing something — and often its most disastrous form. The refusal to make a decision is a grave decision.

The best and most succinct argument against the necessity of "equal rights" for women was given long ago by Samuel Johnson, when he told a friend: "Sir, nature has given women so much power that the law cannot afford to give her more."

We can see how little real meaning such words as "liberal" and "conservative" have, when today the liberal is clinging tenaciously to the strictest letter of the Constitution, while the conservative is busy trying to pry loose some of the nails on the Fifth Amendment. History loves to play havoc with our neat little political pigeonholes.

Aspirin Taken Moderately Classed as Helpful Drug

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is aspirin habit-forming? I find myself quite nervous about a week before my menstrual period and have been taking from two to four tablets a day. Is prolonged use habit-forming or harmful?
— Mrs. R. I. K.

No. The dosage you are taking is not unreasonable, and it is not harmful or habit-forming.

But to fill you in on the kind of worries that sometimes are aroused, read this next letter:

Dear Doctor: How come some doctors say aspirin is harmless and others say otherwise? I have arthritis and my doctor prescribed 6 to 8 aspirins a day.

Now my all this baloney in the papers (clipping enclosed), about what ailments aspirin can cause? I took cortisone and it caused side effects! Is this cripping true? No sides, now. Tell me the truth. — Mrs. F. M.

The clipping she notes Dr. James Roth, of the University of Pennsylvania, as reporting that as many as 60 to 70 percent of people can lose (the article says) a teaspoon or more of blood in the stomach after taking one aspirina." He adds that ulcerations in sensitive tissues can be another consequence.

A report such as Dr. Roth's is of technical importance, but it also can scare the public silly. What he says is not "baloney." The trouble is in the way it is interpreted.

It is well known as I have frequently written that aspirin can irritate the stomaches of some people. There can be the "sensitive tissues" that the drug is one of the most valuable we have. (Mrs. F. M. tried cortisone and suffered because of the side-effects; by switching to aspirin she adopted a drug, which in many instances is just as effective and better tolerated.)

Some people can't tolerate aspirin because of a drug reaction. Others have to be careful of it because of stomach irritation.

But the majority of us gain far more help from aspirin used wisely, than we ever suffer from it. Six or eight tablets a day for an arthritis sufferer are perfectly reasonable.

And now to get back to the "bleeding" let's take another look at the article which quoted Dr. Roth. It reads, at the end: "Although a teaspoonful isn't very much (blood), it indicates that discrimination should be used in taking aspirin."

Roth said the blood loss was not dangerous unless a person had a peptic ulcer or ulcerative colitis. So far, so good. But he continued, "some individuals will occasionally lose as much as 10 teaspoons of blood internally without knowing it."

In short, Dr. Roth rightly should be using the word scientific, I am sure) to be used sensibly.

So do I.

Do I take aspirin? Yes.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will eating orange juice in a frozen, concentrated form harm one? My parents think so. — Mrs. R. T.

No, it's just orange juice, with some of the water removed.

Note to L. S.: If you tell your doctor your problem and you've wrote to me, I strongly suspect that he will recommend circumcision — and it is not too old for this.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure that you are doing all you can to relieve the problem, write Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, F. P. O. Box 5283, Station C, Chicago 80, Illinois, enclosing a long, self addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover the cost of handling.

New Point Of Departure

Chicago News

We know a Chicago area couple whose toon-age son and a neighbor boy departed on a summer cruise to Europe a few weeks ago. Nothing unusual about that you say? Well, no, except that to reach the ship all they did was jump into the family car and make a 30-minute trip up the Calumet Expressway.

At Calumet Harbor, they boarded a German freighter bound for Spain and Italy, they were off on a voyage whose ports of call included Moskeegon, Detroit, Cleveland, Toronto, Montreal, Rotterdam, Bordeaux, Antwerp, Bremen and Hamburg.

Daily departures from Ohare Airport of non-stop flights aboard jet liners become common place during Chicago's growth as a prominence as an international transportation centre. But the sight of foreign flag ships in the Lake Calumet — 700 miles distant from the nearest salt water — is still a vast startling to Chicagoans seeing it for the first time.

IBM Invades The Kitchen

Dallas News

As any political speechmaker will tell you one of the keynotes of the American way of life is Cake Like Mother Used to Make. It ranks somewhere between hay-ery pie and the six swimmin' hole.

Unfortunately, the picture is tarfire fast. Frozen, packaged cake mixes have pretty well done away with all the sifting and mixing of the old-fashioned way.

Now the electronic wizards have come up with one for taking the kludy old lady out of the picture, too. Electronics magazine reports that a digital computer is now being used at one bakery to direct the mixing, baking and packaging of cakes. Before long, there'll be one in every kitchen.

The electronic brain may make a better baker, but it's going to be pretty hard to write out an IBM recipe for Cake Like IBM Used to Make.

Convict Youth of Assault Reprimanded for Testimony

A Belleville district youth this afternoon was convicted of an assault after Magistrate T. Y. Wills reprimanded him for testimony given under oath.

The rebuke came after a statement given police by the accused, Alfred James Park, was shown to vary with evidence given by him in the witness box.

He was one of four youths charged with assaulting Robert Harris, a bread-company shipper July 18th on a Foxboro-area sideroad.

Clifford Maracle already has pleaded guilty to the charge. The count against Rodney Bennett was dismissed today after Mr. Harris failed to identify him as one of five youths who took him to the sideroad in an automobile as he hitch-hiked to work. The fourth youth charged is Gerald Blakely.

In his evidence, Park said he was driving the car with two others as passengers when Harris was picked up. He said he did not know who took part in the assault which took place as he changed a tire.

Assistant crown attorney Gordon Robertson then was permitted to read into the court record a statement later given OPP officers by Park.

STATEMENT READ

The statement quoted Park as telling the officers there were five youths in the car. Asked who took part in the assault Park was quoted in the statement as saying "Cliff and Gerry did."

"That doesn't comply with what you told this court as to your knowledge who hit (Harris)," charged Mr. Robertson, after Park was recalled to the stand.

Park said he was later told by one of the two youths which of them assaulted Harris.

"Why did you go into the witness box today and say there were only three of you in the car?" asked the magistrate. "Which (statement) am I to believe?

Park replied he "couldn't remember."

"Probably if you can't remember things like that here there are other things you can't remember," commented Magistrate Wills.

The youth said he did not want to mention the other names.

"In other words, when you swear the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, you are figuring out what effect it will have on me or on the case," retorted the magistrate.

REMAND CASE

"It doesn't give one very much confidence in what you are saying there."

Earlier in the court decision, a charge of breaking, entry and theft against Blakely was postponed to Tuesday. He pleaded not guilty to burglary July 18th

Hits Rubbish, Runs Into Bus

A Belleville man was treated for minor injuries late this morning when his car collided with a stationary city bus on East Dundas Street.

Freeman Dunkley, 212 North Front Street, received cuts and bruises in the collision that caused $500 to his small German automobile.

Police say the bus struck several cardboard cartons littered on the roadway near the Queen's Motel, throwing them in the air. Mr. Dunkley was momentarily distracted by the incident and struck the rear of the bus as it halted almost immediately afterward.

Gordon Stoughton was charged August 17th after a companion, 24-year-old James Largo, of Deseronsville, drowned in the bay.

Police said both men were crossing from Belleville to the Prince Edward County shoreline of the Bay of Quinte when Largo disappeared.

Pere Marquette Club Social Is Sept. 15

"When members of the French Association, the Pere Marquette club, met recently, it was decided that a social evening would be held on September 15th at Columbus Hall and not September 8th, as was stated in Wednesday's edition of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Premier

March, had shown only the shadow of the super-structure of organized crime, he said.

"What lies beneath, the crime commission cannot tell us. It cannot tell us because it did not look."

PREMIER DISTURBED

Mr. Robarts, speaking at a campaign meeting in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, said he is disturbed by "mutterings" concerning crime, even though his government had implemented recommendations of the Roach commission.

The Ontario Police Commission had all the powers of a royal commission and "if any citizen has information that would be beneficial and that bears on this subject, we have machinery waiting to deal with it."

Mr. MacDonald, also campaigning in the Toronto area, pleaded for community planning in Ontario and called for an overhaul of the province's municipal structure.

"Our municipalities operate under legislation created nearly 100 years ago" and it is "legislation incapable of . . . coping with the problems facing municipalities" now.

The key to the NDP's approach would be community planning.

Ann Landers

Face Made up Just So, Unmentionables Filthy

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Well, I just read another article in a magazine — probably the 500th on the same subject—"Women: How To Hang On To Your Husbands."

It's the same old palaver — let him dump his shoes and socks in the living room. It's O.K. if newspapers and cigarette butts are dropped on the floor, so what? The same gose for matches, toothpicks, jackets, skirts, shorts. Let him slop coffee on the rug. Just mop it up and keep smiling.

Baby him. Spoil him. Pamper him. Make him feel important. Love him to death. Make sure there's nothing left for anyone else. Keep your hair neat. Wear starchy little dresses. Be tidy at all times. And by all means be cheerful — he gets enough guff in the business world. After all, he might not be here next year.

Well my husband may not be here next year — but there's an even better chance that I won't be here either. I'll probably be in a mental hospital.

Thanks for listening. I feel better already. — ONE OF MILLIONS.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The difference between doing things for a man because you love him, and being a doormat, and an unwilling slave. The difference begins with how you feel about the guy. Thanks for letting me know how you feel about yours.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This problem is a hot potato which has been kicking around our office for months because no one knows what to do about it.

A certain girl who came to work here quite some time ago is just as pleasant as she can be. She's efficient, gets her work done early, then helps others to do theirs. But one thing about her bothers all of us. Even the men have commented on it.

She is one of those "clean on top, dirty underneath type," as my mother used to say. Her face is always made up just so and her hair is lovely, but her lingeries straps are filthy, her slips look as if they have never been laundered and if her garter breaks she doesn't bother to sew it back on. She pins her stockings to her girdle. When she crosses her knees and the plus and her dirty slip show, it is revolting.

Should one accept her for her good qualities and keep quiet, or should some body tell her? If so who — and how? — VIEW FROM THE 4TH FLOOR.

DEAR VIEW — She sounds like a lovely girl who was never taught the importance of good grooming.

The most tactful person in the office (and preferably an older woman) should tell her gently and in private that her shortcuts in grooming are destroying much of her charm.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a girl 22 and I'm about to be engaged. Chet is still in college. He comes from a well-to-do family and works summers for his dad. Chet has saved some money toward marriage because I told him I wouldn't marry him unless he proved he could save. His folks have spoiled him rotten.

Now he wants to give me a big diamond ring which belonged to his grandmother. I don't want his grandmother's ring. I'd rather have a single pearl which he paid for himself.

Chet says I'm out of my skull and my mother agrees with him. What shall I do? — PLAIN JAIN.

DEAR JAIN — At a time when so many young girls are looking for men with the aid of a Geiger counter it's downright refreshing to hear from a gal who has uncommon common sense about money and diamonds. Tell Chet you appreciate the sentiment attached to an heirloom but you are not marrying his grandfather and you'd prefer a single pearl.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

maintained a 900-man standby battalion — now the 1st battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment—for UN duty but the UN has never asked for Canadian infantrymen since the Korean War. The requests have always been for such troops as engineers and signallers.

Mr. Pearson will also likely discuss with other delegations the vital but dreary subject of financing UN operations.

Financing of the UN mission, mostly Canadian, is to come assigned Wednesday. Financing for the next two months, after which the mission is scheduled to wind up, still has to be worked out.

Canada has already made a voluntary contribution of $250,000 toward upkeep of the UN forces in Egypt and the Congo in the last half of 1963 on top of its regular assessment of $1,277,400.

The blazing airliner swooped down out of the early morning mist, sliced the roof off a house and exploded in a potato field, digging a crater 18 feet deep. Nothing resembling a body was found.

The crash occurred eight minutes after the plane had taken off and shortly after the pilot had radioed a "Mayday" (Master signal and desperately cried "No more! No more!"

Rumors circulated that the plane may have been sabotaged after some witnesses said it disintegrated in the air. But the chief investigator, Col. Karl Hoegger of the Swiss Federal Air Office, said evidence collected so far appeared to rule out foul play.

"But of course I cannot prove this," he added.

The resolutions go before the CBA council before coming before a general meeting of the 9,000 - member association. If they get by the last two hurdles they will become part of a formal request to the federal government.

collect information on buildings in the rear of the Red Army front.

When the war ended, he possessed a wealth of data copied in triplicate and carefully stowed away in secret places. It is said that Gehlen got in touch with Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, then assistant director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

U.S. Gen. George S. Patton, in view of East-West tensions, is reported to have sent Gehlen to the United States where the German agreed to set up a new spy organization, provided he got a free hand in picking his staff.

The Americans spent many millions on it before it was put under German control in 1953.

Since then scores of Gehlen agents have been jailed by Communist countries. Gehlen agents are accused by the Communists of using murder and torture tactics.

Now 62, Gehlen appears the most abusive part in his secret-shrouded organization. The only press photograph clearly showing his long, tantalling features to the Second Word War. People who claim to know him of duty say he strays parties a fun and continually changes his incognito and his automobiles.

Arthur Reaume Calls Robarts Whitewash Boy

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Arthur Reaume, Liberal member for Essex North in the last Ontario legislature, Wednesday described Premier Roberts as a whitewash boy who refuses to answer questions about syndicated crime in the province.

He was commenting in an interview on the premier's charge, made in a campaign speech at Fort William Tuesday, that Mr. Reaume was the manufacturer of election poison while Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer was the dispenser.

Mr. Reaume said the Progressive Conservatives were reaping the harvest of their whitewash policies.

"If after 20 years of supreme power they feel themselves slipping out of office, I for one cannot feel sorry for them," he added.

Hesman. "Let's see what's going on here."

One of the Negro men was streaming blood from an ugly head wound. He identified himself as Leo Williams, 39.

"I was hit with something. I don't know if I was shot or what," he said. Holding a large cloth to his head, he leaned against a tree in the dark.

WRITES NAMES

One of the policemen summoned an ambulance and another got a pad and began writing down the names of the four Negroes.

"I'm hurt bad. I gotta get to a doctor," said Williams.

"Now just sit down and be quiet," said the policeman.

"Don't you get blood on me."

The policemen stood around the tree and the bus. It was becoming quieter now. Only an occasional burst of gunfire was heard from another area.

And so it went, for an hour or more.

Then all was quiet on Center Street again.

MUSKOX STILL ROAM

Rimouski; Party Whip Jean-Louis Frenette, Portneuf; Gerard Girouard, Labelle, and Gerard Chapdelaine, Sherbrooke.

Mr. Frenette and Mr. Chapdelaine attended the Wednesday caucus but left the meeting three-quarters of an hour before it ended saying they had not changed their minds about supporting Mr. Thompson.

LISTS SUPPORTERS

Mr. Caouette announced the following 11 MPs now openly support him:

Gilles Gregoire, Lapointe; Gilbert Rondeau, Shefford; Raymond Langlois, Megantic; Gerard Perron, Beauce; Charles Gauthier, Roberval; Pierre-Andre Boutin, Dorchester; L. P. Boulanger, Charlevoix; Gerard Laprise, Chaplaau; Henri Latulippe, Compton — Frontenac; Charles Dionne, Kamouraska and Robert Beaule, Quebec East.

Mr. Caouette said another MP would make his support known later and that Lucien Plourde of Quebec West, would make his decision one way or the other by Saturday.

Mr. Caouette said the six who supported Mr. Thompson would suffer no retaliation.

Mr. Gregoire said the fact Mr. Caouette has captured a majority of the MPs means it now is "the official Social Credit party in Canada."

Mr. Gregoire was chosen House leader of the party at the meeting; Mr. Boutin was appointed secretary and Mr. Beaule caucus president.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne William McPherson are pictured signing the register following the wedding at Cannilton United Church. The bride, formerly Betty Lou Swan, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Swan of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McPherson, Belleville.

(Robert L. Studios, Belleville)

McPHERSON — SWAN

A pretty double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized in Cannilton United Church, Cannilton, recently, when Betty Lou Swan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Swan of Belleville was united in marriage to Wayne William McPherson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McPherson of Belleville. The Rev. C. A. Dawson officiated before a background of pink gladioli, assisted by Pastor H. Lindeman of Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Belleville. White satin bows with sprays of lily-of-the-valley designated the guest pews.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mrs. Farnham, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Rita Hough in her rendition of "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony. She also sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of chantilly lace over satin with fitted bodice accented by Peter Pan collar, embroidered with seed pearls, long lily-white sleeves and a three-tier skirt of lace bordered by accented pearled white net. Her bouffant four-tier veil fell down from a heart-shape headpiece of chiffon, dotted with seed pearls.

The bridesmaid, Miss Dianne Plumley of Bancroft, cousin of the bride chose a street-length turquoise nylon over taffeta gown, with white accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white 'mums.

Miss Bonnie Swan, sister of the bride was flower girl in a dress of pink nylon trimmed with lace over taffeta. She wore white shoes and gloves and carried a basket of tuning 'mums with white pom pom 'mums with matching head band.

Mr. Frank Curtis was best man while Mr. Bob Swan, brother of the bride and Mr. Bruce McPherson, brother of the bridegroom, were the ushers.

A buffet lunch was served in the church hall by the U.C.W. of Cannilton United Church. The bridal table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake and flanked with white candles in gold candelabra.

The bride's mother received wearing a pale blue sheath with matching jacket, white accessories and a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted dressed in a pale yellow nylon princess style dress with lace jacket, white accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Belleville, Picton, Cannilton, Corbyville, Bancroft, Pembroke, New York, Bird's Creek, Harcourt, Oshawa, Ottawa and Desoronto.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the bridegroom's grandparents' cottage on the Trent River with Mrs. Lorne Cronkright and Mrs. Ken Carleton as hostesses. She was also honored at a personal shower at the home of Mrs. Floyd Locke, Belleville with Miss Sharon Locke as hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. Locke.

Mr. and Mrs. McPherson are residing at Cannilton.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My daughter is being married next month and we had planned to have just a small reception, attended by the members of both families and closest friends. One of her friends gave her a shower last week, and another friend is giving her one next week. Many of the girls invited to each have yet been invited to the wedding. I'm quite disturbed about this and would like to include everyone, but I'm afraid the reception can't be enlarged because of budget. It's to be a sit-down luncheon. I'm sure some people will be hurt, and I'd like to know what can be done to smooth things over. — Mrs. F. K. Newark, N. J.

Answer: If it's not possible to invite all the shower guests to the wedding, perhaps you could arrange to have them invited to a reception or wedding party. Being planned in honor of the bride and groom. Otherwise the bride should be sure to invite them to a series of small gatherings at her new home as soon as she's settled and starts to entertain.

Question: I've been delegated by a group in our office to write to you concerning a problem we're up against. The boss is getting married next month. He's in his early forties, and is quite reserved and proper. We'd like to give him a wedding present — but it, the majority of us would like to, while the minority feels it's not correct to give a gift to the head of the firm. Before we take up a collection we'd appreciate your settling the question for us. — F. A. C., New York, N. Y.

Answer: Ordinarily it's not considered correct for employees to give the boss a gift on most occasions; like Christmas or on his birthday. However, a wedding is a different matter, and a gift would be appropriate in this instance.

72 Delegates Attend CGIT Camp Council

Miss Linda Marner of Belleville was one of 72 delegates, ages 15-17, chosen to represent the 30,000 girls active in CGIT in the Baptist, Church of Christ, Presbyterian and United Churches in Ontario, at the Canadian Girls' in Training Camp Council held at Quin-Mo-Lac, the United Church Conference campsite, near Madoc.

The session sponsored by the Ontario Girls' Work Board gave those who attended the opportunity to share and discuss ideas for CGIT policy and make it possible for each girl to report to her constituency of CGIT on her return home. The camp program presented the opportunity to worship, study and play together in the out-of-doors.

Giving leadership at the camp were: Mrs. Joy Field, R. R. 2 Manotick, Ontario; Miss Shelley Finson, Toronto 5; Miss Beverley Irwin, Fleming's Mills; Miss Pauline Zorachly, Toronto 7; Mrs. Russell Lawson, Moorefield; Miss Marion Pogue, Kingston; Miss Jessie Rogers, R. R. 1 Kingston; Miss Lieke Salomo, Indonesia; Mrs. Wm. Chisholm, Weston; Mrs. Robert G. Wallburn, Toronto 4; Miss Inez Watson, Toronto 14 and Mrs. Dennis Whalen, Beaverton.

A Provincial Girls' Executive was chosen by the delegates to assist with the program plans for Camp Council 1963 - 64 as follows: president, Lynn Smithcranal, Kingston; vice-president, Beverly Pugh, Toronto; executive members, Nancy Lashbrook; Anne Lee, Hamilton.

Mother Takes On Task of Teaching Son

COMOX, B.C. (CP)—Marcus Smith doesn't go to school because his mother thinks public schools "turn out children like sausages in a sausage factory."

Instead, 16-year-old Marcus has a home-made education on the family farm in Cape Lazo, three miles from this Vancouver Island town.

The husky, 130-pounder has passed grades 2 through 8, with his mother his teacher, the kitchen his classroom and the kitchen table his school desk.

His home-style education began six years ago when Mrs. Richard T. Smith believed she could do a better job of teaching her son than public schools.

"I'm not dissatisfied with him studying at home," says Marcus. "I have the usual tendency to dislike subjects such as maths and science in which I am most interested, but my mother usually makes sure I don't ignore the others."

Mrs. Smith was taken to court by the Comox school board but the magistrate ruled her son could be educated at home.

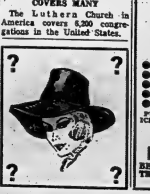
Shortcuts on textbooks prescribed by the education department. "I generally try to follow the curriculum laid down by the department," she says.

ATTACKS SYSTEM

She has many complaints against the school system but admits she didn't go to school either and was taught by her mother. She has no teaching experience other than giving piano lessons.

She believes the whole drive behind education today is to train the child to go out in the world and get a job. "The only incentive for living seems to be how much money you can make."

Both Mrs. Smith and Marcus realize the time is coming when he will have to attend a proper school if he wants to continue to university.



And another problem is:

"I'm rapidly getting past the stage when I can teach Marcus anything," says Mrs. Smith. "We are learning together now."

Marcus plans to study at home this year and to attend regular school in September, 1964.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart H. Rosenberg

How do we sharpen the dull edge of c o n s c i e n c e? Only when we are concerned with our self-esteem. Too often, we make the mistake of thinking that the reverse is true, that we lack strong consciences when we think too much of ourselves. Not at all. Our difficulty arises from the sad fact that we think too little of ourselves.

We accept, without the slightest gnawing of conscience, virtually every product of modern "culture" — T.V.'s violence, Hollywood's craven lust, and a mounting junk-pile of side operas — as valid art when indeed they are stupid, sordid and spirit-less. The consumers of such "culture" obviously think very little of themselves as human beings. What is worse: the producers must surely think even less of the consumers than the consumers do of themselves. Because we have a very low regard of ourselves, we never whet the edge of our blunted conscience. But without an attuned conscience we are glad to go on meekly submitting to these cultural and spiritual atrocities.

COPS AND ROBBERS

How much longer can we in our society permit ourselves the impossible - treating human beings as cesspools and perennial kindergartners, playing foolish, unreal games which lead them to live in worlds the world burns? How long can we go on stunning and guarding our human dignity by allowing our "culture" to turn its men and women into cops-and-robbers, wild Indians-and-Cowboys, moon-struck girls flirting with silly-little boys - - a whole life lived? Will we never graduate? Is the western world interested in nothing more than westerns?

We are surely capable of better. And we would revolt against these cheap assaults on our dignity if we overthrew them with life by means of strong conscience.

Unless a man can seriously ask himself life's more basic question, he will never endure or grow a conscience.

It is truly possessed of decent self-regard he would not fail to put himself to the proper test. He would ask: "Who am I doing to myself?" But if he cannot face up to this crucial question, he will find himself ready to pay the costly price demanded by every cheap whim, every vulgar appeal to his self-centeredness, every blunted sin unspoken thought and behaviour.

WHO AM I

Conscience begins to develop at that moment when a man stops in his tracks to ask: "Who am I? What am I doing with my life and loyalties?" A man's opinion of himself can fashion him into a man of worth or later, a pear-sanint or a wilful dessert, a fool or a sage.

We seem to be too busy playing, too tired from laughing at the sick comedians (who are laughing at us), too nerve-wracked from T.V.'s violent gunsmoke, ever to ask the necessary questions.

When we will pick ourselves off the floor and seek to soar above the cheap nonsense in which we are sprawled, we will revive a little higher.

But only on one condition: we have got to think more of ourselves than we now do - and when we do we will be forced to ask the question which leads to the healing answers.

When we are able to ask ourselves who we are, the question itself helps change us from mere animals into - men.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carl Pitman are shown after their wedding in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw. Mrs. Pitman was the former Barbara Eileen Woodbeck of Stirling. Mr. Pitman is the son of Mr. Russell Pitman, Marmora, and Mrs. Lloyd Dewey, Williamsville, N.Y.

PITMAN — WOODBECK

St. Mark's Anglican Church, Bonarlaw, was the setting for a double-ring wedding ceremony in July when Barbara Aileen Woodbeck, Stirling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Woodbeck became the bride of Robert Carl Pitman of Stirling, son of Mr. Russel Pitman, Marmora, and Mrs. Lloyd Dewey, Williamsville, N.Y. with Rev. R. H. Stewart officiating.

Pink and white 'mums were used to decorate the altar and tall standards with pink and white gladioli were placed in front of the church, white satin bows on the guest pews.

Organist was Mrs. R. G. Flemming of Belleville who accompanied the soloist, Mrs Ron Rathbun, Carrying Place, when she sang, "The Wedding Hymn," before the ceremony, and "I Do" and the "Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father wore a street-length gown of Renoir Matic. The controlled skirt with its overlapping overskirt effect was highlighted by bowettes. Imported chantilly lace with sequins and embroidery was delicately sprinkled throughout and a scalloped neckline crowned the fitted bodice. She carried a cascade of red roses intertwined with ivy. A bouffant illusion veil flowed from a white crown of lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Ron Woodbeck, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Senior bridesmaid was Miss Mary Ellen Long of Kingston and junior bridesmaid was Miss Sherry Cretney of Belleville. The attendants were dressed alike in floor length shaped skirt. The bodice was finished with a cummerbund of pink nylon taffeta and was draped with pink rosettes of the same color. Their headdresses were three pink roses in with pink silk illusion veil.

Miss Karen Mintel was flower girl wearing a dress of white paper taffeta, sweetheart neckline, cap sleeves, cummerbund of pink taffeta, and carried a piece of two white roses with white silk illusion veil. The flower girl's basket of pink and white 'mums, pink roses and fern, and the flower girl a basket of pink and white baby 'mums.

Groomsman was Mr. Don Pitman, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. Ron Woodbeck, and Mr. Allan Wells, all of Stirling.

Master Donnie Pitman was ring bearer wearing white flannels and navy blazer, and carrying a heart-shaped cushion with the two wedding rings.

The reception was held in the church parlors and was prepared by the ladies of the church.

A three tiered wedding cake was adorned with a heart shaped halo of rose buds and two white doves holding wedding rings. It was encircled with white tulle and pink 'mums, pink candles in candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed the setting.

The bride's mother received in a dress of aqua blue nylon taffeta under self-color pore silk organza, trimmed with self-colored applique of Chantilly lace, matching pillbox hat, white accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a beige sheath dress of lace with round neck, matching hat and gloves, and mulberry shoes and purse, with corsage of yellow roses.

For a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Lake Champlain and Gaspe Peninsula the bride wore a three piece suit of pink with matching lace underblouse and white accessories, corsage of pink roses and white feather carnations.

Guests were present from Marmora, Belleville, Madoc, Trenton, Peterborough, Kingston, Lindsay, and Williamsville, N.Y.

The bride was honored with a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. Cameron Sine, Frankford; a presentation from the staff of College Street school in Trenton where she is a teacher; and a surprise welcoming party by neighbors and friends at their home when they were presented with a telephone table and a blanket.

Mr. and Mrs. Pitman will reside at 179 Henry Street, Stirling.

Family Fish Dish

by Mary Moore

Once when I gave a talk on nutrition and urged our Canadian cooks to serve more Canadian fish, a girl in the front row spoke up saying she found that fish made a meal expensive. There were nods of agreement all over the audience.

Since then I have tried often to give you inexpensive fish dishes here. At the frozen food counters sometimes we can find 1-lb. blocks of frozen fillets as low as 39c per lb. If we keep a close watch. Twice I have given here an inexpensive favorite of my son-in-law Herbie's — frozen cod fillets with creamed potatoes. Now I have a baked dish calling for some of the same ingredients. An added advantage is that it will be popular with the casserole cooks.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

(Guests); Corned Beef; Mustard Pickles; Sauerkraut; Fresh Corn and Lima Casserole; Crusty French Bread; Endive and Cucumber Salad; Sour Cream Dressing; Lime Soufflie; (see Wednesday; Tea.

SUNDAY

Chilled Pineapple Juice; Baked Chicken Legs; Currant Jelly; Vegetable Marrow; Canadian Spanish Onions i n Cheese Sauce; Peaches and Cream; Foolproof Sponge Cake; (see Saturday); Coffee.

WISH FILLETS OR STEAKS WITH POTATOES AU GRATIN:

To serve 6 you will need 1½ to 2 lbs. fish fillets or steaks for this dish. These could be fillets from whitefish, cod, haddock (fresh, fresh frozen or smoked), pickerel, mackerel or flounder. Or steaks from halibut or salmon. Place the fish in a single layer, or slightly overlapping, in a large shallow buttered baking dish. Now boil 2 scrubbed but unpared medium-sized potato for each person to be served. If you have 6 to serve boil 6 potatoes until tender, drain and remove skins. Cut each into 6 pieces. Make 2¾ cups white sauce by melting 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, stirring in 5 tablespoons flour, 1½ teaspoons salt and ¼ teaspoon white pepper and then 2½ cups milk, until thick. Add the cut potatoes and pour over the raw fish fillets or steaks in baking dish. Over top sprinkle ¼ to 1 cup grated old cheese or sliced process or Swiss cheese. Bake at 375 deg. F. about 30 minutes or until sauce bubbles. If fish is more than 1" thick at its thickest part bake the dish ½ hour. Bring bouling hot to the dining-room table and serve with a green vegetable, such as sliced or Swiss chard or spinach or baby zucchinis or green beans broccoli.

NOTE:

I tried this dish with halibut steaks and Lake Superior whitefish. Both were popular. With the halibut I served Swiss chard flavored with butter, lemon juice, salt and nutmeg. With the whitefish I served mature zucchini squash with chive butter.

Toronto Man To Teach Art In Belleville

A new face has appeared among the instructors at the Belleville Recreation Centre, Mr. Peter Kolisnyk, a young Canadian artist, has joined the group to give instruction in adult painting.

Born in Toronto in 1934, Mr. Kolisnyk received his secondary education at Western Technical School, and specialized at Ontario College of Art and water color with Carl Schaeffer. Mr. Kolisnyk's travels in Europe and Mexico have added variety and depth to his style. His graphic design has met with favor and awards at Toronto and Montreal Art Directors Exhibitions as well as at the Aspen Art Conference, Aspen Colorado.

In recent months, Mr. Kolisnyk has moved from Toronto to Cobourg, where he will conduct classes in art for the Cobourg Recreation Committee, and will teach in Trenton and Port Hope as well as Belleville.

A member of the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Colors and winner of their 1962 award, Mr. Kolisnyk's work has been shown across Canada. He is a member of the Ontario Society of Artists and he has exhibited with the Montreal Spring Show, the Royal Canadian Academy, the Fourth Canadian Biennial at the National Gallery and the Winnipeg Biennial.

About mid September, the local artists will again take up the brush and can be seen here and there about the city working industriously in groups of ten to twenty, providing the weather permits. On rainy days they will gather at the Belleville Recreation Centre.

Wants to Be Policewoman

By DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — Could you send me information about being a policewoman?— CANADIAN GIRL.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GIRL — Requirements differ with location. In general, a policewoman enters the service between 20 and 30 years of age. She is at least five-foot-four; must be in first rate health, not wearing glasses.

She is trained where she'll be working; and learns about human behavior and child psychology. In a three or four month training course she develops physically, mentally, emotionally; learns much about court procedures, use of firearms, law, civil defence, first aid.

While she is concerned with law enforcement she frequently finds herself dealing with family problems and consulting with social workers.

To learn more about what the ladies on the force do where you are, go and see your own chief of police. He'll be glad to tell you.

DEAR DORIS — I see by your column letters that people are helped by going to counsellors, but what can be done when the other marriage partner refuses to go?

My husband is completely withdrawn and speaks to no one in our house. Asking him what is the matter makes him worse. He is basically a good fellow but now he disappears for a night not letting me know where.

As we have no children and I have a position, I am thinking of askis. him to leave the house permanently, as the doctor says his ign.. .. me may cause me to have a nervous breakdown. He refuses to get any help and doesn't want to maintain a happy marriage. — UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY — Most baffling of all is a silent partner. Especially when the silence is unfriendly.

Is he frustrated in his job Is he bored at home? Did you ever share confidences? Is he physically under par?

You can see that the situation needs closer inspection than a letter can achieve. Counselling often starts with a wife calling for help; even with one partner really trying, progress can be made. And husbands have been known to break down and come later. Your idea is unhappy. See your Children's Aid Society, 63 Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems.

DEAR DORIS — I am in love with a soldier. I have seen him on two leaves but the last time he only said "Hi!" to me and a warm smile, and spent all his time with his friends who live near me.

My girl friends tell me I am crazy and that I shouldn't trust him because he is in the army. I realize that they go out with many girls but I don't think simply because they are in the army is any reason not to trust them. Am I right or are they? — WAITING AND HOPING.

DEAR WAITING — No reason at all. Some of our finest young men have devoted their lives to Canada's defence. But in any girl-boy situation the best person to trust is yourself.

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Liberal Leader Says Report 'A Cruel Hoax'

By BEN WARD

ORILLIA (CP) — Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer charged Wednesday night that the Roach royal commission on organized crime in Ontario was "a cruel hoax upon the public" and did not make any real effort to uncover the truth.

He said the report of Mr. Justice Willfrid Roach on his one-man investigation was an incredible document which ignored some of the worst disclosures from the public hearings.

Mr. Wintermeyer accused the Ontario government of being "terribly blind to the problem of organized crime and terribly lax in the discharge of its responsibility to combat organized crime."

Hitting the crime subject for the first time in his campaign for the Sept. 25 election, he told 125 persons at an election rally here the success of the royal commission depended mainly on whether or not it would use its unlimited powers to get the truth out of hostile witnesses.

"But it soon became tragically apparent that the royal commission on crime was not determined to get the truth," he went on.

'LIE WITH IMPUNITY'

"Witness after witness came and went with nothing more than a warning that they must tell the truth. And when it became apparent to the members of this wonderful club that they could lie with impunity, the crime commission became a retail hoax upon the public."

Mr. Wintermeyer said the Roach report, issued in March, showed only the shadow of the superstructure of organized crime.

"What lies beneath, the crime commission cannot tell us. It cannot tell us because it did not look.

"For reasons which were explained, the royal commissioner spent only a few days on his third and most important term of reference, the nature and extent of organized crime. He disposed of this term of reference by holding some private conferences with various chiefs of police.

"Out of those conferences came his conclusion that while there has been organized crime —and particularly organized illegal gambling—on an alarming scale in Ontario, there has been no syndicated crime with international connections and control."

FINDS 'INCREDIBLE'

The Liberal leader said that he was shocked by the report, forced to call an incredible document, so hard to accept that one had difficulty finding words to express one's feelings."

"I also found it incredible that he (Mr. Justice Roach) should make no mention of the activities of Kelso Roberts' brotherwas of a magistrate who took bribes to him to say that a minister of the government had tried to influence his brother's sentence."

Mr. Wintermeyer said a Liberal government would not accept the Roach report and that in recent days there had been ample indication of criminal organization.

He said that on Aug. 1, 12 persons were arrested in Toronto and Guelph in what the newspapers called the breakup of the biggest drug ring in Canada. On Aug. 10, police arrested four Canadians allegedly involved in an international counterfeiting supplying Montreal, Toronto, New York and elsewhere.

On Aug. 30, Commissioner C. W. Harvison of the RCMP said in Toronto that American crime syndicates have moved into Canada with narcotics, counterfeiting and stock fraud rackets directed by the syndicates in American cities.

'ACTION IS REQUIRED'

"Can there be any doubt that organized crime exists against society and that the most emergetic action is required to stamp it out?"

He said the Liberals would free the provincial police from political connections, pass legislation to prevent chartered clubs from being used for illegal gambling and appoint a continuing commission to investigate racketeering in the province.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the only thing Premier Robarts has done about the Roach report is transfer Mr. Roberts to another cabinet post. "Premier Robarts has avoided his duty by putting party political image ahead of the public welfare."

The Liberal leader referred for the first time to the sources for his speech in the legislature last year which touched off the crime investigation. He said the information came from magistrates, policemen, lawyers and newspaper reports.

Most of it was information which the government had compelled to keep from the public, he said.

Some of it was from policemen who became concerned when Mr. Roberts halted an undercover investigation "just as the police were about to catch the kingpins of the biggest illegal gambling syndicate in Canada."

Ont. NDP Leader Wants Pensions Raised at Once

By DAVID DAVIDSON

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario should back the proposed federal pension plan, Donald MacDonald, provincial New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday night, but only on the condition that old-age pensions are raised to $75 from the present $65.

"I think the failure of Ottawa to meet its commitments first is a betrayal of the old-age pensioner," Mr. MacDonald told a party nominating convention in Scarborough North.

He said every Canadian should get a pension of at least half his salary on retirement. He set $6,000 as a salary limit.

The NDP leader described the election campaign of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties as "exercises in futility" trying to show differences which do not exist.

Nominated by acclamation to contest the riding for the 1963 in the Sept. 25 election was Angus Smith, 37.

ASKS OVERHAUL

Earlier, MacDonald made a vigorous plea for community planning in Ontario, calling for an overhaul of the province's municipal structure.

He said it would be no solution to the problem of traffic to do the job alone because "it can't hope to appreciate all local problems, all the factors."

The key to the New Democratic Party's approach will be, he said, community planning. That planning would be for and done by citizen groups which make up the community.

"We must turn in the direction of a system of co - ordinated regional governments, established according to an overall pattern of development."

Mr. MacDonald described attempts at regional planning already made in the province as "piecemeal."

"Over the past number of years, annexations, amalgamations and the formation of metropolitan governments have produced a haphazard, unplanning regional governments in a few specific areas . . . in the trouble with this piecemeal approach is that the newly - established areas rarely the best areas for effective municipal government."

WOULD REVAMP SET-UP

The NDP would in a community planning scheme revamp the present county structure in the province and the system would be included in regional set-ups.

"Each regional government would have responsibility for urban and rural assessment for the development of the entire region," Mr. MacDonald said.

The first step in the new system would be "the provision of a regional planning and development authority to undertake community planning." The second would be to determine what kind of regional planning most.

Mr. MacDonald said that his party was not alone in its concern for better communities in the province.

"Many citizens and groups across the province share our desire to begin to put things right.

"But as a party, we stand firm in our conviction that the major impetus to change must come from a provincial government which sees enough about the problem to want to get to work to solve it."

Govt. Capable Of Dealing With Organized Crime - - Roberts

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts said Wednesday night his government is determined to rid Ontario of any organized crime and he challenged political opponents to bring forward any information they have on the subject.

Mr. Roberts told a provincial election campaign meeting he is disturbed by "muttering" concerning crime despite the fact that his government had implemented recommendations of its royal commission on crime and he said the Ontario Police Commission has been instructed to undertake a continuing investigation.

The police commission, he said, has all the powers of a royal commission and will investigate any allegations or any matter that come to its attention on a continuing basis.

"If any citizen has information that would be beneficial and that bears on this subject, we have machinery waiting to deal with it," he said.

He referred in particular invitation to Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, whose 1961 speech in the legislature touched off the royal commission, and to Arthur Reaume, Liberal candidate in relation to the election in Scarborough North, who has recently been blasting at the government's record dealing with crime.

"I would like to reassure the people that the government will take action to study the effects of the situation in relation to the working force in Ontario and plans a conference on the subject later this month.

A major aim of the conference would be to find out how and what educational courses should be directed in order that the new generation of workers will be equipped to cope with the effect of automation.

The studies were being undertaken by the provincial departments of labor, education and municipal affairs in conjunction with representatives from industry, labor and other fields including some of the best brains in Europe and the United States."

Mr. Robarts shrugged off announced Liberal plans for economic development in Ontario, saying the government has the work of his government's Economic Development Council and the Ontario Development Agency.

"Both these are functioning without any additional taxes or additional state planning," he said.

CLAIMS JOBS CREATED

Dealing with Ontario's "crucial" export-consumption of provincial products and increase jobs, he said that at the end of June 1,000 new jobs had been created.

"We are keeping ahead of the requirements of our ever-growing labor force," he said. "We are determined that we will create all the jobs that will be needed by our young people who are leaving and the working force."

During the day the premier campaigned among 10 ridings in the political and ethnic kaleidoscope of Metropolitan Toronto, reverting to his low-pitched appeal in an area heavily Progressive Conservative in the last legislature.

While Mr. Robarts stuck to his record of achievements record, he twice issued disclaimers to the Liberals' allegation that he is sabotaging the federal government's Canada Pension Plan.

The Liberal group in New Democratic Woodbine that he had to certain a pension plan "will be undertaken by the province in conjunction and co-operation with the federal government."

"Nothing can be further than the truth than to say that I am blocking the federal scheme," he told a group in Beaches riding over coffee and doughnuts in a church basement.

He had told Prime Minister Pearson he would co-operate in any way but "we just want to know what we are getting into before committing the people of Ontario."

In discussing his government's medical care plan, he took a light jab at the New Democratic Party by saying that the scheme is suited to the people of Ontario and can be introduced without the revenue dislocation he said it had caused in Saskatchewan when it was "foisted" on the people.

"We want to keep it within our means and not disrupt life in our province as has happened in another jurisdiction," he said. It was aimed at enabling people to protect themselves against catastrophic effects of illness, with the government taking care of those who could not afford it.

Of his 22 months in office, he said the work of the administration had fallen into two phases—a new look at some old problems, and a series of innovations.

Under the first heading came such things as adjustments in highways grants, education courses "to fit 1963," education grants and loans to young farmers.

Under "innovations" he listed minimum wages, portable pensions, development of new universities, economic development, medical care and a women's branch of the labor department.

Renew Search For Oil Wealth On Arctic Isles

BATHURST ISLAND, N.W.T. (CP)—A drilling bit chewed into Arctic permafrost 100 miles east of here Wednesday, marking renewal of a multi-million dollar quest for far-northern oil.

The temperature hovered around freezing as a drilling crew nicked the surface of Cornwallis Island, six miles east of Resolute Bay, and began sinking Lobitos, Résolute Bay No. 1.

Partners in the project are Calgary, contractor for Lobitos Oilfields Canada Ltd., was to continue drilling during the last approaching Arctic winter.

Lobitos equipment is being moved 16 miles inland at Bathurst Island for the drilling of a second well, owned by Bathurst Exploreres Ltd. of Toronto and United Canso Oil and Gas Ltd. of Calgary.

Each well is expected to cost $1,000,000 and reach a depth of about 12,000 feet.

Arctic drilling was proved feasible in 1962 when employees and equipment of Peter Skawina Ltd. of Calgary withstood the severe Arctic winter to drill the 12,500-foot Winter Harbor No. 1 on Melville Island for Dome Petroleum Ltd.

The well was abandoned as a non-producer in April last year, but its failure did little to discourage the oil industry, which hopes to uncover vast oil reserves in the Arctic islands.

Police Chiefs Across Canada Deny Bar Assoc. Charges

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

Most police chiefs across Canada staunchly denied the charge made Wednesday at the Canadian Bar Association meeting in Banff, Alta., that police often detain prisoners incommunicado for several days at a time.

Lawrence Corriveau, chairman of the Quebec section' civil rights committee, told the association there were many cases in which prisoners were denied the right of communication with a lawyer, family or friends.

Asked about Mr. Corriveau's statements, Police Chief Arthur Surtees of Regina said:

"If Mr. Corriveau is speaking of Saskatchewan he's got his wires crossed. We have never done anything of the kind in this province in all my 10 years of experience and we don't intend to.

"We have a telephone right in the cells and instructions are issued that any prisoner can call a lawyer—immediately after his arrest if he wants to."

The reaction was the same in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Dartmouth, N.S., Police Chief John Edgar said "it doesn't happen here." Chief Wesley Vanwart of Saint John, N.B., claimed "this is not characteristic here."

In his 35 years with the police department in Calgary, Chief L. S. Partridge said he cannot remember when a prisoner was held longer than the legal time.

MAY BE TIMES

However, London, Ont., Chief Finlay Carroll admitted that there were occasions when it was impossible to meet the 24-hour deadline—such as when a prisoner is arrested a few hours before a court is scheduled to sit and there are several long ends of the charge to be tied up.

The occasions, he added, are very rare.

"As far as holding a prisoner for days, I think that's unreasonable. We usually try to get the prisoner before the court at the next court sitting."

Chief Carroll also disagreed with a statement by Mr. Corriveau that police still force confessions out of prisoners.

"As far as the third degree goes," the police chief said, "I thought that went out with the horse and buggy."

Chiefs in Hamilton, Winnipeg and Edmonton agreed that Mr. Corriveau was generally using when he made his statements.

Leonard Lawrence of Hamilton said he knew of no incidents in Ontario where prisoners had been held incommunicado. He said Mr. Corriveau may have been referring to Quebec where police have had to deal with the FLQ.

Find Safety Rules Ignored

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury at Timmins, Ont., and Dr. Borne Sheppard, 49, one of two construction workers electrocuted July 19 when a crane boom touched a high - tension line, died because of laxity in the enforcement of safety regulations.

Sheppard and Walter Snow, 44, both of Toronto, were killed as they guided an air compressor, being moved by a crane, to a building site.

Police said the wheels on one side of the mobile crane dropped into a depression, causing the boom to hit an 8,000-volt hydro wire.

White Mother Sends Son To All-Negro School Hoping Move Will Help Issue

By GEORGE F. BARTSCH

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—When classes ended at McAlmont Elementary School last...northeast of here Wednesday, Steven Fitts, 5, and Edward Jernigan, 7, came out with their arms around each other.

Steven, a white youngster, had just completed his first day in the all-Negro school.

Mrs. Yvonne Anita Fitts, 28, his mother, told a reporter: "He'll learn something but all of this. At his age, he has no prejudice."

Steven said excitedly: 'I want to come back to this school tomorrow."

"Why of course you will, honey," his mother said.

Mrs. Fitts' husband, Aircraftsman Kenneth Jay Fitts, a native of Syracuse, N.Y., is stationed with the U.S. Air Force at Anchorage, Alaska. They have five children. The three oldest are adopted. Besides Steven, the children are Virginia Carole, 5, Adolphe Fitts, 4, and twins Kenneth Jay and Keith Jon, 2.

APPROVES DECISION

Mrs. Fitts said her husband approved her decision to send Steven to a Negro school, but cautioned her not to "let our boy get hurt."

Until three months ago, she said, she had thought little about desegregation since 1954, when the graduates from Little Rock Central High School won the U.S. Supreme Court landmark decision.

She joined the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People two months ago and pawned her movie camera to help finance a weekend trip to Washington and the civil rights march.

Mrs. Fitts said a Negro friend of her husband was being sent to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., and she was telling him all the places he should visit.

"But he stopped me and said: 'I can't go to any of those places. They don't allow Negroes.'"

NEGRO SCHOOL NEARER

That's when the idea of sending Steven to McAlmont took root in her mind, she said. Steven normally would be attending all-white Sherwood Elementary School, three miles from his home. McAlmont is only 1½ miles away.

"This is the only thing we're fighting for—to have the child go to the school nearest his home," she said.

Mrs. Fitts says she has received a steady stream of obscene and threatening telephone calls. A rock was thrown through Steven's bedroom window, showering him with glass as he slept, but he was not cut, she said. Someone pelted Mrs. Fitts' small, white frame house with eggs.

Mrs. Fitts, five-foot-five and 117 pounds, said she would not move or change her telephone unlisted number on account of threats of running, "and I'm not that scared—yet."

Miner Returns For First Time After Rescue

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—"It all seems like a hundred years ago, instead of just a little over a week."

Thus spoke 38-year-old David Fellin Wednesday night when for the first time to the nearby Sheppton coal mine site where he was trapped, entombed, and rescued on Aug. 27 from two miles of entombment.

Fellin quickly added: "I'm just sorry Lou can't be here."

Lou is Louis Lenadon of Louis Bova, 54, the third man caught in the Aug. 13 cave-in more than 1,000 feet underground. The trio trapped in a separate burrow, parted from the other two by a wall of rock and coal, and were are-trying to find out what happened to Bova, of whose survival state officials have all but abandoned hope.

At a press conference before he and Throne left Hazleton State Hospital Tuesday, Fellin related how he and Throne might somehow have weathered is ordeal, and again said he would like to see the mine site, and, if necessary, lead a search party for Bova.

Liberals Would Assist Students Leaving Home

By BEN WARD

GRAVENHURST, Ont. (CP) A Liberal government would provide $500 a year to university students who have to leave their home towns to attend university, Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer says.

He added this then Wednesday to the education section of his platform for the Sept 25 provincial election during a brief address to 75 persons at an afternoon coffee party in Gravenhurst.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the $500 measure would be introduced as a stop-gap step pending development of the Liberal plan for a University of Ontario, which would have branch colleges in every regional centre across the province.

The money would help cover a student's expenses in living away from home. It would not be paid to those attending classes in the city where they normally reside.

Mr. Wintermeyer also hit out at Education Minister Davis who announced Tuesday night that the province will provide free high school textbooks for Grades 9 and 10 next year.

IT IS AN INSULT.

The Conservatives should be ashamed of themselves for introducing the free books this year, he said. "It is an insult to the intelligence of the people of Ontario."

He said the Liberals have long advocated free high school textbooks for all grades. A Liberal government would order paperback volumes costing one-sixth of the present hard-cover books, and make them available free to all high school students.

Mr. Wintermeyer lunched with party workers at the committee rooms of Bucko McDonald, Liberal candidate here for Parliament for Parry Sound-Muskoka who is making his first bid in the political field.

During a pep talk to the group of 60 Mr. Wintermeyer said the Liberals would introduce a loan program to finance artificial ice arenas in small communities.

"The ideal person" to handle this loan program would be Mr. McDonald, who spent 11 seasons in the National Hockey League.

Says Diem Govt. Loses Support Of People

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Viet Nam's former ambassador to the United States said Wednesday no amount of foreign aid can now carry President Ngo Dinh Diem's regime to victory. He called on the government run by a coalition of men of goodwill.

Tran Van Chuong, who resigned Aug. 22 in protest over the South Vietnamese government crackdown on Buddhist monks and nuns, said the Diem government has irreparably lost the support of its people.

"But no amount of pressure can force it to step down . . . he said in an interview, and a halt in U.S. aid would loose the field to the Communists.

But "this dilemma is not so insoluble as it may seem."

Chuong urged that Diem himself had overcome formidable opposition when he came to power in 1954 because he then had the support of the South Vietnamese people.

WHY A CHANGE?

"Now, after nine years of the present unjust and inefficient regime, the people (South) Vietnamese crave for is a complete change of the government and its regime.

"The present dilemma can be solved by a coalition of able men of goodwill, who are firmly stand for national union and reconciliation, justice for all and more efficiency in government.

Such able men of goodwill are numerous, but have so far been either silenced and removed by Diem's regime" (South) Viet Nam or oppressed into exile.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Coach Sid Forster of the Kenmore has bought himself a brace of ball-point goose-quills, and is preparing a thesis which will be presented to Ygeidient Jim Crumble of the Lakeshore League and the secretary of the Ontario Baseball Association

It is called the "Saga of the Mudlarks" or "Here's Goo in your Eyes at Little Britain".

"I'm not writing this in a spirit of sour grapes" said Forster "Conditions were as fair for one team as another, but I strenuously object to playing a baseball game on a field of mud more suitable for a rhinoceroses convention."

Forster was referring to the Oshawa-Kenmore game last Monday when the Kennies were eliminated in the sixth game of the best-of-seven series by a 4-0 score.

As Ole Ike would say the boys "slewed, slud and sloughed" on, over and under the gooey terrain. Somewhere underneath was a baseball diamond.

Even though officials of the Oshawa team insisted that the game be played, Forster believed the umpires, (both from Oshawa) would declare the grounds unfit for play. Instead of that he got the "Play Ball" signal.

Earlier in the day, Forster says Oshawa officials claimed it had not rained up Hackwyr or in Little Britain. It seems the heaviest dew in the world appears in that part of Ontario.

I'm told they hid boards down for the boys to walk on from the dugout to the plate. Perhaps the Kenmore suffered from "slightly dizziness".

Now with the mud out of their eyes the Kenmore can concentrate on winning an Ontario championship since they are the senior representatives of the Lakeshore loop with a game up on the Brockville Beavers.

The teams clash in the second of the best of five series in Brockville Saturday afternoon. The Kenmore took the first 6-0 but Brockville clubs have always been tough and it could be a different story come the week-end.

WRESTLING

Johnny Valentine and Gentleman Jim Hady renew their private feud for the USA championship here tomorrow night after that mixed-up bustle of a week ago.

Johnny is slick, sleek and svelte and looks like a collared model — but don't get him around your neck. He has a choir-boy kisser and two deadly holds the "Brain-Buster" and the "Skull-Cracker".

Gentleman Jim is the working man's choice. The agile Mr. Hady has a large following here after appearing in several bouts single and tag-team. He has plenty of ability and a lot of the faithful will be on his side come fish-day evening.

HODGE PODGE

Doug Storey says the hydroplane boys will be out in full force here on Sunday with a field of boats that is the best yet. Racing will take place off Victoria Park from two to four p.m., with between 15 and 20 craft participating. With the Canadian-Boating Federation racing schedule almost completed, several topflight boats are now available for racing. They will range between 7½ and 40 horsepower with speeds up to 70 miles per hour . . . Jack McNab, Junior, son of Jack McNab of Ottawa and well-known former Belleville sportsman has been asked to report to an NHL farm team. So has Grant Hagerman of Minto . . . . The Canniton Clippers and Little Britain meet in the big "rubber" game at Port Hope on Saturday starting two o'clock. Both teams have a victory and this is the big one for both . . .

Hawks Sign 5 Juniors

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Five 18-year-old Ontario players have signed Junior A certificates with the St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association, coach and general manager Ken Campbell announced Wednesday.

The players were taken from the recently-concluded amateur camp of the Chicago Black Hawks, National Hockey League sponsors of the St. Catharines team.

Those signed are Brian McDonald of Toronto; Doug Shelton of Woodstock; Dave Green of Dunnville; Ross Eichler of New Hamburg and Bob Groh of Preston.

GIFT FOR TWINS

Angel rookie Fred Newman made it easy for the Twins, winning across Minnesota's climber. Lefty Dick Stigman beat Los Angeles for the fourth straight time, squaring his record at 16-14.

The Athletics, who had lost their last three doubleheaders, got key hits from winning pitchers Orlando Pena and Diego Segui in the sweep at Chicago.

Sena helped prevent his 30th loss by zapping two singles, scoring one run and driving in another in the opener. Segui, backed by a 13-hit offence, had a run-scoring single as the Athletics wrapped up the second game with three runs in the sixth inning.

Montreal - born Pete Ward homered in each game for the White Sox.

Regan won for the ninth time in 10 decisions, scattering 10 hits in the Tigers' romp over the Red Sox. The right-hander is 11-7.

Colavito knocked in his three runs with a pair of doubles and Kaline had three of Detroit's 13 hits, edging past Boston's Carl Yastrzemski in their dual for the batting crown. Kaline is at .318 and Yastrzemski, who was 4-for-4, is .317.

Aparicio, the light - hitting and light - footed shortstop, powered Baltimore into a 6-3 lead with his grand slam in the sixth inning and a trio of relievers saved the victory for Robin Roberts, 13-11.

Landscapers Grab 3-1 Series Lead

Barriges Landscapers turned on the power and whipped Corbin Lock 14-3 to grab a 3-1 lead in their Commercial softball semi-final series last night.

Next game in the series is slated for Friday night, 6.15, at Prince Charles School. The other set, between Lightfoots and City Hotel continues there tonight.

Barriages scored five in the first frame and bagged five more in the third to put last night's game out of reach early.

Bob Joyce pitched the victory, allowing half a dozen hits. He struck out six and walked three.

Gerry Genereaux was tagged for 13 hits on the Corbin hill-top. He fanned two and walked two. His team was charged with five errors as well.

Hugh Pearce belted a triple and two singles, Rod Turner and Jerry Hill a double and single each to spark the Landscaper attack. Bradley Lee had two singles, Bob Joyce, Tim Cook, Carl Boomhower and Larry Soule ons apiece.

D. Lucas rapped a triple for Corbins with the other base hits going to Joe Mullins, C. Radford, Genereaux, J. Lucas and Harold Redquest.

Signs With Argos For $16,000

Stephens Lines Up As Halfback

TORONTO (CP)—Sandy Stephens will be paid half as much by Toronto Argonauts as he was by Montreal Alouettes, but he may play twice as many positions.

Stephens, who signed a contract Wednesday with the Eastern Football Conference Argos after he was grabbed off the Montreal waiver list Tuesday, joined an Argo workout later in the day and lined up as a halfback.

But coach Nobby Wirkowski then kept him after the practice to throw some drop-back passes.

"He throws a hard ball and he's got the kind of fast arm I love," said Wirkowski of Stephens, who was suspended by Montreal earlier for the alleged reason of being overweight.

Stephens, who came to Montreal in 1962 and signed a three-year, no-cut contract for a reported $118,000—a $10,000 bonus and $35,000 a year—signed with Toronto for an estimated $18,000.

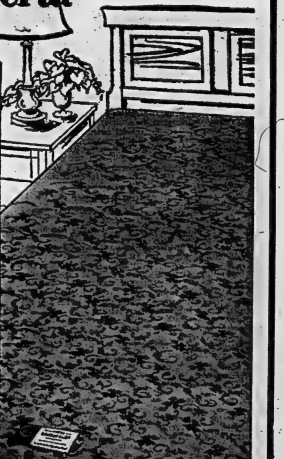
The Argonauts had paid the $350 waiver price for Stephens Tuesday after he and his player, Sam Greenblatt, negotiated with the Als to have him removed from suspension and placed on waivers.

Stephens appears anxious for a chance to prove himself. He has dazzled Montreal coach Jim Trimble's statement that he was suspended for refusing to reduce his 210 pounds from 228.

"I'm 218 now and Jim Trimble wanted me down to 210," Stephens said Wednesday. "But I weighed 233 when the Alouettes made it to the eastern final last year."

Now he is willing to play anywhere to help the Argos.

"All things being equal, I'm a quarterback but I'll play halfback, fullback, flanker or anywhere the coach wants me to play. I'm just happy for the chance to play."



Toronto's next game is against Winnipeg Blue Bombers here Friday night, and it is considered doubtful that Stephens will be ready to play by then.

Stephens said he has no bitterness against Montreal. "I have divorced myself from them. There are no strings attached."

Dodger Strategy Fails; Margin Cut

Spahn Wins 19

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Staff Writer

In the big book of baseball strategy you write a big hit-ter in hot at the strikeout specialist Los Angeles manager Walt Alston did just that and as a result the Dodgers' National League lead has shrunk to five games.

Ken Hubbs, who led the league in strikeouts with 139 last year and was equally proficient at hitting into double-plays, crossed up the book Wednesday night by lining a two-out single in 11th inning that gave Chicago Cubs a 3-1 decision over the Dodgers.

The Dodgers' board of strategy held its meeting after Jim Rodgers led off the 11th with a single and moved around to second on a sacrifice. With two out, it was decided to walk Billy Williams, who out - hits Hubbs by about 90 points.

That decision lopped a full game off the Dodgers' lead over the surging St. Louis Cardinals, who extended their longest winning streak of the season to seven games as Ken Boyer's 100th run batted in provided the decisive score in a 6-5 victory over New York Mets.

SPAHN NEARS 20

Meanwhile, Milwaukee's Warren Spahn grabbed part of the spotlight with a sparkling four-hit, 7-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates that gave him 19 victories for the season, the 60th shutout of his career and seventh place on the all-time list of winners with 346 triumphs.

In other games, Willie McCovey hit his 20th homer and Orlando Cepeda collected No. 36 as San Francisco Giants walloped Houston Colts 8-3 and pitcher Dennis Bennett provided the go-ahead run in Philadelphia Phillies' 3-2 decision over Cincinnati Reds.

The Cubs opened the scoring against the Dodgers in the sixth on singles by Rodgers and Ellis Burton and a sacrifice fly by Ron Santo. The Dodgers tied it in their half on doubles by Jim Gilliam and Tommy Davis.

It stayed that way until the 11th when Hubbs stroked his decisive hit and wound up the night with a sparkling defensive play.

The stick-fielding second baseman who set a major league record for consecutive errorless games last year with 78, balked reliever Lindy McDaniel when he fielded Willie Davis' grounder with one out and nailed Marv Breeding trying to score from third base. McDaniel then got Lee Walls on a fly to end it.

MUSIAL BELTS ONE

Stan Musial drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly as the Cardinals built a 5-1 lead. The Mets rallied for four runs in the top of the seventh with Ed Kranepool's fourth hit producing the tie.

Then, in the bottom half, NL batting leader Dick Groat doubled and Boyer followed with the decisive hit.

Spahn, the Braves' 43-year-old left-handed ace, won his seventh straight for a 19-5 record that pushed him to the threshold of his 20th victory season. Lee Mays gave him the run he needed with a third inning homer off Bob Friend, 16-13.

The Giants, again playing without Willie Mays, scored six runs in the fifth inning — three on Cepeda's homer — to come from behind and whip the Colts.

The Phillies broke a tie again the Reds with two fifth inning runs on a walk, a double by Bobby Wine, and singles by Bennett and Tony Taylor. Bennett, tagged for a homer by Frank Robinson, brought his record to 8-3.

Indians Rip Chiefs 11-2 In Opener

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis' Nathan hammered Syracuse Chiefs 11-3 Wednesday night as Frank Kreutzer and Warren Hacker combined for a two-hitter in the opening game of the best-of-seven semi-final between the International League division champions.

The first game of the other semi-final at Atlanta between the Crackers and Toronto Maple Leafs was postponed by rain.

Syracuse got only two singles off Kreutzer, but each drove in one run each and routed the Indians' starter. The hits, by Legrant Scott and Lou Johnson in the sixth inning, followed two of the three walks given up by Kreutzer.

The Indians were leading only 3-2 at that point, on Deacon Jones' homer in the second ad unearned runs in the third and fifth, and manager Rollie Hemsley rushed in Warren Hacker to relieve Kreutzer. Hacker pitched he-hit ball the rest of the way.

Lacrosse

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — St. Catharines Athletics opened the Eastern Canada senior lacrosse finals here Wednesday night with a 10-6 victory over Port Credit Sailors.

Although the Sailors never held the lead, they were in contention until late in the third period when the Athletics broke a 6-6 tie with four goals.

Don Carr, Gary Hind and Wally Thorne each scored two goals for St. Catharines, while singles went to Derry Davies, Doug Smith, Jim McNulty and Gary Moore. Smith also assisted on three goals.

For Port Credit, Peter Russ scored two, and Bob Hanna, George Kapasky, Brian Aberne and Paul Henderson added one each.

Second game in the best-of-seven series will be in Port Credit tonight.

"Snubbed" American Turns Trick

Emerson Defeated In Upset

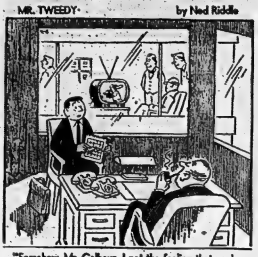
By WILL GRIMSLEY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The back of the Australian tennis dynasty is broken — and some of the most telling licks were dealt by a straight-sets conqueror from Florida who refused to arrange a big smash.

"It was the greatest tennis I ever played, and I couldn't have picked a better time to play it," Frank Froehling III of Coral Gables, Fla., said excitedly Wednesday night after pulling off one of the biggest upsets of the year.

He knocked out Roy Emerson of Australia, rated the world's No. 1 amateur, with an explosive service and volleying attack in the fourth round of the United States championships 6-4, 4-6, 9-7, 6-2. Although second-ranked nationally, Froehling had been overlooked by Davis Cup selectors and the seeding committee this year.

The victory erased the last Australian from the field, marking the first time since 1950 that Australia has been shut out of the men's quarter-finals.



Australians have dominated the U.S. men's championship since 1935, winning with a steady parade of champions that included Ken Rosewall, Mal Anderson, Ashley Cooper, Neale Fraser, Emerson and Rod Laver.

It puts an entirely different aspect on the Davis Cup challenge round, to be contested in December in Adelaide, Australia.

Going into the quarter-finals, half of which will be contested today, are four Americans, Froehling, Marty Riessen, Chuck McKinley and Dennis Ralston; two Brazilians, Ronald Barnes and Thomas Koch; Mexico's Rafael Osuna and England's talented but erratic Bobby Wilson.

Wilson, who smashed young Cliff Richard of St. Louis out of his path 6-3, 6-0, 6-1 Wednesday, is Froehling's next opponent.

Aussies Drop Thomson

MELBOURNE (AP) — Peter Thomson, four times winner of the British open golf championship, was passed over in the selection for Australia's team in this year's Canada Cup matches.

Invitations to represent Australia in the international matches were sent to Kel Nagle and Bruce Crampton Wednesday.

There was no comment from Australian golf officials on the reason why Thomson was omitted.

He has been one of the two Australian representatives in all but one of the years since the Canada Cup was begun in 1953. The Canada Cup will be held in Paris late next month.

R. Andrews Named NHL PR Director

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, has announced the appointment of Ron Andrews of Toronto as publicity director and statistician of the NHL effective immediately.

Native of Toronto, Andrews has been assistant sports editor of Broadcast News for the last two years. Before that he worked for the CBC and for nine years for The Canadian Press. He covered NHL games in Toronto for a number of years.

"Interested in the statistical side of hockey since a youth, Andrews brings to his new position a wealth of statistics on various phases of the game," said Campbell's announcement.

Andrews becomes the second publicity director of the NHL. He succeeds Ken McKenzie, who resigned in mid-June after 17 years at the post.

TORONTO (CP) — Miss Ezzo, a bay filly purchased at the 1962 Canadian yearling sales for $8,000 by the R. and R. Stable of Toronto, upset the 3-to-5 odds on Addison Hall Stable's Top Ruler, a $10,000 yearling boy, by winning the $8,325 Yearling Sales Stakes at Woodbine Wednesday.

Miss Ezzo, a 13-to-1 outsider, took the lead turning for home in the seven-furlong event and held off the closing rush of Top Ruler to win by one-quarter length. The favorite, some seven lengths behind Miss Ezzo as the field made the final turn, managed to take second place, a head in front of Frank Sherman's Ahlibi, a 26-to-1 long shot.

The race was limited to Canadian - foaled yearlings purchased at the 1962 Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society yearling sale.

Andy Griffith's Deputy, Don Knotts, Doing Nicely

by CYNTHIA LOBRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—In this television era so intensely dedicated to exploring in dramatic form the miseries, frustrations and diseases of man, there's one actor who has recovered from his nervous problem.

He's Don Knotts, the little man with the woebegone face, who first made it big in television by creating the most frightened, quaking character ever seen. Since leaving the old Steve Allen hour, where his comedy specialty was playing an incredibly nervous fellow, Don has done nicely playing in a much calmer, healthier vein —Andy Griffith's deputy and sidekick. It has been a fruitful assignment. The Andy Griffith Show is beginning its third CBS season, much of it spent on television's top-15 popularity list.

Knotts, who is a more hard-working actor than comedian, is reconciled to playing funny fellows.

But about retiring his nervous-man character he says:

"Anybody who stays with one character for a long time gets pretty tired of it. The joy of ever trying to develop other characters, and that is particularly true in comedy work."

ABC will try to build a new look into the old Price is Right when it moves from NBC on Sept. 18 by adding a celebrity panelist. Betsy Palmer will inaugurate the policy.

CBC slipped its big 90-minute special, Hedda Gabler starring Ingrid Bergman into the schedule for Sept. 20—just when Ingrid Bergman is making her debut as ABC's half-hour Farmer's Daughter. That's tough competition.

Faces Dramatic Challenge in Fascinating Screen Drama

In the title role of "The Stripper", Joanne Woodward turns to another of those demanding dramatic performances like the one which brought her an Academy Award. Joanne plays the part of Lila Green, a beauty contest winner who winds up touring with a small magic act.

The 20th Century-Fox Cinemascope release which opens today at the Belle Theatre is the satisfactory of filmmaker Jerry Wald, who produced such pictures as "Sons and Lovers", Peyton Place" and "The Long Hot Summer". He died at age 49, three weeks before photography on the picture was completed. Ironically, the film also was a beginning, that of director Franklin Schaffner's career in the screen medium after illustrious work in Television.

Starring with Joanne Woodward in "The Stripper", in the role of Kenny Baird, the Kansas youth in love with Lila nearly gives her heart, producer Wald cast Richard Beymer, whose stature has recently been enhanced by a succession of fine portrayals in important films such as Hemingway's "Adventures of a Young Man", "West Side Story" and "The Longest Day".

Clair Trevor, Carol Lynley, Robert Webber, Gypsy Rose Lee and Louis Nye.

A selecter group of featuretes besides 'Champion Anglers', are announced for exhibition on the same program.

Youngest 'Cat' Back To School

HAMILTON (CP) — When Hamilton Tiger-Cats finished their practice session Wednesday evening, lineman Joe Pikula was in a hurry to get away.

He quickly stowed his gear in his locker, took a fast shower, ate supper at the team's training table and then hustled out to his car for a fast trip back to his Brantford home 20 miles away.

Why? "Gotta get back and do my homework," he grinned.

For Pikula, 19, school was back in and Wednesday was his first day in Grade 13 at St. John's College in Brantford.

Pikula is one of the youngest players ever to break into the Canadian Football League. Noboody invited him to the Tigcats' rookie tryout camp last July. He just showed up.

Head coach Ralph Sazio picked out a handful of the 111 rookie hopefuls to continue working out with the main team, which opened camp a week later.

Pikula, six - foot - three and 238 pounds, has been around ever since.

AT THE PARK — The great Arnold Palmer takes a golf lesson from Bob Hope in the latter's new comic spoof "Call Me Bwana" co-starring Anita Ekberg and now showing at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showings. Complete shows at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Kerwin Mathews stars as "Jack the Giant Killer" in Edward Small's multi-million dollar filmization of the world's best known folk-tale. In Technicolor, the adventure story is showing tonight and Friday at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. 2nd feature attraction also in color stars Elvis Presley as "Kid Galahad" also co-starring Gig Young and Joan Blackman.

Debbie Reynolds Would Like To Retire to Raise Family

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Debbie Reynolds says she would be retired from show business if she had the children she wanted.

She has had two miscarriages since her marriage to shoe tycoon Harry Karl.

"But if those babies had been born I would have quit to rear my family," said Debbie.

"I've always wanted four children," she said. "I have two (by Eddie Fisher) and if Harry and I had two more, I would have been perfectly content to retire. We'll keep trying."

Although she didn't say it, the Eddie - Debbie - Liz Taylor headlines of a few years ago catapulted Debbie from $75,000 a year to better than $1,000,000.

There's a big change in Debbie. As she sat in her huge living room, surrounded by expensive pieces of art, she looked to be a sophisticated, glamorous, sexy society woman.

FEELS TOO OLD

"I'm too old to be an ingenue," said Debbie. "I'm no longer tammy. I'm a woman who can play character comediennes—because I am somewhat of a character, as you know.

"You know, producers grow old but they never think we do. I'm still the kid who played the tuba in the high school band to some of those guys."

But all of that changed when the grooms came in from How the West was Won in which Debbie played everything from a young girl to an old woman.

Debbie's decision to retire doesn't arise from any personal bitterness.

"This business has been very good to me—other than the personal aspects where you must live under a microscope—and I've been very happy in it. But would like to spend more time with my family. I guess I'm somewhat of a square, at least in Hollywood, when it comes to that."

Howie Young Pays Drunk Fine, Costs

DETROIT (AP)—Rough-and-tumble National Hockey League defenceman Howie Young paid a fine Wednesday for being drunk and told the judge, "maybe this will teach me a lesson."

The charge grew out of Young's scrap with three Detroit policeman Aug. 13.

Young was given two alternatives by recorder's criminal court Judge John Scallen: Pay a $25 fine plus $11.90 in costs or spend 90 days in county jail. The fall term would have kept Young from reporting Monday to Chicago Black Hawks' training camp at St. Catharines, Ont.

Of the $11.90, the police will get $8.90 to replace the uniform cap which Patrolman Joseph Curto lost in the fight, and the other $3 will replace dishes smashed in the melee at a restaurant.

Curling Club Will Be Built At Fairgrounds

PICTON — Prince Edward Curling Club inc. plans to proceed immediately with the erection of a curling club at the Fair Grounds.

Before this was possible, the club had to secure permission from County Council to erect a building on the county-owned grounds, and this was granted at a recent special meeting.

Since the club will secure its refrigeration from the Agricultural Centre (also used for recreation and an arena), it was necessary to secure permission from the Agricultural Society since it has a 99-year lease with the county on the land on which the Centre is built and 100 feet at the side where the curlers wish to build.

At a special meeting of Agricultural Society directors, Tuesday night, the curling club was given permission to erect the building on this leased land with matter of a lease to follow. The society will have use of the curling club premises during fair week.

The society named president Leland Doxsee, Creighton Lockyer and Sam Dodds a committee to work with the curlers' committee to decide exact location.

The curling club is 240 feet long while the curling club will be 60 x 180 feet. There will be 35 feet between the ends and the club buildings, with refrigeration being supplied by the centre.

Spectators for the curlers were president Frank Wait and Carl Boyd.

Earlier, the Agricultural Society had passed a motion to the effect that no action be taken on this agreement, until a new agreement with the Centre Committee, which operates the Centre eight months of the year, had been negotiated.

MEMBERS SIGN NOTES

The curling club is being financed by ten persons signing notes for $5,000 each. The Centre Commission has tentatively agreed to enter into an agreement to expend $10,000 to provide refrigeration, repairable over five years, giving the commission $600 above, its investment for providing brine and also ice making each season.

The curling club has been paying $2,500 for use of ice in the Centre two days a week.

Agricultural Society directors voiced the opinion that this revenue loss may seriously affect the future profitable operation of the Centre.

It was the first time the curlers' representatives had met with the Agricultural Society and a number of misunderstandings were cleared up, and the way paved for future co-operation.

Predicts Work Week Will Be Cut One-Third

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Labour Minister Allan Grossman predicts the average work week will be cut by one-third in his lifetime.

The 40-year-old minister told a service club luncheon meeting Wednesday automation will refer increased automation, more and better goods and greater job competition. Automation will result in fewer work hours.

"I don't think there's any question that in a lifetime—a business lifetime of everybody here—that the work week will be sliced at least by a third," he said.

Fair Directors Plan Series Of Work Bees

PICTON — Entries are coming in well for the Prince Edward County Fair at Picton, Sept. 19-21, secretary Phill Dodds told Agricultural Society directors Tuesday night. Prize money has been increased in many classes.

Directors planned to meet next Monday night for the first of a series of work bees during which display tables will be erected and other preparations made.

Improvements planned include rewiring part of the Central Palace and painting the interior, repairs to Jr. Farmers' building, grandstand and boundary fence, grading of grounds and general repair work at a cost of over $3,000.

Thanks were expressed to Walker Demille who had supervised the erection of a new unloading ramp and done considerable painting in the horse barns.

Due to the fact that the Centre is required for the Doc Williams show from Wheeling, West Virginia, on the last night of the fair, it was decided that all exhibits may be removed starting at four o'clock the last day.

A committee of Creighton Lockyer and Andrew Bemis was named to arrange a variety program on the second night of the fair.

The horse committee gave details of plans for a show, under lights, the first night. Two horse races, along with horse show and jumpers were planned for the final afternoon.

More than 2500 school pupils are expected to take part in the first day's opening parade. Baby shows are planned the first two afternoons.

It was announced that a special parade will be held the last afternoon, featuring twenty cars, members of the Antique and Classic Car Club participating. Vincent Gentile is chairman of this feature.

In addition to their daughter they have a son, D. J. Overeem in Holland; six grandchildren, Mrs. T. Fox, Bloomfield, John Lammes, Milford, Henry Lammes, Hedgerville, Henk, Lida and Priet in Holland. There are also ten great grandchildren.

Tatham Co. Has Lowest Tender for Work

PICTON — Low tender for the construction of the proposed alterations and addition to Picton's sewage treatment plant has been submitted by Tatham Co. Ltd. of Belleville. Their price of $144,967.50 was below those submitted by Lightfoot Construction, Ltd. of Belleville, James P. Morgan Ltd. of Burlington, and Foundation of Canada Ltd. Tenders were opened Tuesday night at a special meeting of Town Council.

On the motion of Councillors Walmsley and Bird all bids were referred for examination to the town's solicitor and engineers for the project, Cryster, Davis and Jorgenson. "The tender is a fairly complicated one," said engineer Eric Jorgenson who was present at the meeting, "and we would like time to analyze each one to make sure there is no imbalance."

The engineering firm will make a recommendation from their findings at council's regular monthly meeting September 9.

Mr. Jorgenson admitted there was quite a spread among the bids but added, "I would have expected it in such a project." He felt the spread was related to the estimated time of completion. Tatham estimated it would take them 21 weeks from the time they received an order to commence work. Lightfoot whose bid was $137,417.67 estimated 24 weeks. James P. Morgan, highest bidder at $210,597 said 40 weeks and Foundation at $196,388 said 36 weeks.

Cost of tanks and other equipment for the improved version of the plant plus engineering $100,000 to construction costs bringing the total with even the lowest tender above $225,000. Finance chairman James Bird says the town is allowed to borrow for the project. Engineer Jorgenson figures a winter works subsidy will reduce the total to within the specified amount.

Even if the figure of $225,000 is not met, Councillor Jarvis said work would have to proceed. "We will receive a mandatory order from the Ontario Water Resources Commission in any case," he stated.

Members of council present at the meeting were Reeve Barney Hepburn, Deputy Reeve Don Thompson, James Bird, Robert Walmsley and Andrew Jarvis. Also present were town foreman Fred Jolly, former town engineer Herbert Gray and deputy clerk Harold McLoughlin.

Alabama City Defies Wallace On Integration

Parents Escort Pupils Past State Troopers

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A group of determined white mothers decried the powers of Governor George C. Wallace and his state troopers today as they marched their children into a grammar school Wallace had ordered closed for the day.

About 25 women turned a deaf ear to an advisory by a trooper that East Clinton Grammar School was closed. They walked up the steps and marched their children into the building through lines of troopers who yielded.

"Don't hurt them! don't hurt them! let them go in," came a booming message over the state police mobile loudspeaker system at the scene.

They went in. They were not hurt.

A call for reinforcements went out and in a few minutes a fleet of state police troopers again barred entry to the school. Two of the men stood against the doors.

At Fifth Avenue School, another of the schools ordered desegregated by federal courts, the first Negro lad trying to enter a Huntsville public elementary school was turned back by troopers. He was S. W. Hereford IV. His father was one of the plaintiffs in the federal court case.

The temporary breach of the Wallace line at East Clinton was not repeated at the other schools.

CLOSED ONE DAY

An aide to Wallace telephoned Joe Payne, lawyer for the Huntsville board of education, and said the closure would be for one day only. The governor's office said Wallace is a strong supporter of education and that his action was caused by unusual circumstances which "are not apparent to the public."

At the other schools, the troopers ran into resentment on the part of parents. One woman wanted to know "what would you do if I broke through?" Troopers ignored the question.

Wallace contends he can close public schools under a federal court order and as that he issued early today affecting Huntsville schools only. Negro pupils were written into state law. The statutes, however, do not clearly address his authority in such matters.

The troopers stationed themselves in front of the schools early in the day. They advised children and parents that their orders from Governor had been received.

Wallace issued his order after

Hold Bid To Allow Abortion

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—A glowing policy was urged Thursday when lawyers at the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association tabled for one year a resolution which sought to expand legal grounds for abortion in Canada.

Stewart McMorran, Vancouver city prosecutor, in introducing the resolution before the bar's criminal justice section, made a passionate plea. The lawyer is to lead in efforts to stop a mounting toll of lives lost through illegal abortions.

"Whether we like it or not, whatever our religion or moral beliefs, this situation exists and we lawyers, who should be leaders of our community, should take a realistic view of the situation.

"In the next year . . . in every major city of our land . . . these will be six to 12 women who will die as countless others who will be ruined by quacks and victims who perform illegal operations," Mr. McMorran said.

Bruce Clemmenson of Vancouver, president of the B.C. Catholic Lawyers' Guild, said legalized abortion would be legalized murder and a "denial of God's divine right."

'SHOULDN'T DECIDE'

It was a question that lawyers should not decide. "The legal implications are less significant than the moral, medical, social and religious aspects of it."

The resolution would have provincial boards established to govern abortion. The decision would be allowed to sanction such operations on grounds the mother's physical or mental health was endangered; if pregnancy resulted from sexual criminal acts or if there was substantial risk the child would be born with grave physical or mental disabilities.

Currently, an abortion can be performed only if the mother's life is considered in danger.

J. R. O'Connor of Montreal asked why the bar association put forward on the question without any knowledge of the thoughts

Christine Keeler Charged With Perjury In Assault Case Against Jamaican Lover

LONDON (Reuters) — Christine Keeler, the 21-yearold redhead whose love affair with War Minister John Profumo nearly brought down the British government, made a fleeting appearance in a court here today on perjury and conspiracy charges.

After a brief hearing on the charges against Miss Keeler and three other persons, the case was adjourned until Sept. 13 and Miss Keeler was freed on bail totalling £3,000.

She had been arrested Thursday night on a warrant alleging perjury and conspiracy to obstruct the course of justice.

Also given bail, on similar charges, were Paula Hamilton Marshall, 20, with whom Miss Keeler lived, and Mrs. Olive Brooker, a housekeeper. A fourth person, Jamaican Rudolph Fenton, was charged with conspiracy.

All four appeared in court after spending the night in police cells.

The three women were greeted by a crowd of 300 when they left for court today. As they were driven away in a police truck, the crowd surged forward and some girls shouted: "Good luck Christine."

All four face three charges.

The first is that they conspired with others unknown to obstruct the course of justice by concealing information from police investigating an alleged assault on Miss Keeler by Aloysius Lucky Gordon.

Gordon, a 21-year-old Jamaican jazz singer, was jailed in June for assaulting Miss Keeler. But he was released eight weeks later after an appeal court quashed his three - year prison term on the grounds that statements taken by police after his trial could have caused a reasonable doubt about his guilt if they had been presented at his jury.

The charge said the three women and Fenton concealed the fact that Fenton and a man named Clarence Raymond Comacchio were present at the struggle during which the assault was alleged to have taken place and that Fenton had taken part in the struggle.

The second charge was that between April 17 and July 31 they conspired to conceal from police that earlier on the night of the alleged assault Miss Keeler was assaulted by someone else and that some of the injuries allegedly caused by Gordon could have been caused during the earlier affray.

The third charge was that between April 18 and July 31 they conspired falsely to accuse Comacchio of demanding "money with menaces" from Miss Keeler.

Miss Keeler was also charged with perjury at Gordon's trial in the Old Bailey criminal court here June 6.

The charge on this was that on an indictment alleging Gordon had wounded her, she made a false statement that no other man was present with her at her apartment other than Miss Hamilton - Marshall's brother when the incident took place.

Miss Hamilton-Marshall and Mrs. Brooker were similarly charged.

Living Costs At New Peak

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian living costs rose across a broad front during July, pushing Canada's official consumer price index up four-tenths of a point to a record high 133.9 on Aug. 1 from 133.5 a month earlier.

Higher food and housing costs were the biggest factors behind the third consecutive monthly increase in the cost - of - living index, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The index now is 2½ points above its year-earlier mark of 131.4 for Aug. 1, 1962, a gain of 1.9 per cent. Most of this advance has occurred since May 1, when the index was at 132.3.

Food prices rose 0.5 per cent during July and housing costs advanced 0.3 per cent. But there were increases, too, in almost all areas of living costs covered by the price index.

WAGES DOWN SLIGHTLY

The July price advance followed a slight decline during June in industrial wages. At that time, for the first time since 1956, the index of average industrial wages and salaries was 194.5 compared with 194.7 a month earlier and 188.7 a year earlier.

This wages index, based on 1949 levels equalling 100, represents an average of total wages paid by firms employing more

PCs and Liberals Clash Over Canada Pension Plan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Robarts Thursday denied opposition claims that he plans to block the federal government's Canada Pension Plan and said Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer has made an "unprincipled attempt" to distort his stand.

He announced in London that he will intervene in his campaign for the Ontario provincial election to lead his government's delegation at federal-provincial conference on pensions in Ottawa Monday.

In Hanover, Mr. Wintermeyer continued to plug for the federal pension plan, and said he has suggested to the federal government a change to deal with Quebec's announced intention to stay out of the scheme.

One of his chief campaigning points has been support of the federal plan and the claim that Premier Robarts intends to sabotage it in favor of the provincial plan passed at the last legislature.

He said he has suggested to Prime Minister Pearson that the immediate $10 monthly increase in old age pensions be separated from the pension plan and paid out of general tax revenues, instead of contributions.

The rest of the pension plan could then be implemented for

Mme. Nhu Replaces Mother

SAIGON (Reuters) — Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, President Ngo Dinh Diem's powerful sister-in-law, will head South Viet Nam's delegation of observers at the United Nations, official sources said today. She is to leave here Sept. 9 for New York.

The UN Afro-Asian group has called for a debate on the Vietnamese government's recent raids on Buddhist pagodas in General Assembly session opening Sept. 17.

The beautiful, 38-year-old Madame Nhu will lead a delegation composed of four National Assembly members.

She and her husband, who is Diem's brother and political counsellor, are believed responsible for government raids against Buddhist pagodas on Aug. 20 and 21.

Her mother, Madame Tran Van Chuong, resigned as the permanent Vietnamese observer at the UN last month in protest against the government's religious policy.

Madame Chuong continued several tens of thousands of Chinese citizens into going to the Soviet Union.

The border between the Soviet Union and China in Sinkiang is ill-defined and there have been repeated conflicts there.

Chiang's government occupied the Ili-Kazakh district in 1871. In 1881, through British mediation, it was bought back by China. The Soviet Union encouraged independence movements in Sinkiang during Chinese Nationalist cotrol.

Chinese Assert Russia Sought To Rule Sinkiang

Thousands of Chinese Are Said Held by USSR

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China accused the Russians today of trying to subvert a district government of its uranium-rich Sinkiang province and of stirring up trouble along their common border in 1960. It said thousands of Chinese were lured or forced into the Soviet Union and are still there.

Furthermore, Peking radio charged that Premier Krushchev in 1958 "put forward unreasonable demands designed to bring China under Soviet military control." These demands were not explained.

The article also declared that:

1. Peking forced Khrushchev to crush the 1956 Hungarian revolt after he had decided to "abandon Socialist Hungary to counter-revolution."

2. In 1959, after his U.S. visit, Khrushchev "went so far as to try to sell out China the U.S. plot of 'two Chinas' and lecture against testing by force the stability of the capitalist system."

3. Since 1956 Khrushchev, over the stiffest Chinese resistance, had attempted to force closer ties with the United States in pursuance of his peaceful coexistence policy.

The broadcast outlined in detail Peking's charges relating to Sinkiang, the remote province in northwest China where Moscow in 1950 won the right to exploit various minerals including uranium.

A Chinese - language version of the broadcast admitted tens of thousands of Chinese into Soviet territory last year in an attempt to overthrow the Chinese administration at Ili, capital of the Ili-Kazakh district in Sinkiang.

Presumably they would be used as a fifth column in Ili, once established by Chairat Russia.

An English-language broadcast, however, spoke of Soviet subversive activity in the region and called it an example of "the leaders of the Communist party of the Soviet Union have sabotaged Chinese-Soviet unity."

In April and May, 1962, Peking said in the English broadcast, "the CPSU (Communist party of the Soviet Union) used their influence and connivance in Sinkiang, China, to carry out large-scale subversive activities in the Ili region and coerced and coerced several tens of thousands of Chinese citizens into going to the Soviet Union."

Abandon Search For Thresher, Find Tubing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The navy abandoned its search for the submarine Thresher Thursday after announcing recovery of a single piece of copper tubing from the sunken vessel's hull.

The approach of fall and rougher weather in the Atlantic are expected to make it impossible for the deep-diving bathyscaphe Trieste to return to the search area 220 miles off Cape Cod.

Navy Secretary Fred Korth announced the recovery of a piece of copper tubing, positively identified as part of the Thresher's ventilating system, and said it "produced conclusive information that it was here the general area where the Thresher lies."

The nuclear submarine was lost in 8,400 feet of water during diving tests last April 10 with 129 men aboard.

The Trieste plucked the copper tubing off the ocean floor Aug. 24. Navy officials said it was the first successful test of a mechanical-arm device operated from inside the bathyscaphe's gondola.

The length and width of tubing, connected with a fitting and some insulation displayed at a press conference, I here the symbol "SS" boat" and other markings which navy officers said coincided with the Thresher's fleet number.

Vice-Admiral Lawson P. Ramage, deputy chief of naval operations, said the piping was identified as having come from a fan room forward of the nuclear reactor compartment. He said it was part of the air purifying system for the galley. SAW it myself

The Trieste's skipper, Lt., Cmdr. Donald Keach, told reporters he saw a tremendous quantity of metal plating, some of it 20 feet square, on the ocean floor. He said he thought it was part of the Thresher's hull and batteries.

Keach said he saw no trace of any bodies.

Atomic Energy of Canada Gets Contract for U.S. Suture Plant

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—The commercial products division of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited has been awarded a contract by Ethicon Inc., Sommerville, N.J., for the design and construction of a plant to sterilize surgical sutures, it was announced today.

The plant, to be built at San Angelo, Tex., and to be completed in the latter half of 1964, will use the 1,000,000 curie gamma rays from cobalt - 60 produced in reactors at the Chalk River nuclear laboratories.

The installation will consist of a small, heavy-walled building, with a maze of six walls surrounding a 20-foot-deep pool, in which cobalt-60 is stored.

A conveyor system will carry packaged sutures into the building to be exposed to the gamma rays. The radioactive cobalt will be in the form of more than 1,000 cylinders, each one inch long and one-quarter-inch in diameter.

The total strength of the cobalt will be 60,000 curies. (A curie is a unit of radioactivity and is the quantity of a radioactive isotope in which 37,000,000,000 atoms disintegrate every second.)

AECL's commercial products division pioneered the commercial application of cobalt-60 in medicine, industry and agriculture. The division has built more than 300 medical therapy units and has installed them in hospitals in 39 countries.

Two-by-Fours Never Two by Four May Now Be Less So Than Before

OTTAWA (CP) — Any do-it-yourself carpenter knows that a common two-by-four is never two by four. It is closer to 1½ by 3½.

In future it may even be smaller.

The American Lumber Standards Committee has approved a new size of 1¼ by 3½. The United States department of commerce is testing reaction to the idea.

Builders and architects are all in favor. Indications are that the new standard size soon will be approved, with matching dimensions for three- and four-inch lumber.

Canada will be practically forced to follow suit, says a lumber industry spokesman here. To do otherwise would imperil a big export business.

The 1,000,000,000 board feet of lumber sawn in Canada each year, roughly 3,500,000,000 board feet is exported. The U.S. is the biggest customer in this $500,000,000-a-year market.

Canadian lumber exporters would stand a chance of declining sales unless their dressed lumber almost all exported lumber is dressed — conformed to the U.S. standards.

In general, Canadian mills follow the American standards anyway.

A complication in this country is that the British want "tall saws" lumber. If they buy two-by-fours, they want them two by four. In practice, most lumber is shipped in rough state to Britain for planing there.

U.S. Fails to Oust Strongman

Will Still Press for Viet Nam Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States intends to press firmly for policy reforms by the government of South Viet Nam even though it has evidently failed in its drive to oust President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Nhu and his brother, President Ngo Dinh Diem, in separate interviews in Saigon Thursday displayed public confidence in the security of their position.

During the last two weeks, Nhu had been the target of considerable criticism from Washington, the chief immediate complaint being that he was responsible for attacks on Buddhist temples and widespread arrests of Buddhist monks and nuns and demonstrating students who supported the Buddhist opposition to the Diem government.

In an interview with The Associated Press in Saigon Thursday, President Diem said his government considers the Buddhist crisis to be a closed incident now and he predicted better relations between Viet Nam and the United States.

In a separate meeting with foreign correspondents, Nhu, head of the Vietnamese secret police, said he did not intend to retire.

Only three days earlier President Kennedy had said in a public statement that the government of South Viet Nam had "gotten out of touch with the people" and lacked the popular support necessary for it to win its war against Communist guerrillas.

Early last week there was considerable confidence in high quarters here that pressures then operating against the Diem

Nhu Seems to Have Taken Over Real Power From Brother

By NICHOLAS TURNER

SAIGON Reuters — South Viet Nam's anti-American secret police chief, Ngo Dinh Nhu, today appeared to have succeeded in taking over real power from his brother, President Ngo Dinh Diem.

And informed sources said that for the present at least, the United States is accepting the fact, and will avoid a showdown with Nhu.

The same sources said U.S. prestige here could be expected to decline because the U.S. government was unable to take effective action to remedy Nhu and his politically powerful wife, particularly in their harsh anti-Buddhist measures.

Americans here believe the war against the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, to which the U.S. has been contributing more than $1,000,000 a day, and the lives of U.S. servicemen, cannot be won by Nhu because of his unpopularity.

Hospital Addition Approved In Principle by Council, $4,500,000 Said Net Cost

Hastings county council Thursday approved in principle plans of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors to build a new hospital addition costing an estimated $7,500,000.

At the same time however, it concurred in a recommendation for immediate steps to be taken to apply for maximum financial assistance from the Municipal Development Fund of the Federal government.

Net cost of the proposed hospital addition with presently available grants is figured at approximately $4,500,000. This is considered beyond the ability of the city of Belleville and the county of Hastings to pay and is the reason for the re-maximum assistance through commendation to apply for the Municipal Development Fund.

JOINT OWNERS

The city and the county are joint owners of the hospital, on a 56 per cent city and 44 per cent county basis, and would share on this basis on the capital cost of the hospital addition.

Cost to the county on the basis of 30-year debentures at five-and-a-half per cent would be $90,000 annually or approximately three mills.

If maximum government assistance was approved this cost could be reduced to about one-and-a-half mills yearly, it was stated.

Mr. John Buchan, chairman of the hospital building committee said the construction plans called for a hospital with a total of 446 beds, including 40 physchiatric beds.

This number of beds would include beds in the two more recently built fireproof sections of the hospital.

Beds in that section of the hospital built prior to 1910 would be done away with, Mr. Buchan said.

Plans are to build an eight-storey tower structure which would be connected to the sewer hospital wing by two service floors. Provision would be made for adding from four to six storeys at a later date bringing the hospital accommodation to about 700 beds.

Members of city council along with several members of the hospital board attended Thursday's session of county council at which Belleville Mayor A. M. Haig, chairman of a special joint city-county hospital committee, presented the committee report on hospital building plans.

Hospital Board chairman J. N. Vanover in introducing Mayor Haig admitted the cost figure for the proposed hospital wing might seem high but felt that when the matter was fully considered council would realize the plan would provide a hospital that would be a credit to the city and the county.

When originally considered the cost of the hospital had been estimated at $4,500,000.

DEMOLISH EAST WING

This figure, however, had been more or less a guess figure without it being actually known what provision of beds and services which the money would provide.

The hospital board had intended that demolition of the old east wing section of the hospital would be part of phase two of its development program.

However, the Ontario Hospital Services Commission revised requirements that it be included in phase one resulting in a substantial increase in the overall cost to be included in construction.

Mayor Haig told county council that if maximum assistance from the "federal government can be received, the net cost of the hospital addition might be reduced by one million dollars to the $4,500,000 figure.

This would materially reduce the annual debenture costs to the two municipalities

MUST DIGEST REPORT

Prior to the presentation of the joint city county hospital committee report, Reeve Wilham Shannon told councillors that the expected cost of the hospital addition may be disturbing to them.

He suggested, however, that before any quick decisions were made that the report be fully digested. He hoped that council would give the committee freedom to further into the hospital question if required.

Mayor Haig emphasized that the report of the joint committee should be considered as a progress report on its plans to provide hospital facilities fully equipped under modern conditions.

Hospital Fully Accredited Says Chairman

Belleville General Hospital has been awarded full accreditation by the Canadian Council on Hospitalization.

This was announced today by Hospital Board chairman J. N. Vanover, who with members of his hospital board yesterday discussed the hospital expansion plans with county council.

He said all hospitals were inspected periodically by the Canadian Council with certain standards being required before accreditation was given.

Assistant to Road Engineer Will Be Hired

Hiring of an assistant roads engineer for the county, was expected to be approved today by Hastings county council.

The roads committee had already made their choice and appointment of the new department official will be formally approved by council today.

The additional engineer in the road department will give county engineer Larry Langford the time to do more field work instead of being tied down with administration work as at present.

The county roads committee report read by Rawdon Reeve Kenneth Beckett showed that department approval for the proposed new bridge at Sloco had now been received. The bridge is scheduled for construction in 1964.

Construction of the new Canniffon bridge was stated to be right on schedule with work being done by the contractor, Gaffney Construction Company tentatively "excellent."

CONTRACT AWARDED

The contract for the construction of the new Baldrick's Bridge in Tyrdeinaga township has been awarded to Gaffney Construction, the lowest bidder at $13,612.25

The contractor is ready to commence work at any date. Structural steel for the bridge (not included in the general contract) is being supplied by Central Bridge at a cost of about $2,650.

Work commenced late in August on the Guernsey Road by Lightfoot Construction who submitted the lowest bid for the job ($22,477.10.) Some 1,000 structural steel beams were included in the general contract.

The contract for grading of the last three quarters of a mile on the Tweed end of Moira Lake Road road was finished in mid-July.

Work is expected to commence this fall on the rebuilding of one and a half miles of county road 12 from Madoc fairgrounds northerly to Hazard's corners. One diversion hoped to be commenced this fall will straighten two sharp curves and an almost blind approach to a narrow bridge.

Official Will Brief Members On Road Needs

Hastings county council members are interested in the municipal roads study plan announced earlier this year by the provincial government and will invite a highways department official to further brief them on the project.

The official will be asked to attend the December or January session of council.

The municipal roads study is aimed at discovering future road needs of all parts of the province and according to Warden Charles Long could have a considerable bearing on future development road projects in the county.

Five counties in this district have already approved of the roads study.

Cost of the study, with the exception of the traffic count portion of the Highways department, would be borne by the county.

Ratepayers Protest High Taxes And School Board Expenditures

By J. F. MORNAN

At their general meeting in the community hall last Wednesday evening, members of the Park Dale Ratepayers' Association of Belleville agreed that the present costs of education assessed against the municipality are far too high. In debate on the subject, Mr. Nitz moved that City Council be asked to insist on more strident accounting by School Boards, and that the municipal government have much more control over tax monies used for school purposes.

It was also suggested that Council should very carefully scrutinize the recent case in Ajax, Ont., where the municipal government was apparently able to gain some control over expenditures by School Boards. It was recalled that in a speech to the Ratepayers' Association on Feb. 9, 1961, Mayor A. McLean Haig of Belleville had declared that the huge costs of education can no longer be borne by the municipality alone. It was further felt that School Boards should not be empowered to demand such a high share of the property tax dollar unless a full accounting was rendered to the municipality. Ratepayers felt that no municipality should be able to veto expenditures considered necessary.

TO FORM COMMITTEE

During the remainder of the business meeting, it was decided that a special committee should be formed to support minor sports in Belleville. Members selected to serve on the committee were W. Corbin, W. Coughlan, G. Burnett, R. Hughes, and Mr. Nitz. It was also decided that the committee should possibly attend a City Council meeting as a delegation, to inquire concerning the New City Park Board and had promised to do at the Community Centre Grounds, during a meeting with the Community Centre Board in June. Little progress has been made to date.

A letter was read, from the Community Planning Branch of the Ontario Municipal Board, concerning objections made by the Ratepayers' Association to the plans for the West Park subdivision. It was advised that lots would be withheld for special accounts in the area west of Sidney Street which would have been purchased by the first West Park plan. A question was asked concerning the parkland and school for the proposed 250 residences in the new subdivision, and it was decided to phone for inquiries. The members were against the possibility of the Park Dale Community Centre grounds being considered as sufficient for such an increase in the general area.

WANT SEWERS FIRST

A long time resident of the Sidney Street area declared that the new subdivision, to be fair to the ratepayers, should have storm sewer drainage installed before homes are built.

The area of the new subdivision is saturated during spring and fall rains," he observed, "and I feel sorry for anyone buying a full-basement type house there, unless the proper drainage facilities are in before hand."

Some discussion ensued over the possibility of forming a committee to advise and assist prospective new-house buyers, before they signed a real estate agreement to purchase. It was suggested that the pooled knowledge of the members would be of great assistance to anyone thinking of having a new home built, provided the person contacted the committee before signing an agreement to purchase.

President Ellis then made a short speech, asking for the support of the residents of the area, and suggested that the people should seriously consider greater support for the only remaining active ratepayers' group in Belleville.

Child Buzzed By Large Bird, May Be Eagle

HAROLD (Special) — At least one of the birds in these parts put an Alfred Hitchcock touch into the illness of junior residents yesterday.

At Wellman's Corners, west of here, three-year-old Barry Sharp was playing outside his house when a hawk-like bird swooped for his head. The child's mother ran to her terrified offspring as the bird repeated its attack and beat it off with a broom.

Mrs. Fleming, a 17-year-old worker at nearby Plum Grove Cheese Factory also was buzzed as he went to the rescue.

By the time Provincial police arrived from Madoc the bird had disappeared, leaving the Sharp child, his mother and Fleming unmarked.

No explanation has been found for the macabre incident. However, Lands and Forests officials say the bird may have been a golden eagle, smaller member of the eagle family, which is usually harmless. Then again, they add, it might have been an escaped large hawk, used to squatting on its owner's shoulders.

Trap-Shooting Program Will Be Carried Out

The Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Protective Association is going to hold a home-grown trap-shooting program on the coming weekend.

The first sanctioned trap shooting and other forms of gun competition will be held Sunday on the new location of Sidney township west of Chatterton.

The Association has a membership of approximately 450 members, 50 of whom are expected to attend the weekend shoot. Visitors will be welcome, according to Association official Burton Morton of Rawdon township.

Rebuilt Section Of Madoc Road To Be Paved

The H. J. McFarland Construction Company will shortly commence work paving the rebuilt section of the Madoc county road between Ivanhoe and Halloway.

Reeve T. Rollins, Hastings East member in the last Legislature, said the contractor was expected to move in next week to commence work on the paving job.

The three section of road was rebuilt last summer.

Tenders for rebuilding of the Madoc road from Halloway to Foxboro are expected to be called later this fall.

Tire Company Employee Hit By Big Winch

A Trepanier Tire employee, Percy Ellis, believed to be in his 50's, was taken to Kingston General Hospital Thursday following an accident at the Canada Cement Company plant at Point Anne.

Mr. Ellis, foreman at Trepanier Tire said it is believed Mr. Kelly was struck on the head by the handle of a winch he was using to unload a huge tire for an earth mover from his truck.

Mr. Kelly of 116 Goldfale Road, was treated at the Canada Cement plant by the company's first-aid attendant, who later brought him to hospital here.

He was later transferred to the Kingston General Hospital.

Council Concurs In Resolution On Grants

Hastings county council yesterday concurred in a Middlesex county resolution asking for further grant consideration from the provincial government when more than 10 per cent of assessment is lost through annexation.

The resolution asked that present grants be continued for a certain period after the annexation became effective.

Councillors generally felt that the county municipalities came out second best when urban centres sought to annex township property.

Sidney Reeve Gerald Irvine said his township had lost a million dollars in assessment to Belleville and Trenton within the past few years.

And another councillor observed that while urban centres were quick to annex they were sometimes slow in making a settlement. Final settlement in the Belleville-Thurlow annexation in 1960 is still to be made, it was stated.

Council Decides to Collect Alleged Delinquent Bill

TRENTON — Town council decided last night to come to grips with the Redwood Motel, just north of the town, over the motel's delinquent sewer bill. By the town's count, the motel now owes more than $3,500, for 1962 and 1963. Last effort to collect the money was in the 30 of this year.

When the services were installed, the town was already considering plans to annex the area. In return for providing the sewer, however, the motel owners agreed to pay to the town the difference between the taxes paid Murray township, in which the motel is located, and the taxes that would be paid the town if the motel were within the corporation. The motel has paid $200 per year, and has offered to pay an additional $700 for the two years 1962 and 1963. The town wants an additional $1,670 per year.

QUITE A TANGLE

June 20, council decided the full amount was due, and a letter was sent to the effect that service would be cut off if the money was not paid by the end of July. The owners replied that the service will not be shut off without sufficient warning. The town then suggested that if there were any questions about the amount owing, the matter should be taken up with the Board of Health.

Normally, an appeal to the Court of Revision must be registered within 14 days, but the board claimed that in this case, because of the wording of the assessment, the time limit did not apply.

Last night, however, council decided that time limit or no, the 14 days had been long enough. Town solicitor Roderick Campbell has been instructed to issue one more warning to the motel. If the warning is ignored, Mr. Campbell has instructions to take legal action to recover the money. There is also provision in the motion for immediate discontinuation of the sewer service to the motel, if the deadline is ignored.

Councillor G. A. Weaver, chairman on the by-law for prompt action in the case, pointed out that the motel will be assessed $1,000 per bed on Dec. 31 of this year. "If we don't collect before then", he said, "I don't know how we'll ever get it.

Radio Station Donates Time To Corporation

TRENTON — The town of Trenton will have a short radio program, every second week, when town council decided last night. The decision was made after town clerk O. W. Larry read council a letter from the Quinte Broadcasting Company to the effect that from 7:05 to 7:15 p.m. on alternate Mondays, was available on radio station CJBQ starting early in October. The time would be donated to the town free of charge, the letter stated, so council could inform citizens of municipal problems and programs. Mayor J. D. MacDonald, suggesting acceptance of the offer, implied that broadcasts might be made by alternate boards and committees of the municipal government.

School Bus Making Turn Hit by Car

TRENTON — Damage totalled $200 Thursday morning, when a car, driven by John William Lloyd, 20, R.R. 2, Carrying Place struck a school bus driven by Cecil Robert Wade of Carrying Place in Trenton.

According to police reports, the car was travelling southeast on Dundas St. E., making a left turn to Byron St., when the accident occurred. Carter eastbound in his car, was passing as the bus began the turn.

The front bumper of the bus clipped the right rear door and quarter panel of the car, causing about $200 damage. Damage to the bus was about $50 to the bumper.

There were no injuries.

Dept. Answers Fifteen Calls During August

TRENTON — The town fire department responded to 15 calls during the month of August, according to a department report read during last night's council meeting. The calls included one barn fire, four car fires, one house fire, one gas leak, three investigations, three service calls, one fish-bunny fire and one chicken-coop fire. There were no injuries during the month. One call was in Murray township, one in Hillier township, and one in Amelisburg township.

A note in the report to the effect that during the month, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis had attended Canadian Fire Chiefs' Convention, in Winnipeg, drew comments from Councillor Ross Burt and Mayor James D. MacDonald. Neither had been forewarned that the chief received a report on the convention. Council decided, after discussion, that heads of departments will not travel outside the province without the permission of council's representative, and they will report any elected representative on any travel they make at municipal expense.

Market Woman Talks With Son In Gaza Strip

TRENTON — You never can tell what it's about when the fire department phone rings. Take a case in Trenton Fire Department, yesterday afternoon for example. The phone rang about 4 p.m. with a call for Mrs. Paul Heisler. The caller was long distance running a stall in the market at the time. The call was long distance on radio and telephone from the Gaza Strip, in the Middle East. Would Mrs. Heisler please pick up the reverse charges — from Kingston! Mrs. Heisler would.

The call was from Mrs. Heisler's eldest son, Peter, with the Canadian Army in the Gaza strip, calling from Kingston over the Armed Forces Radio network. The call had gone to the Heisler home, in Stockdale, and had been transferred from there to the market, via the fire department. Mrs. Heisler and Peter talked for "about five minutes", Mrs. Heisler said. Then she returned to her stall in the market, undisturbed during the excitement.

John Blight, manager of the Trenton market, was watching the stall and selling her corn for her.

No Boulevard Parking Will Be Allowed

TRENTON — Boulevard parking in this town is illegal, town council was told last night, but nobody has worried much about it so far. With the new curbing program and the seeding of boulevards, however, council is thinking of a crackdown on the problem. The suggestion was made last night that two public notices be published to the effect that boulevard parking is illegal and that action will be taken against offenders.

Magistrate Gets Insulting Letters Before Case Heard

TRENTON — A report of insulting letters addressed to a magistrate, and a lawyer's denunciation of the legislation under which the Ontario Humane Society operates were the highlights of Brighton Magistrate's Court yesterday. Both were incidents in the case presented by the Ontario Humane Society against Mrs. Ethel and Ralph Williams, formerly of Stockdale. Charges resulting from two counts of cruelty to Williams' property, March 6 and July 11 were heard simultaneously.

Before hearing the case, Magistrate R. B. Baxter told both parties that the insulting letters he had received, suggesting that since he had previously dismissed charges by the Humane Society against the Williams he should withdraw from the proceedings. Identity of the writers of the letters, which he termed "insulting," was not established, said Magistrate Baxter, but to the best of his knowledge, he said, only officials of the Humane Society knew of plans to lay the present charges, at the time the letters were written. He warned both parties that he would watch, during presentation of the evidence, for indications of ulterior motives, on either side. Tom Hughes, general manager of the Ontario Humane Society, denied any suggestion that Humane Society personnel might have been connected with the letters.

HAVE POLICE POWERS

The magistrate also commented on the publicity given in the local and the Toronto press, to the previous charges in the case. "Yesterday's proceedings," it was indicated that this publicity had been a contributing factor," Mrs. the Williams move away from Stockdale.

The denunciation of provincial legislation authorizing the activities of the Humane Society was included in the argument of Campbellford lawyer J. D. Sheard, counsel for the Williams Mr. Sheard pointed out that the legislation gives officers and agents of the society police powers, to be used at their discretion, and that some of the powers invested in agents of the Society are denied even to the police. He specified the authority granted agents of the Society to force entry, virtually anywhere they have suspicion that animals are being mistreated, without a warrant. He pointed out that police officers are denied similar powers.

CHARGE DISMISSED

After hearing the evidence, Magistrate Baxter dismissed charges of neglect based on the carcasses of six dogs, found during the March inspection of the property. He reserved judgment, until October third, on further charges of neglect based on descriptions of the property by Mr. Hughes and the Society's chief inspector, J. T. McArthy.

Janitor Service To Be Awarded By Tender

TRENTON — A janitorial contract for the municipal building will be let by tender next year, council decided last night. The decision was inspired by a letter from Larry's Cleaning Service, which pointed out that there are four janitorial services in the town, and that the calling of tenders was the only way to give all a fair chance for the business. Council noted that when the present contract was let, there were only two cleaning services in the town.

The present contract allows for termination by the town at any time, after reasonable notice, but council does not plan to call tenders immediately. The field has been set for this year, based on the present cost of the service. Tenders will be called for next year, however.

224 Bottles Blood Given At Clinic

TRENTON—The Red Cross blood clinic in this town Wednesday at the United Church collected 234 bottles of blood, Mrs. E. D. Magnus, chairman of the Trenton Red Cross unit said today. Quota for the town is 250 bottles per clinic, for three clinics per year.

The total yearly quota of 750 bottles is based on the estimated yearly consumption of blood in the town.

The previous clinic this year in April, collected 170 bottles of blood, out of a quota of 250. The imbalance between Trenton's donations and consumption of blood will be taken up by cities and other towns, through the central blood bank in Toronto.

Two Missing Kingston Men Are in Trenton

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — Two Kingston men missing on Lake Ontario since Aug. 12 were located here by police Thursday.

Edward Lawton and Brian Clark, both 33, set out from Portsmouth Harbor at Kingston in Lawton's 17-foot cabin cruiser on a trip to Toronto.

They were reported missing last week after they failed to turn up in Toronto.

The two men said they had "run out of money" and decided to stop over here.

Conflict of Interest Main Topic in Purchase of Truck

TRENTON — Final moments of Trenton council meeting last night were spent in discussion over an empty seat. Councilor G. A. Weaver had declared a conflict of interest over a proposed consideration of tenders to supply the town with a new dump truck, and had excused himself from the meeting. The sales manager of his auto dealership, Mr. Weaver said, had submitted a tender for supply of the truck.

If Mr. Weaver was concerned with the conflict of interest, however, the other councillors were more worried about it than he was. In several different forms, the same question was put to town solicitor Roderick Campbell. In Mr. Weaver's absence, the councillors wanted to know, could the mayor and council be held liable to conflict of interest if the town bought from Mr. Weaver's firm?

COULDN'T ANSWER QUESTION

Mr. Campbell couldn't answer the question. He suggested that any citizen could challenge almost any move made by council in almost any category of the purchase of a truck by the town from Mr. Weaver's firm were challenged, Mr. Campbell said, there was little precedent for the case, but that a court might take on the question. According to law, he added, the council would accept the Weaver firm's tender and force Mr. Weaver to deliver the truck, if Mr. Weaver's firm was the low tender, Mr. Weaver could not force acceptance of the truck. It would probably be a confused situation. Mr. Campbell said, and he considered it impossible to give a definite statement on the legal aspects.

With five tenders bidding, Council counted the odds and opened the tenders, on the assumption that the Weaver tender might be high. The Weaver tender was the lowest, by about $200. Total cost of the vehicle, by council began again. To risk a conflict of interest charge by accepting it a councillor's bid, or to pass up a chance to save $500 of civic money?

ASKED TO READ OATH

At one point during the discussion, town clerk O. W. Larry was asked to read aloud the Councillors' oath of office. Council decided the oath republished the Weaver bid, which would save the town about $500 should be accepted.

Finally, Councillor James Duncan took the plunge. He moved the town accept the Weaver bid. It supply the town with $9,750, plus tax. Councillor Ross Burtt seconded the motion, and Mr. Weaver's bid was accepted.

Plowing Match For County on September 25

The Hastings County Plowmatch Association is running competition to the provincial general election on September 25th.

Or maybe it is the other way around.

At any rate the provincial election and the county association's annual plowing match are being held on the same day.

But ...sociation president ...e's absence, the councillors wanted to know, could the mayor and council be held liable to conflict of interest if the town bought from Mr. Weaver's firm?

Car Achieves Big Mileage on Economy Run

Winner of the Quinte Auto Club Club's economy run last night, Fred Blake of Belleville, achieved over 200 miles per gallon in his four cylinder car over the 33-mile course. Eleven cars entered the event, driving a course laid out from Belleville through Trenton, Carrying Place and Redmerrville back to Belleville. Second in honor, Mr. Blake's car burned 0.15 gallons of gas on the run for a mile-per 0500 miles per gallon. The results of the run, however, have no official standing outside the club. Bob Boyce, of Belleville, was second in the run.

Rival Pension Plans

One of the issues of the current provincial election campaign appears likely to be the respective merits of the pension plans proposed by the provincial and Federal governments.

This is a pity.

The advantages and disadvantages of the two plans need to be carefully weighed by persons who not only have intimate knowledge of pension schemes but who also possess a clear understanding of the influences such plans would have on the economy of the nation as a whole.

This is a task for experts. The ordinary citizen is not qualified to judge under the best of an election campaign. Moreover, even if the average voter was a qualified judge of this matter, it would be obviously misleading to overlook the fact that many other factors besides the respective merits of the two plans may influence the outcome of the election.

Still, for the record, it might be helpful to simplify this issue as much as possible.

We shall concern ourselves with the difference in principle between the two plans, and not with the differences in costs of financing them and the differences in the amounts of pensions which would be payable.

First, though, before considering the basic differences between the provincial and federal plan, it is well to recognize a similarity. The Robarts Government has adopted a pension scheme in response to a growing demand that some system be devised to make company pension plans "portable," so that pension benefits earned at one company would travel with the worker when he, through choice or necessity, changed his place of employment. The Federal plan, because it is universal, also meets this test of "portability." From the standpoint of the average employee, therefore, both schemes represent a great improvement in the generally prevailing situation with respect to private pension plans.

The fundamental difference between the two plans lies in the manner in which contributions by future pensioners would be used. Both plans have been called contributory. This is true, in every sense of the term, as far as the provincial scheme is concerned. It is not true, in a proper sense, of the Federal plan for though future pensioners would "contribute," these contributions would really be nothing more nor less than a new tax, under a different name.

Under the provincial plan, pension schemes would be purchased through the normal channels, with contributions being paid to private firms and with these private firms using this revenue in the normal manner, investing it in various enterprises, in bonds, debentures, mortgages or perhaps even stocks.

Under the Federal plan, "contributions" would be used, as they are received, to pay current pensions. These contributions would not be set aside and earmarked to pay the future pension of the contributor, although the amount of pension he would eventually receive would vary depending on the amount of his "contributions," or pensions tax, over the years.

This difference accounts for both the strength and the weakness of both schemes.

The Ontario scheme has the advantage of creating a big reservoir of savings. These funds will, one presumes, be invested in the growth of Canada in general and probably of Ontario in particular.

No such reservoir of savings will be created by the Federal plan. Investment of funds entrusted to the government might create problems which are avoided by the fact that the money will, at least in large measure, be spent on current pensions as it is received. But the Federal plan will have the disadvantage of creating precisely the opposite effect from the Ontario plan, draining off money which might have been used to finance our expansion and converting it into purchasing power in the hands of today's pensioners.

On the other hand, this same difference in principle means that the benefits under the Federal plan will be larger. Then, too nobody can say for sure what the purchasing power of the dollar will be when pensions are paid in future years, but it is likely to be lower than today. With the Ontario plan, there is no hope of any compensation for this fact, for the plan is actuarially sound. Under the Federal plan, there is some hope for future pensioners that the government might increase the amount of pensions to compensate for decline in purchasing power of the dollar, and perhaps also to keep pensions in line with a rising standard of living in the country. It would be possible to do this because then, as at the start of the plan, current pensions would be paid out of current contributions.

Depend on Used Water

By Homer Foster in the Sault Daily Star

"Some Ohio towns use water that has been flushed down the sewers of ten other communities."

That statement in a news story several months ago, stunned me. Surely, I thought, this must be a gross and nasty exaggeration.

The truth is, though, that if anything, the statement does not go far enough. There are some towns in the United States where it could be said that the same water is used for the 15th or 20th time.

The fact is that as the population increases, more and more people are going to be getting second hand water.

It works this way:

The sewage plants in Pittsburgh empty into the Ohio River. Farther downstream, Cincinnati takes water out for drinking and then empties its sewage back. Still farther downstream, Louisville does the same and so on all the way to the Gulf of Mexico.

I'm aware of course, that this water is likely to get treated at each place before it is piped to the taps of homes and businesses but it certainly also takes pipe which when the same water is being used more than a dozen times.

It surely points up, as nothing else could, how essential it is that its pollution of water be stopped wherever possible.

The fact that a great deal needs to be done about this pollution has been stressed again and again. But the strongest evidence is provided by the water itself.

Here are a few examples:

In Babylon, a New Jersey suburban town in New York state, a study of the arithmetic of its cash income and outgo has forced upon Manitoba Medical Services a study of doctors' bills in Manitoba, which provide some interesting information.

The arithmetic problem was inescapable. In the first six months of this year, subscribers paid in $6,875,000 against which doctors put in bills for amounts adding to $8,485,000, the difference represented quite a bit of red ink and some attention had to be paid to it.

Manitoba Medical Services is a co-operative of members of the organized medical profession which provides prepaid medical services to about 70 per cent of the people in Greater Winnipeg and to a proportion of people elsewhere in Manitoba.

To check the possibility that some doctors' bills might have been padded or inflated, MMS statisticians used an IBM computer to go through the doctors' bills, looking for inconsistencies. Out of the mass of the bills seemed inconsistent with the kind of practice the doctor had, the computer would catch it. The computer check passed about 90 per cent of the bills as being reasonable. The other 10 per cent went to a medical review committee for more careful study.

Of this 10 per cent, again the great majority seemed reasonable after they were studied. The computer, for example, looked at bills and bills which did not conform to pattern, because a doctor was claiming for about 10 times as many injections as other claimants did. The review committee noted at once that he was an allergist and that it was quite in order for him to be giving many injections.

Of about 1,000 claims for payment which were put through the double check, only 15 finally were reduced. In one case a doctor had claimed for 28-hour days in the calendar. After studying the itemized statements of the case day, at a reasonable time allowance of at least an hour for taking the history and doing the examination for each patient, the review committee thought this claim was improbable. In another case, a doctor had claimed for six complete examinations of one patient within a 7-day period. The committee thought one annual checkup per fortnight would have been more reasonable. In a third case a doctor had claimed for treating more cases of hepatitis in one month than there were in the whole province of Manitoba in one year.

The other side of the picture of course, is that when 1,000 accounts were scrutinized for padding, 985 of them survived the scrutiny.

The device used to make the books balance carries us right back to the familiar old-fashioned situation in which the old-fashioned doctor got paid by some patients, but not by others. The Medical Services plan has all the accounts and services by a quarter, and each doctor is sent a cheque for 85 cents on the dollar of his claims against the fund..

'Ware Shark Aboard Ship

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Not so long ago it was the custom to lay up passenger liners during the winter because they weren't wanted in cold storage cold and probably rough weather. In course of time the shipping companies began to send the liner cruises to sunny climes from one-week voyages to three and four-week cruises around the world. These liners are so declared that they are really luxury sailing.

In addition to calling at a number of ports the liners provide numerous entertainments aboard. During normally scheduled ports-of-call they set up a little game" in their cabin, and many an unsuspecting passenger has fallen.

But a British liner will be fitted with equipment for gambling going aboard for the coming winter's cruising season.-Passengers can make a trip for the trifling sum or they can combine gambling with pleasure. They can gamble quite openly.

For when a ship is 12 miles off shore she is in international waters and passengers are free to gamble. In this instance passengers can gamble as much as they like from 50 cents to $300 at a time.

But the people who primarily play for fun should take care they are not lured into playing for high stakes by some new species of "shark" aboard the ship as well as in the sea.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 6th, 1943.

Heavy mists and fogs blanketed highways in Eastern Ontario over the weekend as motorists traffic was brought to a halt along No. 2 Highway east of Marysville and through to Odessa early Sunday morning. Traffic officer Caldwell came upon a lone motor car that had evidently been driven into the ditch in such a manner that the driver apparently could not get back on the roadway. During the absence for help, thieves sung the cover of darkness and fog, completely stripped the vehicle of the five tires, tubes and rims.

Apprehended after allegedly stealing money from mail boxes in the Octavia Street area over the weekend, a lad from the Bowmanville Boys' Training School was returned to that institution after being captured by Allan G. Meagher of Dufferin Street, and turned over to city police by the police station. It was learned the 13-year-old boy had left the Sidney Township farm where he had been employed on parole.

As the result of wartime exchanges with junior farmers and farmerettes working steadily in the harvest fields or in the factories, the Hastings County Junior Farmers' Field Day will be a streamlined event this year. The events will be held on Labor Day at the Stirling Agricultural grounds. The principal object of holding the day will be to keep the event alive until after the war.

A fire in Foxboro which started in a garage at the rear of Harry Scott's barber shop in the Goswell building in that village about midnight last night, destroyed seven buildings including Bailey Hamilton's general store; William Scott's general store and post office; Scott's barber shop and adjoining building; the house of Richard York, W. Sherwood, and all adjoining buildings. It was estimated that the loss will be close to $75,000. Fire Chief Parish and other firemen from the Belleville Fire Department went to Foxboro and did all they could to control the blaze. The Stirling firemen also rendered good assistance in fighting the fire. The supply of water was very inadequate.

Humiliating For Adults

By Helene Register

Life is growing more and more humiliating for oldsters who haven't had the benefit of modern scientific education.

It hurts to read about the 16-year old Pasadena boy who intercepted a letter by an expert who had helped to develop an ion engine using positively charged atoms of cesium for power for spacecraft. Questioning the time schedules given by the expert the boy asked:

"If we were to use ion propulsion to go to the stars, wouldn't we have to travel at speeds of light and so, according to Dr. Einstein's theory, wouldn't the spacecraft mass increase? Then wouldn't the mass of the spacecraft increase and reduce the specific impulse?"

The expert said "yes." He said the questions had overlooked this and they would go back to the drawing boards and refigure the ion engine.

When there are children like that going around, adults will have to learn how to defend themselves.

The only way that seems feasible is to tell them that even if you don't know an ion from an ox you can spell and parse and diagram sentences and play the guitar and that after you're bigger than they are and not to forget it.

Doctor Says Douching Should Not Be Routine Procedure

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please discuss feminine hygeine. There is much varied opinion among women, and I'm in between my husband and I.

I was taught by my mother that a woman should douche after her period. My husband says a woman should douche daily the same as she bathes externally.

I am of the opinion that some of these douching habits can actually be harmful. — Mrs. G. F.

Mosh, women (or anyway, a good many of them) douche too frequently. It certainly is not required daily as one would bathe. It is not necessary for health, nor for daintiness.

If I had my way, people would wash their hands oftener and forget about some of the "invented" procedures, douching being one of them.

I do not say that douching is not useful. It is, at the proper time, as a corrective procedure, not as a routine matter. I most decidedly know that pills, or other medications are important when the occasion requires them, but the douche is not meant that I go along with the idea that pills must be taken all the time.

Physiologically, the vaginal canal secretes certain secretions which are essential for its health, just as the body releases some juices into the digestive tract.

Somebody with excessive war in the area of the vagina should wash it out every few months. Medications, at times, may help the germ, if something is wrong. Some people (especially those who have reached years) may need a little chemical hydrochloric acid each day because their stomachs do not provide enough. These are examples, but there are no others.

But the douche isn't helpful unless something is wrong and needs correcting. The common trichomonas vaginalis is a case in need medication, or there can be invasions of other micro-organisms. Yet there is no shotgun treatment. If something is wrong, you must know what it is in order to use a douche to combat that particular problem.

Nature has ways of taking care of the internal organs. Douching, just because some people say it, you should, or can indeed be harmful. However, perhaps not seriously so. I'm not inclined to agree with those women who have been brought up from girlhood to believe that they "douche after" as a matter of routine, douching for no special reason can upset Nature's routines, interfere with the normal (mild acid balance) and do some harm and no good.

Don't douche unless your physician says you should for some specific purpose.

Must Work for Freedom of Body and Mind

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Have you ever noticed that it is generally the same people who talk about the need for "inner discipline" that seem to work successfully, who resent the idea of "incentive" to make a man think successfully?

The paradox is important in the world of action, it is equally important in the world of thought. The human animal resists thinking unless it is made uncomfortable, just as we resist working if the challenge of survival is taken away from us.

The men who would scorn a game of golf if the cups were three feet wide, and who delight in the difficult task of overcoming a tricky course, at the same time demand that the books they read, the music they listen to, and the paintings they look at be as simple and effortless as tit-tat-toe.

Nothing stimulates people to think more than the "obscurity" of a poem or the "hardness" of a book. It seems to me that they are making a confession of weakness that they would be ashamed to admit in their work or in their play.

If we want simplicity, there is nothing simpler than being a slave. The enslaved Russian people are told what to think and what to believe in A-B-C language, and their intellectual problems are solved before they are even stated.

Democracy does not mean that everyone sinks to the lowest level, but that everyone rises to the highest level. The founders of the Republic envisioned a nation of educated men and women who had cultivated the habit of applying themselves to difficult problems on a high plane of thought.

There is a misconception in modern society that the writer, or artist of any kind, is obligated to prop his work into public's mouth. Actually, every work of art is an act of collaboration between the artist and the audience; and when the latter refuses to read or look, the artist petulantly locks the door of his ivory tower.

Randall Jarrell remarks in his excellent book, "Poetry and the Age," we could respect the public more if it were poetry "hard" if they read older poetry — Shakespeare or Milton or Shelly.

But they read nothing of the sort, and prefer "obscurity" of the modern idiom as an excuse for intellectual sloth.

Literature, like society, must be based on incentives; if you resent the "welfare state" which gives people something for nothing, you should resent "welfare art" which no lazy mind is entitled to accept. Freedom both of the body and of the mind depends on our willingness to work for it.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market came on strongly on light morning trading today as the industrial index rose 3.61 following the lead of the New York market.

All other sections of the index showed gains at 11 a.m., base metals advancing 1.39.

Algoma rose ¾, Investors Syndicate A and Relchhold ½ and Canadian Hydrocarbons and Imperial Oil ⅝ each.

Industrial losers included B.C. Power down ¼ and Dominion Bridge ¼.

International Nickel gained 1 ⅛ to 68%, Noranda ½ and Falconbridge ⅝ among senior base metals.

Increased interest in industrial issues drew investment away from speculative mines where trading was the lightest it has been for some time. Dickenson rose five cents to $6.35 and Merrill 24 cents to 95 cents. Leitch slipped one cent to $2.07 and Zulapa one cent to 27 cents.

Canada Southern Petroleum dipped five cents to $4.20 and Sarcee was up two cents to $1.15 among western oils.

On the Foreign market, Massey Ferguson moved ahead ⅝, Moore Corporation ¾ and Dominion Stores was quoted at 15¾.

On index, industrials were ahead 3.61 to 229.06, base metals 1.39 to 211.20, golds .31 to 94.82 and western oils .37 to 116.39. Volume at 11 a.m. was 860,000 shares compared with 898,000 at the same time Thursday.

Industrials were the major attraction Thursday. The industrial index rose 4.53 to close at 228.08. However, volume remained relatively low.

This gain among industrials was the largest since July 22 when the index rose 7.41 after the previous day's shimp following the announcement of the U.S. equalization tax proposals. The index now stands at its highest level since July 11 when it closed at 231.34.

Brokers said this activity reflected the steady rise in New York prices during the last week.

Other sections of the index showed little change, golds being the only one closing in the minus range.

Among industrial gainers, Algoma Steel and Canada Packers B both gained a point to 54¾ and 60 respectively, Industrial Acceptance, Reichhold and Texaco Canada ¾ each and Investors Syndicate A ½.

B.C. Forest dipped ½ and Canada and Dominion Sugar ¾ among industrial losers.

International Nickel and Noranda each fell ¾ among senior base metals. Lake Dufault slipped 10 cents to $7.55.

In speculative mines, Preston rose 45 cents to $9.10, Kirkland Townsite four cents to 36 cents and Advocate 20 cents to $6.80. Leitch and Highland Bell dipped 25 cents to $3.36 and $2.08 respectively and Zulapa one cent to 28 cents.

On the foreign market, Moore Corp. was up ¾ and Kerr-Addison five cents to $6.30. Aluminium was quoted at 28¾.

Index, industrials rose 4.53 to 628.06, base metals .58 to 209.81, western oils .55 to 116.35 and golds declined .49 to 94.51.

Hastings Plea Brings Higher Works Subsidy

Municipalities throughout Ontario engaging in the municipal winter works incentive program this coming season will receive a minimum of 50 per cent subsidy on approved labor costs — thanks mainly to a resolution seeing birth in Hastings county council.

The Federal government has announced that this winter it will increase its subsidy for winter work labor cost to 60 per cent from 50 per cent.

So far there has been no indication that the province will increase its present 25 per cent subsidy.

Councillors were notified of the increase this morning by Cecil Husser, Belleville employment office manager.

The resolution asking for a high labor cost subsidy for the winter work incentive program was approved in county council a year ago and was concurred with by many other provincial bodies.

The resolution pointed out that while municipalities up to last year received but 75 per-cent of approved labor costs in winter works programs, the government paid up to 80 per cent in straight relief.

As result in many cases municipalities made little effort to have winter works programs in force received five per cent more for straight welfare.

ENVIOUS PROJECTS

Tudor Reeve Verne McMurray, who originated the council resolution a year ago, said the federal government decision to make a 10 per cent increase in labor subsidy is going to be incentive for municipalities to arrange for more winter works programs.

He said that each municipality should study local possibilities for going brush cutting and roadwork during the winter season.

The winter works program season this year starts November 15th, instead of Oct. 31st as was the case previously.

Mr. Husser reviewed the local labor picture, noting that at the end of August there were 268 more persons registered for employment than there were a year ago.

The increase was from 880 to 1248 or 27 per cent.

Mr. Husser also urged councillors to study their power lists to encourage more winter work.

An Introduction

Kenya as Viewed Through Eyes of Canadian Student

Editor's note: James McAuley of Northumberland County, a student of political science at Carleton University, Ottawa, journeyed to East Africa with a summer work-study project called Operation Crossroads Africa. The latter incorporates three hundred Negro and white students from the United States and Canada; they are in African countries from Senegal in the west and Egypt, to the southern reaches of the continent.

In a letter from Mombasa, Kenya, dated July 31, Mr. McAuley makes the following comment—

"Though I had anticipated an earlier beginning of the series of articles, it has required something more than one month to establish communication and understanding with regard to the many persons and situations here in Kenya.

"This introductory article is perhaps broad in scope because it has been necessary to establish some perspective for the reader, to place him within the country as I have experienced it, so that I may deal more confidently with the central problems facing Africans here in Kenya. To this end as well, I have been privileged to have met and to have spoken with most of the figures who will decide upon the absorbing political and social problems that are very much a part of life here. I shall be leaving Mombasa August 3 travelling to Zanzibar, Dar Es Salaan, Mt. Killmanjaro and the Nairobi area until the end of August."

ARTICLE 1

Mombasa, Kenya — We planned out of Cairo in the early dawn, southward over the desert. We passed the pyramids. The sandy wastes of Kenya's northern frontier. The stars disappeared as the desert. I saw the snowy summit of Mount Kenya loom in the distance, and between the clouds, Kikuyu villages huddled in the rich highlands.

The Africans had gathered at Nairobi's air terminal, hundreds of them, standing quietly. But their city surprised me. Expecting huts in the jungle, we found a modern city with colorful shops, attractive buildings and the most beautiful of thoroughfares. However, it soon became clear that the city is not theirs, but is rather a monument to the white settlers who have owned and developed much of the rich highlands of central Kenya.

In doing so much for themselves they have done much for the country as well. A highly ambitious lot from the United Kingdom and Ireland, they brought new equipment and techniques to agriculture and produced coffee, tea and sisal, a fibrous material used in rope products. Several thousands of them live on some thirty eight hundred large plantations which comprise one-quarter of the arable land; six and one-half million Africans are crowded into the cities and onto the remaining land. For political radicalism economic nationalism, the new government of Mr. Kenyatta has begun buying more than one million pounds in the 'white highlands' These former estates will be broken down into small plots and resettled by the landless Africans.

MASAI TRIBE RESPECTED

The Masai are not a large tribe; indeed, they are only one-tenth the number of the politically dynamic Kikuyu who dominate Kenya's government. And unlike the latter, they have steadfastly resisted the influx into East Africa of western ideas and progress.

But this small proud people are almost loved and certainly feared of all African tribes. When a few of them climbed into the cab of our truck, we were questioned up to give their own seats to the Masai. They are colorful as well, with their long dried into strings of red clay and their ears cut and hung low with ornaments. I saw in these people who cling to tradition and live along the Uganda Railway, the kind of contrast between old and new that one senses everywhere in Kenya.

In Mombasa, the bus terminal is four across from the bustling market square, one of the most interesting areas of the city. Here is the heart of this ancient Indian Ocean port, one of the world's great trading centers for a variety of baskets, carvings and fabrics from Africa and the East. There impressive displays hang from rows of long open-air structures, covering the entire ceiling of green leaves. The food market, the curio shops and of course the harbor are also very colorful and attractive; but everywhere in Mombasa, one senses the strong influence of the East.

PROSPEROUS CITY

By means of dhows, when are wooden sailing vessels driven by the monsoon, this city's trade which nations across the Indian Ocean has flourished since the Middle Ages. Indeed, in those times, the thrones of India and China were carved from the finest ivory. However, the great influx of people from the East as well as Europe, came with the construction of the British Imperial East African Railway from the coast to Uganda in 1896. These people brought new culture to the coastal tribes and today, it is not uncommon to see Africin women wrapped in the black Moslem veil, in native Swahili: 'buibui', or to see the same on many ornate temples which adorn the city. In fact the Moslem Institute of Education is considered among the most beautiful of architectural works in East Africa.

The Indians and Asians of Kenya are a commercial people who control most of the non-agricultural capital in the country. Those who approached their economic power often refer to them as the 'Jews of Africa'; the phrase is not derogatory but rather, it denotes respect and fear as well.

But for all the technical and economic advantage of the Indians and Europeans, the controlling forces of political power have surely and effectively passed into African hands. In Kenya, the struggle for that power is the overwhelming question at hand and it is a problem perhaps so absorbing that it can influence and overshadow all else.

Council Members Luncheon Guests Of Candidates

Members of Hastings county council were luncheon and dinner guests yesterday of the Progressive Conservative candidates for Hastings in the forthcoming Provincial General Election.

Council members were the guests of W. Elmer Sandercock for noon luncheon at Club Garara, while in the evening Clarke T. Rollins acted as dinner host at Johnny's Restaurant at the Belleville Plaza.

Judge Anderson in a brief speech at Mr. Rollins' dinner told the guests that "regardless of political affiliations no member has done more for his constituents than Clarke Rollins."

The formal vote of thanks was moved by Thurlow reeve Clayton Hall.

OSLO (AP) — Crown Prince Harald of Norway, 26, left by plane Friday for the United States where he will compete in several sailing competitions.

Norris Whitney, Former MLA, Again Chosen PC Candidate For Prince Edward-Lennox

PICTON (Special) — Rumbling, cross-fire convention here last night named Norris Whitney, Progressive Conservative MLA for Prince Edward-Lennox in the last House to contest his fourth provincial election.

Mr. Whitney won out on the first ballot at Prince Edward Collegiate over Napanee newspaper publisher, Earl Morrison and ex-county warden, Dwight D. Reynolds.

While the official vote was not made known local party of-ficials declared Mr. Whitney's win as "a landslide."

Mr. Whitney himself appeared very confident of victory. At the end of the convention he had 1,000 slogan-bearing car stickers ready for distribution among party supporters.

Not that his two opponents for the nomination weren't serious about their bid. Both Mr. Morrison and Mr. Reynolds polished some fine oratorical flourishes as well as bouquets with nomination speeches at a fiery, three-hour convention that confirmed itself mainly to hometown speakers.

Deputy Attorney-General, MP for Prince J. Edward-Lennox spoke only briefly. The rest of the Hastings-area boosted their county to local-provincial affairs.

Mr. Morrison attacked traditional party setups that chooses a federal candidate from the Lennox and Addington County area, a provincial and its provincial standard bearer from Prince Edward County. A good member, he told the convention, serves his riding irrespective of his place of residence.

WANTED TWO OFFICES

He also suggested a Member in cities should have offices at both Napanee and Picton county seats to receive constituents by appointment at regular times.

"I believe at 41 I'm old enough and young enough to try my hand in the political arena with the Robarts' team of young men," said the newspaperman.

Mr. Reynolds, a real estate man and farmer with a background of 12 years municipal service, said while a knowledge of agriculture was imperative for anyone representing the riding, it was a duty of every Member to support industry in every section of the riding.

He was also critical of the handling of pensions and said local residents had experienced some difficulty with Queen's Park administrators in this respect.

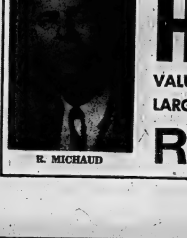
Replying to his opponents, Mr. Whitney threw out challenges on Mr. Morrison's suggestion of two offices to receive constituents. A Member, he said, could not always keep regular appointments but must first go where he is needed most urgently.

He admitted to criticism that a bridge to span the Bay of Quinte from Green Point to clear test-ban treaty.

Flasher Lights For 2 Crossings To Be Requested

Flasher signal lights for the protection of two railway crossings, one in Sidney township and the other in the village of Frankford, are to be requested by Hastings county council.

The Sidney township crossing for which flasher lights are to be asked is on the Belleville-Suburban Road over the CNR double tracks two miles west of the city.



The one in Frankford is within the village limits on the road leading to Wooler.

If the lights are approved by the Board of Transport the county would be required to pay part of the light maintenance costs.

COLD IN EAST — Chilly weather will cover Manitoba, Ontario and most of Quebec in September according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Based on long-range predictions and subject to error, the forecast calls for above and much above normal temperatures for British Columbia and Alberta.

Precipitations will be heavy in Southern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes and light to moderate for the rest of the country. Table gives precipitation in inches of rain. — (CP Newsmap)

Students in U. S. Colleges Can't Play It Cool Anymore

NEW YORK (AP)—The leisurely academic life at colleges in the United States is going the way of the raccoon coat, the Charleston, and bathtub gin.

It is harder to get into college, and harder to stay there, than it was just a generation ago. There is more to learn, more time to learn it, and no place for the laggard.

In an effort to cope with the swelling hordes of high school graduates seeking a higher education, many American colleges and universities are turning to courses forms of a year-round program.

One which seems to be catching on generally is the trimester, sometimes referred to as the "trimonster."

By any name it is a speed-up, and when it comes in, something wonderful—the art of learning disappears from the halls of college.

Instead of the traditional two semesters of 16-18 weeks, with a long summer vacation, the trimester plan has three terms of 14-15 weeks, with a one-month break in late summer.

A student attending eight consecutive trimesters can graduate in two years and eight months, instead of the usual three years and nine months.

HAS ADVANTAGES

The advantages of the trimester are obvious, and difficult to debate:

—A college on the trimester plan can accomodate 30 per cent or more students with no more classrooms and with only a modest increase in staff. With U.S. college enrollments jumping from 4,000,000 now to 8,000,000 in 1976, this program may be the only salvation for hard-pressed state-operated institutions.

—Students can cut years off the time they normally would spend preparing themselves for a career. This particularly is true of the growing number who go on to professional or graduate school.

—The traditional long summer vacation is a throw-back to the day when young people were needed at home on the farm in summer, and that day has long since passed.

The keynote of the trimester is efficiency. And there, perhaps, is its greatest drawback.

There is limited space on the educational assembly line for mind-sharpening bull sessions, for browsing in the library and reading for pleasure, for meditation, and absorbing that which is being learned, for attending plays and concerts, and for just plain riverbank cogitation on the state of the world and its complex problems.

LACK THINKING TIME

Says Ross R. Ogelsby, dean of students at Florida State University:

"The trimester robs students of many things, but what they miss most of all is thinking time."

The University of Pittsburgh experimented the trimester plan in September, 1959, and it now is an accepted way of academic life there. All four of Florida's state universities went on the program last fall, as did Jacksonville (Fla.) University, a private institution.

Other colleges on the trimester include two small liberal arts institutions as California (Pa.) State College, Chicago Teachers College, Fort Lewis A & M (Colo.), Parsons (Iowa), and Harper (N.Y.).

The University of Michigan will join the trimester corps next September. The University of California, the world's largest institution of higher education, and Ohio State University are giving the three-term plan serious thought.

of other professions directly involved.

"As far as I know the medical profession has made no pronouncement on the subject," he said.

Arthur Dawe of Okanagan Mission, B.C., said religion should play no part in the debates.

'DON'T IMPOSE VIEWS'

Terence Ison of Vancouver said any discovery should include "the freedom to be immoral." He said criminal law should not be used to "impose" religious groups . . . as a device for enforcing their views on the whole community."

The resolution was tabled by 97 to 11 vote.

A B.C. resolution urging that the sale of contraceptives as a means of preventing conception be made legal was approved 35 to 13.

The section earlier approved a civil liberties resolution from Quebec asking that sanctions be placed in the Criminal Code to give courts the power to take from ill authorities fail to deliver prisoners when ordered or fail to show cause why the person was not delivered.

The procedure would be used if authorities failed to comply with a Criminal Code clause which says an arrested person must be brought into court within 24 hours.

The criminal justice section attached a rider that legislation also be adopted in provinces requiring speedy enforcement of the section.

TRAWLER SINKS

HALIFAX (CP) — A United States fishing trawler sank Thursday shortly after her crew was rescued by a sistership. RCAF Search and Rescue headquarters here said it had only rare details of the sinking of the trawler Carl Jack, whose port of registry was unknown.

Road Inspector In Owen Sound Area Resigns

TORONTO (CP)—The resignation of Walter McBride, chief inspector of the department of highways in the Owen Sound area, was announced Thursday and Highways Minister Charles MacNaughton issued a statement supporting his integrity.

A department spokesman said Mr. McBride's resignation to go into private business was not connected with recent charges about substandard work by contractors and racial discrimination. The allegations were made by Gordon Molock, a former soil inspector with the department, who was dismissed last April.

Referring to accusations against Mr. McBride as being another link in a "chain of 'stitch hunts' with no regard for injury or embarrassment to individual Indians," Mr. MacNaughton's statement said:

"I have conducted a thorough investigation in this matter . . . and I have corroborated the facts . . . He (Mr. McBride) has my complete support in the past and has shown an outstanding ability for administration and direction. We were most reluctant to lose Mr. McBride."

those provinces that wish to join, he said. But if both Ontario and Quebec stayed out, the plan could not be operated.

Meanwhile, Donald C. MacDonald, the Democratic Party leader, Thursday began a five-day swing through Northern Ontario to visit mining companies that administer huge timber holdings in the North "like feudal lords."

He said in Cobalt the Conservative government has given no lead in the establishment of desperately needed company industry in the North.

Some of the timber areas could be used to establish new industries, and "if private enterprise is either unwilling or unable to provide the necessary secondary industries to diversify the northern economy, then it is up to the federal and provincial government to take the initiative and develop pulp and paper mills."

SWINGS AT LIBERAL

Premier Robarts, speaking to his own constituency meeting in London North, swung at Mr. Wintermeyer with the barbed comment that he used to far to the campaign.

He called his opponent "irresistibly John" and "Mr. fairly, both-way Wintermeyer," and recalled the Liberal leader had voted for the government's pulp plan when it was passed in the legislature.

In that, he said, Mr. Wintermeyer had advocated a provincial portable pension plan, modelled by private insurance companies.

Referring to an Aug. 26 statement by Mr. Wintermeyer suggested the premier was a stooge for private insurance companies bent on destroying the Canada pension plan, Mr. Robarts said "no political leader in the history of this province ever distorted the truth and misstated the facts as did Mr. Wintermeyer."

DENIES CHARGES

Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner denied the assault on Mr. Wintermeyer. He said the Liberal leader was hoodwinked by his researchers in his charges against Chairman Naldo Bracci's administration of the White River Improvement district.

He told a press conference in Toronto that the land along the Trans - Canada Highway which Mr. Bracci bought in 1959 had been farmed by his family for more than 30 years, and was purchased only because of a provision in the deeds.

He added that the route of the highway—Mr. Wintermeyer said Mr. Bracci had advance knowledge of it in 1959 — was blazed about 1950 and was begun with a gravel road in 1959.

Mr. Spooner said there was no foundation for Mr. Wintermeyer's allegations.

WILL HEAD PROBE

TORONTO (CP)—Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville will head an inquiry into charges that the city of Ottawa is violating the Ontario human rights code, it was announced Thursday. The Ontario Human Rights Commission said it had received complaints last fall that the city is inquiring into the nationality, citizenship, religion and place of birth of employment applicants.

Winnipeg Native Working On Folk-Song Spectacular For Canadian Television

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YORK (CP) — Oscar Brand, a Winnipeg native with relatives and friends in various parts of Canada and especially in southern Ontario, is working on a folk-song spectacular for Canadian television.

"It's very exciting for me," he says, explaining:

"For years, my friends and relatives in Canada didn't know what I did for a living. I'd tell them I sang folk songs.

"They'd ask what songs I'd sung and I'd name some and they'd say 'Oh, everybody sings those songs. What do you do for a living?'

"With the U.S. revival and popularity of folk songs, they finally know what I've been doing all these years."

HE TOLD TRUTH

The television show in Canada—"It's something I've always wanted to do"—will offer Brand his first first-hand evidence that Brand has been telling them the truth all along.

Brand will be master of ceremonies for the hour - long Something to fling About, a Canadian hootenany scheduled for broadcast on CBC-TV network Sept. 15 to mark CTV's third anniversary and the completion of the network's final micro wave link between Montreal and Halifax.

It will be CTV's first Canadian-produced special and will bring its performances by Canadian singers—and Brand — from familiar outdoor settings in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Brand hopes it will be more than that, perhaps giving impetus to a revival of Canadian folk music, which he says has been without proper recognition too long.

RICH MUSIC HERITAGE

"Canada has a tremendously rich heritage in folk music, both in English and in French," Brand said in an interview in his office at NBC headquarters here.

"It is so large and so vital it's a shame it has not been recognized by more people. Some of the most important folk singers are doing U.S. songs and that's too bad."

He continued:

"We really important and successful French - Canadian singer has emerged yet and there's a reason for it, because French-Canadian folk songs are among the most beautiful in the world. Wilfrid Pelletier did a great deal of work in this area, but he's one of the few who has."

Brand said that only in the last 15 years has there been any attempt to organize Canadian folk songs—and that has been partly under the impetus of the U.S. folk-song revival.

HELPED U.S. REVIVAL

He has been influential in the U.S. revival with 52 long-play records out, five books concerned with folk music already published and two more to be published soon. Now, with the special and then possibly with one or two folk - music my series for the bandleader televised TV, he may have a considerable hand in shaping the popularity of Canadian folk music.

He's immensely qualified for such a role, although he claims he wants no sing for fun and write for a living—"I'm not a professional singer, I'm a professional writer," he said, adding that he's through the first four chapters of his first novel, which has nothing to do with folk music.

Born in Winnipeg, son of a Ukrainian Prairie pioneer, he spent his childhood alternately in Winnipeg, Minneapolis, Chicago and New York. Everywhere he went as his family moved, he was singing, first with Canadian version of children's nursery rhymes and songs, then the American version.

As a youth living in New York City, he enriched his song collections in Greenwich village sessions with such folk-song notables as Pete Seeger, Woody Guthrie, Josh White, Buddie Ledbetter and Lee Hays.

Later, working as a farm hand, bus boy and waiter, he studied psychology for four years at Brooklyn University, then entered the U.S. Army, which later cited him for his work as section chief of a psychology unit.

WON RADIO JOB

Out of the army in 1945, he sought—and found in New York City—a job that began his professional singing career and his slow, often difficult but sure climb to success.

He became co-ordinator of folk music for New York City's municipal radio station late in 1945 and every Sunday since then presented—he does it now without pay—an award-winning program called Folksong Festival. He also has a weekly show, The World of Folk Music, broadcast weekly on 1,858 U.S. radio affiliate stations sponsorship of a U.S. government agency.

Besides many recordings, concert and club performances, Brand has acted in various capacities in movies, provided scenarios, scores and narrations for many television documentaries and has written songs as A Guy is a Guy, and numerous commercials jingles and television commercials.

MORE

His current activities, in addition to his radio shows and Canadian engagements, include a post as musical director for an hour-long NBC-TV weekly children's program in color; teaching folk music at New York University; performing in night spots and at concerts, recording and writing and composing.

INCOME OF $75,000

It adds up to an income near $75,000 a year, which helps to support his wife, painter-sculptress Ann Brand, his daughter, Jeannie, 7, and a son, Peter, 4. He refuses engagements that would take him away from home more than a few days.

"Recently they moved from a 12-room house to a smaller apartment to a big stone house on an acreage in Croton-on-Hudson and finally back to New York City.

Brand's short-cropped black hair, lean six - foot, two - inch frame and handsome features give him the appearance of a man much younger than his 43 years. His constant singing wherever he goes portrays a happy man.

"My singing has been good to me," he said. "It's opened doors for me. But I still like to sing for fun and when my income is mostly from writing and only a little from singing, I'll feel I've reached my real goal."

HOUSING OPENED

WALPOLE ISLAND, Ont. (CP) — The first community housing project started on a Canada Indian reserve has officially opened here Thursday. Two homes have been completed and 19 more will have been finished by the end of the year. The 12-acre site has room for a total of 44 lots.

Commissioner Invited to Discuss Crime

TORONTO (CP)—RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harrison has been invited to discuss organized crime with the Ontario Police Commission Monday, Chairman Judge Bruce Macdonald said Thursday.

Commissioner Harrison said Aug. 16 at a Canadian National Exhibition luncheon that most organized crime in Canada was controlled by mafia-like syndicates based in the United States.

Attorney-General Cass asked the police commission to investigate the statement.

Commissioner Harrison returned Thursday from an international police convention held in Oslo, Norway. He is scheduled to address the Canadian Police Chief's convention in Hamilton Tuesday.

Judge Macdonald said the commission will discuss crime with the police chiefs at a closed Hamilton session.

Generally higher prices for pharmaceuticals and personal care costs pushed the health and personal care index to 127.3 from 162.6.

There was no change in the hardcities of recreation costs, where the index held steady at 148.8. The index of tobacco and alcohol prices dipped to 118.1 from 118.3 with fractional decreases in cigarettes more balancing higher prices for alcoholic beverages.

Booklet Emphasizes Need Of Lowering Accident Rate

TORONTO—Some "shocking facts" on farm accidents are reported in an attractive illustrated booklet, "Safety on the Farm", published by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. The booklet emphasizes the need of lowering the farm accident rate.

Based on the results of two major surveys of farm accidents, the booklet lists the following facts:

—Each year one member of every fourth family in Canada is an accident victim.

—A one year Ontario survey recorded 8760,978 in medical bills, 112,683 days off work, and $5,283,799 in property damage from farm accidents.

—More than one-half of all accidents happen to farm people under twenty-one years of age.

—Nearly one-quarter of all accidents occur during July and August.

—Approximately one-half of the accidents occur in the afternoon and 30 percent in the morning. The hours of 9-10 a.m. and 3-4 p.m. are the most hazardous times.

—73 percent of the accidents happen on the farm, and 28 percent off the farm.

—45 percent of "on farm" accidents occur in the farm yard, 37 percent around the house and 38 percent in the field.

—43 percent of "off the farm" accidents occur on the main highways, 39 percent on side roads and 38 percent elsewhere.

The booklet illustrates the "when, where and how" of farm accidents and urges Canadian farm people to work harder at reducing the farm accident rate which is one of the highest in Canada.

Illustrations of twenty-six common farm accident situations emphasize that unlike the industrial worker, the farmer makes his own safety rules.

"The farmer of necessity must be the plant safety engineer or his accident conscious foreman for himself and his family", the booklet emphasizes.

Free copies of the booklet are being distributed through the branches of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and can also be obtained by writing to the Agricultural Department of the Bank's head office, 25 King Street West, Toronto 1.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The cleavage of the Social Credit Party group in the Commons precipitated by Real Caouette will promote the New Democratic Party's 17-member group to No. 3 position in the Commons opposition when Parliament resumes Sept. 30.

With the shift comes privileges the NDP hasn't enjoyed since before the 1962 election which established Social Credit in the No. 2 spot on the left of the membership strength.

Before now in the current Parliament, Social Credit had the first chance after the official opposition, the Progressive Conservatives, to move motions of non-confidence in the government. If both Conservatives and Social Credit moved such motions, the NDP under the rules had to await disposal of one of them by vote before it could move its own want-of-confidence indictment of the government.

Before now, Social Credit MPs were ahead of New Democrats in the call votes and in rotation of speakers among the parties in a particular debate.

And, in commending on major government policy statements at the Commons opening, Social Credit leader Robert Thompson preceded New Democratic leader T. C. Douglas.

Now that the 24 members of the Social Credit party elected last spring are divided in loyalty between Mr. Caouette and Mr. Thompson to present a front of two separate parties each numerically weaker than the NDP, the order of precedence as between NDP and Social Credit is reversed.

While the seniority has its privileges in opportunity to speak and to question, it also has its disadvantages. When a party is at the bottom of the parliamentary totem pole, it hears the positions of all other parties before it has to make known its own position.

The exact voting strength of Mr. Thompson's orthodox Social Credit group and Mr. Caouette's new Ralliement Des Creditists is not yet clear. Indications are that there will be 12 members in each, or approximately so.

NEED 12 MEMBERS

Under the pay raise bill that received royal assent before adjourning for the summer recess, the leader of any recognized group of 12 members is entitled to a $4,000 bongo on his $18,000 annual indemnity and expense allowance. If the Social Creditors are evenly split, both Mr. Thompson and Mr. Caouette can claim the extra $4,000.

Recognition as party leaders on speaking seniority and voting strength and according to parliamentary tradition with the Speaker of the Commons. One of the rules of the ancient British practice is that the Speaker votes only a blind eye to anyone he does not wish to recognize.

Minister Alan Macnaughton, who has been holidaying along with other MPs during the summer, is due to emerge and return to Ottawa before mid-September. He probably will have informal discussions with other party leaders and veteran party heads before making his decision on how the Commons' committee forces should be seated and what committees and what recognitions and what privileges should be accorded them.

New System For Taxation Is Submitted

OTTAWA (CP) — A radical suggestion to alter the basis of municipal real estate taxation by substituting a tape measure for property valuation handbooks was made Thursday by a prominent municipal consultant.

The proposal, by Frederic H. Finnis of Toronto, was dropped into a discussion of municipal property assessment problems at the annual conference of the Institute of public administration.

His idea: Use the area of land and building floor space and the number of occupants as a basis for municipal property taxation, instead of the present basis of valuation assessments.

Mr. Finni, recently named research director for an Ontario royal commission study of Metropolitan Toronto, said the present system of valuation assessment is expensive to administer, "extremely arbitrary" and difficult to apply.

It penalizes taxpayers who improved their properties and causes more litigation than I care to think about, because value is such a nebulous, uncertain thing."

On the other hand, the size of land and floor space was extremely easy to measure. The system would be simple to administer. Moreover, it would be understandable to the ordinary taxpayer and it wouldn't penalize him if he improved his property.

Alabama City

the local school board, backed by city council, rejected his appeal for a second postponement. There had been one May day. The council, in special session, called a halt to the rallies Thursday night to keep his hands off.

State troopers turned the children away while city police directed heavy traffic in the area of the four schools slated for desegregation. There were no clashes.

Each of the four schools has been directed by federal courts to admit one Negro this term.

FBI ON HAND

An agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation walked up and down the streets, taking pictures and trying to get into their broods into classrooms.

The city council had said Thursday night Alabama would open regardless of the governor.

'KEEP OUT'

The school board Thursday night ordered a second appeal from Wallace for a postponement and the council, at first a special session, wired Wallace to keep out.

In a stormy session, Mayor R. B. Searcy and councilmen lashed out at the governor.

"I have never been contacted about state affairs and I resent into Huntsville," Searcy said. "They were not requested."

The mayor said he was pleased that the school board decided to open the schools in this city of 100,000 which draws its economic sustenance from Redstone Arsenal, home of Marshall Space Flight Center and the Army Missile Command.

Councilman Louis B. Lee Sr. said Gov. Wallace:

"He is becoming the dictator of Alabama."

In Tuskegee, where state police barred school doors Monday, white segregationists said they would petition the board to keep the school closed.

NEGRO APPLIES

In other Alabama racial developments:

1. A Negro airman said he had applied for admittance Sept. 25 to the University of Alabama Centre in Montgomery. The main campus at Tuscaloosa, where Wallace made a brief doorway stand, and the Huntsville branch were desegregated last June.

2. A hearing was set for today in Birmingham on a federal court move by Negroes to reopen three white schools facing integration and shut down as Wallace's request after racial violence that left a Negro dead and 30 persons injured Wednesday night.

Hundreds of troopers and other special state officers began pulling out of Birmingham Thursday after the school board acceded to a Wallace request and temporarily shut down the three schools.

Alabama provided the only spreading school desegregation crisis in the U.S. Elsewhere there were sit-ins, boycotts and picketing at some schools, North and South, but no major violence.

Girl Did Not Understand About Tides

FALMOUTH, England (AP) Hilda Priest, 19, and her boy friend Perry Palmer, 22, parked their baby car on a nearby beach—and two hours later discovered they were surrounded by water.

"We were terribly surprised," said Hilda. "As the car was in fairly deep and wouldn't start, we got out and waded ashore. It was the tide, of course."

She said the hour was late and she and her boy friend planned to go this morning and retrieve the car—a rented one.

"But when we got back to the beach, the car wasn't in sight. It had vanished."

Hilda said she called the police.

In the meantime, the police had received another call. A skin diver told them he went into the water at high tide and discovered, to his surprise, a car standing on the bottom in 14 feet of water.

The police dragged the car out with a tractor.

"Oh dear," said Hilda "We'll have to explain all this to the car-fire firm and my parents. They're not going to like it."

Asked whether she was not aware of tides, she replied: "I don't understand them. Girls are not expected to."

Caouette's Political Party Has Been Quickly Disavowed

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Real Caouette's new political party has been quickly disavowed—and even pooh-poohed by the old-line leaders of the Social Credit movement in Canada.

The president of the Social Credit Association of Canada, Maurice Kelin, said in Ottawa Thursday the association has officially recognized the separation of Mr. Caouette and his supporters in Le Ralliement des Creditistes.

In Edmonton, Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta, described the breakaway of the Caouette forces as "in the interests of the Social Credit movement." He said Le Ralliement is "purely local" and is headed for political extinction.

In Quebec City, Dr. Guy Marcoux, independent Social Credit member for Quebec-Montmorency who split with Mr. Caouette earlier, said he doubts whether Le Ralliement can become a national party.

Dr. Marcoux also said he supports National Leader Robert Thompson and that he decided to turn to the party fold "now that the reasons for my resignation have disappeared."

NOT REPRESENTATIVE

Mr. Thompson m a s while said in Regina that a majority of Quebec bloc with stated separationist tendencies" is not representative of Social Credit Girls are not expected to.

But in Toronto James Audy, president of Social Credit Action, national publicity chief, said the Caouette party will be a success.

In Quebec City, Mr. Caouette claimed his new party will have the support of a majority of the 26 Social Credit MPs elected last April 8.

But it appeared possible he and Mr. Thompson might pool the fall session of Parliament to an equal number of supporters.

Woman Ready For Long Sit To Get Rights

Olympia, Wash. (AP) — A Seattle g r a n dmother was ready for her wheelchair on the steps of the state Capitol building today, quickly becoming the first woman to establish and tour a tourist attraction around.

Mrs. Peggie Goodman, 59, has been there for two days and two nights and says she will be there "as long as it takes" to boosts her welfare payments. Mrs. Goodman appeared Wednesday to ask for a special session of the legislature to restore a 10 per cent cut in welfare benefits made in the last three years.

Governor Rosellini sides bring her food and coffee and blankets to keep her warm at night. The lawmen keep her company by day and the watchmen breaks the monotony at night.

She says she's prepared to stay as long as it takes to do the job. "When the legislature does go back into session," she says, "I'm going to be right there, camping at their door and I don't mean perhaps."

Senior Citizens Protest Raising Of Rents

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The United Senior Citizens of Ontario called at its annual meeting Thursday for provincial government action to prevent "unscrupulous landlords" from raising rents on pension-bound oldsters.

Delegates to the two - day meeting said the rent-raising appears to result from the federal government's proposal to raise old age pensions for those over 70 by $10 to $75 monthly.

The USCO has received reports of landlords raising rents by 10 per cent, or even a flat $10, reported Mrs. W. S. Rodger of Stratford, USCO recording secretary.

Some landlords, she added, are making no pretense that the rent raising is anything other than an attempt to collect a share of their elderly tenants' receiving more money.

The organization also wants the federal government to extend old age pensioners from income taxes and the provincial government to explore some method of reducing municipal education taxes for pensioners.

J. L. Lerette of New Toronto was elected to succeed J. Lesmond Mimico as president of the organization.

Other o f f i c e rs elected included: first vice - president, Alex McNeil, Kitchener, and corresponding secretary, Robert Fulton, Oakville.

NDP Leader Opens Bridge Yet Unfinished

NEW LISKEARD, Ont. (CP) — The New Democratic Party leader, travelled miles down muddy township roads out here Thursday to open an unfinished bridge being built by the Progressive Conservative government.

In a solemn ceremony, he posed for newsmen's photographs, made a speech and cut the ribbon. There were only a few party members and a construction crew present.

"The difference between the New Democratic Party and Conservatives is that the Conservatives open highways two years after they are finished, for political reasons," Mr. MacDonald said.

"We're opening this bridge before it's finished to let the people know they can use it."

The bridge forms part of the trucky bypass on the Trans-Canada Highway, about 30 miles north of North Bay. It is already in the public eye and was blocked Thursday by a snow fence and heavy machinery.

Jack Laforge, NDP candidate in Timiskaming, said the NDP is able to claim it beat the Conservatives in opening the bridge.

Mr. MacDonald admitted he had satisfied an ambition to play the central role in a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The latest charges were in a 20,000-word attack on Khrushchev and the Soviet Party published in the official Peking People's Daily, and the theoretical organ, Red Flag. The articles seemed to bear the stamp of Mao Tsetung himself.

First portions of the article broadcast by Peking Thursday said Soviet - Chinese relations have reached "the brink of a split" and the differences in the international Communist movement have reached "a new stage of unprecedented gravity."

It said that in July, 1960, Russia "took the unwarranted step of demanding the recall of a staff member of the Chinese embassy in the Soviet Union." This was at a time when Khrushchev "provided trouble on the Sino-Soviet border," Peking said. But it did not detail the nature of the troubles.

In the same year, it added, Khrushchev expressed "undisguised support for anti - party elements in China in 1960 presumably meaning by Marshal Peng Teh-huai, sacked as defence minister a few months after opposing the commune project. Peng was said to have voiced his opposition in a letter to the Soviet leader.

government would result in radical changes in Saigon, there were persistent rumors of a possible coup by Vietnamese military leaders.

U.S. officials generally made no secret of their desire to see such changes made by those who are opposed to the present government. While Kennedy as recently as Monday did not make any direct public statement that he did go so far as to say in his weekly public statement that personnel changes as well as changes in policy might be necessary to enable the Saigon government to rebuild a base of popular support.

The situation now, however, in Washington quarters is that the two brothers are inseparable and that for the time being, at least, there is no prospect of any top - personnel changes.

This undoubtedly means that Kennedy faces an exceedingly difficult task in getting Diem's policy reforms he wants. And American officials in Saigon, including the new U.S. ambassador, Henry Cabot Lodge, may find that they are working with the Saigon government increasingly difficult and complicated. Lodge is not likely to find him easy to deal with in view of the rather obvious campaign against him.

Happy-Go-Lucy Friend

By DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I'm 17 years old and my boy friend is 20. We both used to joke about how we were both "virgins." I for one am going to be one until my wedding night, not only because of my upbringing, but because I'm scared silly of even the thought of such intimacy.

Anyway, we have a sort of understanding that if either one of us goes out with another person, we'll tell the other about it. This weekend, he told me that he had taken out another girl. Then he told me that he slept with her. It came as quite a shock to me. If it had happened before we met I could pass it off, but he says he loves me. How could he? He told me that from now on, he's going to be happy-go-lucky and devil-may-care.

I'm so upset. I want the man I marry to be someone I can respect. If he goes on this way, I don't know what I'll do.

I can't ask my mother for advice because she'd get all excited and make me break up with him. I hope that's not the only solution. — HELP!

DEAR HELP — Anybody can solve the problem of to-be-virgin or not-to-be-a-virgin by capitulating to the sex drive. One capitulation leads to the next one more likely. But it takes real self-discipline — and uncommon intelligence — to take the long view and save oneself for marriage.

My message to your boy friend is to work off those animal spirits in healthy strenuous sport; not to risk losing the respect of the girl he loves with loose living.

DEAR DORIS — I know a little two-year-old boy who has the bad habit of biting the backs of his hands. Sometimes he does it when he is playing, and sometimes when he doesn't get his own way.

Is there any way it could be prevented? — A FRIEND.

DEAR FRIEND — Cure depends on cause. Tensions, lack of affection or some frustration may be at the bottom of this habit. A specialist must track it down and prescribe how to handle it.

DEAR DORIS — My school counsellor says I would make a good occupational therapist because I am good at handwork and inventing contraptions which only take one hand to operate, or can make it possible to do certain jobs sitting down.

The idea would be that I would work with handicapped people. I'm afraid I would get awfully depressed being with people who struggle around with artificial limbs all the time or who can't see, maybe. My mother suggested I ask you about it. —HANDY ANDY.

DEAR ANDY — On the contrary. Hank Viscardi has a whole plantful of workers disabled one way or another; if wheelchairs, wearing hooks for hands, artificial legs, heart conditions, an assortment of disabling — and sometimes progressive — diseases.

When folk suggest that the work is saddening, he says: "Well, there is sadness and joy in our plants, and there is in any other plant in the world. All we have working for us are people."

A person who has triumphed over a serious handicap may achieve a joy in living never known by those who are physically more blessed. And the therapist, nurse, doctor or social worker who shares in the struggle also shares his joy.

Confidential to CLUBWOMAN — Why not have a Fall Membership Tea, and eliminate that long line-up for paying fees at your first Fall dinner meeting? That is the suggestion of Lorraine McGowan, Women's Editor of The North Bay Nugget, to her own Women's Canadian Club. The idea took hold and they've been enjoying this early get-together every September since.

FLAIR FOR ORGANIZING — Margaret Konantz, Liberal member of Parliament for Winnipeg South, obliges five-year-old Robbie Ramsey with her signature on his plaster cast during a door-to-door canvassing campaign. Mrs. Konantz, who has been in active community work since 1924, was the driving force in the organization of the war and community service in Winnipeg and was president of the Winnipeg branch of United Nations Associations in Canada. — (CP Photo)

Winnipeg South Member Has Flair for Organizing

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Konantz insists that Liberal party organizer "couldn't have asked a person who knows less about politics" when they called on her to be a candidate last year.

However, she does admit she has "a bit of flair for organizing"—a statement that provoked her secretary to interrupt with the suggestion that the member of Parliament for Winnipeg South was being unduly modest.

For Mrs. Konantz most certainly can organize.

Mrs. Konantz, who has been active in community work since 1924—two years after her marriage to Gordon Edward Konantz—was the driving force in the organization and registration of 7,000 Winnipeg women in 1939 for war and community service. She served as president of this central volunteer bureau from 1940 to 1943.

She was president of the Winnipeg branch of the United Nations Association in Canada from 1957 to 1961 when she became a national vice-president. And at the same time she preserved as campaign chairman of the World Refugee Year and as a board member for the Canadian Centenary Council.

EFFICIENT FORCE

In the 1962 federal election—her first—she failed by 325 votes in a bid to capture a seat in Parliament...

Before last April's election she turned her organizational efforts loose and swung a force of 2,000 volunteer workers behind her as she tramped 15 miles a day from house to house, getting to know the constituents.

It paid off when the 63-year-old Mrs. Konantz won the seat from Gordon Chown, a family friend, who had been elected Speaker under the Progressive Conservative administration.

The former Margaret Mc-Tavish Rogers grew up in a family with a tradition for getting things done. Her great-great-grandfather, Sir George Simpson, was the first governor of the Hudson's Bay Company and her mother, Edith Rogers, was the first woman elected to the Manitoba legislature.

In her maiden speech in Parliament May 28, Mrs. Konantz said she would like to see Commons business streamlined. After the session ended she told a reporter she loved the work but wished more direction was given new members.

One explanation of why Mrs. Konantz entered politics was because she thought the UN Association which included trips to Asia and Africa, areas of the world in which she is particularly interested.

Over the years of 1956 and 1961 I had found that our image abroad had deteriorated to such an extent that I was anxious to do anything that I could to serve my country."

She's particularly happy to be in the delegation headed by Prime Minister Pearson that is going to the United Nations Sept. 17. She has known the Pearsons for many years and attended school in Winnipeg with Mrs. Pearson.

The handsome grandmother of eight, with greying hair and blue eyes, manages her busy life with the help of secretaries in Ottawa and Winnipeg and a Winnipeg housekeeper who joined the family 39 years ago, when her two sons and daughter were young. She has been a widow since 1954.

Her favorite hobbies are golf and upland bird shooting. She has a great love of the outdoors.

Twice she has received mail for which she had to work: in 1946 the Order of the British Empire for her war service and in 1960 when she became the first woman honored with the Manitoba government's Golden Boy Award for volunteer service in the province.

Black, Muted Greys, Browns Are Popular

MONTREAL (CP)—Individuality was the keynote of a silver jubilee fashion show here Wednesday night, in which no single style, color, or fur dominated the collection.

Furs by Richer and fashions from Fraid's collection illustrated the various aspects of fall fashion in 1963. The show marked the 25th anniversaries of both houses.

Color ran rampant, although black and muted greys and browns were especially popular. Five versions of the "little over-coat" suit in jewel-tones of gold, red, blue, green and purple were shown.

The overcoat suit features a straight, three - quarter, "stretched" jacket. Most were shown with high boots and high crowned hats.

Ten black fur coats, in Russian broadtail or Alaska seal, were individual and different in silhouette. They included a caped greatcoat, a high waisted swing coat with very full skirt, a slim, straight coat, and a little boy coat in seal.

ACCESSORIES BLACK

Accessories were black, including jewelry and stockings, and this series of coats was worn with oversize broadtail berets or black seal bowlers.

The sportive theme was shown in knit over-dresses. Commentator Iona Monahan described the casual clothes as "comfortably wearable, and not too heavy."

These included waistcoats in fur, suede, and fabric, and casual furs such as a hamster doubled over long white sleeves and worn with velvet pants. A full length mink had four patch pockets and an amber fox was sashed in leather.

Dark grey leather knee boots and wool stockings were shown with many of the sportive outfits.

A series of dressy black fashions entitled The Jet Set included a long black evening dress in wool crepe, a fur trimmed black boucle tunic suit, a reversible coat in black and white, a white wool and lace cascade sheath, and hostess pajamas with a long-sleeved overblouse top and ankle - length pants trimmed with ruffles.

"At-Home" clothes were especially important. Many of the long-skirted hostess outfits had coordinating sleeveless vests, waistcoats or doublets in fur. With them went bright cotton stockings and colored low-heeled shoes.

FEATURE WHITE

White and silver were featured in a 1930s-inspired bridal shift, which glimmered in silver, and a long white chiffon dress accompanied by a vest of sable.

Black velvet was another favorite. One black velvet dinner suit had white satin collar and cuffs, over a long, slim skirt slit at both sides.

Floor - length evening wraps were shown in fur and fabric. A tweed swing coat was filled in at the neck with a sable boa. A broadtail evening coat had bands of sable from the knee to the floor and another full floor-length mink had a ruffle hemline.

QUESTION:

Different kinds of syrups used in mak shakes . . . P.C.

ANSWER:

SIMPLE CHOCOLATE SYRUP (soda fountain):

2½ lbs. sugar, ¾ lb. cocoa, 2¼ cups corn syrup (preferably dark), ½ oz. salt (1½ tea spoons), 5¼ lbs. water (2 qts. 1 cup) and ½ oz. vanilla (1¼ tablespoons).

Mix sugar and cocoa and salt. Stir in syrup. Add water gradually, stirring until well mixed. Cook, stirring, for about 15 minutes. Remove from heat. Not rich, but a good soda fountain syrup. It may be made richer by the substitution of milk for some of the water.

RASPBERRY SYRUP:

2 quarts raspberries (or blackberries or elderberries), 3 lbs. sugar, ¾ cup water.

Pick over and wash berries and mash them. Sprinkle with the sugar and let stand overnight. In the morning add the water, bring slowly to the boiling point and cook 20 minutes. Stir often. Drain through strainer lined with double thickness of cheesecloth. Bring to boiling-point. Pour into sterile jars and seal. Excellent as a foundation for beverages and as a sauce for hot, cold or frozen desserts.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I dislike hearing young people address their elders by their first names. I'm in my 40s, but I still address contemporaries by their last names until I know them well, and certainly would never dream of calling an older person anything but Mr. and Mrs., unless they asked me to do otherwise. Nowadays, though, even young couples in their twenties think nothing of inviting people old enough to be their parents by their given names. It seems to show a lack of respect. Is this the custom today, or am I just being overly critical? — Mrs. H. M., Dover, Del.

Answer: While they mean no disrespect, many young people do call everyone they meet by their first names right off, even as you say, men and women who are senior to them and old enough to be their parents. This does get to mean, because they do it, that first-naming older persons is correct. They don't have to be up-to-the-minute with it, but I would say that when young couples their own age and generally aren't, but it's still considered better manners to address an older person as Mr. or Mrs., unless, of course, the older person suggests they do otherwise. However, the suggestion should come from the older person and should not be taken for granted by the younger person.

Ann Landers

Deceased Aunt Left Money For Niece in Gratitude

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN — Last year we moved to this exclusive Northern California suburb, were accepted and invited to join The Club. This has been helpful to my husband's business.

One couple seems especially fond of us. Perhaps I'm imagining things but the woman (who is beautiful) always manoeuvres around so she can sit next to my husband in the theatre, the car, and at parties. He doesn't seem to mind one bit.

In the meantime, she tells me repeatedly that her husband (who is a great pincher) thinks I'm devastating. Last night she asked me if I thought he was attractive. I said, "Of Course," and tried to change the subject. She then suggested we four fly to Mexico for a few days and half jokingly added, "Ray and I have been married 11 years and we think it's time for a change."

I've heard of couples switching mates but I never believed it actually happened. My husband says I'm cracked — that she meant no such thing. He thinks the trip would be fun. What should I do — GAMES IN BURLINGAME.

DEAR GAMES—If this couple has a switchman's picnic in mind you'll get the pitch eventually, right there in good old Burlingame. So I don't think it matters much whether you go to Mexico.

Your husband may be one of those obtuse types who needs a building to fall on his head, so wait quietly until the timber flies — and, then let him handle it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My wife's aunt, a retired school teacher, made her home with us for 10 years. We loved her and never considered her a burden. She helped with the housework and the children until she became too ill two years ago. She paid no room or board (we wouldn't hear of it) but she did pay her own medical bills.

Last week Aunt Liz passed away. Her will was probated a few days ago. We never knew she had anything. It was a surprise to find she had a tidy sum in municipal bonds and Liberty Bonds from World War I which she inherited from her father. She left everything to us.

This morning the telephone began to ring. My wife's sister and brother feel that since Aunt Liz was off her rocker toward the end it is up to us to share the money with them even though the will does not read that way. We are not squisitive people and there is no great fortune involved here, but we want to do the right thing. What is it? — SUDDENLY SOLVENT.

DEAR SUDDENLY — If Aunt Liz had wanted them to share in the inheritance she would have provided for them. I seen no reason for you to feel guilty about enjoying the money — all of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The letter from the staff who complained about the boss bringing his three kids to the office when his wife went out of town to visit her family made me mad.

Instead of grumbling and faulting the kids why didn't the girls in the office use a little imagination and keep those youngsters busy? They could have played a game called "Do Me A Favor." The kids would have loved sorting papers, cutting out things, looking for certain kinds of pictures in magazines. Even a box of crayons and something to color would have kept them busy for hours.

Too many adults are not imaginative enough to occupy children's inquisitive minds and keep their hands busy. Then they blame the kids for being restless and destructive and call them "savages."

If the crew in that office isn't bright enough to figure out how to keep three lively youngsters occupied I feel sorry for their boss. — RELIEVED.

DEAR RELIEVED — Thanks for an excellent letter and an ideal solution. (Where were you when I needed you?)

• DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES •

MELROSE W.I.

A most interesting meeting of Melrose W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. C. Weese with a splendid attendance which included the girls of the 4-H Club who were guests. The 1st vice-president, Mrs. G. Stratton welcomed all and thanked the hostess for opening her home and presided over a lengthy business session.

Mrs. R. McLaren, secretary read a friendly letter received from the young brother of Sim Yong Soon in Korea (the child adopted by the Institute) and Mrs. G. McLaren read one from the provincial president, Mrs. L. Trivers which brought up-to-date Institute work.

At this stage Miss C. Pascoe and Miss J. McLaren, members of the Garden Club who call themselves "Melrose Weary Weeders" gave a demonstration on "Choosing and Preparing Vegetables for Exhibit." This was carried out in a most clever manner and brought to the attention some 21 varieties of vegetables grown in their gardens, many of which were on display along with their notebooks. Their leader, Mrs. T. Howard and Mrs. Don McLaren deserve much credit for instructing the girls in this worthy project and they were presented with tangible gifts as a slight token of appreciation.

Mrs. J. McLaren, leader for historical research took charge of the program and opened with community singing with Mrs. C. Bates, Sr., as pianist. Mrs. E. Pascoe gave a paper, "Live-wire Ladies Who Won't Be Stepped On," which traced the growth of the W.I. in detail from its founding by Adelaid Hoodless to its present day status on international level. Nancy English delighted all with a piano solo after which Mrs. K. McMechan gave a selection written by E. Chapman.

The topic for the evening was "Schools in the Community." Mrs. S. Geneja presented the history of S.S. 15 on 4th Tyendinaga where pupils often sat three in a seat when attendance was 67 over 50 years ago. The second school was built in 1890 and the teachers' salary was the grand sum of $300 per year.

Mrs. G. Blatherwick dealt with S.S. 9 on 2nd line which was a small brick school house built in 1862 so this is the 100th year of this school which was completely modernized in 1914. She named the inspectors and the different teachers of the school, three of which are members of Melrose W.I. at the present time.

Mrs. J. McLaren presented the history of S.S. 4 on Shannonville sideroad. Mr. A. L. Lazier donated the land in 1872 where the present school site is located. It had been a high-board fence at the back in the early days. The registers from 1904 are still intact and the first inspector was Mr. Johnson of Belleville.

Mrs. R. Clarke gave a humorous poem, "The Rip-Roaring Twenties" and Mrs. McLaren conducted a contest on "Recognition" which was won by Mrs. E. Badgley.

At the close a delicious lunch was served by the committee in charge and a social time enjoyed by all.

Council Rejects Welfare Plan Of Alderman

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — A suggestion by Alderman Berniece Graham to make welfare recipients hand over their car licence plates and cut off their telephone services has been rejected by council's welfare committee.

Instead, the committee decided Thursday that exceptional cases be investigated by the whole committee and dealt with on their merits. Mrs. Graham, who is chairman of the committee, and Malcolm Bassett, welfare administrator, has been primarily responsible for deciding welfare distribution.

Ald. Arthur Burrows said that asking welfare recipients to turn in their licence plates and telephones would "create a hardship."

FOREIGN STUDENTS UP

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass reported Wednesday an increase in enrolment of foreign students in Soviet universities and technical schools. It said enrolments numbered 29,000, an increase of 6,000 over last year. The news agency reported the students include some from the United States but didn't say how many.

Went to Israel to Study Chicago Man Drafted Into Army

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Samuel Cohen, 27 - year - old Chicago Hebrew school principal, went to Israel this summer to study educational techniques and may have to stay another 2½ years as a soldier.

Cohen's parents, Rabbi and Mrs. Neubaium Cohen, received a cablegram and air mail letter from their son Wednesday saying he was being forcibly detained to be inducted into the Israeli Army.

The elder Cohen said the cablegram read: "The army is taking me. Notify a lawyer and the state department. Samuel."

Cohen said his son was born in Israel but became an American citizen after being brought to the United States 12 years ago.

A state department spokesman in Miami said Cohen is still considered an Israeli national in Israel and there is nothing the United States can do about his being drafted.

Cohen said his son was to begin his new job as principal of the B'nai Sholom School in Chicago Wednesday.

The elder Cohen voiced doubt that his son could stand the rugged life of a soldier. He said Samuel was rejected by the U.S. Army because of poor sight and a bad back.

"I just don't think he'll make it," said Rabbi Cohen.

MAY USE CHINESE MONEY

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Communist China has offered $263,000 to build a "China-Nepal friendship hall" in this capital. Official sources said Wednesday the proposed name of the hall is unacceptable. But the Nepal government, which is short of money, plans to build a city hall and the Chinese money might be used for it. A simple plaque would acknowledge the Chinese contribution, they said.

Air Conditioning In All Schools Is Suggested

TORONTO (CP) — Merits of air conditioning in schools were argued Thursday at the department of education's conference on school design.

G. E. Graenek, a Toronto engineer, made a strong plea to the 600 delegates for air conditioning.

"Father goes to his air-conditioned office, mother shops in her airconditioned supermarket, so why should we send Johnny to study in an un-air-conditioned school?" he asked.

William Prentice, engineer with the Scarborough board of education, said mankind was creating too many artificial controls for his bodily environment.

"If they ever fail, what will we do?"

Guelph architect T. A. Sage said air conditioning is not needed because schools are closed during the hottest months.

Mr. Graenek said air conditioning is not a frill but an aid to reducing respiratory conditions. He said it takes dust from the air which carries bacteria.

The delegates, including teachers, builders, architects and municipal officials, were urged by Alexander Leman, a Toronto architect, to "avoid climbing on the bandwagon of windowless schools."

"Pupils need sunlight. Windows are a necessity. This talk about windowless schools is shameful . . . It's a new cliche."

But another Toronto architect, Irving Bolgon, said windowless classrooms prevented distractions from outside traffic and sunlight glare.

Work for Relief Approved by Toronto Ald.

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman George Ben said Thursday persons on city welfare rolls deserve more than a welfare cheque—they deserve the dignity of working.

Putting before Metro's welfare committee a resolution asking that people on welfare work for their money, he said: "Many unemployed Italians in my ward are reluctant to go on welfare. They always worked for their daily bread and they consider work-free welfare a badge of dishonor."

Meanwhile, the Toronto and District Labor Council Thursday voted to ask national and provincial labor bodies to oppose the "work for welfare" plan proposed by the Ontario Municipal Association.

The decision to approach the Canadian Labor Congress and Ontario Federation of Labor was reached after Moses McKay, secretary of the council's welfare services committee, described the proposition as backdoor chiselling.

French Govt. Again Faced With Inflation

By HAROLD KING

PARIS (Reuters)—There is a cloud on the "sunny" horizon of the thriving French economy.

After nearly five years of currency stability, the government is again faced with the danger of inflation.

Finance Minister Valery Giscard Destaing is preparing measures to control rising prices.

But some economists question the government's ability to control prices effectively and hence the always-present danger of inflation.

They cite the cancellation of a decision last April to control textile prices by taxation, a decision replaced by an elaborate agreement between the minister of finance and the textile industry to "keep profit - margins down."

It is doubted whether this will enable retailers to offer woollen goods in the fall at the same prices prevailing a year ago.

FOOD PRICES RISE

The big question remains the price of food.

In the two years since June, 1961, retail food prices have risen by more than 15 per cent. The usual accusation against the middleman does not seem to be well-founded in this case.

Leaving out fruit and vegetables, retail food prices have risen in the last two years by 12.8 per cent, wholesale prices by 15.1 per cent and farm prices by 23 per cent.

The cause of higher food prices seems to be that farmers are getting more than before, a trend supported by the government.

Modern agricultural methods have caused a drop in the number of people employed on the land, but have increased the living standards of those who remain.

DEMAND HIGHER WAGES

Higher food prices inevitably lead to demands for higher wages, an inflationary factor to which must be added the acute shortage of labor, with employers competing for manpower and thus driving wages up again.

About 300,000 new jobs have been created here since the beginning of the year.

In the last six months, France has taken in 10,000 foreign workers, plus another 30,000 Algerians and 10,000 Africans.

Yet the over-all picture remains one of "over - employment." The construction industry is looking for another 29,000 foreign workers and the steel industry is in a similar position.

While the situation reflects the buoyancy of the national economy, it is causing concern to the authorities because of the inherent possibility of inflation.

Student Witches Lose Appeal Against Murder Conviction

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP)—Three women who helped a pack of witches slaughter a woman two years ago at Utete, Central Tanganyika, have had their appeals against conviction and sentence of death for murder dismissed.

The Court of Appeal of Eastern Africa dismissed the appeals of Hadija Saidi, Zainabu Athumani and Zabidu Abdo, who were called "student witches."

They are to be hanged for the murder of a woman who offered herself as a human sacrifice to the witches.

The dead woman, Fatima Nyanguandal, had been asked by the pack to supply a close relative as sacrifice in a ceremony for making medicine for witchcraft purposes.

Instead she offered herself. Her husband was given medicine to dope her before she was hidden in some bushes.

In a gruesome midnight ceremony, a 50-strong pack of witches including the three accused searched the bushes and found and killed her.

At the trial, evidence was given that the woman was beheaded and her body was cut into small pieces.

The pieces of flesh were dried and powdered and the powder was distributed among the witches for making special witchcraft brews.

Teen-Age Canada

Teen-Age Contribution To U.S. Is Fine Story

By JACK HUTTON

The next time you hear someone bemoaning the present generation of teen-agers, give him a telephone number to call — the local Salvation Army headquarters.

What he hears is guaranteed to produce an apology within two minutes.

The teen-age contribution to the Canadian Salvation Army movement is one of the least-publicized but easily one of the most heartwarming stories in Canada today.

Fifteen hundred young people between the ages of 13 and 20 proved it last weekend during a three-day meeting in Toronto, discussing everything from emotional problems to modern emphasis on sex.

The Canadian Corps Cadet attracted young people from every part of Canada, not to mention the observers from Norway, Mexico, Jamaica and Bermuda.

All of the young people involved are in the Salvation Army's six-year Bible study course back in their home towns. But that, I learned, is only part of their contributions to their communities.

MONTHLY PROJECT

Almost every local group has a monthly project to help some part of its community. It might be a concert. It might be carrying baskets of food. But it is always done quietly, rarely attracting public attention.

I asked David McKee, an 18-year-old delegate from Winnipeg, Man., what had attracted him to the Bible study classes.

"Well, when you get to a certain age, you want to find answers to questions," he said.

"The Bible, I've found, is the best place to go for this. I've been in the local Bible study group since the age of 13, and I've found that what you learn there carries over into your outside life."

David, he added later, had another reason for being interested in the Salvation Army movement: his father is Lt.-Col. A. G. McKee, in charge of all Salvation Army activities in Manitoba.

Do friends ever question spending two hours one night a week in Salvation Army activities, I asked. Does it seem "square" or unusual to them?

"Most people ask the same questions that you are," replied David. "But after awhile they find them coming back to find out more. They realize that you are sincere and this impresses them more than anything else."

FUN, TOO!

Belonging to a Salvation Army group, David emphasized, isn't all work and study. He has played euphonium for some time — and played, in fact, a solo at an evening concert of the national meeting.

Purpose of the Congress, its organizers told me, was to "intensify" the attitudes that the delegates develop in their study sessions. Fifteen hundred young people found out that others besides themselves were wondering about the same problems.

And, even more important, all found that the same rules of conduct and standards could meet any problem that came up. When you think of it, that's a good thing for anyone to learn — isn't it?

SONG RACKETS

John Fowler, 19, of Halifax, N. S., read our recent column on getting songs published and was moved to write the following letter.

"I enjoyed your piece on the shady types who take advantage of would-be song writers. But, oh how I wish I'd read something like this a year ago.

"I've been playing piano since I was 10 or 11, and since then I've knocked out a few tunes that my family and I have liked. They may not be much, but at least they're mine.

"One year ago — it must have been a particularly weak moment — I saw an advertisement that asked for contributions from beginning song-writers. What I didn't realise was that I'd have to pay.

"I sent in my song and then received a letter saying it would be published — providing I sent a cheque or money order for $50. There were other charges if I wanted it "merchandised" to radio stations.

"I didn't send the money, of course, but I've received a barrage of letters ever since. And so far I haven't seen my music returned. More power to you for warning other young people who might make the same mistake."

"Everyone's switching to Canadian products"

WISE shoppers know that every dollar spent on Canadian goods keeps Canadians working. This is one big reason why everyone is switching to Canadian goods.

A second reason is that many imported products have a Canadian equal in price, design and quality. Canada now produces almost everything.

If each of us in Ontario diverted an additional $2 a week from imported to domestic goods, the result could total $600,000,000 in new Canadian manufacturing and that should create 60,000 new jobs.

To keep our economy strong, to make better job opportunities, and to create jobs for young people, we all must look at the label before we buy. If the price, design and quality are right, buy the product that is marked Made in Canada.

Buy a hippo if you must, but before you do consider the Canadian alternatives. It's in your own best interest. You help yourself, your neighbour and the whole province by switching to the product made here.

Municipal Affairs Minister Says Liberal Hoodwinked By Researchers on Bracci

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister J. W. Spooner said Thursday Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer has been hoodwinked by his researchers on the affairs of Naido Bracci, chairman of the White River improvement district.

Speaking at a press conferences, Mr. Spooner said there was no foundation whatsoever to Mr. Wintermeyer's allegations against Mr. Bracci.

Last week in Sudbury, the Liberal leader suggested Mr. Bracci had made large financial gains by buying land along the route of the Trans-Canada Highway.

The Liberal leader also questioned dealings of Mr. Bracci, a leading White River Progressive Conservative, in renting several buildings to government departments and agencies.

NOT IN RECORDS

Mr. Spooner said Mr. Bracci's business dealings with the Canadian Pacific Railway are not in the records of the municipal affairs department and he saw no reason why they should be.

Mr. Wintermeyer had said Mr. Bracci bought 1,500 feet of frontage on the Trans-Canada route from the CPR in 1959 before the route was registered with the department of highways.

"The land in which Mr. Wintermeyer suggests there was some nefarious dealings had been farmed by the Braccis for more than 30 years," said Mr. Spooner.

He added that Mr. Bracci would have no more information regarding the location of the new highway than any other citizen.

"Mr. Wintermeyer is wrong when he suggests that the general public would have no knowledge of where the highway is going until December of 1959," the minister said.

RELAXED IN 1956

"In fact, the line of the highway was blazed about 1950 and was being used in 1956 as a gravel highway without pavement."

Also, contrary to Mr. Wintermeyer's charges, Mr. Spooner said the White River board of trustee meetings are open to the public.

And he said Mr. Bracci told him he does not own a stone quarry or gravel pit. Mr. Wintermeyer had charged grading and paving contracts have been awarded to a firm buying stone from a Bracci quarry.

Concerning the letting of contracts without tender as charged by Mr. Wintermeyer, Mr. Spooner said one contract was let in this manner in 1961 because a contractor gave a low price and because his equipment was in the area.

Mr. Spooner was asked if as a result of his investigation he considered Mr. Bracci innocent of the charges.

"I would make no remarks about Mr. Bracci," he replied "He knows his own position."

HITS EASTVIEW CHARGE

Mr. Spooner also strongly criticized Mr. Wintermeyer's charge that someone had tampered with a report on the affairs of Eastview to protect a Conservative member of the legislature, Gordon Lavergne, a former mayor of Eastview.

He said only one report was made to the deputy minister of municipal affairs on the Eastview situation.

"This report was neither amended nor altered, nor were there deletions made from it as suggested by Mr. Wintermeyer."

Mr. Spooner said he neither knew nor cared how Mr. Wintermeyer got his hands on a draft of the final report. "As far as I am concerned there was only one report."

Safety Experts Want Hemlines Kept High

WASHINGTON (AP)—Traffic safety experts pleaded Thursday with Parisian fashion designers: "Hold those hemlines high!"

Short skirts save lives, the American Automobile Association said in a press release. As evidence, it noted that 70 per cent of pedestrians hit by autos are men.

Most pedestrian accidents occur at night and, said the AAA, the reason a lady can skip across a street in relative safety is this:

"The headlights of modern cars aim downward and readily pick up the stockings or bare legs of women in the beam. Naturally, the more shocking or less exposed, the easier it is for motorists to spot and thus prevent an accident."

The AAA said hemlines have been rising. It said: "The AAA's parting word to the fashion houses of Dior, Balenciaga and Fath is — keep up the good work."

John de Lorenzi, publicity director of the AAA, admitted under close questioning that the AAA hadn't any scientific evidence to show that short skirts save lives — it hasn't done any field research on this hypothesis.

Asked about an alternative theory—that short skirts are a menace because ogling male motorists take their attention off the wheel — de Lorenzi said:

"That is an entirely different issue. That is driver's error. Sometimes no amount of driver education will control the emotions."

Christopher Grayham, 21, of Belleville received an engraved wrist watch from Canadian National for services rendered when he reported a washout on the railways north-bound lines in East Scarborough. J. H. Spicer, CN Toronto Area Manager (right) made the presentation to Grayham.

SEE BIG CLEARANCE

LONDON (AP)—The medical magazine Lancet says a new drug called BW 33-T-57 may prove to be the biggest advance in the fight against smallpox since Edward Jenner developed vaccination in 1796. The drug was evolved by research workers headed by Dr. D. J. Bauer in Britain's Wellcome Foundation and by Dr. P. W. Sadler, a British biochemist.

Belleville Boy Rewarded by CN Official

Christopher Grayham of 66 East Moira St. Belleville was presented with an engraved wrist watch Sept. 4 by Canadian National officials at Toronto.

The presentation was made by CN Toronto Area manager, J. H. Spicer. The railway showed its gratitude as a result of services rendered by the 21-year-old Carleton University student who prevented what could have become a serious derailment. He had warned police that a twenty-foot washout occurred during heavy rains Aug. 3, on the Bala subdivision of the CN near the Finnegdon Park Development in East Scarborough.

Grayham, summer student employee of Toronto Industrial Leasing Co. Ltd. was working on a nearby golf course. He was en route to his room located in the clubhouse when he noticed the washout.

A culvert, plugged with debris overflowed, flooded the surrounding area and washed away part of the embankment carrying CN tracks.

Quick action in reporting the incident resulted in the rerouting of traffic over other CN lines.

Body of Wealthy Banker Found In Canal

BUFFALO (AP) — A man's torso, tentatively identified as that of a wealthy banker and business executive, was recovered Thursday from a canal.

Edward B Germain, 68, of Buffalo, disappeared four years ago after attending a meeting. He was believed headed for his summer home at Bay Beach, Ont.

The body—without the head, arms and legs—was found by three boys in reed-choked water of the Black Rock Channel, a shipping link between Buffalo and Tonawanda.

"I don't think there's any way to determine whether foul play was involved because the body was so badly decomposed," said Detective Sgt. Russell W. Cobb.

Police said they believed he might have fallen asleep or become ill and driven his car into the water. The channel is 21 feet deep.

Germain had been president of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company from 1922 to 1954.

At the time of his disappearance—June 11, 1959—he was a director and member of the executive committee of the Marine Trust Company of Western New York.

Slow But Steady Progess Being Made in Integration

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The latest bombing, riots and bloodshed in Birmingham tend to obscure the fact that despite malevolent operations of white supremists, some slow but steady progress has been made this month in opening more southern white schools to Negro children.

In essence, the integration process is still of a token nature.

Race barriers were lowered for the first time in four Charleston, S.C., schools. The number of Negro students in desegregated Memphis, Tenn., schools increased to 258 from 46. And all-white classes opened their doors to Negroes in Baton Rouge, La., Savannah and Athens, Ga., and Tallahassee and Jacksonville, Fla.

Alabama and Mississippi remain the hard core of resistance to integration and in these states blame for lack of progress can be placed to a large extent on political leaders.

Even newspapers which have taken a neutral stand on the integration issue question the behavior of Alabama Governor George Wallace who says after the course of events in Birmingham: "This is only the first inning and we have not come to bat."

QUESTION SUCCESS

The Washington Star says that if Wallace intended to incite violence by his erratic behavior, he has succeeded "perhaps beyond his expectations."

If history in the racial battle serves as a lesson, it is questionable whether Birmingham police will discover who bombed the home of a Negro lawyer for the second time in three weeks, and whose bullet killed the 26-year-old Negro, a victim in Wednesday's bombing and shootings.

Just a week ago the biggest mass march in U.S. history brought 200,000 persons in prayer and song in the Washington shrine of Abraham Lincoln. There, a Negro leader set hearts aglow by telling of a dream that one day Negro and white children of Alabama would walk hand in hand as brothers and sisters.

DID IT PAY?

Now some Negroes may wonder whether the march did any good. Would the white southerner learn anything except through bloody revolution?

The U.S. government's proposals to help Negroes fight discrimination by tougher laws are bogged down in Congress. The civil rights commission, which helped smash barriers against Negro voting rights, is due to expire shortly unless Congress moves with emergency speed to provide an extension of the commission's life.

Yet Negro leaders are convinced history is on their side. They believe the walls of discrimination must fall. In Alabama, politicians, backed by white police, undoubtedly will cause new hardship, new bloodshed.

So far, the white supremists have succeeded in closing Birmingham schools rather than allow integration. But the U.S. justice department is keeping careful watch. It is unlikely the schools would remain closed for long before the administration starts thinking of enforcing integration with the use of federal troops.

ONE NEGRO ONLY

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP). The administrative vice-president of the University of Alabama says only one Negro will be admitted to the university's main campus this fall. J. Jefferson Bennett said in an interview Thursday he had heard rumors that several would be admitted this fall, but they were false. He said that Vivian Malone, who was enroled early in June, will be the only one.

U.S. Sets Goal of Landing Astronauts on Moon by '70 3 Other Projects Planned

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States has set a goal of landing astronauts on the moon before 1970. After this momentous achievement, in what will be the course of the U.S. manned space program?

National Aeronautics and Space Administration planners are studying the engineering, funding and other aspects of possible programs to follow the Apollo lunar landing project. Their main interests are in space stations orbiting the earth, manned flights to Mars and a permanent moon exploration base.

Eventually, all three programs may be attempted. But the costs are high and the space agency must decide which deserves priority. Because of the years required between the drawing board and the launching pad, decisions are expected within a few months.

Most officials believe the space station is the most logical next step because it would contribute greatly to Mars and lunar base missions.

YIELD OF PROSPECTS

Michael Yarymovich, assistant director of NASA's manned space station office, says the stations orbiting the earth for periods up to five years would help determine how long men and equipment can operate in space weightlessness. He says:

"The main purpose of a space station would be biomedical research. Before we spend any length of time flying to the planets or establishing moon colonies, we must learn man's capabilities of performing useful missions in space over extended periods."

From their sky-high research laboratory, the station team could conduct experiments in astronomy, biology, communications, weather, physics, chemistry and radiation. Astronauts picked for planetary flights would train aboard the station.

The defence department is interested in manned space stations, and to avoid duplication, both military and civilian needs probably will be considered when the design is firm. Reconnaissance would be a major military goal.

Yarymovich said these three space station concepts are under study:

1. Minimum, which could be achieved in the shortest possible time by modifying the Gemini-Apollo spacecraft for keeping two or three astronauts aloft for 100 days.

2. Small, a four- to six-man station, probably a large version of Apollo, which would remain in orbit 200 miles high for a year. Crew members would be replaced on a staggered basis, with at least one man remaining with the station a full year. The two-man Project Gemini spacecraft would be the shuttle vehicle between station and earth.

3. Large, a mammoth vehicle for 12 to 24 men who also would be rotated back to earth at various times. The station would stay up from one to five years and would be supplied by an Apollo spacecraft enlarged to seat six to 12 men. Many station shapes have been studied, including doughnut, pie and beer can and spoked wheel.

Kelso Roberts Says Attack Was Personal

BURKS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Kelso Roberts took Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer to task Thursday night for what Mr. Roberts termed a personal attack on Mr. Justice Wilfred Kelso, who conducted the one-man Ontario royal commission on crime last year.

Mr. Roberts, now Lands and Forests minister but who was attorney - general when the crime commission was called, was referring to comments made by the Liberal chief in Orillia Wednesday night.

Speaking to a Progressive Conservative nominating meeting, Mr. Roberts said:

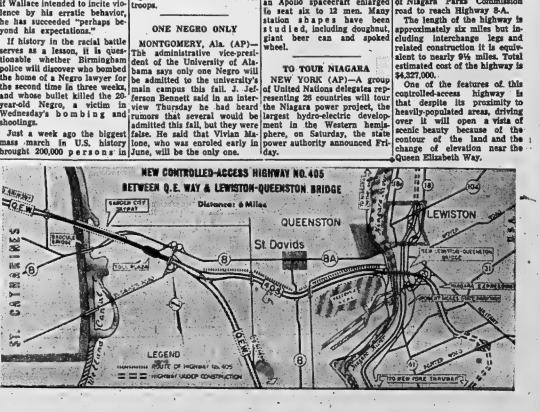
"It is difficult for me as a lawyer to understand how a lawyer of some standing at the bar of Ontario, as is the leader of the Opposition, can launch out at this time a tirade of abuse which seems, if he is reported correctly, to question the capacity, integrity and fairness of the very distinguished justice of appeal who constituted the commission."

Mr. Wintermeyer Wednesday night called the commission's report a mass of incredulity and said a Liberal government would not accept it.

Mr. Roberts said the government "bent over backwards to assure a thorough and complete and impartial enquiry." He defended the work of the commissioner and his results.

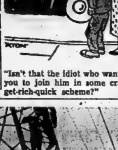
Calling Mr. Wintermeyer's statements on crime "reprehensible," Mr. Roberts said that "if he keeps on at the rate he has been handing out slander and abuse, he may well run out of much in this election before election day."

Highway 405 To Be Opened By Minister



Highway 405 . . . a new, controlled-access freeway providing a high-speed connection between the new Lewiston-Queenston bridge and the Queen Elizabeth Way near the Garden City Skyway . . . will be officially opened to traffic by Highways Minister Charles M. McNaughton, on Wednesday, September 11, at 2:00 p.m., it is announced.

Participating with the Minister in the opening ceremonies will be Lincoln County Warden F. D. McKenzie and the Reeve of Niagara Township, H. A. Dawson.



While construction of Highway 405 has been under way, traffic over the $16,000,000 Lewiston-Queenston bridge has been routed over a short section of Niagara Parks Commission road to reach Highway 8-A.

The length of the highway is approximately six miles but including interchange legs and related construction it is equivalent to nearly 9½ miles. Total estimated cost of the highway is $4,227,000.

One of the features of this controlled-access highway is that despite its proximity to heavily-populated areas, driving over it will open a vista of scenic beauty because of the contour of the land and the change of elevation near the Queen Elizabeth Way.

ETNA NOISY

CATANIA (Reuters) — Explosions of burning lava were heard Thursday in the northeast crater of 10,758-foot Mount Etna, Europe's biggest active volcano. The rumblings coincided with an outburst of heavy storms throughout Italy and a minor earthquake shock in Rome early Wednesday.

All of us are familiar with the case of that person who feels, somehow, important if he is able to tear a good man down from a pedestal. There is something about a superior personality that irritates a man who is really small.

There have been those short souls who have seemed to enjoy the dubious sport of debunking the great. It is true, of course, that even those who have achieved greatness are still subject to limitations and to all of the miseries. But to exalt ones self at the expense of those who have achieved splendid things is one of the worst sins of the shrunken spirit.

JOSEPH AN IRRITANT

The story of Joseph, the favorite son of old Jacob, is beset with many of the most distressable things. The young man, as a youth, was without question a thoroughly spoiled brat and a bore.

But he was not entirely to blame. His father encouraged him in his worst faults, so much so that he never could see that he was the victim of the jealousy of his brothers. But as the later events in his life show, he suffered not from the beginning. His difficulty lay in the fact that he did not know, and no one had suffered, how to use his powers without parading them.

HE HAD A DREAM

In a very remarkable play entitled 'St. Claudia,' Pontious Pilate attempts to explain the great confidence in the man from Nazareth, by saying, "He is only a dreamer, and this world is very gentle in dealing with dreams."

This is the reason why those who have attempted to lead the race to the heights have so frequently suffered martyrdom.

Perhaps it was a mistaken thing to watch young Joseph put on airs. For his older brothers there was a way to curtail the usurpers of his dreams, in which he always seemed to be the hero and the conqueror, was not easy. It is not alone true that prophets are "without honor in their own country," but it is also true that the hero's family is apt to be the last to discover in him the hero role.

Read your historical Time and again the dreamers have been cast into prison, suffered martyrdom and paid dearly for their dreams. Socrates drank of his cup of hemlock, Galileo lived out his days under house arrest, and Louis Pasteur was made the laughing stock All for their dreams. And Jesus, of course, was crucified, deemed to a cross, and the only reason we remember Pilate, apparently, is because he had to do with nailing Him there.

In our own smallness we are headed upon the "do-gooders," as if they were somehow stupid, incompetent or immoral, when what a tragic world ours would be if it had not been for the dreams of men, Herbert Hoovers, Kagawas, and Schweitzers.

NEED OF FELLOWSHIP

It is a common thing to hear it said that the American people are in need of enlightened leadership. The statement is true, of course. But it is also true that no people on earth has been blessed as the American nation has been, in the unselfish and generous leaders who have appeared all along the fronts.

At the same time it must be said that great leaders by the hundreds are eating their hearts out because they are unable to arouse the interest and the concern, of the people who would profit most by leadership.

From all across the land there comes the wail from the school teachers that the gifted children in their classes are unwilling to do make the effort to be superior. From every state of the union there comes the plea from the statehouse that the people shall arouse themselves to face the problems with which the government is compelled to deal. From every courtroom there comes the word that the pews are all too empty.

It is very probable that Joseph was thrown into a pit by brothers who were never able to think in terms of thrones and empires.

Itch From Mosquito Bite Akin to Allergy Reaction Rather Than Poison Injection

OTTAWA (CP)—The itch from a mosquito bite is probably akin to an allergy reaction rather than—as popularly held for 200 years—a straight injection of poison, research at Queen's University indicates.

But this doesn't change the fact that the mosquito bite in two stages can cause discomfort for several days.

The Queen's work, which has begun the preliminary work of chemically analysing mosquito saliva, was described Tuesday to the Canadian Entomology Centenary Conference by a student, J. R. Allen.

He said it began with two questions: What causes a mosquito bite to itch and what can be done about it?

Several thousand mosquitoes were encouraged to deposit their saliva in distilled water by penetrating a membrane. The subsequent product was removed and stored in deep-freeze and later raised the usual mosquito welts on human subjects, even when boiled 20 minutes.

FIRST IT ITCHES

The effects covered the typical initial reaction, lasting about an hour, of some itching and a welt. This was followed by a second stage after perhaps 12 hours featuring a hard, red bump which could cause considerable itchiness. This might last several days.

Rabbits and guinea pigs also were tested.

Itch From Mosquito Bite Akin to Allergy Reaction Rather Than Poison Injection

OTTAWA (CP)—The itch from a mosquito bite may well be akin to an allergy reaction rather than—as popularly held for 300 years—a straight injection of poison, research at Queen's University indicates.

But this doesn't change the fact that the mosquito bite in two stages can cause discomfort for several days.

The Queen's work, which has begun the preliminary work of chemically analysing mosquito saliva, was described Tuesday to the Canadian Entomology Centenary Conference by a student, J. R. Allen.

He said it began with two questions: What causes a mosquito bite to itch and what can be done about it?

Several thousand mosquitoes were encouraged to deposit their saliva in distilled water by penetrating a membrane. The subsequent product was reduced and stored in deep-freeze and later raised the usual mosquito welt on human subjects, even when boiled 20 minutes.

FIRST IT ITCHES

The effects covered the typical initial irritation, lasting about an hour, of some itching and a bump. This was followed by the second stage after perhaps 12 hours featuring a hard, red bump which could cause considerable itchiness. This might last several days.

Rabbits and guinea pigs also were tested.

Mr. Allen said it has been long suggested that mosquitos inject a toxic substance into its victim, causing the itch. But recently it has been suggested that the reaction is akin to that in allergies.

Allergy victims include persons sensitive to elements ranging from plant pollens to certain animal hair, dust and foods.

The sensitivity springs from the formation within the body, after initial contact with the substances—of antibodies which react with the substances to create aching noses, rashes and other allergy symptoms. Injection can mitigate the symptoms of allergy in many cases.

Mosquito bites may be added to that list if the Queen's research program bears out present indications.

EVOLVE DIFFERENTLY

The conference also was told that insects are capable of completely different kinds of evolution than other animals, including man.

Insects show tolerance for the production of offspring despite any substantial shifts in the makeup of the genes—the cells governing heredity, said Hans Slich of Queen's University.

But man and other animals frequently short before producing such offspring, he declared.

Other points at the second day of the weeklong meeting marking 100 years of Canadian study of insect life:

1. Canadian firms have shown little or no commercial interest in insect poisons based on bacteria rather than the chemical compounds which have aroused international concern about over use.

USE COMPUTERS?

2. There are about 10,000,000 living organisms and use of electronic computers seems inevitable to handle their catalogue. Insects are among the most complex characters which differentiate them.

T. A. Angus of the federal forestry research station at Sault Ste. Marie reviewed the experience and prospects of attacking harmful insects through viruses, fungi and bacteria.

The answer seemed to be the electronic computer but the difficulty remained of devising a device for feeding the correct information into such a machine to obtain the correct species identification.

Perhaps, however, it would be possible to work out the basis for some automatic identification.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Accent in the new Central Professional Hockey League will be put on youth, speed and discipline, the first president Jack Adams told me in a recent interview.

"Jolly Jawn" who spent 45 years in the NHL, 35 of them with the Detroit Red Wings is one of the better known men of the NHL and the young-at-heart could not have selected a better man to guide the destinies of the new loop in its freshman year.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams who were intimate friends of the late Larry and Mrs. Eggert of Detroit and Rosemore were here over the holiday weekend the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cullen, daughter and son-in-law of the Eggerts.

"I told them when they invited me to take over the presidency of the new league, that I would run it my way and that way alone," said Jack. "It will be operated under NHL rules, system and discipline and I'm going to have the final say, like it or not."

The teams with arena capacity are Omaha (8,500); St. Louis (12,000; Indianapolis (9,000); St. Paul (7,000); Minneapolis (5,500) and Tulsa (10,000. The league, Adams says, has three applications for franchise for next year operations, from Jacksonville, Miss.; Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas. These will likely form the nucleus of a western division.

The Central League, an American circuit riding from the side of the defunct Canadian Professional League will be no pasture field for worn-out pros, Adams says.

"The clubs will carry rosters of fifteen players, three at 23 years of age and 12 under 23. In my opinion it is with a players' league that I believe the first essential of a hockey player is to be able to skate. Early training will be devoted to this phase of hockey."

Officials (a referee and two linesmen) will be appointed by the National Hockey League but the young circuit will endeavor to train its own officials later on, says Adams. "These will consist mainly of ex-professional players."

"As I mentioned" said Jack "the league will be operated strictly under NHL rules and regulations, both on and off the ice. There will be no favoritism shown and I intend to make every club police its own organization and follow the directions of my office."

Adams intends to visit every club and give them same straight facts in dressing rooms before actual play gets under way. "I'm going to tell them that this is a new league and a new venture and for the youngster it holds a great future. They're going to play the game like men for hockey is a man's game and should be played as such."

The former NHL manager is a firm believer in the development of young hockey talent. He said that seven cities won by the Red Wings were acquired because of the youth of the teams. "Howe, Kelly, Pavelich, Lindsay, Sterchuk, Skov, Wilson, Delvecchio among others were in pro hockey at junior age," he said.

Another reason for the accent on youth in the new Central League, he said, is because "the NHL has come to the point where it must develop talent."

"In my opinion the National League is in a transition period. Age, injuries, among other things have caught up with the clubs. Any athletic organization after several years as an entity starts to disintegrate, and must start to rebuild. Inter-league draft has helped but what is needed most is young talent." Adams said.

The new Central Professional League, I believe, is in excellent hands. In its first proxy it has a man with a vast hockey experience, who knows the game and player, and has the all-round ability and requisites necessary for the proper administration of a hockey league.

Win Series

Lightfoots Defeat City Hotel

Lightfoot Construction gained a berth in the Commercial softball league finals last night when they took their fourth straight victory over City Hotel by a 9-4 score.

Lightfoots will meet the winner of the Barriage-Corbin series in the titular set. Barriages lead their semi-final three games to one and the next game is scheduled for tonight, at Prince Charles School.

The teams fought through three scoreless and hitless innings last night but the winners moved ahead 5-4 after five frames. One in the sixth and three in the seventh sewed up the game and series.

A good relief chore by Harry Powers, coming in over from George Young to start the fifth frame, helped Lightfoots get the nod. Powers gave up only one hit over the remainder, fanning three and walking two. Young had given up three hits in the earlier frames, whiffing four and passing two. Lightfoots committed four errors.

Dave Feeney went the distance in losing effort. He gave up 10 hits, struck out two and walked two.

Rusty Garvin paced the Lightfoot hitters with three singles, backed by Jack "Dasher" Whitehead and Rich Young, each with a triple and single. Don Dolan, Cam McKenna and Jim Bosenberg also hit safely.

Doug Hull belted a double for City Hotel, other base knocks going to Harry Wardhaugh, Rick Donovan and Ed Donovan.

Saskys Meet Eskimos

Stamps, Lions In Grudge

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A grudge battle—always good for attendance—appears to be shaping up between Calgary Stampeders and British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference.

It could result in the Canadian Football League attendance record falling when Stampeders meet Lions in Vancouver's Empire Stadium in one of the two WFC games of Saturday night.

In the other game, Saskatchewan is at Edmonton.

A Lions victory would give them a first-place tie with Stampeders. Both teams have two one game but Lions have played one less.

Saskatchewan Roughriders are in the third place tie with Winnipeg with six points, two less than Vancouver. Edmonton has onlywon one game in five.

Lions earlier this season defeated an injury-ridden Calgary club 22-19. Now it is an injury-ridden Lions club meeting the comparatively healthy Stamps.

Mike Martin, defensive end and Mike Cacic, defensive tackle, will not play because of back and cartilage injuries respectively. Corner linebacker Paul Seale, with a sore back, is a doubtful starter.

Coach Dave Skreen will decide Saturday whether to use speedy halfback Tom Lancaster who has been on the disabled list for 30 days. Skreen has a choice of putting Lancheid back on the list for another 15 days or using him and dropping another import.

Coach Bobby Dobbs of Calgary says Tony Pajaczkowski and Don Lenzi, out with leg injuries when Lions defeated Stamps, will be back. This will make it possible the formidable blocking guard combination of Pajaczkowski and Bill Crawford, back after being out since Labor Day with a twisted knee.

Lions are putting 3,500 seats on the cinder track of Empire Stadium, making possible a record crowd of almost 35,000.

Coach Bobby Shaw of Saskatchewan said he anticipates a "real tough Battle" with Edmonton. After watching films of recent games, he said Edmonton has improved vastly since they lost 19-16 in their last meeting with Roughriders.

Nats Lose Heartbreaker To Yankees

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The 100,000th major league baseball game in history will be played in Washington tonight.

It is not true that Senators have lost most of them. It just seems that way to Gil Hodges.

Actually, Senators have lost only 8,158. But, for the rookie manager of the 10th place team, the last one must be among the most painful.

It was a 3-2, 12-inning loss to New York's rampaging Yankees Thursday in which Hodges' pitchers held Yanks to three hits for 11 innings, his infield blicked in the tying run and he lost, temporarily at east, the services of his top hitter, Chuck Hinton.

Hinton was struck on the left side of the head, just below the protective helmet, by a Ralph Terry pitch. He remained unconscious, but was carried from the field on a stretcher and taken to hospital overnight. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Terry went all the way, winning his 16th against 13 losses on a 12th inning double by Claude Boyer and a run-producing single by Hector Lopez.

Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City Athletics 4-1 and took over second place, 13 games back of Yanks, while Los Angeles Angels beat Minnesota Twins 8-5 in a night game, Detroit Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox 8-2 in the only other American League game.

CHECKED FILES

The 100,000th game gimmick was discovered by an exhaustive check of files by officials at the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., and was announced just a couple of days ago by commissioner Ford Frick.

Senators are going to mark the milestone with appropriate pre-game ceremonies, chiefly featuring a comedian and some of his buddies. They'll have to be funny to get a chuckle from the usually pleasant Hodges, who has had his troubles.

He took over the 10th place team 12 games back of Yankees. They're still in 10th, now 41½ games back. The Thursday loss must have been one of the most frustrating.

Steve Ridzik and Ed Roebuck had held the champions to just three hits through nine innings and Ron Kline held them hitless for two more before Boyer doubled in the 12th. Lopez then delivered a fly to Jim Piersall, who misjudged into the lower right-field stands. It would have gone as a ground rule double, but Lopez stopped at first.

SIXTH WINNER

It was the sixth time this season Lopez had driven in the winning run in the last inning.

Dick Phillips hit a two-run homer for Senators in the fifth. Yanks matched that with two in the sixth. Tony Kubek homered and Bobby Richardson singled, stole second and scored on an error.

White Sox rookie Gary Peters won his 12th game since the All-Star break and his 17th of the season in beating Athletics. He also drove in two runs with a triple and a sacrifice fly.

Twins dropped to third place, 13½ games behind, when Jim Fregosi singled in the tie-breaking run for Angels in the ninth.

Jimmie Hall, Harmon Killebrew and Bernie Allen homered for Twins while Billy Moran, Felix Torres and Hank Fuller hit homers for Angels.

Detroit relief pitcher Fred Gladding finally choked off a ninth-inning Boston rally that produced two runs after Red Sox had been held to two pitchings through the first eight innings by winner Bob Anderson.

Cards Stretch String To Eight

Dodgers Keep Pace

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Weary Willie Mays will be back tonight.

And that just might spell trouble for Los Angeles Dodgers, tenaciously holding their grip on the National League lead despite a serious surge by streaking St. Louis Cardinals.

Dodgers, who have been running out front for two months and three days, maintained their five-game edge over Cardinals as Pete Richert and Larry Sherry collaborated on a five-hit, 4-0 shutout of Chicago Cubs Thursday night.

Cardinals, meanwhile, kept the pressure on by extending their longest winning streak of the season to eight games with a 9-0 walloping of New York Mets behind the six-hit pitching of Curt Simmons and the five- for- five batting performance of Curt Flood.

Both Dodgers and Cardinals have 27 games remaining, including a vital three-game series at St. Louis later this month. But for the moment, Cardinals are hoping Mays is fit and ready to go against Dodgers tonight.

MAYS RESTED

San Francisco Giants' $100,000-a-year centre fielder collapsed from exhaustion on Labor Day in the first game of a doubleheader with Cubs. He's been resting since then for tonight's start of a three-game series with Los Angeles at San Francisco.

Cardinals, meanwhile, are scheduled to play a twi-night doubleheader with Pittsburgh's Pirates, losers of five in a row.

While Dodgers and Cardinals were winning Thursday, Houston Colts defeated the third-place Giants 5-3 in 10 innings with Aspromonte's three-run homer the big blow. Milwaukee Braves' rookie Bob Sadowski shut out Pirates 5-0 on eight hits in the only other game.

Richert, a 23-year-old lefthander, went 7 1-3 innings before he ran into a jam. Sherry took over, held Cubs hitless the rest of the way and protected Richert's third victory against one loss. Richert actually drove in the only run Dodgers needed with a single in the second off Bob Buhl, 9-13.

Jim Gilliam hit an inside-the-park homer for Dodgers and Moose Skowron reached base four times on a single in the second, a double that drove in a run in the third, an error in the fifth and a wild pitch third inning strike eighth that led to the final run.

HITS 1966 LEVEL

Flood collected a triple and four singles in support of Simmons, who brought his record to 12-7 by blanking Mets. The 34-year-old left hander hasn't won that many since 1956. He struck out seven, did not allow a walk and permitted only one base runner to reach third. Ed-Bertyanin Tim McCarver also supplied some batting support, triple and two singles. Rookie Grover Powell was the loser.

Aspromonte doubled and scored the tying run for Colts in the 10th before tagging Jim Larsen's first pitch for the clinching homer in a four-run 10th. Larsen had just replaced Bob Bolin, 8-5, after a single by Howie Goss got across the tie-breaker. Willie McCovey hit his 36th homer in the bottom of the 10th off Don Nottebart, 9-8, retired the next three Giants to end it. Tom Haller also homered for Giants.

Sadowski struck out 12 Pirates as he brought his record to 4-3. Rookie Mathews gave Braves with four runs batted in on a three-run homer and a double.

Firemen Win Over Utilities

The Fire Department moved a step closer to the Interdepartmental softball league finals last night by defeating the Utilities 7-2.

The win was the first in a best-of-5 series. The next two games are scheduled for the CNRA Park Tuesday and Thursday nights, at 6.15.

Ray Reid pitched the victory, allowing seven hits. Ralph Sine was the losing moundsman, tagged for 11 safeties.

Lyle Vanraamsdonk hit a home run and single, Ray Reid a pair of triples and Stan Papke also had a triple. Sine was credited with the plate.

Jim Venn topped the Utilities sloggers with three hits.

The Bullet Bows To Greaves

MONTREAL (CP) — Glib Ronald (Bullet) Jones, a kid who predicted he'd be world middleweight champion by 1963, ran into a setback Thursday night, bowing by a technical knockout to Willie Greaves, a seasoned campaigner from Edmonton who fights out of Windsor, Ont.

Before stepping into the ring Jones, 22, in an unsuccessful imitation of Cassius Clay, said Greaves would fall in eight.

Greaves didn't seem worried about it as he opened the bout, sporting in fast. He had Jones on the deck before the end of the first round for a nine count.

It was all downhill after the sixth round for the Bullet, 156 pounds, fighting his eighth professional bout against 69 pro fights by Greaves.

In the ninth round, Greaves, former Canadian middleweight champion, sent Jones staggering to his corner at the bell. Referee Paul Ballargeon, seeing Jones staggering around the ring, called the bout.

Just before, Jones, trying to hang on, fell out of the ring on top of Greaves. They landed in a heap of press photographers. No one was hurt and the two fighters clambered back in.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Noble Hunt's New Fashion 2nd returned to winning form Thursday, overhauling the $25,000 Canadian Oaks winner Mendelet, owned by Hugh Grant of Bradford, Pa., for victory in the feature at Woodbine. Norm Fletcher's Stormy Morn was third.

At the wire New Fashion 2nd, a five-year-old, was a length ahead of Mendelet with Stormy Morn more than nine lengths behind.

New Fashion 2nd returned $7.80 and when coupled in single ells wagering with Mendelet, paid $22.30. The numbers were 4 and 5.

TORONTO (CP)—Sandy Stephens and Tom Cloutier, two players who cost a total of $700, may provide enough publicity to rescue the floundering Toronto Argonauts.

Stephens, drafted Tuesday from Montreal Alouettes for $350, has everybody wondering what he will be as a quarterback or a halfback.

Cloutier, drafted from the Als last winter, has everyone guessing whether he is a Canadian or an American.

Between them, the two have helped Toronto fans forget the plight of the hapless Argos, just coming off a disastrous four-game losing streak on the road after winning their home opener.

Tonight they play host to Winnipeg Blue Bombers, last year's Canadian Football League and Grey Cup champions who are also having their problems.

Saturday afternoon in Ottawa, the Rough Riders, tied with the Argos for the eastern conference cellar, will dress three new players for their game with the front - running Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

WILL TAKE OVER

Defensive end John Kemerson, a six-three 250-pounder cut by the National Football League's Chicago Bears, will take over for Oscar Thorsland, out for the season with a broken leg suffered in a loss to Montreal on Labor Day.

The other two additions are linebacker Jack Nichols, picked up from the Alouettes, and halfback Don Derrick, a Toronto castoff.

Coach Frank Clair said the Rider showing against Montreal in the worst ever displayed by Ottawa since he took over coaching them in 1958.

"We had problems all over the field and we'll have to improve 100 per cent to be anywhere near ready for Hamilton," he said.

The Ticats will respond with one newcomer. He is defensive halfback Linde Infante, cut from Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

Winnipeg has won only three of its last seven.

General manager Jim Ausley said Thursday the team would make an official protest to the CFL on the condition of the field at Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

The CNE ended Monday, and Ausley says the field is in terrible condition.

But coach Nobby Wirkowski said Thursday that Stephens would dress against Winnipeg. He has, however, expressed satisfaction with his new player' ability and attitude.

AS A CANADIAN

Cloutier, classified Thursday by CFL commissioner Syd Halter as technically ineligible but still classed as a non-import, will dress for the Argos—as a Canadian.

Crackers Whip Leafs, Indians Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Atlanta Crackers, in a season-end slump that dumped them out of the International League's southern division lead, severed notice in the first inning Thursday night they won't be push-overs in the playoffs.

Crackers scored twice in the first inning, went on a 17-hit barrage and dumped Toronto Maple Leafs 9-1 in the first game of their best-of-seven semi-final.

Indianapolis Indians, who won the southern division title in a sudden-death playoff against Atlanta, took a 2-0 lead in the other-semi-final with a 3-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

Johnny Kucks was the winning Atlanta pitcher. He gave up five hits, Toronto run on a homer by Lou Jackson in the second.

Indianapolis, tied 1-1 with Syracuse going into the ninth inning, loaded the bases on a double by Chiefs' Jim Hall, only to have a double play cut down a run at the plate.

Don Rubert then singled in the winner.

Crackers and Leafs meet again tonight at Atlanta, while the other series continues at Indianapolis.

United States Tennis

Brazilian Scores 2nd Upset

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — It's one down and one to go for Brazil's astounding "giant-killer twins," intent on upsetting the balance of power in the United States tennis championships.

The cudgel is passed today to the youngster of the two, 18-year-old Thomas Koch, quarterfinal opponent of the top-seeded favorite, Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex.

"I hope I can do as well as Ronnie did," said Koch, a talented lefthander who holds victories over some of the world's best players. "I do good and bad. If I'm good, I have a very fine chance."

Koch's teammate, 22-year-old Ronald Barnes, handed the tournament its second major surprise in 24 hours by beating Davis Cup star Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., seeded No. 3, Thursday 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The upset compared with that of the day before when Frank Froehling III of Coral Gables, Fla., eliminated second-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia—thus assuring the end of that country's eight-year monopoly of the men's title.

BEATS WILSON

Froehling, bidding for a spot on the U.S. Davis Cup team, followed up his Emerson triumph with a come-from-behind quarter-final victory Thursday over Bobby Wilson of Britain, 6-8, 6-2, 6-3, 8-7.

The bean - pole Floridian looked like a beaten man until he harnessed his power in the last three sets. Trailing 1-3 in the final set, he leveled the match and finally won with a breakthrough in the 15th game.

Froehling and Barnes are matched in one of Saturday's men's semi-finals with the other to be determined today.

After McKinley plays Koch, fourth - seeded Rafael Osuna takes the court against Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., who beat him earlier this year in the national collegiate championships.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Dean Yates won the featured $700 1 5-16-mile trot at Mohawk Raceway Thursday night and was timed in 2.32.4.

Dean Yates paid $6.20, $3.60 and $2.30 while second-place Madam Sampson paid $2.50 and $2.40. Show Horse Macduff's Lassie returned $2.50.

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP)—Harry's Laura, driven by Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., scored a three-quarter length victory in the $54,702 Bronx Futurity filly pace at Yonkers Raceway Thursday night as Ricci Reenie lost for the first time in 13 starts.

Ricci Reenie, which did not race as a two-year-old, had won all 13 starts this year and appeared well on the way to No. 13 after taking command at the three-quarter pole. But Ricci stopped in the stretch as Hodgins swept by with Harry's Laura, followed by longshot Lady Heel.

With Harry's Laura stepping the mile in 2.02 4-5, Ricci Reenie dropped to third place, 2½ lengths behind Lady Heel.

The winner, who had been made a supplementary entry at the cost of $5,000, won $30,086 for Gertrude and Berf Schaffer of Kings Point, N.Y., and paid $7.10, $4.10 and $2.50. She increased her career bankroll to $37,472 on 13 victories in 23 starts over two years.

Bill Allen scored two goals for the Sailors, with Ken Crawford and Florrie Tomchishen sharing the other two.

Third game of the best-of-seven series is scheduled for Saturday in St. Catharines.

WILL PROTEST

TORONTO (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers, due to play Toronto Argonauts here Friday night, plan to protest the condition of the field at CNE Stadium, where the game is to be played. Jim Ansley, general manager of the Winnipeg club, said Thursday: "It is terrible. Putting two pro football teams on this field is like training a thoroughbred race horse for eight months, then taking it to the beach to race."

Six NFL Exhibition Games

Final Prelude To 1963 Season

NEW YORK (AP)—Shooting for a million, the National Football League presents a full program of exhibition games this weekend in the final prelude to the 44th season.

Twenty-seven exhibitions over the past four weeks have drawn more than 814,000 paying fans and the million mark should be surpassed handily in the closing six attractions, which include a doubleheader and the Hall of Fame game.

Minnesota's young Vikings and St. Louis Cardinals open the NFL weekend tonight at St. Louis.

On Saturday afternoon, New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles play at Princeton, and four more games are slated for Saturday night—Dallas Cowboys against Detroit Lions and the unbeaten Baltimore Colts against Chicago Bears in the doubleheader at New Orleans; Green Bay Packers the defending NFL champions, against Washington Redskins at Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and San Francisco 49ers against the Rams at Los Angeles.

Cleveland Browns and Pittsburgh Steelers meet in the Hall of Fame game Sunday at Canton, Ohio.

After a triumph on the field and a defeat at the box office, the transplanted reigning champions of the American Football League open defence of their title Saturday night as that pro circuit kicks off its fourth season.

The defending champions are Kansas City Chiefs, who as Dallas Texans won the AFL crown last year.

Despite the victory, the Texans later surrendered Dallas to the Cowboys of the rival NFL and shifted their base to Kansas City. The Chiefs' first 1963 match will be against Denver Broncos.

Oakland Raiders and the Oilers play at Houston, also Saturday night. On Sunday the rebuilt and renamed New York Jets—the Titans last year—meet the Patriots at Boston, and Buffalo Bills encounter the Chargers at San Diego.

America's Cup Golf

Yanks Hold Narrow Lead

By HOWARD CLAASSEN

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The United States' Army of experienced amateur golfers squeaked to a narrow 11½-point margin over Canada in the first half of the biennial America's Cup competition Thursday behind the steady shotmaking of Charlie Coe and Labron Harris Jr.

The Americans, unbeaten in six previous cup encounters with hemisphere neighbors, had a two-point edge after the morning sixsomes and appeared headed for a virtual rout in the early afternoon during the singles matches.

But the United States stayed ahead at the end of the day only because Coe, twice U.S. amateur champion, brought an abrupt halt to the unbeaten record of Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont.

Coe beat Cowan 4 and 2 for the Canadians' first defeat in 13 Americas' Cup singles encounters. A little later, Cowan also was defeated by Juan Estrada of Mexico 1 up.

At the end of the day's nine matches, the United States had 12½ points, Canada 11 and Mexico 3½.

The three-way duels are being played over the hilly 6,926 yards of the Wakonda Club course where par is 36-36—72. The 53rd annual U.S. amateur championships will be held over the same layout next week.

DETROIT (AP) — Sam Greene, sports editor of the Detroit News and one of the best known sports chroniclers in the U.S., died Thursday. He was 68. Greene, noted as a baseball and boxing writer, had been sports editor of the news since 1926. He had served on the news since 1924.

Cloutier Classed Non-Import

WINNIPEG (CP) — Commissioner Sydney Halter of the Canadian Football League said Thursday that a technicality ineligible player has been classed as a non-import.

Halter said in interview that the league made the decision on Tom Cloutier, a Toronto Argonaut and, at the annual meeting last February.

Cloutier, he said, has Canadian citizenship to which he was entitled because his father was born in Canada. Cloutier was born in the United States.

The revised league regulations do not allow a dual citizen to be classified as a non-import.

The rules say that the Canadian classification is extended only to native-born Canadians and those who take out citizenship papers after five years of residence.

Cloutier, 22, was signed by Montreal Alouettes last year, but "through an error in this office was listed as a non-import," Halter said.

Alouette president Ted Workman "disclosed the error to me at the end of last year. Workman himself had just learned of it for the first time."

Girl Who Posed in Nude Says "It's Not for Art"

By JAMES RACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stella Stevens says too many actresses are taking off their clothes — and blaming it on art.

"It's insecurity that makes actresses pose in the nude—not art. There's more art when something is left to the imagination," argues the beautiful blonde.

What makes Stella's opinion more newsworthy than most is that she once posed for a seven-page nude layout in Playboy.

"My insecurity was money—lack of it. I was flat busted—financially."

What started Stella off on the nude tirade was a reference to the recent Jayne Mansfield layout in the same magazine.

"Jayne said she did it for art. What a laugh. She's insecure about her acting ability—and she panicked.

"Every actress who announced a nude pose is in the midst of an acting slump. I hope I never have to do it again. I was embarrassed."

CONTRACT DROPPED

Stella said she posed for the layout not long after 20th Century-Fox dropped her contract.

"I had a baby son to support. I didn't know a soul in town I could count on. I couldn't get back to my home town of Memphis because I was involved in a custody case with my ex-husband and a judge had ordered that I be present in court for contempt of court.

"I was insecure—and hungry. A photographer and his wife offered me the chance to make $3,000 for the layout. I took them up on it.

"I hope I'm never in the same circumstances again."

The layout apparently didn't hurt Stella's career although miniature in Memphis preached sermons about her and newspapers wrote editorials against her.

She is one of the town's fastest rising stars. She scored with Glenn Ford in The Courtship of Eddie's Father, then with Jerry Lewis in The Nutty Professor and is now co-starring with Ford in Company of Cowards, a Civil War comedy.

"I play a Union spy who gets mixed up with a bunch of cowardly followers. And I'm playing it for laughs—not art."

Richard Beymer Credits Big Studio For Success

"With a little bit of luck, and a big studio contract, you can become a movie star."

So states Richard Beymer, who at 24 attributes his success to these two factors. The 20th Century-Fox contractee is unusual in that many young stars, as well as established ones, break from the studio that has nurtured them in order to free lance.

"In the case of ambitious young actors," says Beymer, "Most years for more freedom in choosing their roles and greater financial rewards. The older actors wish more money, a percentage of the picture and the right to change what they feel is wrong with a film.

Young actors usually hurt themselves by such a move. The established stars do more damage to the companies that they work for.

Beymer, who has chalked a formidable list to top screen credits in just five years — including Darryl F. Zanuck's "The Longest Day", is currently co-starring with Jimmy Woodward in "The Stripper". The 20th Century-Fox release, produced by the late Jerry Wald, also stars Claire Trevor and Carol Lynley, and is playing tonight and Saturday at the Belle Theatre, with a selected program of Features to follow, or, "Wings of the Future", and Champion Anglers.

Sport Snapshots

By EDDIE COLLISTER

MONTREAL (CP) — Angus Birse, head coach of the Carlarville Boating Club, says he finds his coaching job difficult because he no longer can shout at the boys.

"I was in a car accident last Christmas and cut my jugular vein when I went through the windshield," he explained.

"When I arrived at the hospital my heart had stopped beating. The doctors opened me up and massaged my heart. It started beating, but stopped again when they had me on the operating table. They massaged my heart again and this time it didn't stop."

Birse shows no effects of he ordeal today except for a slight loss of voice.

"Sometimes down at the club I forget myself and try to yell, but all I get from that is a sore throat."

CANOE CHAMPIONS

The club in Montreal's north end, winners of the Canadian canoe championship for the last seven years, has about 85 active paddlers.

Birse, a husky, crew-cut 30-year-old, has been with the club for 15 years, and head coach for the last two years. This year Carlarville won the championships held at Ottawa with 1101½ points compared with 58 for the second - place Mississauga Club of Port Credit, Ont.

Birse said it's not really hard to find good paddlers, but finding money to keep the club operating is a problem.

BOATS COSTLY

"It seems that every year they design a new boat better than the one made the previous year," he said.

"Some of these are worth between $300 and $300, and if you want to keep up with the other clubs you have to buy the new model."

Several of the paddlers ease the club's financial problem by purchasing their own craft. But when it comes to the bigger war canoes the club has to dip into its own funds.

"We keep things going by running raffles and dances and sometimes the ladies' auxiliary will help us out," said Birse.

"You'd think that the government, with all its talk about physical fitness, would help the clubs out."

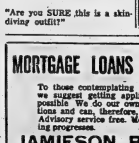
DROP SCOACH

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of British Columbia has dropped Laurie West as coach its Thunderbird rowing crew. West was informed of the decision Wednesday—his 28th birthday. UBC athletic director Bus Phillips said the dismissal was in fairness to West, who had devoted all his time to coaching in the last three years for a modest honorarium.

DISMISS SUIT

BOSTON (AP) A U.S. federal court judge dismissed a $1,000,000 libel suit Wednesday brought against two Boston men by the old New York Titans team of the American Football League. Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr., said dismissal of the suit was based on the failure of the Titans to answer interrogatories put by the defendants, Theodore Barron, a Boston businessman, and Harold Brown, suburban Newton lawyer.



TERRY HITS BATTER

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Hinton, left fielder of Washington Senators, was hit on the head by a pitch thrown by Ralph Terry of New York Yankees Thursday. Although the ball hit below the area protected by his plastic helmet he did not lose consciousness, and was taken to hospital where he was described as "resting comfortably."

Your family's silent partner

Lying there on the doorstep, it can't speak. Or Move. Or Hear. But open it in your hands and it becomes a living, powerful partner in daily living. In the decisions you make, the opinions you form.

It takes you to the highest chambers of government. It takes you to the bloodiest streets of warring countries. It takes you to the heart of history in the making. In short, it tells you what in the world is happening and why.

But people depend on it for needs beyond the need to know. It's where families turn when something's to be bought or sold. It's where hints on health, cooking, religion, amusements, dressmaking, etiquette, marriage are found.

It's where charities first turn for help, and a place where a letter to the editor is published. It's where campaigns are fought and lost dogs are found. It's where criminals are exposed and newlyweds applauded. Where birth and death meet on the same page.

It's your newspaper, silent partner of the family, yet one that says so much, does so much for so many people — every day without fail.

RUNS CUSTOMS AND EXCISE — David Sim, deputy minister of national revenue, has held the position longer than anyone now in the federal civil service. Born in Glasgow in 1899, Mr. Sim runs the customs and excise sections of the revenue department, with 8,000 employees and 400 offices. — (CP Photo)

David Sim, Deputy Minister Of National Revenue, Was Founder Wartime Prices Bd.

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — In 1917 a young Canadian soldier, riddled with shrapnel wounds, was lying apparently dead on the First World War battlefield of Passchendaele.

A straying group of German infantrymen found him and used him as a passport to enter Allied lines and surrender. Field hospital surgeons operated, and saved 17-year-old David Sim of Kitchener, Ont., to fight another war.

"That changed my whole outlook on life," today's David Sim, deputy minister of national revenue, recalls. "From then on I felt I was living on borrowed time, and that I had to do the best I could to deserve it."

Mr. Sim is due to retire after his 65th birthday next year, after holding the status of a deputy minister longer than anyone now in the federal civil service.

HE WAS SURPRISED

How he reached his present rank is almost as strange a story as that of his brush with death. A Liberal government brought him to Ottawa and a Conservative government not only retained him, but later vaulted him into a permanent post with deputy minister rank.

"It was surprising, all right, but I was as surprised as anybody," he says.

Today he runs the customs and excise sections of the revenue department, with 8,000 employees and 400 offices—a $21,000-a-year job.

In 1939, a week before Canada entered the Second World War, he and two other senior officials were urgently summoned to the office of Labor Minister Norman Rogers. At that time Mr. Sim was expecting to go on active duty with the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, a militia unit in which he held the rank of captain.

Mr. Rogers, who later died in an airplane crash, assigned the three to devise an unprecedented federal agency that would block any wartime profiteering and prevent shortages of food and industrial materials.

SCOTS IN CHARGE

They came up with the wartime prices board, one of the most powerful and effective pieces of government apparatus ever created in Canada.

With Mr. Sim on the project were Hector McKinnon, chairman of the tariff board, and Fred McGregor, director of combines investigation. Both have since retired, and live in Ottawa.

"We were all Scotsmen, and with the Scots' reputation for thrift I suppose we were naturals for the job," Mr. Sim said with a grin, his accent still showing his ancestry.

They recruited talented business leaders for the board's many fields of interest. For the tough job of price control they found another Scot named Donald Gordon. He became the board's chairman, and later became president of the CNR.

Mr. Sim kept up his revenue duties and was a board director and administrator of alcoholic beverages and tobacco. "It was a strange place for a Baptist like me but we hadn't anyone else."

In 1946 Mr. Sim was made a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George (CMG) for his wartime services.

STARTED IN BANK

Born in Glazgow in 1899, he came to Canada with his parents in 1911. He enlisted with the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion in 1915, went overseas the following year, and returned in 1919.

Mr. Sim's first job was with a bank at Kitchener, Ont., but after his marriage in 1924 the bank salary of that era wasn't enough to live on. He switched to the Waterloo Trust and Savings Company as the firm's assistant secretary.

In 1927 the late William Ernest Bowman, minister in the Mackenzie King government and later a senator, hired Mr. Sim to Ottawa as his private secretary. When the Liberal government was defeated by the Conservatives in the 1930 general election the young political appointee prepared to head home. But E. B. Ryckman, the new revenue minister, urged him to stay on and he did.

Four years later he was appointed commissioner of excise with deputy minister ranking, and in 1943 became deputy minister for customs and excise, his present title.

Mr. Sim is an ardent curler, trout angler and occasional golfer. When the pressures of his job allow, his favorite relaxation is to escape to the Five Lakes Fishing Club in the nearby Gatineau Hills.

His first wife died some years ago and he married again in 1960. A son, David Alexander, is a chartered accountant at Kingston, Ont., and a daughter, Doris, works as a secretary in Washington.

Party Leaders on the Hustings

Robarts Accepts Principle of Pension Scheme

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Premier Roberts, speaking to the Liberal opposition of sabotaging the Canada Pension Plan, said Thursday night he accepts the principle of a federal old age pension scheme and announced he will interrupt his province-wide election campaign to explain his stand Monday to the federal-provincial pensions conference at Ottawa.

Speaking to the convention nominating meeting for London North in the Sept. 25 election, Mr. Robarts said his government is prepared to be "flexible" in adjusting its recently-passed legislation to meet a national plan.

The federal scheme—differing widely from Ontario's — was placed before parliament in a resolution at the last session and is still to be dealt with by the Commons. Ontario is the only Canadian government with legislation on the books.

At Monday's Ottawa conference, called to consider a national plan, Provincial Treasurer James Allan was to have represented Ontario. Mr. Robarts said Thursday night he attaches sufficient importance to the subject to break into his campaign to attend the opening meeting as so outlines the Ontario stand.

At the same time, he lashed out at Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer for an "unprincipled" attempt to "distort" his position on the question and said he will not be blackmailed into acceptance of any federal plan.

CITES RESERVATIONS

He cited several reservations about a federal scheme, though he said he has no doubt means can be found to work out the problem.

Ontario's pension plan, differing fundamentally from the federal plan, was adopted at the last session of the legislature to take effect Jan. 1, 1965. A major distinction is that it is a private plan, with companies such as insurance firms handling the funds for investment, while the federal scheme would operate solely through the state. The plans are far apart in other particulars.

The fate of any federal scheme is believed to hinge on acceptance by Ontario and Quebec, more particularly by the larger province. Quebec Premier Lesage is proposing a plan of his own—details undisclosed—and has suggested it would be an obstacle to federal legislation in this field that cuts into provincial jurisdiction.

Mr. Robarts dealt with the pension issue before 500 persons at a joint nomination meeting for the London North and South ridings. John White, member of the last legislature for the South constituency, was nominated.

Premier Robarts, in revealing his latest move, switched from his general easy-going approach of the young election campaign to scorch Mr. Wintermeyer with the harshest language he has used to date.

"No political leader in the history of this province ever distorted the truth and blatanted lies such as did John Wintermeyer," the premier said referring to an Aug. 26 speech in which the opposition leader suggested he was a stooge for private insurance companies and was destroying the projected Canada Plan.

"It was not done out of ignorance," Mr. Roberts said. "It was an unprincipled, deliberate and calculated attempt on the part of Mr. Wintermeyer and his sponsors to slander me and my government and confuse the electors of this province."

He challenged Mr. Wintermeyer to produce an apologize or produce evidence of sabotage. Otherwise, the opposition leader has been exposed as making political capital out of pensions.

Looking over Mr. Wintermeyer's record on pensions, Mr. Robarts referred to him as "reversible John" and noted that he had twice opposed the Ontario plan when it passed the legislature and, in 1960, had sponsored a resolution calling for a provincial plan of portable pensions of all kinds.

The premier also observed that during the same discussion "Mr. Wintermeyer" had said a provincial plan was preferable to a national one and added he would prefer to see such a plan handled by private companies.

In the light of the opposition leader's previous stand on pensions, Mr. Robarts said, it was an understatement to call him "the most confused, befuddled and bewildered man who ever walked across the ... ic stage of this or any other Canadian province."

Timber Limits Under Attack By MacDonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

COBALT, Ont. (CP)—Provincial NDP leader Donald MacDonald sharpened his election campaign axe here Thursday night and threw a hefty swipe at the government policy on timber limits in Northern Ontario which he said were "administered like feudal empires."

"Why should the government tolerate these empires?" Mr. MacDonald asked about 80 persons at an election rally for the Timiskaming riding of New Democratic Party candidate, Jack LaForge.

"They should be made available to secondary industry so jobs can be provided now."

He said Mr. E. B. Eddy Company of Hull, Que., holder of the timber limits, was doing nothing to harvest the vast potential of the northern forests and at the same time he criticized the government for a weak reforestation policy.

The Ontario Progressive Conservative government has given no lead in the establishment of the secondary industry which was desperately needed in Northern Ontario.

"The Conservative government has failed you for almost 20 years in giving the necessary leadership to assist in the development of secondary industry. Only by expanding secondary industry could enough jobs be created to halt population drain and bring to the "already crowded population centres of the south."

HAS 'DEFINITE ROLE'

". . . If private enterprise is either unwilling or unable to develop the necessary secondary industries to give balance to the northern economy, then there is a definite role for the provincial government to take the initiative and develop public enterprise."

If this weren't done, he said, "the northern economy will continue to languish in the present as it has in the past."

The NDP chief said there "must be more value-added processing and meat processing in northern agriculture and that "any government that believes in genuine economic planning could join forces with existing regional development associations in assessing other industrial developments that private enterprise has been ignoring."

The Ontario Northland Railway, he said, has been a great help in harvesting the area's wealth, but "the tragedy is that under old party governments the ONR has been regarded as just another business venture that must make a profit, instead of a development road which is a ready instrument to be used and, if it were necessary, subsidized, to continue the development of the north."

Mr. MacDonald said he did not believe the establishment of a northern affairs department was a solution to the problems of an economy lagging behind the rest of the province, but suggested better government was the answer.

Of his own government's stand, he said:

"We are not in principle the idea of a federal contributory old age pension scheme . . . provided it is a national application and providing security on a country-wide basis for all our old people."

PREPARED TO FOLLOW

"It automatically follows from this that we are prepared to be flexible in adjusting our legislation to meet the needs of such a scheme."

He cited these major questions about a national plan:

1. The fate of pension arrangements of close to 1,000,000 persons in Ontario who are members of some 8,000 private pension plans such as employer-employee contracts.

2. What will be done to avoid double payments by people now paying into private plans?

3. Portability arrangements, also, would reserve the right in existing plans or changes that might be made in the basic approach of the federal government as set out in its parliamentary resolution.

"We will not," Mr. Robarts added, "be stampeded into any action which could prove detrimental to our people or any segment of them. We will study this matter happened to come up during an election campaign."

Liberal Leader Suggests Plan Revision

By BEN WARD

HANOVER, Ont. (CP)—Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Thursday night he has suggested to Prime Minister Pearson a revision of the Canada Pension Plan to get around the problem created by Quebec's decision to stay out of the plan.

Mr. Wintermeyer said he has urged Mr. Pearson to remove from the plan the provision for an immediate $10 monthly increase in the old-age pension.

The $10 increase should be paid out of general federal revenues instead.

Speaking to a nominating meeting in this western Ontario town of 4,500 he quoted the text of a telegram sent to Mr. Pearson earlier in the day. It read: "My campaigning to date has convinced me the people of Ontario want the Canada Pension Plan.

WOULD BE UNFAIR

"In view of Quebec's declared position not to participate however it would not be fair to Ontario and the rest of Canada if stage one—the $10 increase in the universal old-age pension were financed by contributions from Ontario and the rest of Canada alone.

"I therefore urge that the stage one be removed from the contributory feature of the Canada Pension Plan and implemented as soon as national legislation may be passed through general revenues of the federal government to which all Canadians contribute."

The meeting chose Farquhar Oliver to represent the Liberals in the Grey-South riding in the election. Mr. Oliver, former provincial Liberal leader, has represented Grey-South in the legislature continuously since 1936.

He served two terms as Liberal leader, the last setting in 1958 when he resigned and a convention chose Mr. Wintermeyer to head the party.

Earlier the Liberal leader pushed along the south shore of Georgian Bay covering his fast-moving election campaign into some of the strongest Conservative sectors of the province.

STRESSES JOB NEED

He stopped at Midland, Collingwood, Thornbury, Meaford and Owen Sound for brief speeches stressing the need for new job opportunities into the small communities of the province.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the Liberal platform for the election would include a $100 million plan to stimulate the economy in what are now the proper parts of Canada's northern industrial province.

At Thornbury the Liberal leader was joined by Mayor Ralph Bennett of Owen Sound who is making his third run as Liberal candidate in Grey South. Mr. Bennett told 200 persons gathered in the downtown Market Square to hear the two men.

Bridge Traffic Cut off Due to Bomb Threat

MONTREAL (CP) — Traffic across one of the main approaches to Montreal Island, Honore Mercier Bridge, was cut off for almost two hours Thursday night while police checked two anonymous telephone calls that a bomb had been placed there.

A search by 20 policemen and a dynamite expert uncovered a hammer box and a small drum. Police said both had apparently been left by workmen and no notes or signs were found nearby.

"We verified neither of the objects were dynamite," said the Quebec Provincial Police sergeant who is in charge of the search. He asked his name not be used because he is investigating other terrorist calls.

The two calls to the OPP headquarters in suburban Montreal were by English-speaking men. This was the first reported bomb threat in English.

The QPP had the search under way at 9:30 p.m. EDT Thursday and the bridge's bridges crossing the St. Lawrence River. Mercier Bridge is a prestressed concrete structure crossing the river and St. Lawrence Seaway at the southwest end of the island.

Claude Lavalle, an engineer in suburban St. Eustache who is a dynamite expert, was lowered by cable to examine the bridge's under-structure.

Traffic was allowed over the bridge shortly after midnight.

Gala Opening at Royal Alexandra Theatre to Feature Popular Play

Many exciting surprises will be in store for those lucky enough to attend the gala opening of "Never Too Late" on September 9, when the Edwardian grandeur of the Royal Alexandra Theatre will be revisited. The refurbished theatre will be enhanced with comfortable new seats, enlarged and stylish foyer and new decor. A comprehensive pictures gallery bridging the theatre's colorful history over the past fifty years has also been added.

All this will be spiced with a sprinkling of mystery celebrities from all over North America who plan on being present at the spectacular opening night.

"The Grand Old Lady of King Street" has been completely and beautifully overhauled, enlarged, face-lifted and remodelled. The Royal Alexandra's nostalgically traditional theatrical air has not been lost, however, rather it has been enhanced and Toronto will be able to boast the finest legitimate theatre in the grand manner extant in North America.

The opening comedy "Never Too Late", by Sumner Arthur Long, stars Hamilton Bendig, Nancy Carroll and Will Hutchins and concerns a much-harried middle-aged couple from a small New England town, who are flabbergasted by the fact that they are expecting parents again. Hilarity builds as they valiantly attempt to justify their belated romantic resurgence to their daughter and son-in-law, who live with them.

Directed by George Abbott, the comedy romped off with unanimous critical acclaim when it opened on Broadway in November and has been playing to capacity audiences ever since.

William Bendig portrays the moonstruck father, Nancy Carroll is his charming and beautiful wife, while Will Hutchins is the beguiling son-in-law. Mr. Bendix has distinguished himself on stage, screen and TV and has endeared himself on Broadway for his memorable acting gems in William Saroyan's "Time of Your Life" and in the Moss Hart-Kaufman "Merrily We Roll Along".

Nancy Carroll was a screen star in the early thirties and of late has appeared frequently on television. Will Hutchins is readily identified for his stellar TV career with special emphasis for his portrayal of "Sugarfoot".

Others in the cast include Janis Young, as the daughter, Larry Fletcher, Kate Wilkinson, Rosa Rosal, Robert Carraway and Robert Fitzsimmons.

Saigon Police Battle School Children

300 Are Dragged To Army Trucks As Parents Weep

School Revolt Sweeps South Viet Nam Capital

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Saigon combat police dragged off about 300 rock - throwing, jeering school children here today, as a school rebellion swept the city.

Most of the students arrested were under 15 years old.

Helmeted police charged into the Vo Truong Toan boys school and the adjoining Truong Vuong girls school, dragging students, many carrying their books, into a fleet of waiting army trucks.

Students screamed from windows at United States reporters:

"President Kennedy supports (President) Ngo Dinh Diem beating and arresting students."

Students staged noisy anti government demonstrations in at least a half-dozen other large Saigon schools. Among them were the Marie Curie and Jean Jacques Rousseau high schools, schools mainly attended by the children of high-ranking civil servants and government officials.

Schools in Saigon reopened Wednesday, and had been closed since last Saturday when thousands of students tried to demonstrate and were arrested. Many were injured last week-end.

No serious casualties were reported in today's outbreak, although some students suffered twisted ankles, cuts and bruises.

CARRY THEM AWAY

Combat police were reinforced by marines and special forces and large detachments of plain-clothes strongarm men. Some of the students, 13 or 14 years old, were carried, kicking and screaming, to trucks.

A handful of parents tried to make their way through police lines, but were turned away. Women, tears streaming from their eyes, argued vainly with police, as the children were loaded off.

It was expected that all schools in Saigon would be closed again immediately.

The rebellion followed a week of student undercover organization, in which students distributed leaflets calling for a strike throughout the city. Hundreds were arrested in their homes during the week.

'HELP US'

Several boys called out to reporters as they were herded into trucks, "Hello! Help us! Help us!"

Wallace To Face Court

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—A federal judge has directed Governor George Wallace of Alabama to explain why he should not be restrained from barring pupils from Alabama schools facing desegregation.

And violence flared again in Birmingham Friday night, but police said the incident in which two 16-year-old Negro boys were killed had no connection with racial troubles that have kept the city tense for months.

Police said Negro teen-agers fired shotgun blasts into a grocery store in what appeared to be a gang incident.

A Negro man was killed and 20 persons injured in rioting which followed a dynamite blast at the home of a Negro lawyer Wednesday night.

U.S. District Judge Seybourn H. Lynne ordered Wallace to show cause Sept. 13 why he should not be enjoined from interfering with school desegregation.

The order was issued on a motion by lawyers for two Negro boys scheduled to attend one of three Birmingham schools closed on instructions of the governor Thursday.

BLOCK PUPILS

State troopers, acting on Wallace's orders, blocked Negro and white pupils from four schools in Huntsville, Ala., Friday. A similar suit affecting Huntsville was filed during the day.

Wallace's move in Huntsville stirred rising resentment in the north Alabama missile city and other parts of the state.

In still another legal development, a three-judge federal court in Tuscaloosa rejected a request by six white parents backed by Wallace to delay integration of the Birmingham schools.

A second case of reverse integration developed in Anniston, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. Carl William Darnell, a white couple, enrolled two of their six children in a previously Negro school at Little Rock.

35 Areas Get Tax Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—The government Friday mapped out 35 labor markets in Canada where special tax treatment will be offered—if Parliament agrees—in a bid to attract new manufacturing and processing industries.

Tax plums in these so-called "designated areas" of high unemployment and slow growth would include a holiday from income tax for the first three years of operation. There also would be a fast two-year writeoff of new machinery and accelerated depreciation on new buildings.

Under the winter works program, municipalities in these areas also will get a bigger share —60 per cent instead of 50—of payroll costs paid by the federal government. This applies to approved projects between Nov. 1 and April 30.

Criteria used to pick out these have-not regions are complicated. In the main, the eligible districts are fairly large Unemployment Insurance Commission office areas where statisticians have diagnosed a history of high unemployment in summer, rather than winter.

Those chosen included the NEC offices areas centred by these communities:

Ontario — Brantford, Cornwall, Windsor, Pembroke, Timmins, Wallaceburg, Elliot Lake, Chatham.

Under the scheme introduced by the former Conservative government, double first-year depreciation was open to new industries setting up in disincentive localities which applied for "labor surplus" status and met labor supply and unemployment tests of the surplus.

The double-depreciation provision lasts until the end of this year.

HIGH BY AGENCY

The new system will be administered by the area development agency within the newly-created industry department. The agency is expected to be operational by the end of the year.

Under the new system, areas are designated for special treatment this way:

The labor - surplus yardstick will be kept. Thus an area is considered to have a labor sur-

Wheatlands May Produce Immense Crop

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's wheatlands may produce an immense crop of 694,331,000 bushels this year, only a whisker short of 1957's record harvest.

This forecast Friday by the bureau of statistics had added new urgency to current efforts of the Canadian wheat board to expand wheat exports in a competitive world market.

It has also raised prospects that there may be enough Canada's surplus wheat tuck and in the cost of government - financed storage this year.

Near - record levels of both wheat seedings and yields combined this year to produce the bumper crop.

A record crop indicated in Saskatchewan and a major increase in Alberta have pushed the prospective wheat crop on the prairies to 673,000,000 bushels, up 23 per cent from last year's 546,000,000.

Ontario's winter wheat crop is placed at 18,600,000 bushels compared with 15,800,000 last year, due to an estimated record yield of 42.1 bushels an acre.

Major Party Leaders Far Apart on Subject of Pensions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier John Robarts and Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer campaigned in the same section of Ontario Friday night, but they were as far apart as usual on the subject of pensions.

Both dealt with the subject in a day of stumping through southwestern Ontario while the province's third party leader, Donald C. MacDonald of the New Democratic Party, campaigned in Northern Ontario where he took a swipe at Mr. Wintermeyer's performance in the legislature.

Mr. Robarts also promised, at Listowel in Perth riding, that if his Progressive Conservative government is re-elected he will call the special legislature session he has promised to deal with the federal Parliament's municipal development loan

Social Workers Say Stand On Welfare Dismal Failure

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's approach to welfare is a dismal failure and a conference of federal, provincial and municipal governments is needed to clear up the welfare "jungle," the institute of Public Administration was told Friday.

Amy Leigh, prominent Vancouver social worker, said members of her profession are sinking in an administrative morass, powerless to help a growing army of unemployed and destitute Canadians.

She said local welfare officials are trapped in a maze of unnecessary regulations, penny-pinching governments, consultants and inspectors, a multiplicity of narrow services, inadequate financial resources and a serious shortage of trained personnel.

The same ills were diagnosed in another paper by Prof. John S. Morgan of the school of social work, University of Toronto.

Both speakers recommended that local governments be given much wider powers in administering welfare programs.

Miss Leigh said local officials are in the best position to make decisions on welfare cases because they alone know the people and local conditions. But municipalities were desperately short of tax revenue.

She said a federal-provincial-municipal conference should be held to clearly define the welfare role of each level of government and to make more equitable fiscal arrangements.

"The idea still persists that welfare cases are all dishonest, lazy, good-for-nothing people who must be punished for their poverty," she said.

"The old punitive methods have failed. We need casework supervision that teaches rather than checks."

She said welfare services should be integrated into one overall administrative setup,

May Hike Pensions Oct. 1st

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh wouldn't say yes and wouldn't say no Friday night when asked about reports that the federal government will increase old age pensions by $10 beginning Oct. 1.

The Toronto Globe and Mail reported that the increase in the old age pension—bringing it up to $75 a month—would be announced by Prime Minister Pearson at the opening of the dominion - provincial conference on pensions next week.

Miss LaMarsh at first said she wouldn't care to comment on the report.

Asked if she would confirm the report, she said "No."

Asked if she would deny it, she said:

"No, I wouldn't care to do that."

A spokesman for the prime minister said Mr. Pearson had no comment to make on the matter.

HAS ANNOUNCED

The government announced its intention to increase the pension by $75 several months ago.

But its position has been that the increase is linked to the Canada Pension Plan and that the $10 boost wouldn't appear in old age pension cheques until early in 1964.

Opposition parties in the Commons repeatedly have asked the government to increase the pension immediately.

Ray Perrault, British Columbia Liberal leader, Friday sent a telegram to Mr. Pearson asking for an immediate $10 increase. He said the boost should come "at the earliest possible moment."

And in flagging former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton predicted the government would announce the increase next week.

The former Conservative cabinet minister said pressure from the pensioners, the opposition parties in the Commons and three pending provincial elections will contribute to the decision.

Real Caouette Critical of Alberta Premier

QUEBEC (CP) — Real Caouette, head of Le Ralliement des Creditistes, Friday night attacked Alberta Premier Manning, who criticized the Quebec party leader's decision to form his own party.

Mr. Caouette said in a telephone interview, Premier Manning should know about "local parties," as he had termed Le Ralliement, "because Social Credit had no members from outside Alberta for 25 years."

Mr. Manning was speaking from St. Sacrement Hospital where he is having a medical check-up.

"Manning is giving the national movement $1,500 a month (the party's federal election fund, I don't know—and he expects to run the party with this. Financing of Ralliement Robert Thompson) is being led by Manning, whether he knows it or not."

Mr. Caouette said he now has the declared support of 11 of Social Credit's 23 members of Parliament and a 12th man will make known his support today.

He announced the formation of the new party, Le Ralliement Quebec Wing City caucus Wednesday. This followed a convention of Le Ralliement, the Quebec wing of the Social Credit party, at which delegates voted to repudiate Mr. Thompson as party leader.

Six of Quebec's 19 Social Credit MPs announced they would continue to support Mr. Thompson as party leader.

300,000 Left Homeless, Rush Aid To Victims

City of 30,000 Still In Danger, Rain Needed

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—At least 250 persons died and 200,000 were left homeless in a series of wind - whipped fires racing through tinder-dry pine forests in the southern state of Parana, reports reaching here said today.

Brazilian and U.S. teams rushed firefighters, food and blood plasma to the stricken state, Brazil's most important coffee-producing area.

Governor Ney Braga said the situation in the drought-plagued state is "much worse than you can imagine."

Forty-nine bodies have been recovered and the death toll probably will go much higher, Col. Italo Cortes, directing the firefighters, reported from Curitiba, the state capital 200 miles southwest of Sao Paulo.

Many communities in the path of the flames are in remote areas and some settlements are accessible only by air. Firefighters were hampered further by 30-40 mph winds.

CITY IN DANGER

Cortes said one fire was brought under control outside Monte Alegre, Brazil's major paper-manufacturing centre, but the city of about 30,000 still was in danger.

Cortes said it appeared that only a heavy rain could quell the fires. He said the state had had no soaking, general rain since February.

In addition to coffee plantations and vast lumber resources the sub-tropical state bordering Argentina and Paraguay is a rich farm area developed by Italian, German and Slav immigrants.

D. L. McCarthy, Noted Lawyer, Dies at 92

TORONTO (CP)—Funeral services were held Friday for D'Alton Lally McCarthy, 92, colorful Toronto lawyer who died Tuesday.

Mr. McCarthy, who was known for his courtroom showmanship and a counsel, appeared in courts in Canada and before the Privy Council in England.

He was called to the bar of Ontario in 1895 where he practised as a junior with his father's firm of McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin and Creelman. Mr. McCarthy was prosecutor for the Ontario government in the trials and inquiry of the Home Bank in the 1920s.

He retired at the age of 75 in 1946.

Seek Way To Alter BNA Act

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier said Friday night he intends to call a constitutional conference early next year that could clear the path for re-assessment of the terms of Confederation.

He told the Canadian Bar Association annual meeting the federal - provincial conference would be summoned to draft a formula for amending the British North America Act.

"If we can agree on a formula, we might also take a broader look at our constitution itself and find that it needs to be revised in several of its aspects in order to reflect the new concept of co-operative federalism."

The British North America Act, basic document of Canada's constitution, was passed by the British Parliament in 1867 and amendments therefore must be approved by the British Parliament.

Mr. Chevrier said if Canadians wish their country to remain united they "radical changes must be made in their way of life.

SEEKS EQUAL RIGHTS

"Our country is basically formed of two races and these two races must have equal rights and equal opportunity in the expansion of the economy," he said.

"There are those who feel that over the years the courts have distorted the BNA Act and have fashioned a legal constitution that bears little resemblance to what the statesmen of 1867 had in mind.

"There is room for growing unrest and dissatisfaction with the way the act has developed as a social instrument and there are many who feel strongly that its fundamental philosophy has not been carried out, so that now it neither meets our social and political needs nor reflects the true character of our society."

He mentioned previous constitutional conventions in 1950, 1960 and 1961 called to consider transfer of amending powers to Canada, all of which failed.

Saskatchewan was the only province to declare publicly its opposition to an amendment formula proposed at the 1961 conference.

U.S. and Canadian Officials To Honor 150 Years of Peace

PUT-IN-BAY, Ohio (AP)—Officials from Canada and the United States will meet on Perry's Island in Lake Erie Sunday to observe nearly 150 years of peace and to honor a then 28-year-old naval officer whose genius speeded the end of the War of 1812.

This internationally famous officer Hazard Perry, allied his fleet of nine little ships into the battle of the British fleet and ended British control of Lake Erie—150 years ago on Tuesday.

The victory forced British land forces to withdraw their siege of Fort Meigs in Ohio and launched the American forces, under Gen. William Henry Harrison, on a war-ending attack.

Many historians say no naval victory was ever more due to the genius and energy of one man.

Perry, a Rhode Island native, had had no sea duty when he volunteered to go to Lake Erie and form a fleet. He spent from March to August of 1813 building the ships at Erie, Pa. Three others came from Buffalo.

All of the construction was completed under Capt. Robert H. Barclay, a veteran British naval officer who commanded the British fleet on the lake.

Historians still debate why Barclay did not attack the shipyard, but the consensus is that the fleet was in the bars which blocked the harbor.

Then, when the fleet was nearly completed, Barclay disappeared from his station and Perry's ships moved out into the lake.

The story is that the British commander sailed to escort a widow to a dance in Dover, Ont., and that his fleet was in Dover Harbor for five days.

Perry became one of the great heroes of the war. He was promoted by Congress and promoted to captain. However, six years after the battle, Perry

Blast Damages Canadian Vessel Tied up at Chicago Since April

CHICAGO (AP)—Police said an explosion ripped through the port side of the Canadian grain ship Howard L. Shaw early today, the third incident in a complicated labor dispute which has tied the ship up in the Calumet since April.

Police reported no injuries, although members of the crew were on board at the time of the blast. The 600-foot ship was not believed in danger of sinking.

Cause of the blast, which blew a hole four feet wide and about six feet deep at the water line amidships, was not immediately determined. A Chicago police bomb squad was on the scene.

Windows in the elevator a block away were blown out.

A crew member on watch at the port side of the vessel, Glen Smith of Toronto, told police he saw or heard nothing prior to the explosion. Also on deck when the blast occurred were the Shaw's captain, Harvey Jones and First Mate Gilbert Marvin, both of Toronto.

The Seafarers' International Union is protesting hiring of Canada Maritime Union members by Upper Lakes Shipping Company, owner of the Shaw. Local 418, International Longshoremen's Association, repre-

Municipalities Required To Assess Under Section 53 Directive of County Council

All local municipalities within the county of Hastings will in the future be required to assess under section 53 of the assessment act to pick up assessment on construction made during the year.

This was the directive passed yesterday as county council concluded its annual four-day autumn session.

In the past all municipalities had been expected to assess under Section 53 but there had been no county order directing this.

Some municipalities did assess under the above section; others did not, and even fewer turned over to the county its share of tax money collected under the section.

COULD MISS BOAT

The feeling was that either all municipalities should assess under Section 53, or none at all.

County assessor Cecil Gean told council members that municipalities not making the midyear assessment could be missing the boat.

He said where assessing was not done under Section 53 persons constructing buildings could very well escape almost a full year's taxes.

Assessment matters were brought up several times during this week's four day session of council.

Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman mentioned it in his administration report to council emphasizing that assessment was the very basis of municipal government and taxation must be given prime consideration.

GREAT STEP FORWARD

He said the appointment of a county assessor some years ago was undoubtedly a great step forward and served to correct many of the inequalities that existed.

But none had shown that even this may not be a strong enough system and perhaps once again council would give consideration to assessment procedures.

Mr. Bateman said the great weakness of any county assessor was that he is not empowered to alter any standard of assessment procedure used throughout the county. His duty was only to advise.

One county in Ontario (Lincoln) had set up an assessment commissioner system, and several other counties are having their county assessor assess some of the local municipalities.

PLEASED WITH SYSTEM

These counties were reported well pleased with this system and felt there were many advantages over the local assessor system.

If an assessment commission system was set up in Hastings, Mr. Bateman said the entire job of assessing could be done by four or five men and for a moderate increase over the present cost of $18,000.

Also Thursday some of the northern reeves expressed dissatisfaction over how mining grants are distributed.

The matter was introduced by Bancroft Reeve M. J. McAlpine and was followed up by Reeve Gerald Caldwell of Mayo township, who said 14 northern municipalities were involved in the North Hastings high school area but only four or five benefitted in any way from mining grants.

However, it was mainly because of the mines that the Bancroft high school expansion program was necessary.

All municipalities in the area paid toward the cost of the enlarged school facilities made necessary by the mines yet only four or five benefitting from the mining grants.

High School Pupils Prepare For Activities

After the first hectic week of operation, the secondary schools here are shaking the moth balls from their student organizations after the summer months.

Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School is the only institution with a student government functioning. This is due to the fact that B.C.I. elects its Student Council during the spring to prepare for the following academic year.

BCI students are now conducting membership drives. Student Council membership cards and preparing for a dance to take place at the school next Friday. The Student Council card sells at $1.00 and entitles the student to admittance to dances, participation in school activities, reduction in yearbook subscription and $100 student accident insurance.

Moira is also in the process of shaking out its academic gown. Plans are underway for the nomination and eventual election of the School Parliament. These processes should be concluded by Wednesday, Sept. 18th.

The cadet corps, an affiliate of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is now recruiting the bugle band. Harry Birkenshaw, bugler at Moira will be acting as chief instructor this year.

Having already made the nominations for prime minister, Quinte Secondary is more advanced than Moira. Gail Miller and Rockne Taylor are the nominees of one party and Donna Chase and Marianne Kotek are of the other. Both parties are to be named later.

Most of the clubs in the school are preparing programs and generally getting organized. Quinte's student publication, the Quintatiller, was gathering journalistic talent Friday and already molding its editorial staff.

Other student activities are also getting underway. The stage crew, the Stamp Club, Science Club, Drama Club, and others either have held or will be holding their first meetings.

The Quinte School remains in a disordered state while it waits construction crews to complete the building.

C.A.S. Charges Make Good, Report to County Council

The work of the Children's Aid Society is always gratifying from a humanitarian standpoint, but occasionally instances arise up which make it even more so.

Several such instances have occurred this year with the Children's Aid Society of Hastings County C.A.S. and were referred to at County Council this week when the report of the Society was read to members.

Madoc Reeve Tom Burnside, chairman of the county C.A.S. committee, said that one boy, a charge of the Society this year, had received his B.A. degree and had now had a good teaching job in Lennox and Addington county.

In another instance a girl brought up by the Society had graduated as a nurse last spring.

"It is nice to see such results of C.A.S. work and must be gratifying to Society officials," he said.

The report showed that during the first six months of the year 33 children from the county had been admitted to the C.A.S. care.

Of the 33 admitted six have been returned to their parents, four have been placed in adoption and the remainder are still in foster homes with the disposition of their cases still to be decided by the court.

At the end of June there were 172 children in the custody of the Society of which 49 were the financial responsibility of the county.

Mr. Burnside said the number of children in care of the Society had been decreasing for several years with costs dropping from a high of $137,000 until it was now "something over $90,000."

The County Home report read by Marmora township reeve John Wilkes showed there were 201 residents registered at the Home — 103 male and 98 female. Of the total 56 were from the city of Belleville.

Peter Anderson New Assistant County Engineer

Mr. Peter Anderson, 30, currently with the Ontario Department of Highways at Fort William, has been retained by Hastings county council as assistant engineer in the county roads department. He will report for his new duties on October 1st at a starting salary of $7,200.

Employed with the Highways Department since his graduation in civil engineering from Toronto University in 1958, Mr. Anderson served four years in the Ottawa district before going to Fort William. He is married with one child.

An increased volume of county work, the administrational end of which has been keeping county engineer Larry Langlois busy is the reason for hiring of the assistant engineer.

WILL STUDY FURTHER

Council left over for further study the request for an assistant engineer from the Ontario Government to appoint a county construction safety inspector.

Previously the county has considered that Hastings was too large for one man to efficiently carry out the duties of such an inspector so is required under the construction safety act, but a department official has now stated the job could be done on a part time basis by one man.

Two resolutions from other counties both asking that the cost of such an inspector not be a direct charge on the county will be further studied by Hastings council.

Two resolutions from northern reeve having a direct bearing on the tourist business were passed.

One called for the opening of the trout fishing season on January 1st instead of in March, while the other asked that the open season for shooting bears commence October 1st after the tourist season is completed.

Reeve Ryan Oram said that early the week-end the bears which nightly visited a disposal area in the Lake St. Peter district were shot.

He said the bears were not harming anything, were not destructive and were an attraction in the neighborhood.

"I call this murder of wildlife," Reeve Oram said.

Belleville Men Win $1,000 for Designing Machinery

Left to right above are C. Grant Cornell, vice-president and general manager of Mead Johnson Laboratories, T. P. McWilliams and A. N. Day, two Belleville men who designed a powder-canning machine, and G. A. Wishart, vice-president, manufacturing.

Two Belleville employees of Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd. have shared a special award of $1,000 was given by the company in recognition of their creative efforts in designing machinery for the packaging of powdered food products.

T. P. McWilliams, Chief Mechanical Engineer, and A. N. Day, a mechanic at Mead Johnson's Belleville plant, designed their first packaging machine in 1960 to permit semi-automatic canning of powders in place of manually operated equipment which had previously been used.

The machinery was so successful that four similar machines were built in Belleville for the company's European operations. Two of the machines were sent to England and one each to France and Italy.

Further development work by Mr. McWilliams and Mr. Day resulted in a fully automatic machine. The first of these was installed in the Belleville plant in 1961, and a second was later sent to the company's plant in Mexico City. These machines fill one pound cans at speeds in excess of forty cans per minute and are capable of handling a wide variety of can sizes.

The awards were presented to Mr. McWilliams and Mr. Day by C. Grant Cornell, Vice-President and General Manager of Mead Johnson Laboratories.

Bancroft Area Liberals Hear Frank Follwell

BANCROFT — An enthusiastic group of men and women attended an organization meeting at the Hotel Bancroft on Thursday evening to launch the Liberal campaign in the area. They were assisted by the campaign co-ordinator for West Hastings riding, John O'Flynn, who outlined the duties of the campaign committee, and Mrs. Effie McCabe, member of the riding campaign committee.

Following the business session which Mrs. George Bennett, Bancroft, was appointed campaign chairman, the group was addressed informally by Frank Follwell, Liberal candidate for West Hastings.

He praised those present for their enthusiasm, saying that it was a long time since such interest and support had been shown by the Liberals of the area during a provincial election campaign.

"For too long has West Hastings been neglected by the present member, Elmer Sandercock, and his government. It is time for a voice to be heard in the legislature that will speak loudly and strenuously on behalf of all the people of the riding," he said, promising to do this if elected.

Mr. Follwell said that in the past, as alderman and mayor of Belleville, and as a member of parliament in Ottawa, he had been instrumental in bringing several industries for the southern part of the county. "The northern half has been forgotten, but if elected I shall go to Queen's Park prepared to do everything possible to secure industries for this part of the county," he told his workers.

OUTLINES POLICIES

Speaking of some of the Liberal party policies which will be carried forward for the benefit of all Ontario citizens, the candidate listed the abolition of the expensive provincial sales tax on all goods below $25, the proposal of the Liberals to support the national pension scheme, and the provision of further education for all students wishing to avail themselves of the opportunity to gain increased academic and technical training.

"The Tories are stealing Liberal policies," Mr. Follwell asserted. "In many instances they have announced, but only very recently, an increase from $3 to $4 in provincial grant for students in grades 9 and 10. The Liberals are planning to make it possible for free textbooks to be available for all students attending high school—at the beginning of the 1964 school year."

He dwelt briefly on the proposed plans for the establishment of a County Health Unit in Hastings, saying he fully endorsed the proposal. The health of the people is an important factor in the economic growth of the country. If elected, he would put forth a resolution that the legislature increase its health grants to at least match the 90% grant, for roads and bridges. Currently, the grant is 50% of the total cost.

During the sweeping plans were put forward for a "Bancroft Day" on September 19th when Mr. Follwell and some of his aides would be in the village to meet many of the voters. This will culminate in a public meeting to be held in the Legion Hall in the evening at 8 p.m.

This campaign committee will work actively in the townships of Faraday, Herschel and McClure, as well as in the village of Bancroft.

Hospital Addition Share To be Paid on County Basis

Although on Thursday they had "approved in principle" with the Belleville General Hospital board of governors plans for a new hospital addition Hastings county councillors yesterday took another look at the suggested $7,300,000 cost.

Reeve Mac Wilson of Wollaston township admitted that the county's share of the expected cost has "scared" him and asked if there was any assurance that the $7,300,000 figure would not be increased.

Not cost of the proposed addition to Belleville and Hastings county after presently approved grants is estimated at $4,500,000 of which the county's share would be $1,575,000.

Mr. Wilson felt that the county's share of the cost should be on a township use basis rather than against the county as a whole.

At least one of the townships in the north part of the county did not have a single patient in the Belleville hospital last year, he said.

County clerk treasurer replied however that when joint ownership of the hospital had been discussed the decision had been for the county to be considered as a whole and not on a Township basis.

It was noted that county patients made up 49 per cent of hospital admissions, while the county had agreed to assume 35 per cent of hospital costs.

Other councillors, particularly those from the southern portion, could not see Reeve Wilson's viewpoint on the hospital question.

They felt the county should be considered as a whole as did Reeve M. J. McAlpine of Bancroft.

MUST BE APPROVED

It was pointed out that any capital costs in connection with the hospital had to be approved both by city and county councils.

Deputy Reeve Sidney Fitzgerald said the county had gone into the joint hospital ownership "with its eyes wide open."

"We must realise we are in this thing as a county. We got a surprise yesterday but I don't know how we can pay for it unless we pay as a unit."

Seven Cars Left City in Quebec Rally

Seven cars, none of them from the Belleville district, left Trudeau's BP service station on Station St. last night on the first leg of the Eighth National Quebec Rally. An unknown number of other cars entered in the international championship qualifying event started from Montreal.

The Belleville start, organized by members of the Quinte Auto Sport Club was for the benefit of Ontario entrants in the rally. The two groups, one starting in Montreal and one starting in Belleville, met at an undisclosed location last night and continue on over a common route. The 1,000 mile event follows a course through Ontario, Quebec and the U.S. Finish line is in Montreal, where the first cars are expected about 6 p.m. today.

Organized by the Canadair Employees Recreational Association Automobile Club, in co-operation with Imperial Oil and as a national event for the past eight years. It is now open to any member of a recognized motorsport club. Original plans of the BP-assisted event called for the Belleville start to be from Russel Motors BP station, on West Moira Street. Belleville city council however, refused to allow Russel Motors to stay open for the event. The dead Motors, as the nearest BP station on the route of the rally was chosen as the alternate start.

Hitchhiker Blew His Roll In Montreal, Soon Gets Job In District Picking Apples

Hitchhiker. Old man, standing on the highway, thumb up. Rough suit, tweedy type, still in good condition. Plaid shirt, jeans, too big. Sleeves can keep his hands warm. Pick him up.

Face is a bit weatherbeaten, under three days' beard. Says he's coming from Montreal, where he blew his roll on a wild time. Heading southwest now, figures to get another roll out of the tobacco harvest. Might stop in Trenton, he says, get some money to travel on.

Spent last night in Belleville, first time he's been here since 1932. Still the same town though, he says. Some new buildings maybe. Same streets, same sidewalks. Looks like they haven't been paved since, he says.

Same jail too. Only thing they've changed is the benches. Used to be wood, now they're concrete. Few ones are no good for sleeping on. Spent the night on a concrete slab, "about as wide". Woke up about 4 a.m. to get a bath. He was a tomb.

JUST DROPPED IN

Explains he wasn't arrested, just dropped in to the jail to spend the night. Won't go there again for a while though, not while there are more comfortable jails. Guy's been all over the country, he says. Overseas too, during the war. Going to see about getting a pension, some day.

Pulling into Trenton, ask where he wants to get off. He says anywhere. Suggest maybe market square, close to National Employment Service Office. Says fine by him. Swing up King St., make up mind to give him two bits when he makes the touch.

Surprise, no touch. Pull up by cop shop, he hops out. Pleasant thanks, happy good hope, and he actually heads for N.E.S. office.

GETS JOB

Not the last of him though. Later same day, thumb on road to Brighton looks familiar. Pull up, say hello.

Got him a job he says, picking apples to freeze up. Farm down past the bridge ahead. He pulls out a sketch map, points out overhead bridge.

Says the job pays buck an hour, wonders about grub and a bunk. Figures its OK if the farm offers them. Says most of the best places he's worked have bunkhouses, cook houses. Charge two bucks a week, take it from the pay. Says sleeping in the worst part of being on the road. Says he's 58 years old, and the nights are getting cool.

Wonders if the farmer he'll be working for is honest. Says lots of them aren't. Reassures himself they've got to pay what they say they'll pay.

SEAT IS EMPTY

Come to the sideroad the farm's on, veer down. Dirt road, no traffic. Cold day. Bit of wind. Farm's about a mile up. Hell with it, turn off highway.

Find a collection of buildings to the left, up the road. Stop by house, turn around. Hitchhiker gets out. So long, he says. Wish him luck.

Another car comes down road, one man in it. Swings into driveway, stops. Man steps out. Looks like foreman. Hitchhiker walks over, speaks to man.

Back to highway, continue to Brighton. Passenger's seat is empty.

Red Cross Centenary

The Red Cross is marking its centenary this month.

It owes its conception to the fact that a 30-year-old Swiss banker chanced to stray onto a battlefield.

It was on June 25, 1859 that Henri Dunant, making his way through Lombardy in Italy intent on interesting Napoleon III of France in an African milling project, came across the battlefield of Solferino. The previous day French and Sardinian troops had defeated the Austrians, leaving some 40,000 men dead or dying on the fields of battle.

Dunant postponed his visit to the Emperor organized a first-aid service, helped to carry water to the wounded and shrank from the shrieks of pain as doctors worked day and night performing amputations without anaesthetics.

Three years later he wrote a book, "A Memory of Solferino." It was the impact of this vivid account of the battlefield scene which induced 18 European countries to send delegates to a meeting at Geneva in 1863. There the Red Cross was organized.

Today, there are 157,000,000 members of the Red Cross. Of this total nearly two and a half million are Canadians, with the Junior Red Cross having a million and a half young people enrolled.

The Red Cross was organized to aid soldiers in wartime. In peacetime, the Red Cross provides a bottle of blood to Canadian hospitals every ten seconds of every working day. It teaches water safety classes, provides volunteer nursing staffs outpost hospitals, operates loan cupboards. Whenever there is an emergency, be it limited to a family whose home has been burned or be it a disaster involving hundreds or even thousands, the Red Cross is ready with prompt aid.

A hundred years is a long time. But, considering the manner in which the Red Cross movement has grown, until it now is active in 88 nations, the time seems remarkably short in view of the progress made.

Verwoerd's Challenge

Premier Hendrik Verwoerd has "challenged" Britain to allow South Africa to take over the administration of three protectorates, Bechuanaland, Basutoland and Swaziland. This is akin to a confident wife-beater challenging one to let him teach the neighbors' children some manners.

The prospect is not without initial appeal, but one wonders whether acceptance might damage one's standing in the community and, strangely enough, one is loathe to entrust the training of the troublesome brats to a person of such questionable reputation.

Bechuanaland, Basutoland and Swaziland can be of no possible value to Britain. The best she can hope is to get rid of her present responsibility for their welfare. South Africa's claim to guide their destiny is much stronger than Britain's. Basutoland is an enclave, Bechuanaland lies between South Africa and the Rhodesias, Swaziland is squeezed into the north-east corner of South Africa next to Mozambique.

But Premier Verwoerd's idea is a rosy future for these native reserves is to set them up as Bantustans, presumably complete with apartheid and slambok.

Even if British public opinion would countenance such action, any such transfer of authority would inevitably create major difficulties for Britain in other parts of Africa.

If South Africa presses, though, Britain will be in a difficult position. Militarily speaking, the territories may be indefensible, except by the expedient of fighting another full-scale Boer War, a result which would go much against the grain of most, though not all, Britons. Only a fanatical regime would push Britain to the point of making such an unenviable choice between surrender and armed resistance, but circumstances and events may easily thrust the South African Nationalists to this perilous point.

With the rising resentment of the natives, it would seem inevitable that these protectorates will be eventually utilized as refugee areas for rebels against apartheid may flee and from which they may plot continued resistance amongst their fellows left within South Africa's borders. The South African regime may not be secure enough to be able to permit such a development without trying by every possible means to eliminate these potential sanctuaries. As for the British, the existence of such a situation would in itself make acceding to South African demands increasingly indefensible.

Ottawa Offbeat

Hungry Husband Hunters Harass Newly Rich M.P.s

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA— . . . notes off the reportorial cuff . . .

THE HUNTED MEN:

All those Honorable Members who may have been celebrating that 80 percent, $8,000 Parliamentary pay raise in the food belief that with a salary of $18,000 plus an open-ended expense account all their troubles are over, had better simmer down and think again . . .

. . . Woes and worries might only be starting.

Just read what has been happening in "Girls' Town," which is another locally - popular name for Ottawa, where the male is outnumbered by the female maybe two to one.

Consider this letter, appearing in the Capital's daily paper, (in both French and English) probably written in the spirit of tongue-in-cheek good fun, but very possibly quite seriously too:

Dear Sir:

"Now that our brave and noble MPs — all 265 of them, unless John Diefenbaker and his band of cohorts and associates refuse their's outright — are getting $18,000 a year and all those meaningful perquisites, just think of the absolutely fabulous husband material they'll make!

EN GARDE:

"I don't know how many MPs are single (or how many are not) but any enterprising girl in the National Capital should surely be able to find out very easily.

"Then watch out, you MPs. Your life won't be your own from now on, on Parliament Hill or off it.

"Only once that we've captured (or kidnapped) you, don't dare lose the next election."

That was it. Short, sweet and simple, and signed quite frankly "Husband Hunting".

She is kidding, you say.

Well, maybe.

But then there is this — if "Husband Hunting" is just having fun — there may be hundreds of Canadian Girls Married.

And then there were those two laughable flaps not so long ago when, first Exiled Press International filed a story out of Ottawa saying that an MP's wife's place was with her husband — and Maclean's Magazine followed it up with a lighthearted little piece suggesting that while Mama was keeping the home fires burning back in the constituency, Papa was frequently was whiling away the hours in bars in wine, women and song.

Former Maclean's editor and now London correspondent Blair Fraser wrote it. Denied it off quickly and never meaning it to be taken seriously — but wow!

LIKE QUICK

In on the next plane from the Far East, and from the Prairies, the other from the Coast, flew two Parliamentary wives.

And that wasn't all. Within . . . one of them new two or three other MPs' wives eating with their stenographers in the Parliamentary restaurant, and words, that's all, were frantic little letters of good cheer, hinting that they had better get down to the capering Capital, like quick.

There was quite a to-do, the matter even reaching the floors of the Commons.

But now . . . with the boys making that awfully nice $18,000, plus some very open-handed spending money . . . and with the girls, the Miss "Husband Hunting" already on the trail . . . well, who can tell?

ELMER'S BROTHER

Got a note the other day from Luther Roncalli, a Calgary businessman, giving his address as 1144 Fifth Avenue.

He had been down to the Capital and up on Parliament Hill on business and had a delightful little story to tell, which, on his eyewitness' honor, he swore to be true . . .

A dear little grandmother old lady trotted up to the tall, sparse man with the iron-grey brinky hair limping across the sun-scorched main driveway in front of the Peace Tower, and cheerfully piped up at him:

"Why, bless my soul: You must be Elmer Diefenbaker's brother."

SOME OLD TOUCHES:

The tall man, with scarcely a smile, courte-ously acknowledged that he is none other.

And so they chatted a moment, he the Leader of the Opposition and God help the Prime Minister, she, in for a visit from Saskatoon where she and Elmer Diefenbaker are friends of pioneer Saskatchewan touches.

Fame is fleeting? Or, is it rather that the man of real stature has no false pride?

CROSS CHECKED:

Notice the neat press conference play that Prime Minister Pearson pulled on Opposition Leader Diefenbaker?

Dief, in denouncing at his press conference, had let it leak out he was taking off for a three-week tour of Europe and the Middle East.

Mike, who already had let it be known he had at least tentatively accepted an invitation from Prime Minister Robert Menzies to visit Australia this Fall, called a press conference then, a day ahead of Diefy, to announce, among other things, that he would be "far too busy" to be doing any globe-trotting or overseas junketing-this Fall.

"Heavy responsibilities here at home, you know," grinned the Prime Minister, going on to explain what a load of work awaited Parliament, and more than broadly hinting that anybody who wasn't staying home to prepare for it was doing less than his public duty.

The Prime Minister is fast learning the fine art of the political needle.

Says Voluntary Help May Hamper Cause

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I attended a meeting of the Hastings County Council two days ago, when the request for a Health Unit for Hastings County was presented to the council members.

As a member of the Women's Institute and the United Church Women's Organization, I feel that we should consider whether we are helping or hindering those people who are working towards this Health Unit program.

For many years the Women's Institute and other groups have been very aware of the need for public health work, and have made it their business to see that some of the areas of concern were looked into and some of the people given assistance.

Could it be that this kind of help is actually frustrating the efforts of the public health nurses and doctors to get a health unit in Hastings County?

Could it be that because well meaning groups are taking care of some of the more urgent cases the true situation in Hastings County is not known?

Perhaps, it is the time for those groups who do know the true situation to withdraw their help, which, however high their motivation, is only a small amount compared to the work that could and should be done. If their help was withdrawn it would be obvious, to any narrow minded taxpayer, that a health unit was urgently needed in Hastings County. Perhaps, we, as concerned citizens, are guilty of using "bandaids" when the situation demands "surgery."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

September 7th, 1943.

As was expected during the spring months when continued rainfall delayed seeding operations as much as four to six weeks, the yield of spring grain is disappointing to district farmers. According to the estimate of one farmer, the yield of oats in the Hastings district will not be over 50 per cent of normal. This estimate is borne out in reports of threshing crews which indicate the grain is exceptionally light and of poor quality. In some instances only from two to three hundred bushels has been the result of one mail day's threshing.

Queen Victoria, daughter of Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn, was born 430 years ago today—in 1533. The influence of the Reformation had by then been fully felt in England and the young princess was brought up under its influence and was well educated. She succeeded to the throne in 1558. She was responsible for the establishment of the Church of England on a basis which also hoped would be acceptable to Protestant and Roman Catholic alike. She never married. The period of her reign was one of the most illustrious in England's history.

Spontaneous Lung Collapse Not Considered Serious

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: The lung of my 17-year-old brother collapsed and the doctor performed surgery on him. Can it ever happen to the lung with a bottle of fluid in it, causing it to fill.

Five days later: the lung collapsed again and the doctor did the same thing. Why would this happen to someone so young? The doctor won't take out the lung. — Mrs. P.

This collapse of the lung is called "spontaneous pneumothorax," which means a sudden leakage of air from the lung into the space between it and the chest wall. The presence of the air that has leaked into the chest cavity then prevents the lung from expanding.

The cause usually is in the rupture of a blob, or somewhat over-sized air sac in the lung. This can rupture easily, usually from sudden exertion or a hard cough, but sometimes from any noticeable reason except that the thin membrane suddenly breaks.

This is not uncommon in the teens and 30's and, of course, can happen later in life, too.

It seems like a scary sort of thing, but actually it is not usually a cause for any great concern because when the lung collapses, the small leak heals, just as a cut finger would. Moreover, the hole in the lung is usually very small and hence heals rapidly.

There is no point in removing the lung. The surgery you mention is relatively simple. The tube with the bottle is inserted into the chest cavity not to put air in, but to allow the air in the cavity (or pleural space) to escape so the lung begins to function again.

If another weak spot exists, it can rupture and the lung will collapse again. However, I remember that in treatment of tuberculosis lungs often are collapsed deliberately to give them time to rest and fight off the disease. There is no reason to fear your brother's collapse had done any permanent damage.

The collapse of a lung may be painful, or otherwise, but the only discomfort being a temporary shortness of breath because only one lung is at work instead of two.

In a great many cases, the patient never has any further trouble. Again, sometimes it may occur again, and as it did in your brother's case.

Dear Dr. Molner: What would cause my jaw to crack, especially when I eat? Is some vitamin lacking? — Mrs. R. S.

No, this condition does not result from lack of vitamins. It may be due to an arthritic process, or to certain tendons riding over the bone as you move your jaw.

Another possibility sometimes is that your "bite" — the way your teeth come together. If this is the case, have your dentist check. Sometimes the "bite" often can be corrected.

If no disease or dental fault is found, little can be done except to treat it as a symptom of nervousness or tension.

All this has stemmed from free enterprise.

Epic of Free Enterprise

BBC London Letter

Throughout Britain today there are 1,300 branches of Boots the Chemist, together with offices, factories, laboratories and warehouses, in all employing more than 40,000 people.

One of the reasons for the constantly increasing size of this vast business which was started by a man 100 year ago, is that the company take care of the people it employs.

The story of Boots is an epic of British free enterprise. Jesse Boots was a lad of 13 when he took over, from his widowed mother, a herbalist shop that had been started by his father in Nottingham.

He studied pharmacy, and by 1877 had his own shop, designed to bring the cost of drugs down to a figure the ordinary folk of his time could afford.

Just 1885 he had three shops, and two years later he opened Boots Pure Drug Co. Ltd. Interesting is that word "Pure" the need of the time. He also started manufacturing so that it could be sure of controlling quality.

The record of progress was fantastic. Eighty-four by 1891, 249 by 1896. By 1903, 289 branches; by 1913, 544.

In the early days Jesse Boot kept his small shop open till 9 o'clock at night and until 11 p.m. on Saturdays, did all his own book-keeping and often worked through the night when stock-taking.

His wife, daughter of a Jersey businessman, helped him by introducing the libraries, book, stationery and fancy goods department. Six of all which she acted as buyer. Their philanthropy was well known.

And when as early as 1913 Jesse Boot founded his own night school, a pension fund was started in 1919, a day continuation school in 1920.

A five-day week was pioneered 30 years ago, and the benefits to employees were the formation of a big industrial medical service, a free dispensary health unit, a contributory pension funds, a life assurance scheme, the provision of visiting nurses for the sick, and a welfare officer for the retired.

The tradition continues, for recent years have seen the introduction of the 40-hour week, and of profit sharing. Eighty-one half percent of the final profit before tax is set aside and five is handed into shares according to earnings and length of service.

All this has stemmed from free enterprise.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

35 Areas

plus if the number of job-seekers registered at the NES office is either six or seven per cent of the total number of paid workers.

However, on top of this, an NES office area must meet one of three conditions to be a "designated area." They are:

1. It must have been a labor surplus area for half, or more, of the summer months—May to October—for the last eight years and have had an employment increase of less than half the national average of 15 per cent over the same period.

2. It must have been a labor surplus area for one-third or more of the summer months for the last eight years, and have had a drop in employment over the same period.

3. Or, it must have been a labor surplus area for half or more of the summer months for the last three years, and have had a decline in employment in each of the last three years.

If Parliament this fall passes the income tax amendments, this is what the 35 areas will get:

1. "New" manufacturing and processing enterprises — Mr. Drury's department will certify what is "new"—will be freed from paying corporation income tax for the first three years of operation, providing operations start within two years of the amendments becoming law.

2. New machinery and equipment used in "certified new" manufacturing and processing enterprises can be depreciated for tax purposes in two equal yearly instalments, compared with the normal rate of 20 per cent a year on a diminishing-balance basis.

3. New buildings "acquired" in designated areas will qualify for capital-cost allowances for tax purposes at the rate of 20 per cent a year. The normal rate is five per cent on a diminishing-balance basis for most buildings, or 10 per cent for frame buildings.

ADVANCE WINTER WORK

Labor Minister Marchand said federal public works projects also are being advanced in the designated areas this winter. Departments have been asked to go ahead with projects originally slated for construction later.

Mr. Drury said that each September, when summer unemployment figures become available, the department will review the area designations.

However, he said in reply to questioning that if a new firm enters a designated area but is unable to get into operation before the area is taken off the list in the light of new statistics, it still would get the special tax treatment.

The question of an industry pulling up stakes in one area to settle in a designated region, in order to get the tax benefits, also was raised.

WOULD EQUALIZE

Mr. Drury said it has been recognized that such shifts may take place. But he said it wouldn't be altogether undesirable, because it would tend to redistribute employment on a more equitable basis across the country.

No special tests will have to be met by an industry moving into a designated area before it can claim the tax benefits, he said. If the industry is new, it would be certified as such by the industry department's area development agency.

"We wouldn't want the area development agency equipped with the power to say who is to move where, and when," Mr. Drury said. "That would be too authoritarian."

U.S. Authorities Do Not Feel Chinese-Soviet Border Trouble Will Lead to War

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. authorities have acknowledged they received reports of a flow of Chinese refugees across the Chinese border into Russia, but they doubt any Sino - Soviet match is likely to result.

They tend to assess Peking's 30,000-word diatribe this week against Moscow as evidence of a further deepening of the split between the giant Communist rivals. Still, they do not expect an outright diplomatic rupture in the near future.

The Red Chinese charged the Russians with having admitted tens of thousands of Chinese into Soviet territory last year in an attempt to overthrow the Chinese administration of Ili, in remote Sinkiang province. Peking declared Soviet-Chinese relations have reached "the brink of a split."

U.S. authorities say reports have been reaching here for some time of a flow of dissatisfied persons from China across the ill-defined border in this area. Nomads have historically travelled back and forth across this frontier.

The sources said they have no accurate estimate of the size of the refugee flow, but estimated it in the tens of thousands. Peking claimed the Chinese were "enticed and coerced . . . into going to the Soviet Union" and Russia has refused to repatriate them despite repeated protests from Peking.

BLAME CHINESE POLICY

In the view of U.S. experts here, the flow of people from China into Russia in recent months probably arises from unhappiness of the refugees with Communist Chinese Communist administration. They suggest the refugees dislike the drive by Chinese to set up communes or perhaps they were hungry.

A Westerner living in Moscow offered another reason for the exodus. He told The Associated Press Friday that Russians told him many of the fleeing Chinese were Moslems escaping religious persecution. At the time of the Chinese Communist takeover of the region, 14 years ago, thousands of Moslems fled southward into Kashmir, giving the same reason.

The U.S. sources in Washington discount the Chinese charge that the Soviets deliberately lured or forced the refugees into Russian territory, where they still remain. Rather, it is believed here that the Soviet Union merely accepted the refugees flow, though probably not with any disappointment.

Eastern bloc diplomatic informants express the opinion that Sino-Russian tension is not likely to flare into armed conflict soon because the Chinese do not have the military means to do much fighting along their lengthy border. Also, they believe the Soviet Union does not care to get into an armed involvement.

senting workers at the Continental Grain Company grain elevator where the ship is docked, have refused to load the ship in sympathy with the SIU.

Both the SIU and CMU are striving to be the bargaining agent for Upper Lakes. The dispute has been marked by labor violence in several Great Lakes ports.

The Shaw has been tied up at Continental's elevator since April 22.

On Aug. 13, Federal Judge James R. Parsons offered the longshoremen 30 days to comply with an injunction against their boycott and thereby avoid a fine for contempt of court. Parsons found the union in contempt of court Aug. 12 for failure to instruct workers to load the grain ship.

Meanwhile, authorities continued their investigation into the firing of eight rifle shots Tuesday night into the home of Donald Anderson, a partner in the grain storage and shipping company in Toledo, Ohio.

The company has been leading Canadian grain ships involved in the dispute over union representation.

Authorities said they have found no clues so far in the shooting in which no one was injured, although Mrs. Anderson and the couples four children were in the house at the time of the shooting.

Police Meeting On Monday To Be Secret

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario and federal police officials will meet here Monday to examine organized crime in the province.

Heads of police departments will discuss criminal developments with RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harvison and the Ontario Police Commission.

Judge Bruce Macdonald, chairman of the commission, said the meeting has been set up to see if there is any development in organized crime in the province and if present police methods are adequate to cope with them."

He said all meetings would be in private.

"Police work can't be done in public," he said, but added that open hearings may arise from the meetings.

"We may want to call witnesses just like the Roach commission did."

HOLD MEETING

Another meeting was staged Friday at the OPP headquarters here. Attending were OPP Commissioner Eric Silk, Assistant Commissioner Harold Graham, Inspector Earl Hatch of the OPP anti-gambling squad, Metropolitan Toronto Police Chief Mackell Clarke, former OPP Commissioner W. H. Clarke, now a police commission adviser, and 12 policemen representing nine Ontario cities and towns.

Judge Macdonald said chiefs present included those of Hamilton, London, Windsor, Niagara Falls, St. Catharines, Fort Erie, Peterborough and Guelph. The chief of the Ottawa force was unable to attend because of family illness.

He said the talks follow a directive from Attorney - General Frederick M. Cass to investigate a contention by Commissioner Harvison that a mafia - like crime organization exists in Ontario.

The subject will also be discussed unofficially at conventions of Canadian police chiefs in Hamilton next week, he said.

Judge Macdonald will address the convention Wednesday and Mr. Cass is scheduled to speak Thursday.

Many From Outside Canada Register at Albert College

Although the student body naturally is predominantly Canadian, the register at Albert College had a distinct international touch as school classes got underway this week for the fall term.

One hundred and seventy five students — up slightly from last year — are registered at the college. Fifteen of these are from outside Canada, while there are a number of others from different parts of Canada. The above total includes day students.

Eight students from Bermuda form the largest contingent from outside Canada. In addition there are three from the Barbados, two from Mexico and one each from Trinidad and Bogota in South America.

Also there are several students from Newfoundland and Quebec and one from British Columbia.

Registration for the fall term took place on Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday the students acquired the necessary new textbooks and on Friday got down to regular classes.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's a dress that does wonders for a matronly figure!"

"Electric heating has made a big improvement to our way of life—yet our heating bill is less than we used to pay and we didn't have all the advantages—"

says Mrs. J. H. Ulman, 41 Selkirk Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario.

"Having lived in my all-electric home 4 winters with electric heating, I couldn't think of living with any other form of heat. It's clean, healthy and surprisingly economical—"

says Mr. Edwin Walker,
19 Norene Street, Midland, Ontario.

"My experience with electric heating has been one of profound satisfaction, maximum safety, absolute cleanliness, no maintenance problems and complete heating comfort—"

says Helen Drombolis,
531 South Selkirk Street, Fort William, Ontario.

Is electric heating revolutionizing modern living?

There is no doubt that electric home heating is already revolutionizing modern living. Thousands of Ontario homes now have it and progressive builders are installing it in many of the latest homes now being built. This revolution is happening because no other heating system can compare to electric heating for comfort, safety, cleanliness and trouble-free operation.

What is all-electric home heating? This is a unique system of home heating that is as easy to understand and operate as your electric appliances. When the weather gets cool (at any time of year) you just turn a dial. At once your home is heated directly with electricity, through built-in units in each room.

Electric heating gives you a choice of heating systems. Electric baseboard heating fits snug along the wall at baseboard level. Insulated electric cable is hidden in the ceiling or below the floor. And there are other units, some that can be flush mounted in the ceiling or walls.

WHAT ALL-ELECTRIC HEATING DOES FOR YOU

Only electric heating gives you custom-comfort. You can dial exactly and precisely the temperature you want for any room in the house. That's because electric heating offers you a thermostat in every room.

There's such a healthful atmosphere with electric heating—never too dry.

Electric heat is gentle and constant. There are no cold spots in the home or uncomfortable blasts of hot air.

A safety breakthrough in home heating. The entire system is completely flameless.

The world's cleanest heating system. Next to sunlight, electric heating is the cleanest in the world. It cannot create dust, soot, smoke or dirt of any kind. It is completely odourless.

You get more living space. Because electric heating doesn't need a furnace you have extra living area in the basement.

Low installation cost. Electric heating is easy to install. No furnace or fuel tank is necessary. A simple extension to your wiring system is all that is required. And with electric heating there are no annual maintenance costs!

However, any home with electric heating should be built to Hydro standards of insulation.

What about operating costs? In many municipalities the rate for electric heating has been reduced as much as 30% during the last 2 years. This means that in some areas it costs less to heat a home electrically than with other systems. In other places, the cost is about the same. In the few areas where rates are still slightly higher, the difference is negligible compared to the extra value electric heating gives you.

Guaranteed installation. Choose an electric heating contractor who is qualified to back his work with the industry recognized Triple Seal of Quality guarantee. This guarantee covers both equipment and installation.

THE LONG-TERM ECONOMY OF ELECTRIC HEATING PROVES THAT IF YOU ARE BUILDING OR BUYING A NEW HOME, WHATEVER THE SIZE, THERE IS NO REASON WHY YOU SHOULD SETTLE FOR ANYTHING LESS THAN THE CUSTOM-COMFORT, SAFETY AND CLEANLINESS OF THE HEATING SYSTEM THAT IS REVOLUTIONIZING MODERN LIVING.

For more information and estimates, contact your qualified electric heating contractor or your local Hydro office.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME

If you are planning home extensions or parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

Dinner Menu

SATURDAY

Meat Loaf; Tomato Sauce; Pan Roasted Small New Potatoes; Parsley Carrots; Spinach, Watercress and Lettuce Salad with 1000 Island Dressing; Jekyll and Hyde Soufflé; (see Wednesday); Tea.

ANSWER:

Thank you for reminding me of the Foolproof Sponge Cake. It appeared here June 14/58.

FOOLPROOF SPONGE CAKE:

1¼ cups sifted cake flour, 1¼ cups white, sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt. 6 medium-sized eggs, separated, 2 tablespoons fresh, frozen or canned lemon juice, 2 tablespoons water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar.

Sift together 1 cup of the sugar, the flour and salt. In a large mixing bowl add to the egg yolks the lemon juice, water, vanilla and flour mixture and beat for at least 5 minutes with rotary or electric beater. Sprinkle cream of tartar over whites in large bowl and beat with rotary or electric beater. Start slowly to add remaining sugar and beat until glossy and stiff and all sugar is added. Pour egg-yolk mixture over whites and fold in until smooth and yellow color is uniform. Pour into pan which has been never been greased and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 to 50 minutes or until cake springs back when touched with finger tip. Invert on rack to cool 1 hour, then loosen sides carefully and pull cake from pan. Cut into 2 layers with long-bladed knife and apply filling as desired.

MIDNIGHT CHOCOLATE CAKE:

½ cup soft shortening, 1¼ cups sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup cocoa 1 cup cold water, 1½ cups sifted cake flour, ½ teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon soda, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening and sugar together until fluffy then beat in egg. Blend together cocoa and cold water. Sift together sifted flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Stir in flour mixtures alternately with cocoa-water mixture and add vanilla. Pour into 9" square pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 minutes. This may also be baked in 8" layer tins for 30 to 35 minutes.

Women's Activities

WELLINGTON — The regular meeting of Unit II of the United Church Women was held in Unit Room 1230 in the Centennial parlour. It was the second joint meeting with Unit IV this summer and they proved to be most enjoyable.

Quiet music brought the meeting to order and Mrs. Hicks welcomed the members and guests.

Mrs. Pierson reported an invitation had been extended by the Burr's Church ladies, to all groups, to attend their special meeting August 14th in the Allisonville Hall. Mrs. Smithrim of Trenton is to be the guest speaker.

The meeting was then turned over to the program convener Mrs. G. Tayler.

Mrs. Bishop was asked to take the worship service and to give the story of a well known hymn. She chose "Nearer My God To Thee." Mrs. Teskey read the story of the hymn's dream, which it is believed was the incentive for the writing of the hymn. This hymn written by Sarah Flower Adams has been a comfort to many during periods of stress and strain.

Sharon McNeill and Elaine Bishop sang the hymn as a duet. Their young voices blended beautifully and proved a delight to all.

The meeting following so closely the Wellington Village Centennial was such an opportune time to review the life of the church and its many organizations. Through the kindness of Mrs. Helen Harris loaning her historical note, Mrs. Tayler was able to present the dates of the founding of the organizations and recalled the names of the most interested people concerned with same.

Mrs. Tayler compiled and read a short interesting history of the first Methodist Church in Wellington erected in 1859, the burning of the church and parsonage in November 1896 and the present church which was built in 1907. The Women's Missionary Society was founded in 1901. Mrs. G. D. Platt of Picton organized this society. All the organizations were dealt with in the same manner, the names of the people responsible.

This completed a most interesting meeting and Mr. Trezise closed the meeting with prayer.

The usual social half-hour followed.

Help for the Blind

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I never miss your column, and get a lot of valuable information from it. Now I would like some information and my first thoughts turned to you.

I have my mother living with me. She is almost blind and she finds the time so long. I understand the Canadian Institute for the Blind will send out, free of charge, tape recorders and tape for the blind to use. Do you know where I could write about this? — FRANCES.

DEAR FRANCES—Right now the C.N.I.B. is switching their talking-book library over to tapes. This means that the reading which occupies several records and 18 to 20 hours may now be played off on one tape.

Write to: The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 406 Union St. West, Kingston. Ask to have a worker in your area call on your mother. He will find out about your mother's eye condition, cause and treatment, from her and her eye doctor.

If her sight can be improved the Institute may be able to help. If her loss of blindness is permanent your mother will qualify for receiving tapes, or to learn a hobby such as knitting, weaving, basketry, leathercraft. She may be taught Braille.

If she were younger she would also be helped to find a job.

DEAR DORIS — Twenty-six years ago it was necessary for me to have an operation. My youngest son was nine days old. I had all the vital organs removed. No more children. No more sex. And what a terrible feeling that was. Then I was only 23.

Since then, and being a widow for a number of years, I have learned to live without sex.

I've read a lot of good things in your column, Doris. Now I'd like to see this in print to see if others, like me, don't agree that it would be best for a man to marry a companion club together. That way, more of our kind could live happy lives, and not be alone and discarded at 40 or younger. What do your readers think? — VERY LONELY.

DEAR VERY LONELY — Many couples who have been denied anything more than warm affection are enjoying companionship within marriage. This happens when one or the other contracts a crippling disease — is confined to a wheelchair for life, or must nurse an ailing heart. You are not alone.

• • •

Confidential to BACHELOR — Here's your answer: "As soon as a young gentleman neglects all others, to devote himself to a single lady, he gives that lady reason to suppose that he is particularly attracted to her, and may give her cause to believe that she is to become engaged to him, without telling her so. A gentleman who does not contemplate matrimony should not pay too exclusive attention to any one lady."

So said John H. Young in "Our Deportment" (1883). He would have said that going steady otherwise was for the birds (or teen-agers).

DEAR DORIS — I would like some advice — I am 12 years old, and as something to do in my spare time, I design dresses by drawing pictures of them. I think I can too young to start a career, such as designing dresses for catalogues and other magazines. What should I do? — "?"

DEAR QUESTION MARK—Keep on with your sketches. You're not too young to start dreaming about a career as a dress designer. Learn about fabrics; learn how to make yourself a dress. Then get all the basic education you can take at public and high school and college, before you specialize.

(Doris cannot begin to answer all letters in the column. To make sure of an answer to your question, enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

The Experts Say

Must Understand Basic Principles of Cooking

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Etta Sawyer has a simple cooking philosophy—"play it by ear."

And she persuaded other women to do so at cooking shows, while demonstrating in the kitchen theatre of the Women's Building at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Detailed recipes are unnecessary if you understand the basic principles of cooking, says Mrs. Sawyer, a cooking teacher who learned culinary art from her mother and grandmother. The latter once was chef for the House of Esterhazy in the old Austro-Hungarian empire.

Even international specialties become second nature "when you understand why you are doing the things you are."

A pasta, Mrs. Sawyer says, is basic to the cooking of almost every nationality. If you can make a pasta, you can make dishes as different in character and flavor as Chinese won ton, Italian ravioli and Polish pierogi.

MAIN FIXINGS

For won ton, the small dough squares are filled with a veal or pork mixture and cooked in "which is simply molasses, vinegar, salt and pepper."

The main ravioli filling is of beef with tomato flavoring and favorite Italian spices—sweet basil and oregano. Polish cooks use fillings of potato and cheese, often sauerkraut or mushrooms.

Beef Stroganoff and Hungarian chicken paprikas are dishes Mrs. Sawyer learned in the kitchen of sour cream which adds the flavor to both." But the Russian sauce is also used while the Hungarians use chicken.

Strudel is claimed to be a German dish but its basic principle — alternating layers of butter and dough—is used by cooks of many nationalities, Mrs. Sawyer says.

Homemakers are often frightened from making an international dish by its name alone. "But just read over the ingredients and you will recognize it as something with which you are familiar."

"Tournedoes a la Bearnaise," for example, sounds complicated but is simply the tournedoes (filet) with filet prepared in a sauce similar to mayonnaise "which most women know how to make."

One of her dishes Mrs. Sawyer is often asked about is Boeuf a la Bourguignonne. "I want to know how to avoid the stained hands which result from cooking beets."

SIMPLE SOLUTION

Her solution is simple—use a meat stock instead of starting with fresh meat and then use canned, cooked and grated beets. "The long boiling time required by fresh meat and beets is eliminated."

Her recipe for borscht: Melt two pounds of bacon or other fat in a pan and add two cups of finely shredded beets, two sliced onions and salt and pepper to taste. Cover and cook slowly until soft and then stir in two tablespoons of flour and two cups of stock. Stir until the soup comes to a boil and simmer for 10 minutes. Carefully stir in ¾ cup sour cream.

Mrs. Sawyer recommends adding plain boiled potatoes and chopped fresh dill just before serving.

But she won't give a recipe for a casserole. Basic ingredients are a sauce and a backbone (rice or noodles) but while she will teach how to make a sauce, "from there on you can let your imagination run wild."

Women's Activities

WELLINGTON — An executive meeting of the United Church Women was held August 28th in the centennial parlor with eleven members present. The president, Mrs. H. Pierson, opened with prayer. It was recommended that the unit membership be the same for the coming year.

Owing to the resignation of Mrs. F. Rollings, Hostess Unit I, Mrs. Helen Campbell has accepted that leadership for the remainder of the year. Plans were made for the bazaar and tea-to be held December 4th; also plans for entertaining the outlying groups on October 24th at 2:30 p.m. were completed.

A nominating committee consisting of Mrs. B. Cronk (convener) Mrs. G. Parks, Mrs. C. Burr, Mrs. N. Foster and Mrs. L. Palmer was appointed, the report to be presented at the November general meeting.

Queen Elizabeth as a Housekeeper

By Helen Carthcart

NO one writes of the Queen with closer sympathy and insight than Helen Cathcart, author of the Queen's biography and other royal books. Here's the story of how Her Majesty has made Windsor Castle her own intensely personal setting, a home where she delights in having everything 'just right.'

LONDON—(Special to The Ontario Intelligencer) — "She has brought the sunshine in and chased out the clustering shadows . . . " So wrote Queen Eva of Spain when she visited Windsor Castle not long ago and, after a gay family dinner, our own Queen showed her round the rooms she has recently had redecorated.

Queen Eva remembered the unoccupied Windsor rooms of her childhood—"dead rooms," she called them then — full of dust-sheathed furniture where the royal small fry played hide-and-seek with delicious terror. Now she found them aglow with light and space, furnished with fine modern pieces that drew unexpected yet sympathetic nuances from their old ancestral setting.

One afternoon the Queen and Prince Philip got together with Sir Hugh and Lady Casson to judge the effect of vivid white and pale rose wallpapers planned up in rooms that been hung with faded damask as long as anyone could remember.

The Cassons are a distinguished husband-and-wife team in contemporary interior design and the demonstration was so promising that the Queen commissioned them to remodel and furnish a set of rooms in the Edward III tower in the distinctive and elegant style of today.

The Queen has heard of this terrific royal home-making project, understandably because the intrusive camera could mar the interior and spoil the Queen's own enjoyment in showing the rooms to her guests.

THE QUEEN CHECKED DRAWINGS

The high arched windows and curved inner walls were challenging features and the Queen no doubt had them in mind when she took an hour off one day to explore a new modernist circular building near London airport. The Queen experimented herself with drawings and models, fabrics and carpets. She spent an afternoon with a friend flicking through some wallpaper pattern books to acquaint herself with current designs. Moreover, to ensure that the furniture represents the best of our time, Her Majesty invited a jury of the Furniture Makers' Guild to scrutinize every piece she bought.

The Guild Mark — their certificate of quality — was awarded to eighteen pieces, from dressing-tables to armchairs, an indication that modernity is unlikely to fault them for quality of materials or workmanship. Some were specially designed for the Queen. But many were in fact standard mass-produced furnishings such as you or I can buy.

Perhaps few of us realize how seldom Windsor Castle was occupied in preceding reigns. The private apartments came to life only for Easter week and royal Ascot. King George V and Queen Mary were contentedly snug in London. King George VI and the present Queen Mother preferred their quiet weekends at Royal Lodge. In engaging contrast, the Queen has made the Castle very much her own home.

The Queen's manner once reported, "Somebody has been moving the furniture in the Green Drawing Room. We've moved it all back again!" But it turned out that the Queen and Prince Philip had been shifting the heavy Regency furniture themselves to see if they could create a more sociable atmosphere.

The pieces were freshly replaced exactly as they planned. In King George's day the rooms were photographed for the servants' reference so that nothing need ever be changed. But the Queen prefers variety and Household officials say, "We're switching things around the whole time."

USES SMALL APARTMENT

The Queen prefers to work in her living room, her "everyday room" as it is sometimes called. So a formal study with a big double-sided desk was turned into an intimate dining-room and a small room used for filing cabinets nearby became an extra kitchen.

Whenever the Queen arrives at Windsor she always sees her housekeeper, Mrs. Edith Holmes, who has been on the Windsor staff for 18 years. The Queen discusses her plans and deals with any special problems that have arisen. A memo pad on the royal desk with a printed heading, "Memorandum from Her Majesty The Queen" is ready for day-to-day instructions and proves more convenient than the house telephone.

"The windows are so high that one must not have narrow fringe on the pelmets," was a typical staff message in the Queen's writing when new curtains were under discussion. Or the housekeeper may be reminded that an anticipated guest suffers from an allergy and should not have flowers in her room. In this way, the Queen necessarily delegates her housekeeping duties and yet remains in supreme control.

Many standing instructions also insure smooth efficiency, as in any large household. In the Queen's sitting-room, for instance, there hangs a large portrait of Queen Charlotte with her plump and amusing baby. The dominant draperies are mulberry red and blue in color and the flowers arranged nearby must always be matched in color harmony. In the same way, an occasional room at the Castle contains an unequalled array of plaques, medallions and ornaments in Jasper Wedgwood and only two members of the staff are permitted to keep this priceless collection in order.

When the Queen decided to spend more time at Windsor, she found great enjoyment in rearranging many of the personal things from her early married days in Clarence House. There is a satinwood chest of drawers of bedroom style, for example, in which the Queen likes to keep her everyday odds and ends. Her Majesty has a very fine Chippendale mahogany desk which formed a wedding gift from the people of Berkshire — and where is it better used than at Windsor, the Queen's Berkshire residence?

GIFT PRICES USED

Nearly everything around the Queen rightly has special significance. (Even her bedside rug was a gift from a Melbourne arts group and the Queen is fond of a workaday and standard lamp made of wood from the blitzed House of Commons.) Luncheon guests are probably unaware that the fruit dishes were from the Australian government, that the silver was a gift from the Grenadier Guards. But the Queen knows.

Even the carpets underfoot at Windsor have a story to tell. Many were hastily Aubusson presented by General de Gaulle to the huge floral Waltons, with the initials 'V' and 'A,' made for Queen Victoria. Her Majesty resourcefully had some of her rather threadbare carpets patched underneath with canvas but the Waltons went back to the factory. Working a textile exhibition, the Queen stopped by at the Wilton stand and enquired with mock gravity, "And how are my carpets getting on?" It helped to hasten repairs!

Similarly, when a new carpet was needed for the White Drawing Room, Her Majesty stipulated that it should be typical of our time and should thus be devised from the Commonwealth. In one piece, over ten yards square, the carpet was woven in Hong Kong, the backing being of Pakistani cotton yarn and Malayan latex, the wool from New Zealand and the United Kingdom.

Before the Queen became chatelaine at Windsor, there had been done in the way of renovation for some years. There were no wall or bedside lights and the central heating was on a restricted circuit. But the maintenance budget was annually increased and the Queen found that if she needed electric connectors, her quick labor-saving solution to the heating problem, economy was essential in buying new curtains.

FABRIC RESTORER

Stocks of silk and damask are, of course, kept in store for repairs to curtains, sills and upholstery. Lengths of material are laid out in the sun to fade and thus match the old. Yet some fabrics are irreplaceable. Not long ago the Queen heard of the remarkable success achieved by Lady Meade-Fetherstonaugh in restoring old fabrics with the infusions of the Isle saponaria. The traditional recipe is used at Uppark, a house owned by the National Trust in Sussex, and the Queen went to Uppark to see for herself.

She watched the infusion spread on brush-ed on the old brocade. It then set, thereby regaining color and strength. As a result, saponaria is being tried at Windsor and I hear that worn 18th century upholstery has responded favorably to treatment.

A peculiar difficulty of Windsor housekeeping is that the contents are technically the responsibility of the Lord Chamberlain while the structure is in the care of the Ministry of Works and both departments have to keep watch on expenditure.

The Queen put up for a long time with a bathroom so inconvenient that she had to climb into the bath from the back, and so high—with its 20-foot ceiling—that it was almost impossible to heat. Eventually a false ceiling was put in, and the room was tiled in white, with a air-food bath to match, but the finishing touches were left to the Queen.

ASKED FOR DESIGNS

Characteristically she asked young textile design students of the Royal College of Art if they would like to submit designs for certain material for her personal bathroom. A final selection of the work of five students was offered and the Queen chose a rose design by Brenda Noble, which incidentally did much to launch Miss Noble's career as a fabric designer.

The Queen once said in a forthright way that "woman's paramount duty will always be in the home" but she has summed up her philosophy as the chatelaine of Windsor Castle in even closer terms. "A people whose level of good sense in art was once reflected in the furniture of Chippendale and Hepplewhite cannot rest content," she once said. "It is for us to establish that beauty is as essential to utility as it proverbially is to truth."

Hot Summer Not Necessarily Best Time to Take Holidays

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

So the Labor Day weekend is past and you haven't had your vacation yet. Well, congratulate yourself. You're one of the lucky ones.

The idea that summer is the only time to take a holiday has had some validity once, before the days of air conditioning when it was too hot to work, and the only way to get away from the heat was to flee to the seashore or mountains — where it was usually as hot as anywhere else.

But the world goes on regardless of season, and in many ways, a lot more interestingly. During the summer, it's more expensive to travel, to eat, and to sleep — wherever you go. It's also more crowded, and as a crowning injustice, many of the people you'd hope to meet are away themselves, and many of the things you'd want to see, (plays, museums) may be shut down for the summer.

Most important, much of what the world has to offer is at its best at other seasons.

Some places don't really have seasons, or the so-called high season isn't necessarily reliable, climatically, as the off-season. Southern Florida may be very pleasant in winter, for example, but it may also be cold. And Gulf Coast winters often send citizens flocking to the Gold Coast to shake the shivers. Southern California is too hot and humid in summer, while San Francisco varies little in climate from winter to equinox.

ALL THE SAME

Among places where you can hardly tell winter from summer, and where you'll find them are Mexico, Hawaii, the Caribbean islands and Bermuda. Among tropical magnets that are at their climatic worst in summer are Arizona, Egypt, Israel, India, most of Europe (though that's when most people want to go) and a few dozen other desert or tropical spots that would make you wish you were back in the air-conditioned or well-ventilated places where you spend the other 50 weeks of the year.

As a matter of fact, it's a lot easier to find warm places in winter than cool places in summer. Among them are the American Southeast and Southwest, the West Indies, and the entire continental area of Australia and Africa — where the seasons are the opposite of ours.

So much for climate. What other reasons for off-season travel?

Japan's famed cherry blossoms burst forth, like other blossoms, only in spring. So do Washington's. So do Holland's tulips.

The time to see one of the world's rarest sights, Scandinavia's midnight sun, is in the spring.

Those who glory in autumn foliage will find it, naturally, only in autumn. Among the places where they are at their best are Colorado, New England and New York State.

Festivals? There are roundups and rodeos in the west from now on, also state and county fairs in the east-country and the one after that as far as the eye can see. Munich has its Oktoberfest, the world's largest beer blast. The Scandinavian countries have a coordinated art and theatre festival in the late spring. And carnivals in Rio, Port-of-Spain, New Orleans, and many other cities throughout the world can come only at Lent.

OTHER REASONS

Other practical reasons for non-summer travel:

It's more comfortable. Air travel comfort and the unavailability of an air-conditioned hotel room is no longer a calamity.

It's cheaper. Special off-season rates go into effect in nearly all forms of public transportation, as well as hotels and resorts.

The food's better. There aren't so many tourists to feed in the restaurants. And the service is better — there aren't so many tourists tipping big.

Space is available on carriers and in hotels. You can change your plans with a freer mind.

You'll appreciate a vacation more in the fall, winter or spring. You work harder in those months than in the summer, and have greater need of rest and diversion.

For those who still relish the summer, a month or two of it is still left in many parts of the world. If so, we've had a pleasant few weeks between trips fishing and golfing at home. Now hand us our hunting rifle, skis, hats and coats; we'll keep busy until the torpor of summer lulls us again.

A Nation in Revolt

Kenya as Viewed Through Eyes of Canadian Student

By James McAuley

ARTICLE 3

NAIROBI, Kenya — On June 1, Kenya assumed control of her domestic affairs. For the first time in many centuries, the Indigenous Africans, this event marked the end of the longest and most violent racial revolt in all of East Africa. But while the revolution has been fought and won, its leaders are themselves now immersed in deep and very serious conflict.

For that strategic void of dominant power left by the white Europeans has not as yet been filled by either the regional or central governments. The constitution hammered out in London last spring attempted a compromise between these two opposing factions. Substantial powers over administration, local government, law and order are diffused to the seven Regional Assemblies. However, a strong Bill of Rights was traded by the centralist KANU leaders for the decisive federal powers over security and major revenues. With this constitution as law for only two and a half months, both sides seek the precedents in practice that will allow one or the other faction to rule the power void. The final Constitutional Conference is set for September 25 in London.

BIG TRIBAL DIFFERENCES

However, the present conflict is not merely a struggle between the principles of federalism and regionalism if this were so, one could simply refer the KADU regionalists to Madison's Federalist Papers, and proceed to support Mr. Kenyatta's centralist KANU government. Functional academic grounds. But in fact this conflict cuts far more deeply across national life than the foregoing would tend to suggest.

Primarily, then, the central conflict arises from very real tribal differences and rivalries that simply have not yet been able to transcend. Just as in Canada where a successful party must draw support from both of our cultures, so in Kenya the tribal barriers must be overcome. Until the present failure in this lies ultimately not with the parties that grew up very recently, but rather with the British Colonial Office that refused their power to those local dynamic African leaders within a successful national party system.

LEADERS CAUSE CONFLICT

This was not the case. Thus Kenya's present conflict has been further aggravated by the three or four public figures who are personally involved in the situation. In struggling for personal power beyond that which their parties can offer, they tend very often to take an extreme and popular view where a moderate stand would be more realistic if less advantageous.

Very recently, for example, Prime Minister Kenyatta with Mr. Mboya, his heir who is more or less apparent, and several centralist KANU ministers staged a militant rally in the heart of KADU Opposition strength — the coast region. At one point in the very impressive and emotional address, Mr. Mboya seized the morning papers that had suggested the rally and a party move for support; he tore them up and thrust them to the ground. Instantly several aides rushed up and set fire to them. This had the effect of inducing everyone to throw his newspaper into the fire. The spectacle at Mombasa stadium recalled to mind the heaps of books burning in the streets of Hitler's Berlin.

THREATS AND DEMANDS

The KADU Opposition, led by Mr. Ngala of Coast Region, has countered and provoked government action with threats of its own. Demands for regional autonomy have come from the Rift Valley and the Coast; and these demands are backed up with threats of secession. Apart from attempting to secure his own power, Mr. Ngala appears to be fighting for a just cause.

As President of KADU and Premier of Coast Region, he is recognized leader of the many minority races and groupings in Kenya. These smaller groups and tribes fear the strong alliance of Inland Leo and Kikuyu tribes that dominates the KANU government of Mr. Kenyatta. They feel that their rights can be protected only through a strongly regional constitution.

As the situation stands, it is virtually impossible for the central government to strengthen its position through legal amendment to the constitution. In view of the extreme positions taken and of the kind of public diplomacy being used to secure support for those positions, the use of physical force becomes a real and constant danger. Both of the key figures, Mr. Mboya and Mr. Ngala, are known for rational men: The former is a political statesman in the many countries, and the latter like Mr. Ngala is hereditary King of the Mijikenda tribal tribe — the Giriama. They have negotiated before at the conference tables in London and Malawi.

However, a resolution to the present conflict must mean decision by these two men. When I asked Mr. Ngala his reaction to the KANU use of force in instituting a new centralist constitution, he replied that he was prepared to counter any force with force of his own. And although the hot summer mouths this wretched threat of war has hung in the atmosphere of Kenya.

with the aim of reducing the number of hard-core, chronic welfare recipients.

This was impossible in the present "quicksand" of overlapping agencies and restrictive regulations. Every party active in the provincial and federal governments took pleasure in writing regulations that nobody else could understand.

WANTS NO PROFIT

Prof. Morgan said the senior governments should make welfare easier to them governments without strings attached.

"Repetitious financial checks are wasteful and ineffective."

He said welfare officials sometimes are "lamentably bad" and have a "moral indifference" they lack practical training. University education and on-the-job training were initially different things.

Most provinces had too much centralized welfare administration and a trend toward devolution of authority had begun. It would be wrong for every large village and hamlet to have its own welfare service, but local control was vital. City and county officials seemed best suited to handle the job.

There were more than 500 pieces of legislation governing welfare programs in Canada and most of them had been written by non-lawyers who were not sufficiently aware of the rights of the individual.

Mr. Morgan said the provincial welfare departments should allocate grants on a population basis and set uniform policies and objectives. The rest should be left to local authorities.

ACCUSES PREMIER

Meanwhile, Mr. Wintermeyer accused the premier of putting on a show of cooperating with the federal pension plan but having no intention of accepting it.

"Who does Mr. Roberts think he is kidding?" the Liberal leader asked an election meeting audience of about 300 at Chatham.

Earlier, at a press conference in St. Thomas, he described the pensions issue as still the key one of the campaign and said he intends to keep it alive until Mr. Roberts makes some drastic revision in the Ontario plan that will allow the federal pension plan to proceed.

Without such a revision, the national plan was doomed.

"Ontario industry cannot afford two such plans and Ontario workers cannot afford them either," he said.

ATTACKS SPOONER

Mr. Wintermeyer also attacked at Chatham Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner for "wild and stupid words" in the minister's replies to Liberal charges that the auditors report on the Eastview municipal investigation was doctored by the government.

He repeated his accusations that the report of the auditors on the affairs of the Ottawa area municipality was doctored.

At a coffee party at the YMCA building in St. Thomas, the Liberal leader hit back at allegations that the Liberals are carrying on a mud-slinging campaign.

"We do not condone mud-slinging," he said, "But I am determined that we will call a spade a spade." The Conservative government was ridden with scandal and ineptitude.

CRITICIZES RECORD

Mr. Wintermeyer in the House proves that Wintermeyer could not fight his way out of a wet sack.

"He is equipped with a few very capable Madison Avenue boys who write glowing speeches which are completely out of character for the weakest boy in town to proclaim from the rooftops."

Mr. MacDonald promised that a vote for the NDP would mean automobile insurance at cost and wider coverage at rates one-third less than charged now by private companies.

At a press conference at Kirkland Lake, he criticized the government for not making credit easier for Northern Ontario industry secondary industry.

In a pre-recorded free - time CBC television broadcast, Mr. MacDonald pledged for the removal of the economic barrier from higher education.

conference, although Quebec also was known to have rejected the plan.

Attorney - General Robert Walker of Saskatchewan, one of 1,500 lawyers at the CBA convention, said the 1961 formula failed because it attempted to increase provincial rights to benefit French Canadians.

MUST BENEFIT ALL

It was a mistake to equate the French Canadian with Quebec. "Any move to secure special equality must benefit French Canadians across Canada."

In an interview, he said Saskatchewan still supports a national pool made at the 1961 conference under which a constitutional amendment would be possible when it was approved by the federal Parliament and two-thirds of the provinces with two-thirds of the population.

This would give both Quebec and Ontario a right of veto, a condition Saskatchewan was prepared to accept.

He described Mr. Chevrier's proposal as "a step ahead of anything heard at the last conference" because the justice minister had intimated the study would not only be to obtain an amending formula but to streamline the constitution.

"In its present form the constitution is sterile and restrictive. It must be redeveloped and reconstituted to ensure equality and to enshrine the rights of our dual nationalities."

Mr. Walker said Saskatchewan would support a constitution under which a province could reject a federal program but the program could be carried out to benefit other provinces.

died in Trinidad, the victim of yellow fever.

The Lake Erie battle, Barclay's force consisted of six ships. However. They were generally larger than the Americans ships and out-gunned the American 63 to 54.

None of the ships was considered either large or fast for its day. The smaller gunboats were about 80 feet long. The Lawrence, Perry's flagship, was only 120 feet long and the Detroit, Barclay's flagship, was 126 feet.

On Sept. 10, 1813, the American, near Middle Bass Island, spotted the British fleet on the horizon. Then things started going wrong for Perry.

U.S. FLAGSHIP HIT

Perry's vessel and a gunboat, Caledonia, suddenly were the only American ships in the battle. Lack of wind kept the others out of range and for nearly two hours the two largest British ships, the Detroit and the Queen Charlotte, literally ripped the Lawrence to pieces.

Of the 103 men aboard the Lawrence, only 20 escaped unhurt.

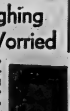
Barclay, who had lost an arm in an naval battle, was wounded twice.

Finally, after the Lawrence was completely disabled, the winds freshened and the Niagara moved into the action. Perry left his crippled Lawrence and in a rowboat made to the Niagara.

Barclay never received the Niagara between the British ships and started raking the battle-ravaged Lawrence from both sides. In 15 minutes—about 3 p.m.—the British ships surrendered.

The fleets had about 500 men each. Of the Americans, 27 were killed and 96 wounded. The British suffered 41 deaths and 62 wounded.

RESCUE 28 MEN



QUONSET POINT, R.I. (AP) A squadron of U.S. navy helicopter Friday evacuated 28 men from two Texas towers off Cape Cod, once part of the air defence early warning system and now being dismantled. The structures, similar to one which collapsed in a 1961 winter storm off the New Jersey coast with a cost of 10 lives, were being shaken by gales and pounded by heavy seas.

Self-Conscious Laughing Teen Has Friends Worried

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last October my mother-in-law died of cancer. She was sick for five years and there were heavy medical expenses. When she died my father-in-law announced that he didn't have enough money to pay for the funeral.

The four children felt it was their responsibility to help so we all took out loans and have been paying on those loans ever since.

Three months after his wife was buried my father-in-law bought a new car (there was nothing wrong with the car he had). Last month he took a pleasure trip.

Every one of the four children is married and has his own family obligations. We think it is wrong that we should be stuck with the funeral bill which, rightfully, the husband of the deceased should be paying.

No one has the courage to say a word to him and I am burned up. I wish you would print this letter in the paper and comment. — EDITH.

DEAR EDITH — It's odd that one mother can raise four children, but that four children can't bury one mother.

Five years of cancer can be mighty expensive. It may well be that since your father-in-law is free of those terrible medical bills he has a little extra money around for the first time in ages. In my book you're way out of line.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Maybe you will figure this letter is too foolish to print but it is important to us kids, so please give it a second look.

There is one girl in our crowd (we are all 14 and 15) who is really a good kid. The trouble is she has a habit of laughing very loud at just about anything that is said. Some of the things she laughs at aren't the least bit funny.

When she talks, she laughs at the end of almost every sentence. Why does she do this? I mentioned it to my mother and she says she and her friends does the same thing. She can't figure it out either. Can you? — THE QUESTIONER.

DEAR QUESTIONER — Sometimes people laugh because they are self-conscious. Laughter releases tension.

In the case of your friend, and probably your mother's friend, too, the laughter may not have anything to do with humor. Once you understand this it makes "senseless" laughter easier to tolerate.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a girl 18 who graduated from high school last spring. My father will send me to the local teachers' college if I want to go. I can't make up my mind. Please help.

I started to go with this fellow five months ago. He is 20, and has three small children. His wife died last year. He's a very nice person and we get along well together, but I don't know if I am able to be a mother to his three children. They are all spoiled because their grandparents have catered to their every whim since their mother died. To be honest, I think I'd have my hands full.

My parents have not tried to influence me one way or the other. I think I am writing to you because I want you to tell me, "Don't Marry Him." What does this sound like to you? — DON'T KNOW MY OWN MIND.

DEAR DON'T KNOW — "Don't Marry Him." This is indeed what you want to hear, so I am telling you.

Your job as a policeman is pretty obvious and the questions you raise are valid ones. If you wish to continue to see this man, along with others, I see no reason why you should not. But marriage at this time — no.

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Gifts are very much a part of a wedding, and the problem of who should give what to whom often gets very involved. For the sake of clarification, here are some frequent questions and their corresponding answers:

1. Do guests at an engagement party bring gifts?

2. Is a gift a "must" when one attends a bridal shower?

3. When are wedding guests, are supposed to send gifts?

4. Is it necessary to send a gift in response to a wedding announcement?

5. Should the bride give each of her attendants a gift?

6. Do her attendants give the bride a gift?

7. Should they send wedding presents, the same as wedding guests?

8. Is it necessary to send a wedding gift if a present already had been given at a bridal shower?

9. Do the bride and groom exchange wedding presents?

10. Is it necessary for the groom to give his attendants gifts, too?

Answers:

1. No, although members of the family may give gifts if they so desire.

2. Yes. If an invited guest cannot attend, a gift should be sent anyway.

3. Those invited to the reception should send wedding presents. A gift is not necessary if one is invited only to the ceremony.

4. No.

5. It's customary.

6. While the bride gives each of her attendants a gift as a reminder of the wedding, it's not necessary for the maid of honor and bridesmaids to give her one in return.

7. Yes. Attendants of both bride and groom send presents in advance of the wedding.

8. It's customary, if one is invited to the reception, but it's not necessary to send a wedding gift if the shower present was chosen to serve both purposes.

9. Usually something in the jewelery category.

10. The groom gives his attendants gifts in addition to supplying them with gloves and ties. These are usually presented at the bachelor dinner which precedes the wedding.

A Lift for Living

God Revives Tortured Souls As He Does Charred Forests

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Much of my consultation ministry is conducted at my study at Hidden Brook, a forty - acre plot of midwestern forest graced by a singing brook and adorned by ponds that mirror evergreen trees and reflect the white magnificence of birch clusters. Visitors to my study often remark about the beauty of the birches that guard the trail leading to my door. Guests are also impressed by the enormous size of the charred pine stumps that darkly crouch on the forest floor in the shadows of the birches.

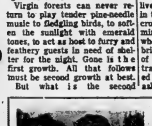
Sometimes, when my visitor is one seeking solace because tragedy has seared his life, I point to the blackened pine stumps and to the birch trees and tell the parable of how this once-tortured land has been reseemed. Somewhat more than a half a century ago the stumps still rooted on our land bore the magnificent boles of towering pines that reached nearly one hundred feet above the forest carpeted forest floor in this dense white pine woodland bathed by muted light, chickadees called, squirrels scampered over the trees' lean limbs, and dear browsed along the edges of the woods.

FOREST WAS DOOMED

But the shadow-haunted forest was doomed. Man, the great despoiler, came. His axe and saw dropped the majestic pines, and as they fell they crushed countless other trees beneath their monstrous forms. The timber was dispatched to the east coast for making mats and spars for the world' great ships. It was shipped to lumberyards for the making of pine panelling, doors, floors, window sashes, furniture, and innumerable commodities needed in a growing America. Following the greedy axe and saw came the rabid, ravenous fires. Sometimes they were set by a careless lumberjack's pipe, or again they were kindled with the intention of burning brush and trash and then vaulted out of control.

Now fire-blackened stumps, charred memories of extravagant waste, huddle beneath Hidden Brook birches. These remnants of past glories recall the massacre of the green giants that once stood vigil over the land and the scowling stubs remind us that the land can never again be the same.

Virgin forests can never return to play tender pine-needle music to fledgling birds, to soften the sunlight with emerald tones, to act as host to furry and feathery guests in need of shelter for the night. Gone is the first growth. All that follows must be second growth at best.



But what is the second growth? When nature had a second chance at Hidden Brook the earth became covered with white birches. Among the frowning remains of ancient white pines the graceful birches now stand in glorious white profusion. This has occurred because with the felling of the pine forests the ground was exposed to the skies. For the first time in unnumbered centuries a flood of light covered the forest floor where the dormant birch seeds lay. Birches love light and require an abundance of it for growth. So the cut-over, burnt-over acres provided an ideal nursery for infant white birches. Now the birches are grown and most of us in this midwest North Country believe their beauty surpasses that of white pines. There they stand, protectively covering the scorched pine stumps, signs of the pardoning grace of nature and the forgiving mercy of nature's God.

SECOND CHANCE

So the white birches are pointed out to people who suffer from burnt-over lives, some whose marriages are seared by bitter disappointment, some who have dismally failed in worthwhile undertakings and who are now scarred with shame, regret, and memories are blackened by moral failure. Beautiful birches represent the second chance God gives scorched and seared souls. There is no devastation that God cannot heal.

Job, one of the most beautifully, brilliantly portrayed characters of the Old Testament, knew God as "Redeemer." He had nearly everything any heart could desire: health, a good wife, a large family, friends, immense wealth, and happiness. From this height of contentment he was plunged into abject misery when he lost his property, then his children, then his health. His wife, grieved by his pathetic condition, pleaded with him to "curse God and die."

The book of Job describes a debate held between Job on the one hand and three of his friends on the other concerning the nature of evil, why it comes upon people, and what should be our attitude toward it. Few verses of Old Testament Scripture are more beloved than the cry of Job in the midst of his misery: "I know that my Redeemer liveth." That certainly is central in the life of faith. Amidst life's cruel changes we must keep in mind that there is a loving God who redeems, who salvages, who brings an improved Job out of fiery trials, faith out of frustration, birches out of blackened forest land, beauty from ashes.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Belleville "Ghosts" will not wander through the misty arenas of the Ottawa Valley District Hockey League this winter.

Whoever they are, whatever they are and wherever they are, they can forget about chasing pucks in the snowy wilderness of the down-east areas because their entry, it says in a Kingston story, was turned down because of their geographical position.

To quote the story: "Belleville was represented by Lorne Cook, past president of the OHA but his motion was turned down because of the extra travelling involved for the teams in the league."

A Kingston entry was accepted by the league powers-that-be with certain restrictions. But, it appears, the Limestone City club must first obtain the blessing of the Ontario Hockey Association because the territory of that esteemed body ends at Gananoque.

I don't imagine there will be any trouble along these lines but it could be the Kingston team's box-office take may get an extra jab for each game played.

I'm going along with this on the assumption the OHA has the same ruling as the OVDHL had during the halycon days of senior "A" hockey when teams from Cornwall and Pembroke, both in Ottawa Valley territory were members of the Eastern Senior "A" circuit.

At that time, if memory is correct, these clubs were obliged to cough up twelve bucks per game to the defunct league in the valley area.

What some people, including myself, are wondering, is what would have happened if Belleville entry had been accepted? I've been out of touch with matters operation for the past two weeks due to the curse of the annual vacation, and the accumulated mail, in some, would have it that this department has not been added to the hockey club's mailing list.

Inquiries around the city revealed no definite information although one source said a rumor was going the rounds that some City Commercial Hockey League clubs had been approached with view to merging sponsorship and entering a team in the senior loop.

However Mr. Cook could have had some substance and a team from this city was a possibility, because knowing him as I do, he does not enter clubs in a league without contacting definite behind the move.

The teams in the new Ottawa Valley set-up are believed Kingston, Morrisburg, Prescott-Kemptville Combines, Cornwall, Brockville and Ottawa Montagnards.

The loop, however, laid down some stiff rules regarding players. The larger centres of Kingston and Ottawa will play "home-brews" in the strictest sense of the word. Imports are out and eligible players must have resided in the various cities as of September 1, 1963.

Kingston, the story goes, has no restrictions regarding reinstated professionals albeit Ottawa was told it could not use any more than two of this type of player. This leaves the door open for Kingston to use Dick Cherry and Harry Sinden if they remain there this winter.

It is impossible at this point to estimate what fan reaction will be had Belleville entered a team in the league, but if the box-office reception given Lansmy Landrade's intermediates in the 1961-62 season can be judged a criterion it is just as well the mysterious entry was rejected.

And speaking of hockey, one Isaac Bruce Hildebrand, late of the Belleville McFarlands has been appointed coach of the London Nationals of the western junior B hockey league for the 1963-64 season. National officials said that if their application for entry into junior "A" division is accepted next spring, the will get first chance at the coaching job.

Saskys Meet Eskimos

Lions Clash With Stamps

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

A battle of popgun offences, probably will be the feature in one of two Western Football Conference games tonight.

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos, who have found it a formidable task to cross goal lines this year, meet at Edmonton's Clarke Stadium.

First-place Calgary Stampeders face second-place British Columbia Lions in Vancouver in the second contest.

Roughriders have averaged only nine points a game in their first six contests. Edmonton is not much better, with an average of 12.

The encounter is an important one for both teams, but especially so for Eskimos. With but one victory in five games, Edmonton needs a win desperately to stay in the running for one of three playoff berths.

USES SAME STRATEGY

Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs says he will go with the same strategy employed in earlier games. "We have tried to open every game up. When you do that, anything goes."

Back in the Calgary lineup are tackle Don Luzzi and guard Tony Palackowski, who were out with injuries when Lions defeated Calgary 22-19 in their first meeting this year.

B.C. forced to share second place following Winnipeg's 28-20 victory over Toronto Friday night, will be minus tackle Mike Lucic and end Mike Martin, both out with injuries.

CHANGE COURSE

MONZA, Italy (AP)—The big speed section of the world famous Monza race track was eliminated from Sunday's Grand Prix of Italy race when drivers complained it was virtual suicide and threatened to withdraw. A government commission inspected the 2.6-mile track after a protest by 20 of the Grand Prix's 32 entrants, and declared it lacked proper protection along places where spectators will be crowded.

Lose To Blue Bombers 25-20 ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Argo Fans Give Parker Bronx Cheer

TORONTO (CP)—This was to be the year Toronto Argonauts came out of the wilderness. And Jackie Parker was the Moses who was to lead them.

Things seemed to have worked out in reverse—the Argos apparently have led Parker, the quarterback who for years dazzled Edmonton Eskimos fans with his brilliant running, into the woods with them.

Friday night it was the same story as it has been for Toronto's last five games. They lost—25-20 to Winnipeg Blue Bombers—and remained in the Eastern Football Conference cellar with five defeats and one victory.

The fans who booked to Parker for great things exercised their vocal chords in disapproval Friday night. It sounded as if all 29,902 in attendance were booing him as the Argos trailed 7-0 midway through the first half.

And they cheered late in the game when substitute quarterback Don Fuell was cast in with the Argos losing 25-13.

Fuell engineered one more touchdown for Toronto, but it wasn't enough and the Bombers won the Canadian Football League's knocking affair, advancing to a second-place tie in the Western Conference.

Argo fans shouldn't have laid all the blame at Parker's feet.

LEO LEWIS STARS

The real story of the game was in the feet of swift Winnipeg halfback Leo Lewis. Then there was the Argonaut offensive line, which provided Toronto runners with only 76 rushing yards in the game.

The Bombers rushed for 340, with Lewis accounting for 158 yards, including a 92-yard touchdown jaunt in the final quarter which proved to be the winning score.

Lewis scored another touchdown for Winnipeg. Farrell Funston added the others, and George Flemming, a Toronto castoff, scored three converts, a single and a 29-yard field goal.

New import end Jack Elwell, defensive halfback John Wydareny and Dick Shatto scored the Toronto touchdowns, with Fuell adding two converts. Shatto's score moved him all alone into the Eastern Conference scoring race, with five touchdowns.

Funston opened the game's scoring in the first quarter when he took a third-down jump pass from Bomber quarterback Kenny Ploen for five yards.

With the aid of a roughing-the-kicker penalty on third down near midfield, Argos moved in to tie the score on Parker's 19-yard toss to Elwell in the end zone.

With just over a minute to play in the first half, Argos took the lead when Wydarezny, a rookie from University of Western Ontario crashed through to block a kick by Jack Delveaux and followed it into the end zone for a touchdown. The convert was missed, and Argos led 13-7.

RUNS IT YARDS

Flemming clicked for his field goal early in the third quarter, and then Lewis scored his first touchdown. He took a lateral from Funston, who had completed a 36-yard pass from Ploen, and ran the final 17 yards.

After the Bombers recovered Gordie Rowland's short kick on the ensuing kickoff, they moved in far enough to allow Flemming to try a 32-yard field goal, which went wide for a single. This left the Bombers ahead 18-13.

Lewis put the game away in the fourth quarter, smashing off-tackle from his own 18 and going all the way. Fuell moved the Argos into a score on a five-yard third-down toss to Shatto.

Argos spent the final five minutes bottled up in their own end and never threatened again.

Toronto had a slight margin of 106 to 104 in the air as both Fuell completed 10 of 22 passes. Ploen and Hal Ledyard completed six in 13 attempts for 96 yards, and Lewis threw for a seven-yard gain. The Bombers had 20 first downs to 13 for Toronto.

The victory for Winnipeg avenged a 26-13 beating the Argos gave the Bombers in a pre - season exhibition game, ironically, Lynn Amadee, the man who quarterbacked Toronto to that victory, was put on waivers Friday.

CFL action continues in the east today with Hamilton Tiger-Cats playing the Rough Riders in Ottawa, Sunday, Winnipeg will be in Montreal to tackle the surging Alouettes.

Hydroplane Racing Sunday

Assured of entries from Picton, Trenton and Rossmore, the Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club expects its most successful event of the season here tomorrow.

Races will be held, beginning at two o'clock, in Bay of Quinte waters, just off Victoria Park.

The Picton club expects 15 entries to participate and the boat club promises to match this number. Picton entries will include boats in 10 several classes including a Canadian championship boat in the 36 class. Speeds in the different classes will range from 30 to 75 miles per hour, according to the Q.H.R.C. spokesman.

The Quinte Club, in its initial year of operation, has held several races to date with good success. Water safety is stressed for all drivers.

The club is joining the Canadian Boating Federation and expects to be granted permission to hold the regatta next season. Such a regatta would draw entries from across Ontario as well as some from Quebec and the United States.

Meanwhile, the club is hoping for good fan support tomorrow.

Blind Golfer Shoots a 97

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Claude Pattemore of Hamilton, Ont., shot a 97 in Friday's 18-hole opening round to take the half-way lead in the 25th anniversary U.S. blind golf tournament.

The final 18 holes are scheduled today.

Pattemore, a cafeteria cashier who won the international blind golf title a month ago in Toronto, carded 49-49 to lead defending U.S. champion Joe Lazaro of Waltham, Mass., by one stroke at the Westchester Hills Golf Club. Lazaro had a 47-51.

Harold Mitchell, also of Hamilton, was third with 51-48—99. Thirteen - time U.S. champion Charley Boswell of Birmingham, Ala., was 51-50—101.

'Latins Take Over Silly Game'

"FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—"We Latins have taken over this silly game," Mexico's Rafael Osuna said today with a sly wink. "I think I'll win the tournament."

Osuna and his bristling confidence form the next-to-last obstacle for favored Chuck McKinley in the latter's bid to add the United States national tennis championship to his Wimbledon crown.

They meet in the featured men's semifinal today at the West Side Tennis Club with the other match pitting six-foot three Frank Foehling III against Ronnie Barnes of Brazil.

A third South American, Marcia Bueno of Brazil, assumed a menacing role in the women's division, which turned into an all-foreign affair with the elimination of second-seeded Darlene Hard and Nancy Richey, both of the U.S.

Miss Bueno, looking like the court killer of three years ago before she was stricken with hepatitis, plays England's Ann Haydon Jones in one semi-final. Margaret Smith of Australia, top-seeded favorite, goes against unseeded Deidre Catt of England in the other.

The finals are scheduled for Sunday.

FOUR ADVANCE

Mrs. Jones put out Miss Hard, 6-4, 6-3, and Miss Bueno won over Miss Richey 6-3, 6-2. The tall, talented Mrs Smith, already holder of the Australian and Wimbledon titles, and the tiny Miss Catt advanced Thursday.

McKinley fought off one match point and rallied from 0-3 in the final set in achieving a pulsating 6-4, 4-6, 4-6, 9-6, 6-4 triumph over 18-year-old Tom Koch of Brasil.

Osuna, playing in spikes borrowed from McKinley, won over Martin Riessen, U.S. Davis Cup team member, 3-6, 9-7, 6-3, 6-2.

Twins' Four Homers Whip White Sox

Yankees Win

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Minnesota Twins are moving on home run muscle.

But they can't gain ground on New York Yankees, who are content to single an opponent into submission.

Twins powered past Chicago White Sox in their duel for second place in the American League, defeating White Sox 8-7 with a barrage of four homers—including a pair in the ninth inning.

Yankees bunched three singles in the ninth for a run that gave them a 2-1 victory over Detroit Tigers and pushed their lead to 13½ games—their biggest of the season.

Jim Perry and Bob Allison led the ninth inning homers for Twins, who boosted their season total to 200, after Harmon Killebrew and Earl Battey had connected earlier in the see-saw struggle with White Sox.

Hector Lopez, Elston Howard and Joe Pepitone rapped successive singles in the last of the ninth at New York, providing Yankees' leader Whitey Ford with his 21st victory. Yanks now have been involved in seven straight one-run decisions, winning five of them.

Washington Senators scored a 7-3 romp in the 100,000th major league game, over Cleveland Indians also the loser in the first big league match 61 years ago.

BOSTON DUNNED

Elsewhere, Baltimore Orioles, swept Boston Red Sox, winning opener 6-4 on three-run homer by Jackie Brandt and relief pitcher Milt Pappas, then taking the second game 4-3 with single runs in their last two times at bat. Los Angeles Angels edged Kansas City Athletics 4-3 when Mike Fetters was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded in the 14th inning.

Southpaw Hank Aguirre baled Yanks to three hits—including Harry Bright's homer in the fifth inning—before the latter set of singles with one out in the ninth. Dick McAuliffe's homer in the eighth was one of six hits off Ford, now 21-7.

Dave Nicholson belted a grand slam homer in a six-run second inning for White Sox, making it 6-4, then after five scoreless innings, Battey homered with two on in the eighth for a 7-5 Minnesota lead. Chicago drew even in its half of the inning on a bases-loaded walk to Joe Cunningham, but the homers by Power and Allison in the ninth offset the White Sox' one - run rally in their last at - bat.

Each side used five pitchers, with Billy Dalley the winner and Joel Horlen the loser. Killebrew's homer was his 37th, tying him with Boston's Dick Stuart for the league lead. Allison has hit 32, Battey 24.

LOST TO KEKIONGAS

Bennie Daniels pitched a five-hitter for Senators and tripled in a run as they scored four times in the sixth off loser Dick Donovan. Washington opener, a one hundred and ninety - nine games ago, on May 4, 1871, featured Cleveland's Jim Devlin while Stuart knocked in all four Boston runs with a homer and single.

In the second game, Orioles went ahead on Boog Powell's two-run single in the sixth, a run-scoring single in the seventh, and iced it with Jim Gentile's homer in the eighth off Mike McCormick won it with a six-hitter.

Los Angeles took over eighth place from Kansas City with the overtime victory against Athletics. Ken Hunt opened with a homer in the ninth for Angels, then they broke through on the 14th when Ted Bowsfield plunked Pearson after an error, Bob Sadowski's single and Jim Piersall's intentional walk filled the bases.

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer hopes to switch from taking pills to scoring birdies and Jack Nicklaus promises to become serious today when golfdom's fabulous twosome hooks up with Julius Boros and Bob Charles in the $75,000 World Series of Golf.

Palmer has been taking pills to ease a pain in his right shoulder in preparation for the two-day, 36-hole series in which the winner takes down $50,000.

Palmer admitted after a warmup round Friday that his shoulder condition was getting better and bothered him only when he lifted his club to hit his tee shots. Nevertheless, Arnie had a three-over-par 75 over the 7,185 - yard Firestone Country Club course.

Nicklaus, the United States Masters and PGA champion who captured last year's inaugural World Series, had a 75 in practice, but said "I was only fiddlin' around. A fellow's got to practice sometime."

While Palmer was having his shoulder difficulties and Nicklaus was fiddlin', British Open champion Charles, the World Series longshot from New Zealand, and U.S. Open champion Boros were mastering the long course with sub-par practice rounds.

GETS THREE BIRDIES

Charles shot a 68, bagging three birdies. Boros had 69.

The tournament is a method of bringing together the winners of the world's four major tournaments. When Nicklaus won both the Masters and the PGA, the promoters decided to have a playoff two weeks ago involving Palmer, Jacky Cupit and Phil Rodgers to complete the foursome.

Palmer, who has collected a record $101,555 in official PGA winnings this year, easily outdistanced Cupit and Rodgers to qualify for a shot at golf's biggest jackpot.

The final six holes each day will be televised by the National Broadcasting Company from 4:30 to 6 p.m. EDT.

MAYS IS WINNER

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Mays, the San Francisco Giant star whose all-out play caused him to be sidelined again by exhaustion, has won the National League player of the month for August. The league office announced Mays' selection by writers and broadcasters Friday. It was the third time Mays has won it since the award was started in 1958.

Gong Ganged 'Gentleman'

Valentine Saved By Bell

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The underdog suddenly became the topdog and as such nearly became the underdog again in Memorial Arena last night.

You couldn't have blamed Gentleman Jim Hady if he had taken the timekeepers gong and buried it deep in the Bay of Quinte.

The Gentleman had United States wrestling champion Johnny Valentine looking like an octopus with his second abdominal stretch of the evening when out of the night came the clanging of the gong.

Johnny was willing like last week's head of lettuce under the navel pressure and the Gentleman's face was assuming the broad grin of victory.

A trigger-happy time keeper sounded the knell of parting Gray and Referee Ian Maxwell made like a metronome wiggwagging to all political parties that it was no fall and the contest ended in a stalemate.

The fans surged to ringside and Mr. Maxwell's ancestry took a terrific tongue lashing. But he stuck to his official guns and that was that.

It seems that no one but the timekeeper was watching the clock since wrestlers do not get paid for overtime work—and time ran out to the workaday tune.

It was rumored that one of Valentine's manipulations of tangos tampered with the arms big Ben but this was denied by the gentleman who said the timepiece has not been working steadily since the season ran out on minor league hockey.

Valentine a big blonde with a hair-do like a Persian poodle's pooch had the Gentleman in a bad way throughout the three-fall argument.

He handed out some terrific punishment during the first fall without any regard for the rule book. He clobbered, clutched and clouted the dark handed stranger from Broken Tooth, Arkansas who stood up to the cuffing for 37 minutes before saying "uncle" wrestler style.

And things didn't look too well for the Hady laddy in the second fall until he finally got tired of being buffed, puffed and cuffed and decided to do something about it. He clamped on a devastating abdominal stretch and had the Fourteenth of February edition of wrestling with legs and arms pointing to all points of the compass.

Hady simply shook his golden mane like a maddened lion in the third fall and had the Gentleman nearly out when Referee Ian Maxwell intervened. Bell rang and that was the release of Hady.

Enter Father Time and a homesick goog-ginger and Mr. Valentine's Dallas Star Boy bounced back atop his blonde locks.

Duke Noble took the measures of Frankie Munro and Doctor Gerry Graham outlasted Ivan Rasputin in the semi-final and preliminary bouts.

ARGOS SELL AMEDEE

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference announced Friday the sale of quarterback Lyn Amedee to Edmonton Eskimos and release of halfback Tom Gates. Amedee, a native of Baton Rouge, La., was sold for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Landscapers Eliminate Corbin Lock

Barriage Landscapers marched into the Commercial Softball finals, against the pennant-winning Lightfoot Construction crew, with a 7-3 victory over Cowan Lock last night.

Landscapers took the semi-final series four games to one.

The four-of-seven titular set, between Lightfoots and Barriages will open Sunday afternoon at Prince Charles School. Game time is 2.30. Second game of the series goes Monday night, at 6.15, on the same field.

Barriages nursed a 2-1 lead from the first inning until they exploded for five more runs in the fifth last night.

Bobby Boyle pitched the victory, allowing just two hits, both singles. Six walks and two errors gave the losers most of their chances. Boyle struck out four.

Lou Middleton tolled in defeat, giving up seven hits over the route. He fanned three and passed three others.

Carl Boomhower slammed a home run and a single to spearhead the Barriage attack. Jerry Hill also hit a home run while Boyle helped his own cause with a triple and single. Tom Cook doubled and Don Wood singled.

Corbin Lock safeties went to Harold Redquest and Lou Middleton.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Eleven of 64 players invited to the defending Stanley Cup champions' training camp failed to put in an appearance when general manager Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs sounded the roll call Friday.

Koufax Racks Up Number 22

Cardinals Stopped At Nine; Lose Groat

BY MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Louis Cardinals, trying to overhaul the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers with a late stretch bid, have lost the services of batting leader Dick Groat, their first ball game in nine days and an opportunity to score in the National League pennant race.

Groat, the league's leading hitter with a .328 average and a top candidate for Most Valuable Player honors, was lost for several games when he was plunked in the chest by a Don Cardwell pitch in the first inning of the opener of a twin-bill against Pittsburgh Pirates.

Nevertheless, St. Louis went on to win the opener 5-1, extending their winning streak to nine games behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Gibson. Dal Bob Veale stopped Cardinals in the nightcap 5-0 on six hits while posting his first major league shutout.

The split dropped Cardinals 5½ games back of Dodgers, 5-3 winners over San Francisco Giants as Sandy Koufax gained his 22nd victory. Jim Gilliam paced the Los Angeles attack with a homer and two singles, scoring four runs.

Willie Mays made his return from an exhaustion - enforced four-day layoff and responded with a homer and double for Giants.

ROBINSON SPIKED

And, while Groat was reported out for several days with a contusion of the lower chest wall, Cincinnati Reds' Frank Robinson may have been lost to Reds for the remainder of the season with a spike wound on his left arm.

Robinson's bicep was pierced by the spike of New York second baseman Ron Hunt when Robinson slid into second in the sixth inning of Mets 5-4 decision over Reds.

In other games, Milwaukee Braves took over third place from San Francisco as Bob Shaw threw a hit Philadelphia Phillies 3-0 and Chicago Cubs blanked Houston Colts 3-0 behind Glen Hobbie and Lindy McDaniel.

Gibson brought his record to 16-8 and drove in the only runs Cardinals needed in the opening game victory with a two-run single in the second inning. Veale turned the tables in the nightcap, with his fine performance. Dick Schofield scored the first two Pirate runs. He doubled in the first and scored on Bill Virdon's single, then singled in the second and scored on a double by Jerry Lynch.

NEEDS HELP

Koufax, who was tagged for nine hits and needed Ron Perranoski's ninth inning relief help, got ahead Giants Frank Howard scored the only run Gilliam doubled on a homer in the sixth inning. The Howard and Gilliam connected against Giants' starter Billy O'Dell, 12-7, with the bases empty.

Mets got the job done against Reds with a four-run outburst, using three singles and scoring three runs and Pumpsie Green collecting three singles. Al Jackson, tagged for a homer by Vada Pinson, got the victory for his 10-9 record.

Hank Aaron hit his 37th homer and Ken Boyer drove in his support of Shaw, 6-10.

Shaw gave up a double to Wes Covington in the second, then retired 19 men in order before the next Phillies hit, a double by Clay Dalrymple in the eighth.

Hobie, 7-9, gave up nine hits and McDaniel had to come on in the ninth to hold off Colts. Ellis Johnson, a former Colt, supplied the only Houston needed with a first inning homer.

Americans Win Golf Cup

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Dick Sikes' steady play in the foursome matches has established the 21-year-old Arkansas student as a prime title contender in the National amateur golf championship here next week.

Sikes, a big muscular youngster from Pine Bluff, Ark., continued through the woods to the clubhouse Friday, as big smile creasing his tanned face, leaders of the United States team breathed a sigh of relief.

Canadian players had just doubled the United States in the first two singles matches of the afternoon and were threatening the U.S. lead when the Southern Sikes sharply admitted he had whipped his Canadian and Mexican foes with five holes left to play.

Sikes was followed in by Billy Joe Patton, U.S. team captain from Morganton, N.C., who also won easily, to clinch the U.S. seventh consecutive triumph in the event and preserve its unbeaten record.

CANADA SECOND

The United States scored 20½ points in the two-day event with Canada second with 19½ and Mexico third with eight.

The U.S. won by a 15-point margin over Canada with Mexico a distant last two years ago in Monterrey, Mexico. The next championship will be played in Canada.

Sikes was the only player in the two-day clash between the North American neighbors who shattered par 36-36—72 on the challenging 6,986-yard Wakonda course, which features narrow fairways, frightening rough s and endless hills.

Lahron Harris Jr. of Enid Okla., another mainstay of the U.S. team, managed only one point in the singles Friday, beating Mexico's Juan Estrada 1 up but losing to Nick Weslock of Burlingame, Calif., and Harris and Charlie Coe of the U.S. teamed up to gain a 1-up victory over Weslock and Bert Tichenhurst of Vancouver and then went on to defeat Mexico 9 and 7.

THE STRETCH RUNS

A poor tee shot by the Canadian on the No. 17 and a twisting 25-foot putt on the No. 18 by Coe decided the match.

Weslock and Tichenhurst defeated John Estrada and Mauricio Urdanetta of Mexico 6 and 7.

In the final singles, Coe lost his first points when he was downed 2 and 1 by Gary Cowan of Edmonton, Alta., medalist in the world amateur competition in Japan last autumn.

Sikes turned in a pair of singles victories after teaming up with Patton for two in the foursomes. Sikes beat Keith Alexander of Calgary and Augustin Silveyra of Mexico. Patton defeated Tichenhurst 3 and 2 and Mexico's Jose Luis Ortega 6 and 5.

PLAN BONSPIEL

'Going My Way' Is Gone But Kelly's Not Bitter

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gene Kelly has a word for the fans of the new season's television shows: Enjoy yourself.

"I did," said Kelly, star of last season's ill-starred Going My Way, "and had a fine time and I'm glad I did it."

Kelly goes against two traditions. First, his series are supposed to complain they have been worked to the brink of nervous breakdown; 2. Stars of unsuccessful series are supposed to come bitterness about their shows' demise.

"I don't know why those people who have done series complain," he said in a recent interview. Kelly said, "It's our job, isn't it? I didn't feel overworked. . . .

"They paid me an awful lot of money for doing work that I enjoyed. Judging from the mail I got, I created a lot of new fans. How can I complain about that?"

Kelly said two sponsors wanted to continue Going My Way for another year. Lacking two others, the show folded. He feels that it might have been ill-fated from the start.

"When you do a show about a couple of Catholic priests, they necessarily must be passive characters," he reasoned. "It's pretty hard for them to compete with the more aggressive heroes in televised shows. The show must necessarily be diluted to appeal to the other religions. But I'm convinced the producer did everything he could with the subject."

Kelly is choreographing and appearing in a sequence of What's My Line Girl Next he will produce Robin and the Seven Hoods with Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. And then Kelly will direct and star with Sinatra in a musical of the '30s, The New Yorkers.

He's also doing guest shots on the Judy Garland and Danny Kaye television shows.

Riders Do Big Import Business

OTTAWA (CP) — Transportation companies with Ottawa as a port of call must have made a tidy profit this week.

Ottawa Rough Riders have been importing the rejects of other teams in the Canadian, National and American football leagues at a rate unknown since Frank Clair took over here as head coach in 1956.

In short, Clair is faced with rebuilding his backfield and end positions with the season already well under way.

Riders troubles really began two years ago when defensive end Lou Bruce, who personally looked after Jackie Parker in Ottawa's 1960 Grey Cup conquest of Edmonton Eskimos, retired with a damaged knee. He was followed into retirement by defensive end Ted Smale and offensive ends Bill Sowalski and Bobby Simpson.

Things haven't been the same in Riders camp. This was demonstrated in cruel fashion on Labor Day when Montreal smothered Ottawa 37-15.

Clair has brought in fullback Jack Nichols from Montreal, defensive end John Decerbo, a cut from Chicago Bears, and halfbacks Don Derrick from Toronto Argos, Cotton Clark from Oakland Raiders, Joe Williams from Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Jimmy Saumerig and Nat Craddock of New York Giants. He has brought in others as well but they have since departed.

Cobourg Editor Writes About 'Anytown' Life

By CHARLES ANDREW TUPPER

"High On The Hog" by Foster Hewarty Russell of Cobourg; Price $4.95; Published by The Northumberland Book Company, Cobourg.

If is refreshing to find real and inwardly digest a book of discerning and interesting observations on contemporary life in "Anytown" this side of Toronto, or in the deep south, for that matter. As the author, editor of the Cobourg Sentinel-Star, is at pains to point out, the word pictures are not facsimiles of events or people — but the author's own personal interpretation, or view, collection or character within this book that may appear to resemble living may also be defined as imagination, too, by the reader. "High On The Hog" is fiction." After such a forthright statement, the reader will read on with greatly heightened awareness of the old axiom — "Truth is stranger than fiction" — or "fiction" and run across many "fiction, strange happenings and charming within the covers of this 300-odd page book.

"Anytown" is growing fast. "Big Deal for fast growing people." Author Russell tells of the Old Guard — "We welcome the newcomers." — they have been here twenty years. They are the Rich, the Hospital Board and the inner circle of the Board of Trade. Only one of the Old Guard is destined to become Mayor of Our Town. He was drunk at a meeting one night and fell down. Hospital to hell. Ever since then Newcomers have been watched and kept in check.

As to the title .... "The warmly-fleshed people live 'high, hog and self-righteously' midway on the hog. They love life and they mirror each kaleidoscope of changing life in Anytown". The title of the book is particularly appropriate — or will be, a little later on, after the present election is consulted, as we, the voters, will then be living that way. And speaking of elections, philosopher Russell says, "Our politicians are a queer lot indeed" — and he goes on at some length to delineate the various attributes that considered to achieve his happy result. As a reliable guide for prospective candidates for political office, this book should prove invaluable and frustrate all candidates in "Anytown" or district in Ontario, British Columbia or Nova Scotia should get a hold of a copy at once!

The typography of the book is very clear, with a fairly large enough to read easily by those even with failing eyesight. The chapter titles and themes are generally quite clear, too, with enough ironic subtlety to do a "double" or "triple" "take" occasionally in order to see if the reader is being tricked, or not, and finally concluding that no — the reader is not being tricked by those characters under observation are being "had" by an unattaining and unsatisfactory an analysis as Dickens portrayed in England or Leacock reveals to be in "Arcadian Sketches". Yes, Dickens and Leacock come to mind readily in reading this account of Anytown with notable companions along the way, but, Foster Hewarty has an indefinable something else added, all his own that makes this illuminating light of understanding on contemporary life in Anytown.

Statements From Leaders

Liberal Leader Says Robarts Putting on Show

By BEN WARD

CHATHAM (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said Friday night that Premier Robarts is putting on a show of co-operating with the federal government's Canada Pension Plan and has no intention of accepting it.

"Who does Mr. Robarts think he is kidding?" the Liberal leader asked an election meeting audience of 300 persons.

He said the premier's record shows clearly that he does not believe in a public system of contributory pensions, favoring private companies' plans instead.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the Conservative government's approach to medical care is to subsidize the profit-making insurance companies so they can offer coverage to people who are high risks—the aged and unemployed.

On pensions, the government approach was to provide Canada Pension plans available from insurance and trust companies.

CRITICIZES PROGRAMS

"I do not think John Robarts is going to change his spots," Mr. Wintermeyer said, referring to the premier's statement Thursday that he will go to the Ottawa conference on the Canada Pension Plan next week in a spirit of co-operation.

"He is putting on a show of co-operation. But I don't think the public is going to be fooled by it."

Mr. Wintermeyer also attacked Municipal Affairs Minister Spooner for the ministry's replies to Liberal charges that the auditors' report on the Eastview municipal investigation was doctored by the government.

He said Mr. Spooner told the press Thursday that no deductions were made from the report before it was made public. He called them "wild and stupid words."

Repeating his charge that the report of the auditors was revised, Mr. Wintermeyer challenged Mr. Spooner to produce the auditors and let them say whether anything was changed.

"Let us have their word, not Mr. Spooner's."

CLAIM WAS ALTERED

The Liberals claim the original report was doctored to remove certain damaging references to Gordon Eastview, the mayor of Eastview and Progressive Conservative member for Russell in the last legislature. The party has withdrawn its support from Mr. Lavergne in the May 23 election.

Mr. Wintermeyer said Mr. Spooner also stated that the conclusions of the report were taken in the 1961 investigation of Eastview financial affairs was sent to the town, at Ottawa suburb.

"Then let the town of Eastview produce those two volumes," the Liberal chief said. "Let them be put on the table for all to see. The town of Eastview cannot produce the transcripts. They were never received."

Mr. Wintermeyer charged that Mr. Spooner himself cannot produce a complete set of the transcripts, which fill 10 volumes.

"Volume 15 of the transcript of evidence has been missing for some two years from the department of municipal affairs files. Volume 15 has also been missing from the set of transcripts sent by that department to the office of the attorney-general.

Mr. Wintermeyer said Volume 15 is the one which contains the testimony of Mr. Lavergne.

ASKS CHECK WRITING

He also asked that William Warrender, who was municipal affairs minister at the time of the Eastview report, be brought back to the legislature to check the handwriting on the photostatic copies of the original report which the Liberals have claims to have in his possession.

The photostats show penciled editing which on some pages conform to the published version of the auditors' report.

Mr. Wintermeyer also hit on two major local issues.

"Nothing more clearly demonstrates Tory lethargy and incompetence than the delay and failure to complete Highway 401 in this part of Ontario," he declared. "The entire highway is a death trap."

It was "arbitrary and stupidity" for the government to make its recent statement that money

Call Session Within Week If Elected

— Robarts

By JOHN LEBLANC

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — Premier Robarts said Friday the special Ontario legislature session he has promised to deal with Parliament's municipal development loan fund will be called within a week of the Sept. 25 Ontario election result becoming official.

In a day of stumping through rural and urban sections of the northern area of southwestern Ontario, he told a group at Listowel, in Perth riding, that he wants the fund to be available to take advantage of the funds in time to provide jobs this winter.

He did not name a specific date for the calling of the special session.

Of the $400,000,000 fund created by Parliament, some $141,000,000 has been made available to Ontario municipalities on the basis of population.

"I am going to call the legislature within a week of the day when it is legally possible," he said at a meeting here toward this Bruce County town.

Mr. Robarts also disclosed unexpectedly Thursday night that he will interrupt his campaigning Monday to attend conference on old age pensions at Ottawa, said Friday another issue has been "pitch-forked" into the Ontario campaign against his wishes.

DENIES CHARGE

He said the Liberals have "thrown around reckless conception" about a $400,000,000 federal government's stand. They have accused the Ontario ministry of Ottawa scheme, which he has denied.

He does not want to be "stampeded politically" on pensions, on which Ontario has legislated for its own pension plan and one of Ottawa's legislation. He had no intention of being put in a position of "doing something that might live to regret."

A revised itinerary worked out by Mr. Robarts' staff Friday provides for him losing little time on the road from Ottawa for Monday's opening session of the federal-provincial conference.

TO RESUME STUMPING

After attending a luncheon at Hamilton Sunday, he will go by chartered plane to Ottawa Sunday night, present a statement to the session Monday morning and return to Toronto by car by mid-afternoon.

He will speak also at Kitchener Monday night.

During the day Friday Mr. Robarts engaged in electioneering campaigning through Conservative-held territory from London to Sarnia, and on the return trip to Toronto he made brief stops at Strathroy, Milverton, Listowel, Palmerston and Perth, Wellington, Dufferin and Durham, speaking to a luncheon meeting in Orangeville to about 50 people either on the sidewalks or at local committee rooms.

"Then let the town of Eastview produce those two volumes," the Liberal chief said. "Let them be put on the table for all to see. The town of Eastview cannot produce the transcripts. They were never received."

Mr. Wintermeyer charged that Mr. Spooner himself cannot produce a complete set of the transcripts, which fill 10 volumes.

"Volume 15 of the transcript of evidence has been missing for some two years from the department of municipal affairs files. Volume 15 has also been missing from the set of transcripts sent by that department to the office of the attorney-general.

Mr. Wintermeyer said Volume 15 is the one which contains the testimony of Mr. Lavergne.

ASKS CHECK WRITING

He also asked that William Warrender, who was municipal affairs minister at the time of the Eastview report, be brought back to the legislature to check the handwriting on the photostatic copies of the original report which the Liberals have claims to have in his possession.

The photostats show penciled editing which on some pages conform to the published version of the auditors' report.

Mr. Wintermeyer also hit on two major local issues.

"Nothing more clearly demonstrates Tory lethargy and incompetence than the delay and failure to complete Highway 401 in this part of Ontario," he declared. "The entire highway is a death trap."

It was "arbitrary and stupidity" for the government to make its recent statement that money

MacDonald Aims Few Body Blows At Liberals

By DAVID DAVIDSON

TIMMINS (CP)—The provincial New Democratic Party leader jogged through the campaign ring here Friday night and said that one of his political opponents would fight his way out of a wet paper bag."

There were ringside seats for the audience. About 50 political fans attended a rally in this riding of South Cochrane to watch Donald MacDonald aim a few body blows at Ontario Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer.

"His record in the House proves that Wintermeyer couldn't fight his way out of a wet paper bag" the NDP leader charged.

"He is equipped with a few very capable Madison Avenue boys who are writing high speeches which are completely out of character for the weakest link in town in politics inside the rooftops."

Mr. MacDonald said that both the Liberals and the Conservatives in their campaigns were "completely discussing all real issues." He said the New Democratic Party would "rescue the province from the chaos battle of the two old parties."

SEES 'STALLING'

Full application of minimum wage laws in the province would be delayed he said, because the government will "stall action under pressure."

He also made a plea for universal automobile insurance in the province.

"The choice we have before us is a simple one. If we want to maintain the present essentially wasteful and uneconomic system of compulsory minimums and settling automobile claims, then you vote Liberal or Conservative."

He said a vote for the New Democratic Party would mean automobile insurance at a cost and wider coverage at rates one third less than charged now by private companies.

Mr. MacDonald reminded those who thought the NDP car insurance plan was "pie in the sky" that it had been in operation for 17 years in Saskatchewan and "beyond any shadow of doubt, in the minds of objective observers, it has been very successful. He said that to suggest junking the plan in the western province would be "political suicide."

The results of more than 200 companies engaged in automobile competition is that out of every premium dollar "no more than an average of 55 cents back in premiums" the NDP leader said. Experience with the Saskatchewan plan had proven that 64 cents in claims can be paid from the premium dollar.

HITS HIGH RATES

At a press conference earlier in Kirkland Lake, Mr. MacDonald scored local municipal councils for failing to make credit easier for Northern Ontario secondary industry.

He said that interest rates on second mortgages outside the municipal boundaries were 10 per cent higher than in the provincial capital.

The government should once again go into the second mortgage business because this would "eliminate discrimination in interest rates charged outside municipalities."

Today visits were scheduled for Kapuskasing and on Sunday Mr. MacDonald was to visit Mr. MacDonald to Geraldton and Fort William.

was not available for the project.

Mr. Wintermeyer outlined the Liberal party pledge of a water grid in western Ontario to pipe Great Lakes water at cost to the many municipalities drilling water tables are causing shortages and concern for the future.

FOREIGN OIL ISSUE

Earlier, at St. Thomas, Mr. Wintermeyer said the issue of distributing foreign oil will the key one of the provincial election campaign and said Premier Robarts is being unwittingly inconsistent on the subject.

Mr. Wintermeyer held a press conference that he intends to keep the issue alive until Mr. Robarts announces federal revision in the Ontario pension plan that will allow the Canada Pension Plan to be accepted. Without such a revision, the national plan was doomed.

Mr. Wintermeyer said the premier is being guided on the issue by George Gathercole, vice-chairman of Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. "who is an outright advocate of the funded insurance company plans."

Things to Do After 65 -- But Beware of Chickens

By THOMAS COLLINS

Back-talk from the land of retirement:

"I am past the retired age, listed as 'involuntary Quit' from a long career of service at one of the large research firms of the country. At my retirement party I was presented a plaque and other trinkets for my service to the company.

"I immediately joined an engineering consultant firm, where ago was secondary, and as personnel manager placed well over 500 people in technical jobs. Several months ago I decided to go into business on my own, and have placed approximately 25 men and women in job...

"This does not scratch the surface of my feelings over the way matured, practical and experienced men are tossed out of industry and replaced by three or four youngsters to do a man's job." — Murray Dutkin

"Somebody must have been running a fever when they told you a good way to stretch a retirement income was to have a few chickens for meat and eggs. Did you know that if you've got chickens in the yard you can't go on a trip and you can't even be sick in bed? The creatures must have attention . . . 1-1-1-1-1 the time. And the food for those chickens — if you don't operate a grain farm on the side it'll cost more than you get weekly supply of eggs." — Mrs. H. W. Peters.

• • •

"You had that column about Louisiana vs Wisconsin for retirement. Well, I lived in Shreveport nearly 20 years, and it's eaiter to keep warm in Wisconsin in winter than it is to keep cool in Shreveport in summer. And if anyone ever felt a Gulf breeze in Shreveport I'll eat my hat!

"I agree that it's very clean, and the city and the people are tops. But I'll take Oconomowoc, Wis." — Mrs. John Wilkinson.

• • •

Why don't you smart fellows stop talking and start doing. That idea of yours to set up a city-wide Senior Citizens Bureau as part of the city government was a splendid one, but why not get going on it? Just talking and writing will get us nowhere. All sorts of retired people would rally behind a bureau that didn't have any panty - waist elements to it and that would give the retired people the practical guidance described in the plan." — James R. Raleigh

(A lot of mayors would get started on such a project if enough citizens wrote them letters expressing an interest.)

"We need a little more positive thinking about retirement activities. Everybody dwells too much on the problems, and on the pills and plaster to cure them. Too little on the bright side — on the good things that can and do happen.

"From Canada to Florida, and from Maine to the Pacific, some aggressive retired people have been holding delightful jobs this summer . . . all because they thought creatively instead of negatively. They hired themselves out as assistants in summer camps for boys and girl.

"They had to use their imagination to visualize such jobs as might be open to them; to make the effort to get a list of all summer camps; then to muster the courage to offer their services as leaders of woodcraft, rifle-shooting, camping, sailing, fishing, Indian lore, nature, and other things summer camps offer.

"The pay would be small I suppose. But the jobs probably provide room and board, and I imagine provide some rewarding experiences. . . ." — Eugene R. Brown.

• • •

(Mr Brown has a point. A good many retired people have been serving at camps this past summer. In some cases both man and wife have had jobs at the same camp. Applications for such jobs should be made before now and next March. Your Public Library could probably lead you to a list of the better summer camps.)

Air Force Padre Gives Up Blues for Bishop's Red, Will Be Military Vicar for Canada

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—It's not quite accurate but, to thousands of Canadian airmen, Rev. Norman Joseph Gallagher is going to be "the bishop who never wore black".

He did wear the ordinary black of a Roman Catholic priest for a year after ordination and for a few weeks he's been wearing it now. But for 21 years between, this young padre from the southwest Saskatchewan wheat country was always in air force blue.

On Sept. 12, in Notre Dame Basilica here, he gives up finally a wing commander's uniform for bishop's red. He will be consecrated by Most Rev. Sebastiane Baggio, apostolic delegate to Canada, as auxiliary to Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec. The archbishop is military vicar for Canada, 15 NEW POST

Father Gallagher's post is a new one. In effect, he will take over most of the duties of the vicariate as principal channel of communication between more than 110 Catholic chaplains in the three armed services and the church organization itself.

Thus, indirectly, he will have jurisdiction over more than 1,000,000 Roman Catholic service personnel and their families. The consecration marks the first time in Canada that a career chaplain has been named a Roman Catholic bishop. The soft-spoken, Scots-born priest, who has ministered to the spiritual needs of Canadian airmen from Mets to Tokyo, is delighted at the implied recognition of the role of the chaplaincy.

Word of the appointment already has been a boon, he says, to the morale and self-esteem of armed forces clergy, he says.

BOOSTED MORALE

Men who served overseas with Father Gallagher remember him as a matchless storyteller, whether under the spell tree of Normandy or in the mess tents of the RCAF anywhere.

"I never knew there were so many clean funny stories until we got Padre Gallagher," one wartime pilot said. "He did more than attend to his spiritual job; he kept up the spirits of the whole outfit with his gift of humor.

"He'll have a tremendous parade of Protestants wishing him joy the day of his consecration."

Nevertheless, the fit-looking, photogenic padre feels a twinge of nostalgia at leaving the service which he came to love through two decades of war and peace.

"It's kind of funny to look at my uniform hanging up every day," he says.

LAST IN FRANCE

His last assignment was as division chaplain with the RCAF Air Division in Europe.

He returned from Metz, France, only recently and has been occupying an office at chaplain service headquarters, preparing for his new job and getting used once again to wearing black.

One of a family of 10 that migrated to Canada from Coldbridge near Glasgow in 1923, he was a priest at Gull Lake, Sask., hardly a year out of seminary, when he got a telegram: "Report to Toronto."

A former priest at the cathedral in Gravelbourg, diocesan headquarters for Gull Lake, had become principal Roman Catholic chaplain for the RCAF. The priest, Msgr. Allyre Charest, approached the Bishop of Gravelbourg and arranged for Father Gallagher's enlistment in the padre-short air force.

"I was too young to consult on the matter," says Father Gallagher with a grin.

After postings to St. Thomas, Ont., and Brandon, Man., he went overseas.

NORMANDY LANDING

"As soon as I got there the principal RCAF chaplain overseas asked me: 'Can you speak French?' I said yes, and he told me: 'Fine, you're in the invasion.'"

The principal chaplain was Msgr. W. V. McCarthy, now pastor of St. Joseph's in Hull, Que.

Father Gallagher was assigned to 30 Reconnaissance Wing, a tactical strike unit of two squadrons of spitfire fighter-bombers and one squadron of photo - reconnaissance aircraft.

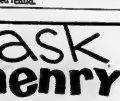
He landed in Normandy about a week after D-day and until near the end of the war moved from airfield to airfield across France following the eastward advance of Canada's fighting airmen.

After the last two months of the European conflict he was in England, attached to Bomber Command.

RANGED WIDELY

After the war, he saw service at Camp Borden, Aylmer and Trenton, Ont., and RCAF Station Rockcliffe, where he was chaplain for Air Transport Command.

This meant, among other things, following the route of the supply planes to and during the Korean war, with visits to RCAF detachments at Tacoma, Wash., Elmendorf, Alaska, and Shemya in the Aleutian Islands along the way. It also entailed visiting as many as 15 RCAF photo detachments in the Canadian Arctic annually over a period of three years.



From 1952 to 1954, when the Canadian Air Division in Europe was being built up under NATO, Father Gallagher served as division chaplain. He reported and said the first mass at No. 3 Wing chapel at Grostenquin, 3 Wing chapel at Zweibruecken and 4 Wing chapel at Baden-Soellingen.

In 1956 he was named command chaplain for Air Defence Command and has been stationed at Metz, France, only recently and has been occupying an office at chaplain service headquarters, preparing for his new job and will be consecrated a bishop Sept. 12. Father Gallagher, shown with his bishop's coat of arms, has been named auxiliary to Quebec's Archbishop Maurice Roy, military vicar for Canada. — (CP Photo)

"No dessert for a week" has a familiar ring to my ears. Because of those statements 35 years ago I became very interested in desserts. As I grew older my physical exercise slowed down but my appetite for desserts did not. The result of all this was me tipping the scales at 265 lbs.

You don't do that I would like to spare other youngsters the misery of (1) seeing other members of their family eat desserts which they can't have because of punishment, (2) and then in later life have to suffer more misery when the doctor tells them to cut down! After a lot of dieting I have reduced my tonnage to 190 lbs. — PAUL E. ROY.

DEAR MR. ROY — After listening to your story, I'm sure parents will find another way of punishing their kids unless they want their children to be middle guard on their local football team when they grow up! No offense to middle guards! — HENRY.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINNIFRED E. WILSON

BLACK-CROWNED NIGHT HERON

When we hear the word "heron" we instinctively think of those long-billed, long-necked, long-legged birds which we see standing on a sandy shore, often right in the water, patiently waiting for a fish to come by. These, of course, are the well-known great blue herons. But some members of the heron family have quite different characteristics.

The black-crowned night heron is smaller—more the size of a bittern — and the young ones can easily be mistaken for bitterns because their coloring is similar. The adults, however, are pale grey with white underparts and black "crowns" and backs. One or two long, fine plumes spring from the crown. Bills, necks, and legs are all comparatively short. And we are not apt to see one of these birds at all because, except in dull weather, they generally sleep away the daylight hours in a treetop. Sunset is the time when they venture away from the roost, flying on big, heavy wings to the nearest water, be it marsh, small lake, or pond.

LEAST FEARFUL

This is the least fearful of the herons, colonies of them being found within some of our larger cities. In the greater Montreal area, for example, there have been at least three colonies of them: one on either side of the St. Lawrence River and one on Heron Island near the Lachine Rapids.

Their habits are rather irregular. Although ordinarily nesting 20 to 30 feet up in large trees in the woods, they occasionally build right on the ground.

Fish, crayfish and other crustaceans, aquatic insects and frogs form their constant diet; however, if the need arises, as when the open water freezes up before they start on migration, they are able to subsist for a while on mice. Their feeding is almost invariably done at night, but they are hard to see but we might hear "prok, prok".

BEFORE FREEZE - UP

It is natural, then, that their regular time for departure for the southland should be before the freeze-up comes, which would be about the beginning of October in their northern homes.

The black-crowned night heron is one of those birds with wanderlust. Sometimes, just before the usual time for moving south, the young birds first fly north of their birthplace. It is thought that this is probably because of food conditions.

Combat Police Storm School, Arrest Hundreds

Saigon Students Rebel, Tossing Bricks, Rocks

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — Steel - helmeted combat police today fought a pitched battle with stone-throwing students who barricaded themselves in a boys' high school.

Police stormed into the school and rounded up hundreds of rebellious youths as the military governor of Saigon declared "extremist students" over the age of 20 would be drafted into the army and boys and girls under 20 sent to a special "re-education centre."

Brig.-Gen. Ton That Dinh said in a communique that "Communists and reactionaries" were exploiting "the innocence and naivete of school children in intoxicate and incite them to abandon their classrooms and engage in violent action to disturb public order and security."

Dinh also warned that parents would be charged for the cost of their children's "re - education" and if accident harmed national security they would be tried by a military court.

If the offender was a minor his parents would be held equally responsible, he added.

The new measures were announced as Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu, powerful sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem, appeared to leave on her way to the United Nations in New York to defend the Catholic-led regime's crackdown on the majority Buddhist population.

Strikes were believed to be planned in several high schools today but heavy armored cars and troops mounted guard at most of them and teachers turned in peace-time.

But at the Chu Van An High School several hundred pupils rebelled when they arrive for classes. For two hours they demonstrated inside the grounds as hundreds of troops and police grouped outside in battle formation.

YEAR DOWN FLAG

Shouting anti-government slogans, pupils tore down the national flag from the flagstaff and ran up the multi-colored Buddhist flag after parading it triumphantly around the grounds.

Police made one early attempt to storm their way into the school but retreated under a barrage of barbed hedges and pupils then barricaded the gate with heavy obstacles including basketball backboards and other sports equipment.

Upstairs windows were smashed and leaflets were brought out onto balconies where they were turned up sideways with slogans facing toward the main road outside.

One of these read in English: "We are in danger—help us".

Groups of pupils shielded behind blackboards moved to the edge of the grounds and pelted police and troops with a hail of missiles including bricks and boards.

Loudspeakers outside warned the pupils to calm down, but they began a new wave of destruction inside and again pelted the police, who finally stormed the gates and rounded up the leaders.

Pravda Presses Propaganda War Against China

MOSCOW (AP)—Pressing the propaganda war against Red China, Pravda reached to Central America Sunday for an accusation that the Communist Chinese are training guns on Soviet Communists.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper reproduced a resolution adopted recently by the Communist party of Costa Rica. The resolution said:

"Attacks on the main bulwark of the world Soviet system and training guns on the vanguard of the world Communist movement on any pretext cannot be regarded as other than a breaking up of the unity of the socialist camp. . . ."

The reference to "training guns" underlined the deepening gravity of the Soviet-Chinese struggle since the Chinese disclosed last week that there had been incidents on the border between the Soviet Union and China.

Several thousand Chinese civilians have been reported building frontier fortifications in the central Asian Chinese province of Sinkiang. Unconfirmed reports here have said the Soviet Union has stepped up its military strength on the border.

The Costa Rican statement was one of several similar attacks on the Chinese appearing daily in the Soviet press.

In Warsaw, Poland, Communist Party Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka said Sunday Communist China's leaders, "blinded by the desire to have their own nuclear bomb, would destroy the unity of world Communist movement.

Quints Born To Granny

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—A team of medical specialists Sept. 9 will today open three-day-old quintuplet boys born almost two months premature to a Venezuelan grandmother.

The mother, 34-year-old Mrs. Inez Maria Guerre de Prieto, and the infants—the third known set of quintuplets in the western hemisphere—were reported by a spokesman at Maracaibo Hospital to be in satisfactory condition. The babies were placed in an incubator and given special skimmed-milk diet.

Mrs. de Prieto has five children by a previous marriage, including a 15-year-old daughter, who recently gave birth.

The husband, Efren Luis de Prieto, a 39-year-old foreman for the Creole Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey, has eight children from an earlier marriage. Both de Prieto and his wife are teachers.

IN 50 MINUTES

The quintuplets were born during a 50 - minute period beginning at 11:10 p.m. Friday night. Doctors said the first baby weighed three pounds, 15.3 ounces; the second three pounds, 4.9 ounces; the third and fourth each three pounds, 1.4 ounces; and the fifth four pounds three ounces.

"I feel well," said Mrs. de Prieto. "There was no sickness; nor pain . . . it was tranquil."

The first weighed birth of quintuplets in the western hemisphere was that of the Dionne sisters in Callander, Ont. Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne Dionne were born May 28, 1934. Emilie died Aug. 6, 1954.

The Dilligenti quintuplets — Maria Fernanda, Maria Cristina, Maria Esther, Carlo and Franco—were born in Argentina on July 15, 1943. All five survive.

The Dionne and Dilligenti quintuplets are the only known five-some to survive infancy of the more than 40 sets of quintuplets born since records began. However, this is the only set of quintuplets known to be born to a grandmother.

Policy Outlines of Parties Vie With Partisan Attacks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While the New Democratic Party leader continued with a strongly - worded offensive by Northern Ontario election audiences, the heads of the Conservative and Liberal parties hoped for a milder tone in weekend campaigning in southern Ontario.

Donald C. MacDonald assailed Premier Robarts's record in the industrial relations field as "one of the strongest indictments" against the Conservative party ever reported by a spokesman at Maracaibo Hospital to be in satisfactory condition. The babies were placed in an incubator and given special skimmed-milk diet.

Canada's Push for Expanded UN Role Gets Little Support

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's push to provide the United Nations with expanded military strength to preserve world peace may receive little support from the United States, it was learned Sunday.

An American delegation source said the U.S. is willing to lend encouragement to the idea of another conference which tartly earmarking troops for possible UN use providing three countries say the idea is solved.

But the U.S. does not see much hope for establishment of a new UN military planning group or for expansion of the military planning committee which has been established in the UN but includes only Soviet Union opposition never has been given more than superficial recognition.

The American informant estimated that a UN military force, say of 5,000 men, for example, would increase the UN payroll by some $30,000,000 a year. With the UN periodically threatened by bankruptcy because of Soviet-bloc refusal to pay their UN membership, the U.S. feels that body is confronted with more financial troubles with-out taking on new ones.

External Affairs Minister Martin of Canada will arrive for a five - hour conference with U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday the possibilities of providing the UN with improved peacekeeping machinery.

While it is still unclear as to exactly what Canada has in mind, Ottawa sources say Ottawa reports that Prime Minister Pearson will offer the UN a larger and more flexible Canadian force when he addresses the 20-general assembly Sept. 26. Canada has maintained a stand-by battalion for possible UN use and over the years Pearson has been a strong supporter for arming the UN with a force.

Hunger Kills Douk

AGASSIZ, B.C. (CP)—A second Sons of Freedom Doukhobor has died during a hunger strike that has perplexed authorities since it began more than a month ago.

Mrs. Malasha Popoff, 77, died Sunday in the Freedomite's camp outside Mountain Prison here.

Police said cause of death has not yet been determined. An inquest will be held.

Paul Podnorrow, 23, died in nearby Chilliwack Hospital Aug. 23 after being moved from prison. His death was attributed to self-imposed starvation, the result of a fast by more than 100 Freedomites imprisoned for acts of violence.

The fasting prisoners now are accepting liquid nourishment, providing guards lift cups to their mouths.

The majority of the about 200 sect members who set up a tent city outside the prison last month are fasting in sympathy with their jailed brethren.

More than 200 of the camping Freedomites arrived in Vancouver by bus to be near their imprisoned relatives. The rest have drifted to the site from many B.C. areas.

DIES IN CELL

Mrs. Popoff died in a tent which she shared with her brothers. Other Freedomite members gathered in solemn groups after her death—mourning and singing hymns.

Meanwhile, Attorney - General Bonner said he will not "do down" Rev. Steven John Fraser of Kent municipality that the Sons be removed from the area.

"I have turned Fraser's request over to our committee on Doukhobor affairs," he said. "Any action on the reeve's request will have to come from the committee."

Mr. Fraser had complained that the poor conditions at the camp could result in serious health problems. There are no sanitary facilities and only one well.

TORONTO (CP)—The federal government's move Friday to help eight Ontario centres attract industry was welcomed with open arms, but they resented being called "depressed areas."

Brantford, Cornwall, Windsor-Pembroke, Timmins, Wallaceburg, Blind Lake and Chatham were among the 35 Canadian centres which qualified for the tax incentives under the government's stepped - up industrial program.

Mayor Richard Beckett of Brantford said: "We certainly appreciate any assistance given us, but I definitely resent Brantford being referred to as a 'depressed area.' Our welfare costs are down from last year and employment is up."

Mayor Michael Patrick of Windsor stated that the plan was "a tremendous move", but he suggested the term "slow growth area" should have been used instead of "depressed."

HAD TROUBLES

Mayor Ann Coombs of Wallaceburg commented: "We've had our troubles here, but unemployment was at its lowest level. Every community will be thankful for the aid."

Mayor Garmet Newkirk of Chatham: "It will certainly make our municipality more attractive for new industry."

Councillor Elmer Smith, acting mayor of Timmins: "It's good news. Timmins has everything for industry and all we need is this type of help."

Aurel Clement, chairman of Cornwall's industrial commission: "This is the first ray of hope we've had in the area since the St. Lawrence Seaway was completed in 1958."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said today no decision will be made about an early recall of Parliament until after the conclusion of current talks here and in Washington on Great Lakes labor violence.

He said following a cabinet meeting that he hoped the talks "will have the effect of preventing violence" against Canadian vessels in the United States, emphasizing that current violence is a matter for U.S. authorities to handle.

Legislation was ready to place five Canadian maritime unions under government trusteeship but he added that it "is not the kind of legislation that would have any effect in another country and the violence has taken place in that country."

The discussions here will include Labor Minister MacEachen, Liberal Maritime leader Martin and Mr. Pearson. In Washington, he said he believed Labor Secretary Wirtz would be instructed to take on the assignment, would be discussing the matter with the secretary of labor and probably the secretary of state.

Mr. Pearson discussed the latest incident in the maritime union war in which the Canadian vessel Howard L. Shaw was dynamited early Saturday in Chicago where she has been tied up for several months. When Parliament recessed, he said it would be reconvened hurriedly if labor war events made that necessary.

RECALLS INJUNCTION

Mr. Pearson noted that the explosion occurred very close to the Sept. 16 deadline set by the American courts requiring unions there to stop picking or interfering with the Shaw vessel fined for contempt of court.

Regarding the weekend request of President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress for a recall of Parliament before Sept. 30, Mr. Pearson said Labor Minister MacEachen had been in touch with Mr. Jodoin and had suggested that the union leader approach George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, who was "a key man there," and Mr. Jodoin's opposite number.

Mr. Pearson emphasized that the most recent violence had occurred in the United States where no Canadian legislation could have much effect, seeming to indicate that Parliament was unlikely to meet before the scheduled Sept. 30 date. He said it's entirely speculative that the MPs are likely to be called back. Such a session takes three or four days to do so, and many MPs were overseas although they could get back quickly by air.

He noted that before Parliament adjourned for a summer recess early in August he had

Perhaps Bat Had SIU Card

OTTAWA (CP) — A bat in Prime Minister Pearson's study broke up a meeting of cabinet ministers Sunday night.

When the dust settled, the bat remained in possession of the battlefield.

The animal appeared near the close of housekeeping talks at the prime minister's residence between Mr. Pearson and three of his colleagues on the latest outbreak of violence in the Great Lakes labor dispute.

Mr. Pearson, Minister of Affairs Minister Martin and Labor Minister MacEachen left the room to do some telephoning from another phone.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh stayed with the prime minister's special assistant, Richard Finnigan, tried vainly to knock down the loitering bat with a raincoat.

After a minute they left too, leaving the bat in sole possession of the study.

Pro Robarts Pledges Ontario's Backing

OTTAWA (CP)—Premier Robarts of Ontario stands ready to co-operate with Ottawa in working out a federal contributory pension plan.

He told the opening of the federal provincial conference today that he is prepared to recommend changes in the Ontario pension scheme to make it conform with "an agreed national system."

Mr. Robarts said this is not a new policy.

He recalled that former Conservative premier Leslie Frost said in 1960 that there were serious disadvantages in any one province establishing a pensions scheme by itself.

Mr. Frost had called for federal provincial co-operation and amendments to the constitution to permit federal participation. "I have taken the same position," Premier Robarts said.

"I have consistently emphasized not only Ontario's willingness, but Ontario's desire, to co-operate fully with the Dominion government."

Shortly after the conference began at 10 a.m., Mr. Robarts left for Galt to continue his election campaign rounds. He left behind a delegation of officials.

He said he is "delighted" at the federal decision just announced to raise the basic old age pension by $5 to $75 a month from $65 if Parliament agrees.

At Owen Sound Saturday, Mr. Robarts said his government would match any federal pension increase as long as provincial $10 amount monthly in the provincial assistance program.

He was commenting at that stage on published reports that the federal government planned its $10 increase.

The matching provincial amount would go to old-age assistance for persons aged 65 to 70, plus allowances for blind and disabled as well as widowed and unmarried women between the ages of 60 and 65.

A government source said the government has not yet decided whether income, sales and corporation taxes will be raised to cover the higher pensions, or whether other tax sources used.

It originally intended to raise the basic pension rate early next year and pay for it out of contributions by employers and employees to the Canada Pensions Plan.

The announcement, made by Prime Minister Pearson after a cabinet meeting and simultaneously with the start of a federal-provincial conference on the Canada Pensions Plan, said the increase would be made out of the old-age security fund.

Mr. Pearson also announced legislation to increase taxes by raising the additional revenues required by the fund.

The fund is governed by the Old Age Security Act, separate from general budget legislation. By its last amendment, it levies a three-per-cent tax on income, sales and corporation profits.

The levy on personal incomes now is limited to $90 a year. The three-per-cent sales tax on quality sales tax is part of the present 11-per-cent sales tax—the other eight percentage points going to general revenues.

The Canada Pensions Plan provides for employer and employee contributions in a payroll-deduction scheme. It replaces plan, with employer benefits available across Canada and portable from one job to another. It was unveiled in the Commons in July before Parliament adjourned for its summer recess.

The government originally announced that the basic benefit under the basic pension, paid to all at age 70, would have to be paid for out of contributions to the Canada Pension Plan starting early in 1964.

Mr. Pearson said the increase now would be paid out of the old age security fund, from which the present $65 is drawn. The fund is made up of special taxes on corporations, personal and sales taxes and is kept separate from the government's general funds.

"That the increase is required is undisputed," Mr. Pearson said in a statement. "But to do it by contributions at this time is a recognition that must be paid for.

"For this reason, the government's proposals have linked the additional $10 benefit to the payment of contributions under the Canada Pension Plan.

"However, if such contributions should be delayed in the provinces, it clearly would be unfair to the people of other provinces not receiving additional payment to all older Canadians out of reduced contributions.

"In view of this possibility, federal government will propose to Parliament that the additional $10 be paid out of the old age security fund, as the $65 already is. At the same time, Parliament will be asked to approve the raising of the additional revenues required for the fund for this purpose.

"The increase in the Old Age Security Act will be introduced soon after the reassembly of Parliament. The government hopes that his measure can be passed quickly so that the first $10 increase action can come into effect from October 1 next year."

Mr. Pearson said the government intends to proceed with the Canada Pensions Plan and hopes for the co-operation of all provinces. The $10 increase will not especially affect the financing of the contributory pension plan.

Mr. Pearson, however, he noted that if a number of provinces were to establish their own plans, the administrative problems involved in providing portability between provincial plans and with the Canada Pensions Plan would be much increased," the prime minister's statement said.

He said each province would doubtedly has the right under the constitution to arrange its own pension plan.

"The federal government . . . has no intention of entering into competition with the provincial governments in a matter of concurrent jurisdiction.

"Such competition could lead to excessive costs for the financing of pension schemes."

Quebec intends to introduce its own comprehensive pension plan, but Mr. Pearson said it would not be "an obstacle to the federal government's national objective," and the Quebec plan could be integrated with the Canada Pension Plan.

"If this expectation is confirmed, the federal government intends to propose in its legislation that contributions under the Canada Pension Plan will not normally be required of people whose terms of employment within the jurisdiction of a province which has a universally-available pension plan providing comparable benefits."

Con Insurance Man Says Plan Blunder

WINNIPEG (CP)—An insurance company executive today described the proposed Canada Pension Plan as "a blunder" and said Canadian voters should insist on a public inquiry before it is implemented.

"I am sure that the authors of the Canada Pension Plan, who, I understand, remain anonymous, sincerely believed they had found an intriguingly easy cure to a very difficult problem," said D. E. Kilgour of Winnipeg, president of the Great-West Life Assurance Company.

"It is my conviction that they were misled, and the remedy they cause it was hastily included in a pre-election party platform."

Mr. Kilgour addressed the annual conference of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants in vague terms.

Text of his address was released to the press in advance of delivery.

He said the plan had four major faults—it would subsidize the wrong people, make for wrong pensioning many Canadians, increase economic problems to coming generations and "make Canadian capital formation more costly and unnecessarily small."

The plan was outlined to the Commons July 19 by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh.

It calls first for a $10 increase in the present basic $65 monthly old-age pension, payable at age 70. January, 1965, is the target date to begin paying additional amounts over and above the flat $75—beginning with a maximum of $10 a month on an individual in 1966 and rising to a maximum of $100 at the end of a 10-year program.

The additional payments will be financed by contributions

Grand Jury Will Get Two Murder Charges

A grand jury today in Belleville begins examining evidence in two capital murder charges, to decide whether there is sufficient evidence to send the accused persons to trial.

Vincent Armand Caissie is charged with the murder of his wife in their Belleville home, last April. Toronto parking lot attendant Joseph Bernard Coombs faces a similar count in the stabbing of Sharon Margaret Frost at L'Amble, February 14.

Both charges will be presented for grand jury scrutiny at the start of the Ontario Supreme Court Assizes under Mr. Justice E. G. Montgomery.

The jury will return either true bills — signifying a trial — or a "no bill" — which dismisses the evidence as insufficient to warrant a trial.

IN MEMORIAM

GULIS — In loving memory of our dear husband and brother James Gulis, who died one year and one day ago, Sept 9, 1962.
Flowers may be placed here,
There are others, yes we know,
But we want ours, we loved him so,
Dear God take a message,
To the heaven above,
To tell him how much we miss him,
And grieve him all our love.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Mother, Sister and Brothers.

GULIS — In loving memory of our dear nephew and cousin James Stephen Gulis who passed away so suddenly Sept. 9, 1962.
Until the time I meet you there
That moment I long for,
The sorrow of the day would bring,
The call was sudden, the shock severe,
To part with those we loved so dear.
Something it's hard to understand,
Why Master, should have to be so,
In His wisdom, God has planned,
His way of our sorrow to see,
Lovingly remembered by his uncle, Archie and family.

IN DAYS OF OLD, this sled delivered beer for Roy's Brewery, on Front St. Fred Mossman of Belleville bought it when the brewery was closed, and used it to carry his garden produce to winter market in Belleville. There's not much practical use for the sleigh now, (though it would still be good for fun), but the sleigh will go on sale Wednesday, because Mr. Mossman has quit market gardening. He's not yet retired — he just bought a dairy farm in Prince Edward County.

Fred Mossman, a Vendor On Market for Many Years, Recalls Many Early Events

Then end of an era arrives Wednesday, when Fred Mossman's farm equipment goes up for auction, at his Sidney Street market garden. After 34 years as an institution on Belleville's Market Square, Mr. Mossman was wiped out, he says, by the hail and wind storm early in August. It's not the end of his farming days, however, already he has bought a 200-acre dairy farm, the Seldon Black property, near Bloomfield.

Harry Mossman, Fred Mossman's father, bought the Sidney St. farm just 84 years ago — the year Fred Mossman was born. After 12 years in Canada, Mr. Mossman had accumulated just enough money to buy a horse, a democrat buggy and the 70 acres of land. It was enough, he figured, to set up as a market gardener.

WELL KNOWN VENDOR

Fred Mossman was well known on Market Square by the time he took the property over from his father, at the age of 22 years. He has been going to market regularly, with his father, and he attended the old Market Square Public School, on Pinnacle St., for several years.

Market Square was a muddy mess at that time, Fred Mossman remembers, with broad walks for the pedestrians. Hitching posts were the order of the day on Front St., stores were still heated by wood burning box-stoves, and the women who came to market often came on the old horse-drawn street railway. There was just one track, up the middle of Front St., Fred remembers, with sidings at the upper bridge and by the old Lower Fire Hall (near Victoria Park) The driver stood out front on an open platform to manage the single horse, and there was straw inside for the passengers' feet during the winter.

CITY HAS CHANGED

Money was something different in those days too. Fred Mossman recalls. Beer, straight from Roy's Brewery, (near the river, just off Front St.), sold for about 25c a gallon. If you bought it by the bucket, at hotels, a "schooner", which held about a quart of beer, sold for a nickel. When The Globe Clothing Store opened, Fred Mossman bought two suits for $3 each. He wore the lightweight suit all summer, he says and he used it as coveralls when he was hauling manure that winter.

But the city has changed, and the market has changed with it. Now about a third of its former size, the market is confined to Market Square now, instead of spreading along both sides of McAnnany St and out onto Pinnacle St., as it once did. There are a lot of faces missing too, according to Mr. Mossman's memories.

Until three years ago, he was still selling vegetables to people who had been buying at the Mossman stand when his father was running it. No more though, and there are none of the farmers from those days left either.

CROP WIPED OUT

And since the storm that wiped out the Mossman crop, Fred Mossman hasn't even been there himself. With his wife dead since spring, and all the crops a total loss, he just didn't see the sense of carrying on. He listed the farm with B. G. Foster Real Estate in Canniston (and sold it in three weeks flat through the Multiple Listing Service of the Belleville Real Estate Board) and began looking for another place. A dairy farm, he thought.

HRe found the farm, fully equipped, in Bloomfield, and paid out his deposit. Now there's just one step — the auction of the equipment from his old farm — and Fred Mossman will be cut loose from his ties with the Belleville market. And Belleville market will be cut loose from a tie with the history of the area.

The son of Mrs. Florence Bowler of 205 King Street, Trenton, W/C Bowler attended Trenton High School and the Belleville Collegiate before he joined the service in August 1936. He rose to the rank of sergeant by February 1940 when he accompanied Canada's first squadron to go overseas. He served in England during the Battle of Britain and the Dunkirk evacuation and later assisted in the formation of 129 Airfield which moved to France after D-Day. He was commissioned in December 1961.

Since the war W/C Bowler has served in senior technical staff positions with units at Trenton, Ont., and Chatham, N.B., and with headquarters at Trenton, Ottawa and Metz, France.

In addition to his Second World War travels in England and France, W/C Bowler has also visited Scotland, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, Spain, Belgium and Luxembourg. No longer a tourist for tourism's sake, he enjoys hunting, fishing, boating and photography as his hobbies.

W/C Bowler is married to the former Winnifred J. Potts of Ottawa and has one son, John, 17.

3 Candidates Speak at NDP Corn Roast

The three New Democratic Party candidates from the Quinte area were in attendance at a rally and corn roast held on Saturday evening at the farm of Howard Wess at Carrying Place. There were from 50 to 60 people in attendance.

Rod MacDonald, New Democratic Party candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox, outlined the party's provincial program and spoke at length on the medicare program. He said that the Ontario Hospital program has helped a lot. "Then why shouldn't we use the same method of paying our medical bills?" he asked. He said the people of Saskatchewan have done it and have recently reduced their annual payments from $75 per year per family to $53 per year.

Ian Reilly, New Democratic Party candidate for West Hastings said that he thought that medicare and jobs for the people of this area were the two things people were most interested in during his canvassing of his riding. He said that both of the two old line parties had promises but experience had shown that often these promises were not carried out. In Saskatchewan the CCF-NDP government had fulfilled its promises and a New Democratic Party government in Ontario would do the same.

Charles Clemens, the New Democratic Party candidate in East Hastings, said that the New Democratic Party was the up and coming party and the party program had got a good reception in his tour of the North part of the riding in the Maynooth and Bancroft areas.

Credit Union Chapter Hears Oshawa Man

The Quinte and District Credit Union Chapter's first meeting of the fall was held September 4th at the Club Canara. Five credit unions were represented, Wilson Concrete Products, Civil Service Trenton, Norlecto, St. Peter's Parish Trenton and Quinte Credit Union, Picton.

The speaker for the evening was Leon Davey, manager of Auliworkers Credit Union, Oshawa. His topic was "Publicity and Promotion." The main theme of the talk was the importance of informing people of the benefits of credit unions. He said that advertising was one of the important ways of carrying on the publicity and promotion of the credit union movement.

Bob Whiten announced that tickets would soon be available for a dinner and dance on Credit Union Day, Oct. 17th. He mentioned that only 350 ticket would be sold. Ray Scott announced that Percy Quinton, controller for the Credit Union League, would be the speaker at this event.

Voters' Lists In Two Ridings Nearly Finished

Returning officers for the two Hastings ridings in the September 25th provincial elections today are completing tabulations on the voters' lists for their respective ridings.

Harry Morrow, R.R. 4 Stirling, is returning officer for Hastings West and has his office at 383 Front Street.

In Hastings East, Kenneth R. Virtan of Shannonville is the returning officer.

Today both men said that the total of eligible voters in their respective ridings would be completed by this evening.

Totals for Belleville and Trenton have been completed. These show that 12,926 will be eligible to vote in the city, while in Trenton the count is 6,192. The Belleville total compared with 12,606 in the 1959 election, while in Trenton the count four years ago was 6,001.

Jobless Categories

Unemployment is our most difficult economic problem.

Two groups of workers are most susceptible — the untrained, or under-trained, and the aging.

Paradoxically enough, they suffer because of two trends which hold the greatest promise for a better life for all in coming years — automation, which enables us to produce more, at a lower cost, and the provision of security.

Automation decreases the demand for unskilled labor. The spectacle of a factory staffed by a lot of button-pushers who will be bored to death, instead of by skilled craftsmen taking a pride in their tasks, has not materialized. Even button-pushing can be done automatically, but only highly trained men can design, install, repair, maintain and service the complicated machines which make automation possible.

Some of the men displaced by these machines are young. They can be retrained. Some are old. There may be little to be done in their case, because their remaining working years are few and retraining might not be worth while. Yet even many older workers may well face a brighter future.

The National Employment Service is fulfilling a useful function in endeavoring to reduce the number of "drop-outs" from schools, and thereby to lower the number of workers with insufficient education to learn new skills. It is not so certain, though, that this same service is likely to make much headway under present circumstances in its efforts to have employers give jobs to older men and women. It stresses that older workers are "just as capable of maintaining production standards as younger people," that they are "steady and reliable," that "age is no criterion of efficiency." Surely, though, most employers are aware of this. Insofar as they are not, the N.E.S. is performing a useful function. It says that there is "a steadily growing recognition by management of the employment value of older workers." This is all to the good — but still 'not good enough.

More than recognition of facts is needed. One big obstacle which older workers have had to face in seeking new jobs has been the requirements of pension plans. Reputable firms do not want to have their employees living in poverty after their working years are over. Therefore, many of them provide pension plans. But pensions are only adequate if contributions are made over a lengthy period. This has resulted in firms refusing to hire older men and women.

That obstacle may shortly disappear, when "portable pension" are provided, by either the Ontario or Federal plans.

Once either of these plans becomes operative, the National Employment Service is likely to have much less difficulty "selling" employers on the benefits of hiring older men and women, providing they are adequately trained for the jobs which are open.

The Lesser Danger

Steven Fitts is six Yet, in one sense, he is a pioneer. A white boy, he has been enrolled in a school which formerly was reserved for Negro children.

This is desegregation in reverse.

Yet it produced precisely the same reaction from white segregationists in Steven's home state of Arkansas as that displayed by them when Negro children attempt to enter schools formerly reserved for white children. Steven's mother has received a steady stream of obscene and threatening telephone calls. A rock thrown through Steven's bedroom window showered him with broken glass.

While Mrs. Fitts deserves full marks for courage in enrolling her son in a Negro school, one is tempted to argue that children should not be forced into the front lines in such a fight. This, of course, applies just as much to the Negro children who are sent forth to break the Jim Crow barrier in white schools as it does to Steven, sent to a Negro school.

Perhaps it may be impossible to spare the young. Perhaps, they are doomed to be scarred, in any case.

Mrs. Fitts told a reporter: 'He (Steven) will learn something out of all this. At his age, he has no prejudice."

To protect him from the ordeal of having rocks thrown at his home and from facing taunts would involve sending him to a school where he would be in danger of becoming a rock-thrower and a taunter. Perhaps Mrs. Fitts is right. Perhaps, she has chosen the lesser danger for her son.

Credit Union Loss Small

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The credit union share of financial business in Canada is getting big enough to make the orthodox bankers, and the big finance companies, pay some respectful attention to this newcomer in the lending business.

The most recent set of annual statistics, showing the picture as of May, 1963, reported that the credit unions in Canada then had loans on their books to a total of $600,000,000, plus another $400,000,000, mostly in French-speaking Canada, of mortgage loans. The credit unions are now doing about 12 percent of the country's lending business.

The one most impressive statistic, in the sea of figures which show how credit unions are doing, is the one which reports on the bad loans. Among 2,500,000 Canadians who are now members of credit unions, there are bound to be some who borrow, and do not pay back.

The percentage of credit union loans which are written off as bad loans, is a little less than one-fifth of one percent. If a credit union has loans of a million members $100, it can count, on long-term averages, on getting back at least $99,800, plus interest. Or, if it lends money to 500 of its members, it can count on 499 of them coming back. The figures tell a creditable story about the financial honesty of most Canadians.

We wonder to what extent this good record for honesty among borrowers can be explained by the fact that credit-union borrowings are done only by members of groups, which, after all, are not part, fairly small. Anyone dealing with a friend, or an acquaintance, is likely to be scrupulously honest than when he is dealing with the impersonal faraway corporation.

Every reader can tell a story, from his own experience, of someone who cheated a storekeep bill for automobile repairs, because the insurance company was paying. If someone he knew had been paying, rather than an insurance company, he probably would not have cheated.

The strength of credit unions may be, in very great measure, that the typical credit union (caisse populaire in French Canada) is run, and loaned to, by members known each other. The danger in the future may be simply that credit unions may become too successful, and too big.

Common Mart Overrated

Christian Science Monitor

There is a tendency in all non-Common Market countries to rate that organization higher too high or too low. To Britain, for example, Prime Minister Macmillan and his party seemed to be saying there was no alternative for the British economy but British membership in the European Economic Community. At this moment in the United States, the farmers are up in arms American poultry cause quick assumptions that the United States was seeking to help Europe to promote the Common Market.

The Common Market however has achieved some things of significant not only to its own members but to other countries. The outer tariff wall with which the European "Six" surround themselves is proving a great stimulus of their pre - Common Market national tariffs. And France, where protectionism has been very strong, is bringing its tariffs down to the general level.

Contrary to the dark forebodings which British officials foretold, the Common Market is today taking more British goods than before the question of British membership was mooted and then vetoed in the bud by de Gaulle.

As for trade among its own members, the Common Market has often been unduly credited with bolstering this. It has helped, no doubt. But general European prosperity has helped as much or more. For example, in three years just after its founding, Common Market internal trade increased by more than 70 percent, a spectacular achievement until compared with the increase in the three years preceding its establishment: more than 80 percent.

The Common Market is a good thing, though not quite so good as many imagined it. Where it is not a good thing, it is not so bad as special interest would paint it.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Italy Capitulates. Signing of the Italian Armistice was hailed as one of the great milestones of the war in official circles. The unconditional surrender of Italy to the Allies is the most cheering news of the war. It is but a pre-runner of greater news we will receive during the future. The fall of Germany's partner has come much sooner than most of us had hoped for. It had been expected that the conquest of Italy would take many more months of fairly heavy campaigning for the Nazis had had time to get their defences organized in that area. It states that the Allies would have considerable trouble dislodging them from the country.

We have much to rejoice about now that victory is in our grasp. The road, so long, has been long and arduous and our mistakes many and costly, but not so costly that we should have made. There is much to be done before we are finished with the fight but at least we have the anticipation of success. There must be no letup in our determination to prosecute the war and its logistical consideration and do everything in our power to support our fighting men with all the tools of war they can muster.

Izaak Walton Twice Wedded

By WALTER MONFRIED
In The Milwaukee Journal

A New Yorker magazine cartoon of this summer shows a middle aged couple in a row boat — the man solemnly fishing and the wife, quite bored, asking nobody in particular: "Was there a Mrs. Izaak Walton?"

The answer, if she is still interested, is "yes." In fact, there were two Mrs. Izaak Waltons, but there is no record that either was dragged out to fish with her husband.

The beloved Izaak, author of "The Compleat Angler" and a few biographies, lived the rich, full life worthy of a devout angler and devout citizen — a life that lasted 90 years, from 1593 to 1683. And he kept on fishing until he was far into his eighties.

"I have laid aside business and gone a-fishing," as frommonger Walton declared, in a sentence that will live as long as the language.

In his day it took courage to be a reader out of London into rural Staffordshire for a day's fishing. A civil war was being fought as he completed "The Compleat Angler" and he stood a good chance of being roughed up, or worse, by a haughty Cavalier or a stern Puritan.

The records of Canterbury, England, carry the following brief notice, in the free and easy spelling of that period:

"27 March 1626, which day appeared personally Izaack Walton of the cittie of London, Ironmonger, a bachelor of the a age of 32 or thereabouts . . . alleaged that he intendeth to be marryed to Rose Floud of the Cant., virgine of the age of 19 years."

Izaak and Rachel (as it would be spelled now) returned to his home in London. A native of Staffordshire, Izaak, a London lad, Walton had settled in London as a dealer in hardware, hosiery and haberdashery in general.

It could hardly have been a happy marriage. All seven of their children died in infancy, and Rachel herself died in bearing her seventh child. A brief note in Walton's prayerbook tells us: "Rachel died 1646."

Six years later Walton married Anne Ken, a half-sister of the eminent Bishop Ken, and the two children were born to them and survived. His business was flourishing, but Walton was not so business in his fifties he could devote his time between London and the countryside. Anne Walton died after 16 years of happy married life and left her husband "disconsolate." Izaak, that "she dyed," he wrote in his prayer book, "and then crossed out the "dyed" and added "fell asleep."

In the chapel of Worcester cathedral where she was buried, he placed a small oval memorial with this epitaph: "Here lyeth buried, so much as could dye, all on the wife of Izaac (sic) Walton, who was a woman of remarkable prudence and of the primitive pietie, and her grasie and all-sufficient knowledge being adorned with such true humilitie, and blest with so much Christian meekness, as made her worthy of a more memorable monument."

Walton by that time was a writer of note. He had brought out the first edition of "The Compleat Angler, or the Contemplative Man's Recreation" and had also published biographies of John Donne, famous poet and divine, and Sir Henry Wotton, a prominent ambassador.

If his writings are any indication, Walton must have been a kind and affectionate husband. His domicile is always marked by contentment. The opening of "The disporte of fyyshyng" is always compared to Chaucer's rubby commence, "the diligence of trades and noiseful gain." And Walton's famous marvel, Walton's treatise on angling "would sweeten a man's temper who had a mind to it."

"The Compleat Angler" consists mainly of amiable conversation between Piscator (the fisherman who is Walton) and Venator (the hunter.) A falconer (Aucupe) joins a few lines of praise for his favorite pastime and bows out early.

A particularly poignant tragedy in a fisherman's day is reported thus:

Piscator: Look you, Scholar, I have another. Come, do as you did before. And now I have a bit at another. Oh, me He has broke all; there's half a line and a good hook lost.

Venator: Ay, and a good trout too.

Piscator: Nay, the trout is not lost; for pray-stake notice, no man can kno what he never had."

Balanced Diet Helps Cirrhosis of the Liver

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there anything I can eat or do to help my liver, which has been damaged by alcohol? Some people (not doctors) advise eating lots of liver. I. M. P.

Well, let's face it. If the liver has been damaged by alcohol, there isn't much that can be done. However, you are still alive and kicking — or might I better say you are still alive and thinking. Which is the important thing.

You drank. Too much and probably didn't eat properly. It's a moot question as to how much damage alcohol does, and how much damage results from improper eating habits when drinking too much. Some people you know, have cirrhosis of the liver even if they have never consumed any alcohol at all.

Eating lots of liver is too simple an answer. If you have had a hard or a long time, don't grow a new one by eating pig's knuckles, for example, nor grow a new stomach, if a cirrhosed stomach has been removed surgically, by eating tripe. That's just the way things aren't done.

Nevertheless, there is a proper diet. Many a cirrhosis patient has been helped, but refused to follow simple medical instructions on diet, and has suffered the consequences. Sometimes, indeed, have just gone on drinking and eating irregularly, and the result was a decrease in considered their lives by many years.

A balanced diet of protein, carbohydrates (sugars, fats, of course, vegetables, fruits, milk) and sometimes a vitamin supplement. Liver, for most of us, is very helpful. Liver is a good food, and you may very well include it in your diet, but liver isn't any special value in it for cirrhosis.

In advanced cases, with swelling of the body and tissues, salt may have to be restricted.

If nitrogen wastes increase in the blood stream, meaning that they are not being discharged at a suitable rate, a decrease in the amount of protein may be necessary. (Your doctor will tell you whether or not this is needed — the risk is usually too little rather than too much protein.)

But unless there is complication, (swelling, or nitrogen wastes in the blood) and especially if the main diet is a balanced one, meals need not be large, but they should be regular. That's important, too.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about eye transplants? I am slowly going blind. My eye doctor says nothing can be done, and that the trouble is from hardening of the arteries. — Mrs. B. W.

Your specialist is correct. It is not possible at present "transplant an eye." The transplants which you have heard about involve only a very small portion of the eye, a portion of the cornea, or outer covering.

The cornea sometimes becomes clouded or scarred from disease or injury, and a new one can restore sight just as replacing a ground glass window pane with clear glass lets you see through it. For the cornea transplant to be effective, the rest of the eye must be in good condition.

Urban Voter Short Changed

Winnipeg Free Press

An important item to which the Liberal government of Ontario is addressing itself is the matter of electoral reform. It is reported that the party faced with the issue (a) by establishing an independent redistribution commission to deal with the problems of constituency boundaries, (b) by establishing a permanent voters' list, and (c) by reducing the voting age to 18 years.

On the first two proposals it should be able to command a good deal of support. The distribution of federal electoral districts has been unfair since the 1920's, even although the redistribution took place only a little over a decade ago.

The fact is that the vast movement of people from rural to urban areas has never been recognized electorally in Canada, and the value of a city vote in relation to a vote in a rural constituency has seriously declined.

If this matter is to be set right, the best and most obvious way of doing it is through an independent commission, such as commission, indeed, has been long overdue.

Equally overdue is the move to establish a permanent voters' list. Over the past six years there have been no less than four general elections in Canada.

Without a permanent voters' list, every vote has had to be enumerated for each election. A permanent staff to keep a continuous count could not possibly involve any great expenditure, and would be much more likely to be accurate and fair to the voters.

Only on the proposal to lower the voting age to 18 is Liberals on controversial ground. It might be well to keep this as a matter of interest although one of the more pressing reforms in the electoral process which are most likely to get general support.

Police Seize Guns From Hunting Party

Provincial police from Picton swept down on hunting parties in Aemilasburg Township Saturday, confiscating shotguns from five men hunting out of season.

Police said the five, all from Toronto, would be charged under the Game and Fisheries Act.

And they intend to patrol the area again next weekend. Hunting in the area — administered by the Tweed Lands and Forests district — does not legally open until September 21st.

The confiscations took place after farmers on the township's 3rd concession called the OPP about hunting parties in the area.

Next weekend, say police officers they will be accompanied by game wardens to enforce the law against any repeat of illegal hunting in the area.

Cross-Roads Work Camp

Kenya as Viewed Through Eyes of Canadian Student

By James McAuley

KANAMAI, KENYA — Operation Crossroads Africa is a mission of friendship undertaken this year by some three hundred North American university students. The project, which was organized in 1958 by Dr. James Robinson of New York City, is non-governmental; and it attempts to transcend the national, racial and cultural barriers that have separated the peoples of Africa and North America. To this end, Crossroaders engage in a kind of personal diplomacy with the many Africans they encounter.

I have been privileged to work with a group of twelve such students this summer at Kanamai, which is several miles north of Mombasa on the Kenyan shores of the Indian Ocean. Our project is a youth leadership training centre, designed to provide facilities for the training of leaders among the country's young citizens. Together with ten African students who work with us, we have cleared away an area of bush for a soccer field, and we have now constructing some housing quarters of concrete blocks and palm thatching.

GREAT IMPACT MADE

The concept of mutual labor is relating personally to Africans is unique with Crossroads. More than any of our efforts, it has made a great impact upon the indigenous Africans who live nearby. For it is so uncommon to see white people, especially the young women in our group, working in this way. Indeed, the Mombasa and national newspapers have carried many articles and pictures depicting this very facet of our workcamp.

But manual labor is only part of Crossroads activity. The pleasant English tradition of afternoon tea has been adopted, and together with volleyball and swimming in the warm ocean surf, many hours are spent in conversation with our African counterparts. Our many shared experiences have helped enormously in the problem of communication. And in fact the learning process has worked in both directions. My own interest in the many strange customs, the language and the African way of life, is met with a thousand questions about our country, her government and educational system, and her people. They seem amazed that all North Americans are not wealthy, and that some of us really do work with our hands. They want to know about racism, too. About Little Rock and Ole Miss. . . these are the things about America that their merit news coverage here in Kenya.

WIDE RANGE ENTERTAINMENT

For entertainment, one has a wide range from which to choose. The late European movies are available for fifty cents admission; the success of India's ballet season is currently being performed; and the Mombasa Shakespearean Group is presenting 'Much Ado About Nothing' for the African students of Coast Secondary School.

We accepted an invitation to attend the latter performance, given in an open air hillside theatre down the coast. The players, clad in quaint Victorian costume, turned in a masterful performance, despite a troublesom downpour and a background of wildlife sounds and throbbing Giriama drums.

In addition to evenings of formal discussion with social and government leaders are those times spent in informal singing around a campfire. North American folk ballads are quite popular here, but the most frequent selections are about emerging-East Africa. It is often said that folk music reflects the mood of the time and society in which it originates; and this is certainly true of the political themes that are popular here. For example, the national anthem, which is partly a kiswahili, is also every bit as moving as the Marseillaise. The popular song of East African Union is similarly impressive. Wimbo wa umoja (song of freedom) and continues:

'Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika.
Sisi nasadiana'.

The last line means simply, 'Let us help each other.'

Our workcamp is set on a picturesque shore of white sands and coconut palms. Old Arab dhows or sailing vessels ply their way beyond the reef; and at dawn, after a soft rain has fallen, one can see the fishermen heading into the tide in their long dugout canoes. Their tribe is Giriama a very happy people despite many hardships. They love to sing and dance in the night to rythmic drums, and to drink palm wine, which is the very potent sap of palm trees.

However, the overwhelming trait by far of these coastal Africans is their hospitality. The interest in manner and sincere spirit in which they have received us. For example, Chief Fanjo, a local dignitary, devoted a whole day to our personal introduction to his tribe, to its traditions and their lands. In the late afternoons, he invited us to his home and presented us to his family. Owing to the chief's keen appreciation of the American jazz musician Louis Armstrong, his infant son is fondly called 'Satchmo'. We were served a delicious variety of coconuts, tangerines, cassava, and of course, palm wine, too. Here in the humble home of an African chieftain, we experienced the spirit of sincere hospitality. And I left with the feeling that living is, indeed, an art that is universal.

Watchman Hit By Passing Car, Pelvis Broken

Laying flares, a 65-year-old night watchman on the Highway 14 construction project north of Belleville was severely injured last night when struck by an automobile.

Harry Parker, R.R. 2 Picton, received a fractured pelvis when hit by the car, driven by Larry Gerow, R.R. 1 Foxboro.

Provincial police say Mr. Parker was setting flares about 10 p.m. along the new highway grade just north of the city limits when the vehicle struck him from behind.

He was admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

Fire Destroys Barn Containing Hay, Machinery

PICTON — Fire destroyed a large barn and contents on Picton - Bloomfield highway, near Waring's Corners, early Sunday morning. Owned by Mrs. Jean Carwell, the building contained 2,000 bales hay, stew, machinery, milking machine, a new mower, new wheelbarrow and other articles. "Everything appeared to be alright at 12:30. About 1:20 I was aroused from sleep and told the barn was burning," said Mrs. Carwell.

Bloomfield fire department was called but the barn was quickly a roaring inferno. A watch was kept on Jean's coffee bar and on Hagerman's barn across the road due to flying sparks.

Cause of the fire is not known but spontaneous combustion in the hay, or a broken wire leading from a hydro, are considered possibilities.

The farm was formerly the Yarwood homestead.

Canada's

permanent military force.

Following talks with Rusk, Martin emphasized at a press conference here the need for collective action to deal with local outbreaks, particularly as the world heads into compromissive or partial disarmament agreements.

Martin suggested there is a need to improve and enlarge on the concept to provide for central military planning to overcome difficulties in collective command, such as language barriers and differences in military equipment, military drills and commands.

"Some countries, including Canada, are anxious to do everything possible to set aside stand-by forces and to improve these forces for partial use by the UN if and when needed," he said.

WANTED SIGNALMEN

But in the case of the Congo, the call came for the kind of forces—signalmen—that had not been anticipated by Canada. This had created new problems and delays. Many political factors have emerged if there had been greater military intelligence and other organizational effort within the UN.

Martin suggested the administration should see that the logistic and other problems that might be encountered. Martin agreed, however, that the present UN military committee hasn't made much progress largely because of the Soviet intransigence.

WEDDINGS

LOUGH — ELLIS

"Tall standards of pink and white gladioli formed a lovely setting in Eastminster United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, August 31, when Susan Margaret Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Ellis, Belleville, became the bride of Clare William Lough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy G. Lough, Belleville. The Rev. A. McDowell minister of the church officiated.

Mrs. H. Rennie presided at the organ and rendered traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a bridal gown of ivory brocade with the bodice featuring a Sweetheart neckline and short cap sleeves. The skirt was accentuated with pert bows at top of inverted pleats with the back and front alike. Her elbow-length embroidered veil fell from a wedding ring headdress covered with ivory brocade material. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow shasta 'mums with trailing ivy.

The bride's only attendant was her sister Mrs. R. Wickett gowned in the same style as the bride but in blue brocade. She wore a matching blue headdress and carried a bouquet of white shasta 'mums with green ivy tendrils.

Mr. Strachan Ellis, Belleville, brother of the bride was groomsman and Mr. R. Wickett of Belleville, was the usher.

A wedding supper was held at the Tops Motor Hotel where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake misted about the base with tulle and flanked with white tapers in crystal candelabra. The bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a green and white figured satin, white flowered hat and corsage of orange delight roses. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother gowned in deep blue figured nylon jersey and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to the United States the bride chose a deep blue polished cotton dress, matching blue linen coat, blue accessories and a corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from St. Catharines, Trenton, Wallbridge, Amelíasburg and Belle.

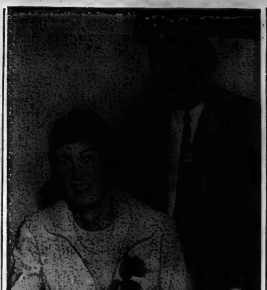
Will Teach In Pakistan This Term

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia school curriculum will be taught in a tiny schoolhouse in East Pakistan for the next two years.

The teacher will be Sandra Frisby, formerly of the Fraser Valley town of Langley, and the students will be sons and daughters of Canadian, American and British employees of Sandwell and Company operating a paper mill in Pakistan.



W. S. Sildwell, former manager of the paper mill, says the firm must offer good schooling if it hopes to attract high-calibre personnel.

"These people want their children to have a similar type of education to that they would receive at home."

Until this year a British teacher has been hired to teach the children, most of whom were from England. But with the mill being expanded by 50 per cent and an increase in Canadian and American employees, it was decided to hire a Canadian.

The choice was Miss Frisby who topped the University of British Columbia graduating class for elementary teachers in 1963. She will teach Grades 1 to 8. Older students will go to private schools in Pakistan, India or other countries.

The B.C. curriculum will be taught to children of Sandwell employees living near a mill in Chile. A retired teacher from here works at that school.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hawthorne Jr., were married in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc. The bride is the former Elizabeth Pirrie, daughter of Mrs. Mary Pirrie, Brockburn, West Lothian, Scotland, and the late Mr. Arthur Pirrie. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hawthorne Sr., Madoc.

At the close the members went down to the water's edge where they visited while watching the young people and children enjoy the water.

Trousseau Tea Given for Bride-to-Be

A delightful trousseau tea was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Greatrix, Dufferin Avenue on Saturday afternoon for their daughter Gail who is to be married soon. The rooms were appropriately decorated for the occasion with arrangements of pink and white gladioli and colorful dahlias.

Mrs. Greatrix along with Mrs. Robert Cruickshank (mother of the bridegroom-to-be), and the bride-to-be, were ably welcomed the guests at the door. Tea was poured from an attractively appointed tea table in the dining room by Gail's two grandmothers, Mrs. G. Everett and Mrs. H. Greatrix. Serving the tasty refreshments throughout the afternoon were Miss Janice Embury, Miss Gisela Baker, Miss Joyce White and Mrs. J. Genereaux, assisted by Mrs. Ted Greatrix and Mrs. Ken Greatrix.

Contents of the hope chest and the bridal trousseau were attractively displayed and were shown by Miss Pat Whalen. Miss Darlene Greatrix was in charge of the guest book, and shower and wedding gifts were shown by Mrs. Leonard Reid.

A Perfect Peach Pie And Method For Freezing Peaches

By MARY MOORE

Gluttonous or starved — I ate one-third of a 9" peach pie plus a generous slice of old Cheddar cheese. I rationalized this revolting behaviour by having only soup for my main course. But I felt wicked because it was so good. I had been making dill pickles and rye bread and to main better all day and was weary and hungry.

I hope you enjoy it as much as I did.

SEPTEMBER 1965 PEACH PIE

Before making your pastry, mix together in a bowl ¾ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons minute tapioca, 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Blanch 12 average-sized peaches in boiling water for one minute. Drain and rinse in cold water and skin and peel and slice and pit them. You need 3½ cups well-packed. (If 12 peaches do not give you 3½ cups peel one or two more.) Stir them into the sugar mixture and add 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Make Pastry: Two cups sifted flour, 1 tablespoon salt, ⅔ cup shortening, 5 or 6 tablespoons cold water. Add salt to flour, cut in shortening and butter until size of peas. Add the water by sprinkling it in as you toss it lightly with a fork until flour is dampened. Pack into a ball between your palms. Roll out half on lightly floured board to fit deep 9" pie plate. Now roll out and shape dough top crust before you put in peach filling. Turn peach filling into lined deep pie plate. Moisten edge of bottom crust. Cover with gashed top crust and seal edges very carefully. Brush top with milk made by stirring together 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. for another 40 minutes or until filling begins to bubble through gashes. Remove from oven and cool on board. Note: Peaches cook a little more after pie is removed from oven.

FROZEN PEACHES

Peel and pit firm-ripe peaches (fairly good results are obtained from Envoy, Redhaven, Sunbeam, Veteran varieties). Slice into eights or twelfths, add sugar (about ½ pound to 6 pounds of sliced peaches), turn the mixture with a rubber scraper a few times, carefully until the sugar is dissolved. Pack in freezer containers, thoroughly seal and freeze. Vitamin C may be added if desired to preserve color.

Dinner Menu

MONDAY

WEDDING

McLENNAN — LATCHFORD

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle was the scene of a double-ring candlelight ceremony, recently when the Rev. F. C. Spring united in marriage Sonya Eloise, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Latchford of Ameliasburg and Glen Gordon McLennan of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLennan of Manitoulin Island, Ont.

The church was decorated with two tall standards of gladiola, mums, canterbury bells and ferns with white satin bows adorning the pews. Mrs. Gordon Smith presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Miss Kathleen Gunter who sang "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony and "Together With Jesus" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a bridal gown of white taffeta featuring long lily-point sleeves, trimmed with rose lace and sequins. Her fingertip veil was of nylon and rose lace caught up to a crown setting of sequins. She carried a bouquet of red Sweetheart roses with trailing ivy.

Miss Janet Potts of Belleville was maid of honor and Miss Freda Daley of Belleville and Miss Wanda Ellis also of Belleville were the bridesmaids. All were identical gowns of forest green chiffon with full skirts and pean de soie cummerbunds and rising into a blouse effect which were flattered with short sleeves. Their headdresses were all white flowers adorned with pearls at the front and caught to over the face veils. They carried cascades of white mums centred with yellow roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Gordon Smith of Frankford and ushers were Mr. Calvin Watson and Mr. James Curry of Frankford.

The wedding reception was held at Johnny's Restaurant, Belleville where the bride's tablewas attractively appointed with white damask linen centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with love birds and wedding rings. The bride's mother received in a gown of pale blue nylon jersey with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to St. Louis, Missouri and the Southern States, the bride chose a blue sheath dress of organza over blue flowered silk, white picture hat, white accessories and a corsage of apricot colored roses.

Guests were present from Brampton, Picton, Big Island, Ameliasburg, Belleville and Frankford.

Previous to the marriage the bride was entertained at showers given by Mrs. Gordon Smith of Frankford and Miss Janet Potts of Belleville with Miss Freda Daley as co-hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. McLennan are residing in Frankford.

Brain Freeze Surgery Gives Hope in Parkinson's Disease

LONDON — Low temperature brain surgery, developed as a result of industrial research into cryogenics and cryobiology, is now being carried out in British hospitals for the treatment of Parkinson's disease and similar conditions.

The success of cryosurgery holds out new hope for thousands of victims from these diseases, which have plagued man since ancient times. The basic method of surgery has been known since 1883, but it could not be applied until recent methods of cooling down to temperatures below freezing could be found and controlled.

While it is not known what causes Parkinson's disease, it is generally accepted that a part of the brain tissue (in the basal ganglia) is affected by an imbalance and is thrown "out of gear". This removes a brake on the involuntary control of limbs. Shaking is one of the distressing symptoms of these diseases, which are sometimes known as "shaking palsy".

NEW TREATMENT

Drugs have played a part in treatment, but frequently surgery is the only hope. In the past this was not often possible because of the danger to living tissue in the brain. But the general development of low temperature studies — cryogenics — has brought a new weapon to the neurosurgeon's hand.

In Britain, much pioneer research in cryogenics has been done by a woman, Miss Audrey Smith of the National Institute of Medical Research, Mill Hill, London. Britain too, in its pioneer work in cryosurgery gave a lead to the rest of the world. Particularly prominent in this field were the late Sir Geoffrey Jefferson, Professor of Neurosurgery at Manchester University and Mr. G. F. Rowbotham, now of the Neurosurgical Unit at Newcastle on Tyne General Hospital.

A technique first introduced in Britain has led to the development of the CSC2 Unit, made by Union Carbide, which gives the surgeon the operating equipment he requires. The essential part of the unit is a fine cannula or probe, with a tip of about 12 mm. diameter, which can be brought down to a temperature of minus 150 degrees centigrade.

TEMPERATURE CONTROLLED

The temperature at the cannula tip is automatically controlled at any desired level. By observing the patient (who is conscious, but under a local anaesthetic) and recording equipment, the surgeon can increase or lower the temperature as required. The lower the temperature, the larger the area affected by the probe. The diseased area is first ascertained by X-rays and the "ice" probe is inserted through a burr hole in the top or back of the head. The operation is not a long process and post-operative time is also quite short.

Post-operative information from patients is encouraging and already many sufferers from Parkinson's disease have been cured by cryosurgery, which basically does not remove diseased tissue, but kills it by extreme cold. The tissue dissolves away and is absorbed through the blood-stream.

C. A. MEET

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s met last Friday evening. President Keith Helm welcomed everyone and opened the service.

The offering was received by Mr. Murray Starr and Mr. Robert Grant. Mrs. Gordon Smith sang a number. The C. A. film strip "Simon Peter, Fisherman" was shown with C. A. President Helm as narrator.

Rev. F. Spring brought the evening message speaking on "Born again Christians should be happy, holy and helpful."

The service closed with a time of prayer.

Child Gets Education In Journey

VANCOUVER (CP) — Diana Heaton-Watson doesn't go to school.

But find a nine-year-old that has a better education.

Her parents are a restless, travel-bent pair who can't be bothered staying home in East Africa to run a 1,000-acre coffee plantation.

So, they have travelled. They have, in fact, travelled 125,000 miles by specially designed truck in the last 4½ years.

Diana has been along, learning to speak French, Spanish and Swahili.

"The trip is making her completely international," says Kenneth Heaton - Watson. "Everywhere we go she plays with children of a different nationality.

"My wife and I give her lessons each day and we teach her the geography, history, and political background of each country we pass through."

It costs Ken and Ann Heaton-Watson $300 a month to pay the family's bills. They live and sleep in the 30-foot truck dubbed Dianke to combine their three names.

NOW IN U.S.

They carry 96 gallons of fresh water and enough gasoline for 600 miles.

Their travels have taken them from England through Europe to the Near East, India, Australia, New Zealand and back through Europe. They shipped to Canada and now are driving through the United States, Central and South America with Argentina the goal.

"This will take us another 18 months," Mr. Heaton - Watson said here. "Then we might go back to farming again."

His plantation in Tanga, Tanganyika is in the care of a manager.

"But we also have a crazy scheme to sell the truck in Argentina for us in England and for the next Olympic Games.

"Then we would catch a train all the way from Peking to Calais, France.

"We would have Dianke Mark II made for us in England and then we would drive home."

JUNE'S OVERTAKEN

MONTREAL (CP)—A nationwide survey of marriage patterns has found that by August marriages will have eclipsed June as the favorite time for weddings. The survey, carried out by a bridal wear manufacturer, United figures since 1952, July and August each led twice but last year September weddings outnumbered June 13,500 to 11,000.

Question: What is the etiquette of tipping when one has a snack at a short-order counter? For instance, if a person has just a cup of coffee at a counter in a drug store, is he supposed to leave the tip when the check is no more than ten or fifteen cents? If so, how much is he supposed to leave?

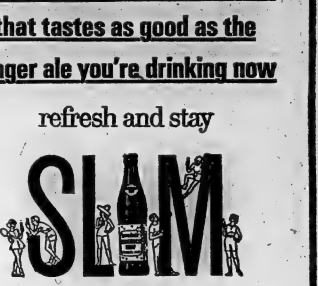
Answer: At a lunch counter, it's customary to leave a tip that's ten percent of the check, or fifteen percent, if the customer has a full-scale lunch. If he orders only a cup of coffee, a five cent tip usually is left beside the saucer.

Question: I've been invited to a wedding in late September and would like to wear a brocade velvet sheath dress I bought last season. Do you think this fabric would be appropriate for early fall, or is velvet worn only in cold weather? I appreciate your opinion about this. — M. C. A., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: Velvet may be worn in early fall, but if the weather is still quite warm, a lighter fabric would not only be more appropriate, but more comfortable.



Question: I had lunch with a friend at a restaurant. When the check arrived she insisted on paying it and left the tip, as well. When I mentioned this to another friend, she said I should have paid the tip, at least, and it was very bad manners to let the other woman pay for everything. At the time, I thought it would be making a fuss if I insisted on paying for anything, so I gave in gracefully, and only hope I did the right thing. What is your opinion? — Mrs. V. M., Newark, N. J.

Answer: If someone you're dining with insists on paying the check and makes a dive for it, it's more gracious to accept the gesture of hospitality the way it's intended. It would have been permissible for you to leave the tip or offer to do so, but even though you didn't, there's nothing to fret about. The only time it's ungracious to even suggest taking care of the tip is when you're an invited guest. The hostess then correctly takes care of all expenses.

Being Star Before Birth A Bale of Horse Feathers

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm at odds with my daughter-in-law because of the way she is teaching our grandson about sex. It has always been the custom in our family to tell the children they were stars before they were born. The other daughter-in-law have gone along with this lovely story but Mary Ellen insists she is going to do things her way.

Last evening several members of the family were seated in the living room and our 3-year-old grandson suddenly asked, "Mommy, where was I before I was born?" Mary Ellen shocked us all by replying, "You were right under my heart — warm and safe." The boy then asked how he got there. His mother answered, "God wished you to be there, so he planted a little seed and you grew there."

Isn't it nonsense to tell a 3-year-old such things? The star story is so much more beautiful. Children have plenty of time to learn what life is really like. Please comment on this. — L. D. C.

DEAR L. D. C. — I'm sorry, but Mary Ellen's version is far more beautiful than that bale of horse feathers about the stars.

And furthermore, when your grandson grows older he will learn that his mother was telling the truth — and the truth, it seems to me, has something to commend it, too. I suggest you go back to your crocheting and leave the young mothers alone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This is a touchy subject because I've been married only three months, but I don't know where else to turn. My wife snores worse than any guy I ever bunked with when I was in the Navy.

To look at her you'd never think such a dainty little thing could make so much noise in her sleep, but it is the living truth that unless I fall asleep first I'm a dead duck.

I can't go on much longer without sleep. I work at a job that requires steady nerves and I'm getting shaky from exhaustion. Please let me know of a cure for snorers, so I can suggest something, instead of just hitting her with the complaint. — BLOODSHOT EYES.

DEAR EYES — Sleepless nights can hatch a whole set of serious problems so you'd better speak up, mate.

Your wife should go to a doctor and learn if her snoring is caused by an obstruction in the nasal passage. If that's the problem it can be easily remedied.

In the meantime, turn her head gently to the side when she starts to snore. Sometimes this helps — for a while.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I work in the office of a successful corporation. Our bookkeeper has been pilfering fairly large sums of money, always paying it back in installments. This has been going on for three years that I know of.

I'm afraid that one day this will be discovered and I may be implicated. Our office is set up in such a way that this practice could not go on without my knowledge.

I've told the guilty person I know what he is doing and I've urged him to stop. I've threatened to report him, but he continues in the same old way.

This situation is causing me considerable concern and now I feel I must do something about it. Should I go to his minister, his wife or the boss? Or should I keep my mouth shut and hope for the best? — JUMPY.

DEAR JUMPY — Go to the pilferer tomorrow and show him a copy of the letter which you should write to the financial vice-president today. Tell the pilferer the letter is going into the mails in 30 days if the books are not precisely as they should be. This will give him ample time to get things squared away. And I urge you to keep your word.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

based initially on two per cent of earnings up to $4,000 annually to be shared by employer and employee. Persons earning more than $4,000 will contribute at the $4,000 rate.

Contributions will benefit proportionally to the amount of their investment in the fund. In 1966 individuals may elect to take their pensions at age 65 or may they will be smaller than those paid at age 70.

KEYS UNNEEDED SUBSIDY

Mr. Kilgour said a feature of the plan is that "the less you need it, the bigger the subsidy received at the expense of other taxpayers." He gave this illustration:

"A man age 65, earning $15,000 a year, will receive a subsidy, or bonus, worth $19,700 at age 70. He and his employer will contribute $40 a year each for 10 years, totalling $800. His $19 a month costs the taxpayer $13,500 at government annuity rates: Subsidy, $19,700.

"A man age 25, earning $4,000 a year, can get a subsidy worth $8,300 at age 65 (at a pension of $118 a month). A 25-year-old earning $2,000 will receive a subsidy of just half as much.

"A struggling small farmer whose cash income may only average $1,000, theoretically can qualify for a subsidy of just over $2,000 but, in fact, he will probably never make a contribution and hence be ineligible for benefits."

The plan thus "runs just exactly counter to all accepted principles of social justice."

Many Canadians would be over - pensioned, Mr. Kilgour said.

"This will be particularly true of those in the $3,000-to-$4,000 salary areas who are employed by government or private employers with good pension plans in which they already have vested benefits which, added to the new government proposals, would exceed their salaries."

By guaranteeing future pensions at contribution rates that are "not nearly adequate," Mr. Kilgour said, the plan leaves future governments and taxpayers to pay the bill.

HELP MIDDLE-AGED

"It creates a sort of middle-aged gravy train. You are not eligible if you were born before 1896. The biggest prizes go to those born between 1903 and 1910 where you can secure the maximum subsidy for the minimum contribution. If one is under age 35, it is a pretty good guess he is going to have to pay in taxes more than he will get out of it.

"For the youngsters presently in school, it is a foregone conclusion they will pay in more than they can hope to get out unless they, when their day in power comes, raise the benefits and pass the load along to their children."

Lady Beaverbrook Picks Up Heavy Tab for Gala Event

FREDERICTON (CP) — This usually quiet and dignified New Brunswick capital was gaggle-eyed Saturday over Atlantic Canada's first excursion into the left-field reaches of contemporary art.

But the new Lady Beaverbrook, who picked up the heavy tab, admitted "conception" of some modern diet was as strange to her taste as it was to most of the invited guests.

The Dunn International Exhibition at the Beaverbrook Gallery includes a key work by critically "every living artist of fame and promise" and six of them won $5,000 prize-five for elusive works that made many of the patrons feel like squares. But the Lesdain winner—John Colville of Sackville, N.B.—had a Boy and Dog on the St. John River scene that was a relief for most because it was both conventional and understood.

As Lady Beaverbrook said at the gala dinner, she hoped the exhibition would prove "stimulating." She could have used "bombshell" with little exaggeration. For the opening night visitors looked alternately startled, shocked and even pleased.

Douglas Cooper of Avignon, France, one of the three judges proposed a toast to Lord and Lady Beaverbrook for creating an exhibition which "could not be surpassed" in many great art centres of the world.

The hostess described the late Sir James Dunn, her first husband, as a passionate devotee of traditional art who rejected the "new, advanced conception" of some modern painters. Her second-Lord Beaverbrook, confined to his English home through ill health—studies the new forms of painting, she said, with an attempt to understand them.

After its Fredericton stand the Dunn International goes to the Tate Gallery in London Nov. 14.

It must have cost a fortune just to collect the 102 works—ranging all the way from a $200,000 Picasso to the, white and white and black on black types. The $30,000 in prize money was probably not the biggest item on the account which included the gala dinner (all guests arriving flying), in from all parts of the world, an imposing panel of judges, military bands and champagne.

The day included the unveiling of a Lord Beaverbrook head outside the gallery, and a big reception.

Quints

list excluded a sot newspaper files said were born in Montreville, Ill., in 1880.

Since October, 1959, quintuplets have been reported born to a woman in Greece and one in Indonesia. None survived. There also was an unconfirmed report that a woman in remote north India bore quintuplets.

The father was quoted by the newspaper El Nacional as saying he married Dr. de Prieto, with whom he had lived for two years, at a simple ceremony several hours after the birth.

"I decided to marry her when I learned she was going to have quintuplets," said the proud father.

"I had every reason to believe that everything would go well because I have faith in the Virgin of Chiquinquira (the patroness of a town 15 miles south of Maracaibo) and in the doctors who have been concerned for the health of my wife."

Mrs. de Prieto entered the hospital early last month for special care after her doctor reported she was expecting a multiple birth. The quintuplets were expected in November.

Governor Lola Vera Gomez of Zulia visited the mother and babies, extending congratulations from President Romulo Betancourt.

The governor said the babies would be guaranteed help and protection by the government and that the family may receive a new house.

The de Prietos have been living in a small dwelling in Ciudad Ojeda near Lagunillas on the eastern shore of oil - rich Lake Maracaibo.

With several doctors and nurses serving as godparents, a priest baptized the babies Saturday night as Robinson, Fernando, Otto, Juan Jose and Mario. They were named after five of the doctors who assisted at the births.

Six obstetricians, two pediatricians, four nurses and an anesthetist attended Mrs. de Prieto and the infants.

ALL CELEBRATE

Residents of the oil centre, where de Prieto was known for his large family, immediately staged a celebration.

"We never expected it would happen," said de Prieto's superior. "We are all thunderstruck about it."

Labor

promised to recall MPs if the Great Lakes situation deteriorated.

Mr. Pearson said he hopes it won't be necessary for him to take up the waterfront problem again with President Kennedy but he would do so if necessary.

"The situation hasn't deteriorated in Canada."

Earlier it had been thought that the next government step in dealing with labor violence on the Great Lakes would be decided by cabinet today.

Labor Minister MacEachen said Sunday night that one possibility is that Parliament will be called back into session earlier than the scheduled Sept. 30 to consider legislation which could place maritime unions under federal trusteeship.

Mr. MacEachen made the statement after meeting for an hour with Prime Minister Pearson. Also attending the meeting at the Prime Minister's residence at 24 Sussex Street were External Affairs Minister Martin and Health Minister Judy LaMarsh.

Mr. Pearson called the cabinet ministers to his home to discuss the dynamiting of the Canadian freighter Howard K. Shaw in Chicago over the weekend. The vessel, owned by the Upper Lakes Shipping Company of Toronto, has been in Chicago for several months unable to take on a cargo of grain because of a dispute between two unions.

The unions are the Seafarers' International Union, ejected from the CLC, and the CLC-supported Canadian Maritime Union. The Howard K. Shaw's crew, formerly supplied by the SIU, now is composed of CMU members.

PLANS LEGISLATION

Canadian ships in the U.S. have been subject to harassment and damage as a result of the bitter dispute. The Canadian government, after hearing recommendations of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris following his one - man inquiry into Great Lakes labor violence, said it planned to introduce legislation dealing with the dispute when Parliament resumed.

When Parliament adjourned last month for its summer holiday, Mr. Pearson said that if violence on the Great Lakes got out of hand the government would consider an early resumption of the session.

CLC President Claude Jodoin said in a telegram to the prime minister that the dynamiting of the Shaw "indicates that the shocking series of violent incidents which precipitated the Norris inquiry is continuing unabated."

Mr. Jodoin said the incident "borders on an act of aggression and the government must act immediately to clear the whole problem up."

External Affairs Minister Martin spent 2½ hours with U.S. State Secretary Rusk in Washington Saturday and told reporters later that Mr. Rusk promised to do everything possible to bring an early and satisfactory solution to the problem.

Mr. Martin told Mr. Rusk that the damage to the Howard K. Shaw would heighten Canadian resentment of the dangers to Canadian lives and ships while in American ports.

Mr. MacEachen was in touch Sunday with U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz and Mr. Pearson telephoned Canadian Ambassador Charles Ritchie in Washington with instructions "as to what further representations might be made" to the U.S. government.

WILL TALK TODAY

Mr. MacEachen said he understands Ottawa has been talks between the U.S. labor department and Averell Harriman of the state department who has been assigned to the problem. There would be further talks today between Mr. Wirtz and the state department.

A U.S. labor department spokesman said the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be called in to track down the dynamiters of the freighter. But the Chicago office of the FBI said Sunday it was taking "no action at this time."

The Howard K. Shaw has been in Chicago since April 22 to take on a cargo from the Continental Grain Company. But the grain elevator workers union have refused to handle cargo for the Canadian ship.

On July 15 Judge James B. Parsons of the U.S. district court in Chicago gave the grain elevator workers 30 days to comply with an injunction against the boycotting of the Shaw. He is to look into the case at the end of the 30-day period—next Friday.

The Liberal foundation plan of school financing, he said, would ensure equal opportunities to all Ontario students, as well as level off property taxation.

The premier told the Owen Sound rally he would match any federal pension increases by boosting the provincial share of old age assistance, payments to the disabled and assitance to widows and unmarried women between the ages of 60 and 65, ineligible for pension grants.

Later in Stratford, he decided a published report that the calling of the election would prevent implementation of the federal government's municipal loan scheme in time to combat winter unemployment.

He said he and his colleagues are already making plans for processing municipalities' applications for loans as fast as they come in.

Relaxed Touring By Premier Is Paying Off

By JOHN LaRLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts' relaxed campaigning in Ontario's general election is rocking up some steam as the Sept. 26 voting day approaches but is not yet showing any signs of berzing the pressure gauges.

His appearance at Ottawa today before the federal-provincial conference on pensions—where his submission will is effect be a reply to opponents' charges that he is trying to torpedo the Canada Pensions Plan —may touch off a phase of more intensified barnstorming.

Right after he tells the Ottawa group of his willingness to integrate Ontario's already-adopted portable pension plan with a federal scheme—a move calculated to take some of the wind out of Liberal Leader Winkermeyer's sails—he will fly out of the capital for an afternoon appearance in Galt. He has scheduled also a night speech at Kitchener.

During the last week he has stumped in northwestern Ontario and through parts of central and western Ontario for the most part at low pressure, mostly making sounds in the style of a man sure of election and exhorting local groups to put their Progressive Conservative candidate on "the winning team."

On only a couple of occasions —in two cases major and minor speeches — has he uncorked heavy attacks on Mr. Wintermeyer, studiously ignoring him or misrepresenting the government's stand on pensions.

He has virtually ignored the New Democratic Party, referring to it only indirectly in such references as promises not to engage in socialistic "toying" with the economy. NDP Leader MacDonald's name has not been spoken.

Mr. Robarts appealed during the week basically on his government's record — "no slick promises" and "I'm giving you the have dones' not the 'will dos'"—with occasional sections of his off - the - cuff speeches pegged to the day's news.

In Owen Sound Saturday, he observed a morning paper report that the federal government planned to institute an immediate $10-a-month increase in the -universal old age pension and promptly announced at a breakfast speech that, if this is so, his government will put in corresponding amounts for the types of assistance under its jurisdiction.

These include the provincial share of old age assistance between 65 and 70 years for the indigent, payments to the blind and disabled and Ontario's new assistance plan for widows and unmarried women between 60 and 65.

TOUR ISSUE

At his next meeting in Meaford in the Georgian Bay area —attended by some members of the municipal council—he is intended to take issue with a published report that the failing of the election would create enough delay to wipe out the chance of providing employment this coming winter through the federal government's $400,000,000 municipal development loan fund.

No so, Mr. Robarts said. The government was getting legislation and administrative procedures set up; was calling a special legislation session immediately after the election for this legislation and would start processing municipalities' applications the first fast as they came in.

He also took occasion to announce that his government will be "delighted" to co-operate next year in a federal-provincial conference in another attempt to amend the British North America Act. Federal Justice Minister Chevrier said Friday his government intends to call such a meeting.

Otherwise on Saturday, Mr. Robarts campaigned in a leisurely crisi - crossing through the Georgian Bay area constituencies of Grey North, Conservative territory in the last house, and Liberal-held Bruce. Around the small towns of Thornbury, Wiarton, Meaford and Southampton, he shook hands on the sidewalks, congratulated a band of girl majorettes, went through the familiar coffee-and-doughnuts routine and bought some home-baked bread at a market place.

Safety Record Of Govt. Hit By MacDonald

By DAVID DAVIDSON

GERALDTON, Ont. (CP)—Premier Robarts' record in the field of industrial safety was assailed here Sunday night by New Democratic Party Leader Donald MacDonald, who described it as "one of the strongest indictments" against the Progressive Conservative party.

Mr. MacDonald, on the fourth day of an election campaign swing through Northern Ontario, said that despite Conservative claims of a pepped-up labor department and promises of a safety code for woods workers, nothing has been done. The industry had the highest accident rate in the province.

". . . The truth of the matter is that the code and its regulations have been ready for weeks and the labor department will not put them into effect.

"The department has become so entrenched that it is contemptuous of recommendations even when they might save lives and years of suffering," Mr. MacDonald said. It had "reverted to the 'time-honored practice of ignoring recommendations in the hope that they will fade away."

The NDP leader told a rally here in support of Joe Shannon, party candidate for Port Arthur riding, that the labor department "no longer feels bound to keep its own promises."

CITES EXAMPLE

He gave as an example the treatment by Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree of a union-recorded hearing into charges of "skullduggery in the woods" last February at Reesor Siding, 35 miles west of Timmins.

"The hearing lasted little more than 60 seconds," Mr. MacDonald said. The labor minister, "displaying absolute contempt for a situation that had already cost three workmen their lives, walked out . . . because of personal affairs."

He also scored the government for its "refusal to do anything that might interfere with the barons of the North." He said that in northern construction work, the province insists that local inspectors handle the task of keeping the job safe.

"But these local inspectors are often called from the ranks of municipal employees specializing in municipal inspection, snow removal and other tasks.

"They are given no power and no authority to close down mills, and they are expected to fight against multi-million dollar corporations about lack of safety for construction workers."

IS AT LAKEHEAD

Today Mr. MacDonald was to be in Fort William and Port Arthur.

At a meeting Saturday night at Kapuskasing, some 210 miles north of here, Mr. MacDonald told about 30 listeners at a rally for the NDP candidate in Cochrane North, Gerard Pelletier, that "for a time the fresh breeze blew" in Ontario after the 1943 election, when the CCF gained more than 30 seats in the legislature.

"This must happen again. We are not going to get lost in the shuffle."

Mr. MacDonald's wife, Simone, who is accompanying her husband on the French leg of the Kapuskasing meeting and said that consumers are often forced into buying things they do not want.

"Advertising must inform, not only arouse interest," she said. "The consumer is forced into buying things he wants but what the manufacturer wants him to purchase."

Mrs. MacDonald is a native of Montreal.

Drilling Through Earth's Crust to Mantle Surrounding Hot Core Will Be Tricky

By RALPH DIGBTON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Drilling through the earth's crust to the mantle that surrounds its hot core—the so-called mohowill be trickier than scientists once thought.

Latest soundings show for the first time that not only the thin crust but also the thick mantle itself are shot through in places with cracks or "faults."

This means that the site for a "mohole"—man's most ambitious project yet for learning what the earth is made of—must be chosen with great care for at least two reasons:

1. Because the mantle rears up on one side of a crack and slips down on the other side, a profile of its interface with the crust looks like a horizontal staircase. A "peak" in this interface could be as much as a mile closer to the earth's surface than a "valley," and thus take less drilling to reach.

2. The earth's crust underneath the oceans has long been believed fairly free of the cracks found in continents—few shown up in earlier soundings. But latest surveys show a complex system of faults in the submarine crust and this indicates extra difficulty for mobole drilling crews.

CRACKS DIVERGE

The same surveys show that the cracks in the crust and in the mantle are not always extensions of each other. Some stop at the crust-mantle boundary, known as the mohorovicic discontinuity, or moho for short.

This could mean that the crust at some ancient time slipped around on the semi-molten mantle. Or, it could mean simply that the crust, formed later as the mantle cooled, has a different system of faults.

Most scientists believe the best way to find answers to these and many other questions is to drill a hole down to the moho—a mohole. And the quickest way to reach the moho, they say, is to drill where the earth's crush is thinnest—underneath the ocean.

Here the crust is only two miles thick in places, compared with up to 20 miles on the continents.

In the last few years oil companies have learned to "drill from floating derricks — ships with a hole in the middle through which drills are lowered to the ocean floor.

IMPROVE TECHNIQUES

Scientists have improved on this technique and in '61 drilled shallow holes in the ocean floor off Guadalupe, Mexico, in water 12,300 feet deep.

Since then there have been surveys to pick the best possible site for drilling the mohole.

The search has narrowed down to four sites, two in the Atlantic, two in the Pacific.

Western Geophysical Company of Los Angeles, which specializes in finding likely drilling sites for oil companies, surveyed the two Atlantic sites earlier this year for Brown and Root, Inc., Of Houston, prime mohole contractor under the National Science Foundation.

At both Atlantic sites—one 150 miles north of Puerto Rico, the other 150 miles east of Antigua —Western's scientists found the earth crust was about two miles thick and the water about three miles deep.

They also found the unexpectedly complex system of cracks.

This month, Western will send a two-ship crew to begin a 45-day survey of the two Pacific sites, both near the Hawaiian Island of Maui.

Whatever site is finally chosen, it won't be easy and it won't be cheap. Estimates for the mohole project range up to $30,000,000.

Will it be worth it?

Some scientists say no. Most are excited, however, by the prospect that for the first time they would have knowledge, not theories, about the nature of the earth.

By studying fossils found in the ocean sediment as the mohole is dug, experts can tell when life began on earth and how living things developed as the climate changed.

By studying the layers of the crust below the sediment, they can find out what the original earth was like before water and air began eroding its surface.

If they succeed in reaching the mantle itself, they could learn how the earth was formed and of what.

More practically, new knowledge gained from the mohole could give men a better understanding of how earthquakes are caused, perhaps show the way to successful prediction.

Some Russian scientists envisage vast underwater power plants which would draw heat from deep in the mantle to generate enough electricity for all the world's needs.

Guns, Dogs, Game Birds Attract Large Crowd to "Sportsmen's Field Day"

TRENTON — Guns, dogs and game birds attracted nearly 3,000 people yesterday to a "Sportsmen's Field Day" put on by the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Protective Association, near Frankford. The guns were antiques, displayed by Orval Berry of Frankford, and modern, displayed by Don Bell Sporting Goods, Trenton, and the Oxbow Gun Shop, Belleville. The dogs came with club members and other people, and the game birds are kept by the Association.

Department of Lands and Forests personnel from Tweed and Lindsay staged a tug-of-war at the meet, judged by MP Bob Temple and MLA's Elmer Sandercock and Clarke Rollins. Tweed personnel won the event.

In another tug-of-war, a team from the Lower Trent Valley club beat out a team from the Kaladar Rod and Gun Club, for championship of the meet. Kaladar had previously beaten Madoc the Madoc Rod and Gun Club, champions of the meet at Madoc last year.

Five-man teams from rod and gun clubs in Madoc, Campbellford, and Belleville competed against the Lower Trent Valley Association's team in a trapshooting contest, won by the Lower Trent Valley group. Score for the winning team, out of a possible 125, was 108. Madoc, with a score of 108, came second.

'United States Leaders' In Danger Says Castro If Cuban Raids Continue

HAVANA (AP) — Premier Fidel Castro said Saturday night "United States leaders" would be in danger, if they helped in any attempt to do away with leaders of Cuba.

Bitterly denouncing what he called recent U.S. - prompted raids on Cuban territory, Castro said:

"We are prepared to fight them and answer in kind. United States leaders should think that if they are aiding terrorist plans to eliminate Cuban leaders, they themselves will not be safe."

Speaking with this correspondent at a Brazilian national day reception in the Brazilian Embassy, Castro also disclosed that Cuba has not yet made up its mind about signing the limited nuclear test - ban treaty drawn up last month in Moscow.

"We are taking into account the current world situation, which of course involves the Caribbean situation, which has been deteriorating in the last few days due to piratical attacks by the United States against the Cuban people."

He reported charges made earlier in the Cuban press and by the government that these incursions were "financed, supported and abetted th the United States."

World affairs, he said, "seemed to be entering a more peaceful climate a few days ago but now this trend has changed with attacks."

Castro then launched into a discussion of the U.S. political scene, saying he expected no change in Washington's foreign policy even if there is a change in administration after the 1964 presidential election.

"I am sure it will be a fight between (President) Kennedy and (Senator Barry) Goldwater (Rep. Ariz.). Both are cheap and crooked politicians."

Despite Many Innovations Stirling Fair Still Remains Show for the Agriculturist

STIRLING (Staff) — One of Ontario's remaining truly rural fairs was stashed away for another Fall here Saturday.

While hay and the hoe have almost disappeared as an integral part of coming to fussy fall fairs, Stirling's annual venture retains the countryside flavor that belies its 105 years.

There are some intrusions from the march of time. A hep jazz combo replaces the fiddler and step dancers as the star stage attraction. Down in the exhibits building among the traditional cheddar cheeses, vegetables and crocheted-bedspreads, a dentician demonstrates modish hair-dos, surrounded by dryers, combs and shampoos.

But the backbone is still livestock, horses and cattle, sprinkled with poultry, mostly drawn from surrounding farmlands. And among the biggest events are the personal meetings with friends and neighbors.

Directors of this year's event said the fair drew "a $1,000 gate." However, some exhibitors claimed the crowd was down from last year and blamed it on the absence of horse racing.

With the season's pony races being rounded out Saturday night in Belleville and Peterborough there were none left over for the fair.

However, the livestock on show was as good as ever.

This year also saw one of the best beef and dairy cattle displays on record, Horsefields in all classes also was in good supply. In fact it was close to 7 p.m. before announcer Lorne Urch called it a day after marshalling the last horse entries for grandstand judges.

JUNIOR FARMERS BUSY

Behind the barns, cattle-judging went on from morning with the juniors of 4-H clubs vieing with veteran breeders.

The crowd mostly confined itself to the track, where the horseflesh paraded, and the adjacent pocket midway and stage show.

The seriousness of the track competitions were garnished with spontaneous humor as fair officials organized horseback musical chairs and a potato race for the youngsters. (The latter event calls for the rider to dash his mount back and forth behind a pile of potatoes and a basket, dismounting to pick 'em up and again to pitch 'em in. Whoever cleans up the potatoes first, wins).

Mainly, however, like all such fairs it was a place to meet and talk, some of it blunt, some good-humored. Those twin elements also were publicly in evidence.

At one point, the leader of a jazz band talked overly long before a single note was played, winding up his spiel with: "Well I guess we've talked enough."

"Well, get the hell on with it then," snapped an impatient spectator bluntly.

Good-humoredly, someone announced over the public address system one of the exhibitors had lost an aluminum horseshoe.

"If you've found it, it's no use to you," boomed the speaker.

SHOE SOON RETURNED

"It won't fit your wife and if you throw it at your mother-in-law, it'll bring a murder charge. So give it back to him."

After that cheery admonition the shoe was returned — within 90 seconds.

The fair also will made aware that Ontario has a general election on its political hands. Candidates for two parties moved through the afternoon crowd, Liberal Frank Follwell and Progressive Conservative Elmer Sandercock, campaigning for West Hastings, gathered conversational groups around them during the day — betimes not too far apart.

Robert Temple, MP Hastings South, was a visitor for the day as federal representative for the riding. The Temples moved about with their two children — the oldest girl losing a balloon, the youngest sleeping through it all in a baby-carriage.

However, not everybody came to the fair. One traditional feature of the fair — bidding the oldest man and woman present — had to be scrapped. Despite repeated urgings on the microphone by director Ben Bleecker not an old-timer showed his — or her — face on the public platform.

There were only a few incidents that caused momentary concern throughout the whole event. At one point, a young colt being exhibited by Miss Benedict, of Belleville, became overly excited, reared and threatened to bolt. It stumbled, fell and was quickly surrounded by track officials as Mr. Benedict soothed it down.

In the barns, one calf took ill when it was fed water from a bucket already holding some detergent. It recovered during the afternoon.

Besides livestock prizewinners, top marks for an exhibit went to a district cheesemaker.

PRIZE WINNERS

Don Pollock, Evergreen Cheese Factory, took six first prizes and three seconds, in a show of 10 classes.

In heavy draught horses, Robert Danford, Hallowell, Cecil Woods, Madoc and Murray Heath, Campbellford shared most of the winning honors.

C. Downey, Crookston, registered four wins for his pony entries.

These were other top winners:

Light Horses (roadsters) - R. Mann, Peterborough; J. Sherman, Stirling; S. Booth, Marlbank; C. Heath, Marmora; Miles Benedict, Belleville; R. J. Mordell, Downsville.

Ponies - Nancy Allen, Corbyville; Dorothy Dorland, Wooler; Barbara Caverley, Belleville; B. Watkins, Peterborough; Morley Smith, Belleville.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—"It's a good thing I own my grocery," said the proud father of girl quadruplets. "I'd be in real trouble if I didn't."

The biggest problem — other than diapers—now facing Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Harkins of Jackson is finding names for the quads.

Until then, they are A, B, C and D.

The multiple birth Saturday night increased the Harkins family to nine children. The oldest is six.

Doctors at St. Dominic's Hospital removed the Harkins quads—who all have long, black hair and a healthy wail—from twin incubators late Sunday.

Mrs. Harkins said she had been expecting "wins.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Gen. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Too often hunters venture into the great outdoors until opening day of course, with some of them not having owned a gun since the last day of season following the taking of game from the province, points out Mr. J. M. Taylor, chief inventor of the Tweed District Lands and Forests.

No officer of a few tips to hunters and fishermen that should help them avoid the possible loss of their guns and hunting equipment and loss of money in the payment of fines.

(1) Check your 1963 $1.50 hunting licence. On the flap of that this licence you will note that it is not valid in the prohibited areas until September 30th. The southern region in the Tweed Forest District includes all the area south of No. 7 Highway in the counties of Hastings, Lennox & Addington and Prince Edward, including all of Prince Edward County. This same licence is valid for the remainder of the Tweed Forest District lying north of No. 7 Highway, opening September 1st.

(2) A gun licence does not convey any authority to go upon private lands without the permission of the owner.

It is unlawful to trespass upon private property without the consent of the owner or occupier. Especially in this practice that has prompted landowners to erect "No Trespass" signs. The onus is on you as a hunter to first approach the landowner before venturing onto his property. Good hunter-farmer relations is necessary if you wish to retain a spot to hunt in the farming and semi-farming areas of the district.

(3) Check your shot gun — make sure that it is plugged so that it holds only three shells can be fitted into the chamber and magazine combined at one time.

(4) Do not attempt to shoot waterfowl from a power boat unless it is beached or within a blind.

(5) Bait placed out to attract ducks must be cleaned up by September 14 (7 days before the opening date).

(6) It is unlawful to shoot within a ½ miles of a baited area.

(7) It is unlawful to disturb ducks or geese by use of a boat or motor vehicle.

(8) Rifles are not permitted for the taking of ducks and geese.

(9) The hunting of migratory game birds is not permitted before one-half hour before sunrise and one-half hour after sunset.

(10) No person shall place a flock of decoys within 100 yards of another flock of decoys.

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Farms' Windy Ship rallied with a half a length to spare on Saturday, won the 40th running of the $12,400 Seagram Cup Handicap before 24,431 spectators at Woodbine.

The six-year-old bay horse's nearest rival at the end of the mile and one sixteenth turf thriller was this year's Queen's Plate and Prince of Wales Stakes winner, Windfields Farms' Canebora. Armstrong Brothers' Admiral Armbro, finished third, a length behind the Windfields' three-year-old.

This was Windy Ship's second win in 10 attempts this year. The $7,400 winner's purse brought his seasonal earnings to $12,385 and his lifetime total to $20,686.

Juveniles Defeat Oshawa 5-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Bouncing back from a 13-0 whipping in the series opener, Belleville Wooddenford knocked Oshawa People's 5-0 here Saturday in the their OASA Juvenile "A" playdowns at a game apiece.

Tidiest and deciding game of the series will be played in Cobourg, Healy on either Wednesday or Thursday evening.

A fine two-hit pitching chore by Bobby Ethier tamed the Oshawa batters here Saturday. Meanwhile the local club combined walks, hits and errors to plate their five markers.

Ethier was credited for a single to centre by Chuck Wayling with two out in the fourth and for a bunt single by Spider Howard to open the seventh. Then Ledger followed the latter down the rest of the time, with good support. He struck out nine and issued two free passes.

Spike Howard started and took the loss in the 5-hitter, charged with the first four runs off three hits in three innings plus. He fanned four and walked four. Boundage finished up, allowing two hits, whiffing two and passing one.

Boomhower's single and two walks filled the bases for Belleville in the first and two runners scored as many runs. The throw in was missed at the plate after Boyle lined out, plating one, and the second man scored when Boomhower ♥ up let the ball get past him.

Yorke's base hit and a walk chased Howard in favor of Boundage in the fourth. Boundage struck out the first two men he faced before Moon tripled to left for a 4-0 score.

St. Denis singled, Ethier walked and Boyle forced to second and third in the fifth. A two-out error by the pitcher upped the count to 5-0.

Carl Boomhower stroked a pair of singles to pace the Woods-Horlock attack. Both Moon had a triple, Jerry St. Denis and Gene Yorke a single each.

Feeling ran high with arguments and threats of fights were the order of the day. Plate umpire Keith Bertrim tossed the Oshawa coach out of the game at the end of the fifth inning but had trouble keeping him clear of the field.

CLARE TOP DRIVER

MONZA, Italy (CP-Reuter)—Britain's Jim Clark won the Italian Grand Prix Sunday and with it the world racing drivers' championship for 1963. Clark, driving a Lotus, took the checkered flag in two hours, 34 minutes, 19.6 seconds at an average speed of 127.74 miles an hour.

Montreal Alouettes, most popular pre-season choice to lead the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference this year, finally made it into first place during the weekend—with help from an unexpected source.

Combining a 30-1 win over the third Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Montreal Sunday with Ottawa Rough Riders' 26-27 upset victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday, the Als tied Hamilton for top spot.

Montreal, however, has picked up its six points in only five games, while Hamilton has played six.

Both clubs have perfect records—at home. For the Als, it was their third successive win in Montreal. The Cats have two games on the road to open the season. The Cats have won three at home and now have lost three in opposition territory.

Montreal broke one significant streak. The victory over the Bombers was the first win for the East in its interlocking games with teams of the Western Conference.

For the Als, halfbacks Don Clark and George Dixon led the offensive parade, but the stout Montreal defence was really the story of the game.

COULDN'T MOVE BALL

The Grey Cup champion Blue Bombers could not move the ball for a single first down in the first half and managed only only point on a wide field goal attempt after recovering a fumble deep in Montreal territory.

Clark scored two touchdowns for Montreal, one on a 73-yard run and the other on a 2-yard pass play with quarterback Frank (Bubba) Marriott. George Dixon and Dave Thelen combined to score the other touchdown. The final points came on a safety touch.

Winnipeg scored its lone point on George Flemming's wide field goal attempt.

The Ottawa scoring was led by lineman Moe Racine, who booked field goals of 38 and 11 yards, three converts and a single. Halfbacks Ernie White and Ron Stewart and end George Sch booked the touchdowns.

Hamilton had two touchdowns from halfback Tommy Grant, one on a pass from Earl Patterson and quarterback Bernie Faloney, and three converts by Dave Hill.

The Alouettes completely dominated the Bombers, tired after scoring a TD over-time in the last-place Argonauts in Toronto Friday. They rushed for 231 yards to Winnipeg's 93, while Clark picking up 172 and Dixon 106.

ADD 13 POINTS

They led 9-0 at the quarter and 17-1 at the half. In the fourth quarter, with Don Thornton relieving Kenny Ploen at quarterback, Winnipeg picked up most of its scoring. Ploen drove flat the Als added their third 13 points in the same quarter.

Montreal finished with 16 first downs, although Winnipeg had the last-quarter replacement Ron Maddocks completed only three of nine passes for 74 yards. Ploen and Thornton completed seven of 16 for 76 yards.

In Ottawa, the Rough Riders never trailed as they moved to within two points of the league lead, using a superior ground attack and better ball control.

Ottawa rushed up 23 first downs, most of them on the ground, to Hamilton's 14, most in the air. Stewart picked up 84 on the Riders' 134 rushing yards, almost equalling Hamilton's total of 138.

The Ticats, with Faloney most of the way and Frank Cosentino in the fourth quarter, flew through the air for 307 yards with 14 pass completions on 36 attempts. Faloney threw for a pair to Patterson for a 64-yard touchdown play, and Grant's second touchdown came on a 67-yard pass play from Cosentino.

Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson completed nine of 19 passes for 164 yards.

Turns Back Boros, Palmer

Nicklaus Wins 'Series' By Stroke

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Weary and upset, Jack Nicklaus, the Masters and Professional Golfers Association champion, still had enough steam left Sunday to turn back an Arnold Palmer challenge and repeat for the top prize of $50,000 in the World Series of Golf.

The 23-year-old , belter from Columbus, Ohio, several times trailed the leader in the two-day playoff. But he came up with the necessary shots on crucial holes to turn back his challengers.

"The 12th hole was the big difference," said Nicklaus. "I hadn't hit a fairway since the sixth hole and was starting to worry."

Palmer, who had been as much as five strokes behind, was even with Nicklaus after the 12th. But on the par-four 13th he put his drive into the right rough run into tree trouble and took a six. That dropped him three strokes behind Nicklaus, who put his second shot on the green and then one-putted from 15 feet for his final birdie.

HEADS BOROS

Jack settled down to par golf the rest of the way and kept ahead of Julius Boros. The United States Open champion birdied four of the last six holes for a closing 69 and a 141, one stroke behind Nicklaus, and picked up second place money of $15,000.

Palmer was third with a 72 and 143 total and New Zealand lefthander Bob Charles, who went into the second round tied for first with Nicklaus, had a 77 for a 147. Palmer and Charles each won $8,000.

"I didn't get much sleep," said Nicklaus, "maybe three hours. I was still upset over what happened Saturday. I started getting tired about the seventh hole and I was hanging the ball out to the right. I just didn't seem to have the snap I usually have."

Snatch 6-5 Win In Eighth

Kenmors Slip By Brockville

By PETER CARVER

BROCKVILLE — Larry Mayesty's clutch single in the eighth drove in the tying and winning runs as Kenmors edged Brockville 6-5 in the second game of the O.B.A. Senior playdowns.

Belleville leads the best-of-five series two games to none with the third game to be played in Wednesday night and the fourth if necessary at Brockville next Saturday.

The losers jumped on Kenmors starter Larry Soden in the first inning for 2 runs on three solid hits and a throwing error. Kenmors roared back in the top of second when Weston and Mavety got on board and scored when Duffy Pollwell poled a high zone over the park's left-field fence for a double. Larry Soden promptly cashed him in with a single.

Brockville continued to hit the ball as they regained the lead in the first half of the second on back to back doubles by Sedard and McBride, a ground out, and an error.

Kenmors tied it up 4-4 in the fourth when Pollwell walked and Mayesty's wicked two-bagger. However Brockville took the lead again in the last of the fourth when Soden was doubled and Forrest singled him home. The score remained that way until Kenmors' eighth.

Touchdowns Bill Latchford pitched the win in relief of Larry Soden who allowed five runs, seven hits in three innings. Latchford came in in the fourth and shut the Beavers down over the remainder of the game.

Brockville's Dave Smith threw good ball in the losing cause, striking out Kenmors seven hits, three of these coming in clutch situations. He set down the men on strikes while walking three.

Jay Elliot was the only Kenmor with two hits, one a double. Rick Locke and Duffy Pollwell were each good for a two base hit while Weston, Mayesty and Soden each contributed a single.

Jim Forrest and Brian McRoble spearheaded the 11-hit Brockville attack with four and three hits. Dexter connected for a pair of singles while Glass and Pearce also hit safely.

Five Leaf Rookies Hit By Injuries

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Rookies with the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey club fall training camp here this year are finding themselves in the infirmary.

Five young hopefuls joined a pair of regulars from the National Hockey League club's roster Saturday when they were added to the list because of injuries after a hard-fought 4-4 exhibition game.

Rod Selling, a junior A star last season with Neil McNeil-Marlboros, suffered a charley-horse when checked by Captain George Armstrong. Goaltender Bruce Gamble received a puck into the boards injuring his shoulder.

Defenceman Connie Madigan cracked his ankle and Bill Collins injured his foot and had to be taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital, a member of last season's Toronto Marlborough Memorial Cup team was sidelined with an elbow injury.

Kent Douglas, last season's rookie of the year, will not take part in scrimmages for at least two weeks. He was operated on Wednesday to correct a chronic shoulder injury and has not recovered as fast as was expected.

Another defence spot was still left open by the absence of Carl Brewer, still recovering from a broken arm he received in last season's Stanley Cup finals with Detroit Red Wings.

Two Swedish players, goaltender Kjell Svensson and left-winger Lasse Oberg, did not look out of place in the practice sessions.

Don Simmons, who shared goaltending assignments last season with Johnny Bower, arrived in camp Saturday night. There has still been no sign of Bower.

Two other absentees, Billy Harris and Tim Horton, are expected here Monday.

Giants Whittle Dodger Lead To 3½

Cards Win Pair

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took almost a year, but San Francisco Giants finally repaid St. Louis Cardinals for a favor.

Giants knocked over Los Angeles Dodgers twice during the weekend, whittling the latter's two games and closed to within 3½ games of the National League leading Dodgers.

On the final game of the season last year, Cardinals dumped Dodgers into a tie with Giants for the league pennant, subsequently won by Giants in a playoff.

Orlando Cepeda belted a three-run, seventh-inning home run Sunday—his 28th—that carried San Francisco to a 5-4 win over Los Angeles and lagged Dodgers' ace reliever Ron Perranoski with his fourth loss. He has won 13.

Saturday, Juan Marichal won his 21st game of the season for Giants in a 5-3 win over Dodgers. Willie Mays hit his 34th homer of the season for Giants, Cepeda his 27th and Willie McCovey his 37th.

CONTINUING SURGE

Meanwhile, the second-place Cardinals, seven games behind at the start of September, continued their amazing surge by whipping Philadelphia Pirates 3-2 for their 11th win in 12 games.

Dodgers have 18 games left, Cardinals 18—including a vital three-game series with Los Angeles at St. Louis starting next Monday.

The remainder of the schedule seems to favor St. Louis, with only four games on the road. Dodgers play 10 on the road.

While the spotlight was focused on Dodgers and Cardinals, Warren Spahn grabbed his share of glory by becoming a 20-game winner for the 13th time. The 42-year-old Milwaukee Braves marvel equalled Christy Mathewson's league record for most 20-game seasons by defeating Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 Sunday.

Elsewhere, New York Mets rode Joe Christopher's four-for-four performance to defeat Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and Houston Colts edged Chicago Cubs 2-1.

Cardinals defeated Pirates 5-3 Saturday, while Cincinnati defeated New York 4-2, third-place Milwaukee defeated Philadelphia 6-4 in 10 innings and Houston sipped Chicago 3-1.

HOLD 3½ LEAD

Dodgers scored two unearned runs in the first inning against Giants Sunday and built their lead to 3-0 behind Jack Sanford before Giants started to get to Bob Miller.

Two runs in the fifth brought on Perranoski, who pitched out of that jam and another in the sixth before being caught.

McCovey opened with a single to right, Mays beat out a grounder to third base and Cepeda drove his homer for the winning run. Don Larsen, touched for W-a-l-l-y Moon's eighth-inning homer, was the winner in relief for a 7-6 record.

Cardinals got the job done against Pirates in the third inning.

Dal Maxvill, subbing for the injured Dick Groat, singled and Julian Javier followed with a three-game series with Los Angeles at St. Louis starting next double. Bob Skinner flied to left field hit got the third run across Monday.

The remainder of the schedule Pirates broke through against Ernie Broglio, 15-8, in the fourth on a double by Smoky Burgess and Willie Stargell's single and made it 3-2 in the sixth on singles by Bill Virdon and Roberto Clemente and another double by Burgess, Bobby Shantz and Ron Taylor, the Leaside, Ont., native, kept them from scoring the rest of the way.

Finals Opener

Lightfoots Defeat Landscapers

Single runs in the fifth and sixth innings gave Lightfoot Construction a 6-4 victory over Barriage Landscapers in the first game of the Commercial softball league finals yesterday afternoon.

Second game in the four-of-seven series is scheduled for Prince Charles School grounds tonight at 6.15.

Barriages jumped into a 2-0 lead in the opening frame and went three ahead in the top of the third. Lightfoots plated a trio in their half of the inning to tie the score and went ahead 4-3 in the fourth. The losers tied it again in the top of the fifth but could not hang on.

Whiting's double, Dolan's single and a fielder's choice chased home the winning run while Gavin hit a base-empty homer in the sixth to get the insurance marker.

Harry Powers pitched the victory, allowing six hits, striking out two and walking one.

Bob Boyle gave up nine hits in defeat, whiffing five and walking four. Both clubs were loose afield, charged with four errors apiece.

Ronny Gavrin hit a homer and single to lead Lightfoots, backed by Don Dolan and Powers with two hits each. Jack Whiting doubled and one-baggers went to Jim Sheridan and Ken Brooks.

Hugh Pearce belted a home run and single for Barriages with Carl Boomhower contributing an double and single. Bob Boyle and Rocky Davis also hit safely.

Give the 1964 Volkswagens a good going over.

VW 1500-TS. Our newest arrival has been improved so much we've given it a special name. Touring Sport.

We chose Sport because it has 25% more power than our regular 1500 model. (And larger brakes to handle the extra power.) With higher compression and twin carburetors, the 1500-TS has amazing performance. From a standing start it will hit 50 mph in twelve seconds. (You see, it really does have the performance of a sports car.)

And we added the name Touring because you can travel across country in complete comfort. (That goes for the station wagon too.) There are two deep, roomy bucket seats that adjust to 49 positions.

Other new features for '64 include: an instant heater, whitewall tires, new colours, (two-tone finish optional) and a few discreet touches of chrome.

(NOTE: You can save a few dollars by buying a regular 1500 sedan or station wagon. They both have all the 1964 improvements except the TS engine.)

VW 1200. Alias the Beetle. Alias Old Faithful. Whatever you call it, it's the car that keeps giving you more for your money.

For example: take a good look at our 1964 Deluxe model.

Those whitewall tires aren't for show. They're for free.

And don't miss our handsome new steering wheel complete with horn lever. (Imagine a Volkswagen with instant beep.)

We've got instant heat, too. (Now it takes longer to warm up the radio than the passengers.)

If you've ever admired our sunroof model, we have more good news. This year the sliding roof is made of steel instead of cloth. In summer you can let in sunshine and a cool breeze. In winter, nothing gets in.

And you still get VW economy. 38 mpg; no oil between changes; no anti-freeze.

Visit your Volkswagen dealer this week and see his new collection of fancy beetles. (Your biggest problem will be deciding which of our seven colours is your favourite.)

VW STATION BUS. Meet Don't give up! Keep taking your wife to see the world's most sensible station wagon. (You know—the one she says looks like a bus.)

Don't be discouraged! Heaven knows we're doing our part. For example, we've just made the rear window wider so she can back up with more confidence. In fact we've made the whole rear door larger and put it on special hinges. (Now she can open it with one hand.)

Never surrender! Keep reminding your bride that although this huge Volkswagen carries nine adults (or a million kids) it's four feet shorter than a conventional station wagon.

Other features include: a 1,500 engine with extra power; a new heating system that provides instant heat; an air-cooled engine that can't boil over; 30 miles to a gallon of gas; fully synchronized gear shift; and whitewall tires.

Wins World Junior Middle Title

CP from Reuters-AP

MILAN, Italy — Hard-hitting Sandro Mazzinghi of Italy won the world junior middleweight boxing championship Saturday night with a surprising ninth-round knockout victory over Upholder Ralph Dupas of the U.S.

The champion tried blocking tactics but Mazzinghi dropped him with a right to the head. Dupas got off his knees at the count of seven and was staggering to the ropes, dazed and groggy, when the referee completed the count.

After the fight, which had been scheduled for 15 rounds, Dupas protested the Swiss referee's knockout verdict and claimed he was ready to continue the fight.

King of the Hill

The King of the Hill match got under way at the Bowl-O-Drome on Saturday afternoon and Joe Di Genova came through with a neat 1298 for his 5 games and went on to defeat Leo Labelle 776 to 741 in the 3 game match to become King of the Hill for the first time.

Jim Begley finished second in the five game match with 1340.

Joe Di Genova had two 300 games on the day's play 318 and 309 and Jim Begley had a 302.

White Sox Take Over Second

Yanks Sweep Tigers, Magic Number 4

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The magic number now is four.

Any combination of New York Yankee wins and Chicago White Sox losses totalling four gives New York another American League pennant.

It will be their fourth consecutive, 12th in 15 years and 26th since 1921 when they won their first, the year after purchasing left-handed pitcher Babe Ruth from Boston Red Sox.

Yankees' newest left - handed star, pitcher Al Downing, won his 18th of the year and fourth in a row Sunday with a 5-3 win over Detroit Tigers that gave Yankees a sweep of their three-game set with Tigers.

Chicago took over second place ahead of Minnesota Twins by sweeping a doubleheader from Twins, 5-2 and 5-4. Yankees lead White Sox by 14½ games.

MARKER BEATEN

In other Sunday games, Steve Barber failed in a bid for his 20th victory as Boston whipped Baltimore Orioles 6-3, Cleveland dumped Washington 4-2, and Kansas City Athletics defeated Los Angeles Angels 3-1.

Saturday, New York bombarded Detroit 11-4, Minnesota defeated Chicago 4-2, Cleveland defeated Washington 9-2, Kansas City defeated Los Angeles 5-3 and Boston defeated Baltimore 4-1.

Downing, 22, is not legally a rookie, although he pitched his first game this season June 7 after being called up from Richmond of the International League.

He pitched in only 10 major league innings in 1961 and 1962, posting a 0-1 record, but spending enough time on the Yankee bench to lose his rookie standing.

Downing, who flirts with a no-hitter almost every time out, had his first hit bit his fifth against Tigers. Yankees quickly jumped off to a 5-0 lead and held on. Joe Pepitone hit his 23rd homer and Roger Maris his 22nd to back up the young left hander.

DOWN FOUR RUNS

White Sox overcame an 0-4 deficit in the second game with four runs in the eighth inning and one in the ninth. The last two were the result of Minnesota errors. Sunday hitter Charley Maxwell hit a double and single and killed a Minnesota rally with a great throw to the plate in the first game.

Five straight Boston hits chased Barber in the sixth. Felix Mantilla added a two-run homer for Red Sox in the eighth. John Orsino homered for Orioles.

Jack Kralick defeated Washington for the fifth time this season, once for Minnesota and four times for Cleveland, and also had three of Cleveland's 15 hits. Minnie Minoso rolled the shutout with a two-run homer in the eighth.

Bobby Lo Greco made a game-saving catch for Athletics. Orlando Pena again stayed off his 20th loss. Pena got his 11th victory instead, with relief help from John Wyatt.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Orlando Cepeda, Giants, hit three-run homer in seventh inning for 5-4 victory over Los Angeles that trimmed Dodgers' National League lead to 3½ games over second-place St. Louis.

Pitching — Warren Spahn, Braves, beat Philadelphia 3-2 and becomes 20-game winner for 13th time, tying Christy Mathewson's National League record.

Two Americans Favored

U.S. Amateur Under Way

DES MOINES, Iowa (CP-AP) — Labron Harris Jr. and Dick Sikes are favored as 300 of North America's best amateur golfers—including several Canadians—begin a six-day marathon today for the U.S. Amateur golf championship.

Both proved last week in the successful defence by the U.S. of the Americas' Cup that the 6,986 wooded yards of the Waconda Club Course, with its six-hole assassins' alley at the start, holds no terror for them.

Harris is defending champion and Sikes was the public links champion in 1961 and 1962 before becoming national collegiate king earlier this year. Both were members of the Walker Cup team that beat Great Britain in June and each starred in the U.S. triumph over Canada and Mexico in the Americas Cup last week.

Not to be overlooked, however, in the test that will take the eventual winner over the 36-hole medal round of Wednesday 10 times, are Charlie Coe and Dean Beman of the U.S. and Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., and Bert Yochanst of Vancouver. Mexico's Juan Estrada also is raised a chance at the crown.

All members of the Canadian and Northern Americas Cup teams are eligible to compete for the U.S. title.

One 18-hoe match-play round will be played both Monday and Tuesday with two series of the same distance scheduled Wednesday and Thursday. The semi-finals Friday and the final Saturday are booked for 36 holes.

The Trots

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Sonny Creed, six-year-old gelding owned by Clarence Lockhart of Collingwood, won his 11th start in 22 races Saturday when he captured the one-mile featured open handicap.

The dark chestnut travelled the distance in 2:05 3-5, just 2-5 of a second off the track record.

Karen Sota faded in the stretch and Muddy Hanover, with Murray Waples in the Sulky, came in second.

MONTREAL (CP) — Harold McKinley drove Eagle Armbro, two-year-old black colt to a win in the $7,320 feature race Saturday at Richelieu.

The colt, racing out of Kitchener, Ont., paid $43.70, $12.80 and $5.70 after running the mile in 2:08 1-5.

Pattemore Wins Blind Golf Title

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) Claude Pattemore, 36, of Hamilton, Ont., won the 32th U.S. Blind Golf championship by carding 201 for the 36-hole competition at Westchester Hills Golf Club Saturday.

He edged defending champion Joe Lezard of Waltham, Mass., by one stroke when Lezard rimmed an eight-foot putt on the final hole.

Pattemore's two-day total was 97-104—201. Lezard's was 96-105 —202.

Pattemore, a cafeteria cashier, added the U.S. title to the International Blind Championship he won a month ago in Toronto. This was his ninth try at the U.S. crown. His best previous finish was in 1961 when he was fourth.

Canada had four other representatives in the competition.

Harold Mitchell of Hamilton finished fourth with a 98-113—211 total. Fifth was Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, Sask., 107-114—221 and sixth was Nick Generose of Dundas, Ont., 118-113—227.

Charlie Toth of Hamilton was 11th with a 127-128—255 total.

Lacrosse

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The St. Catharines Athletics took a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven Minto Cup semi-final with an 8-3 victory over Port Credit Sailors here Saturday.

Gary Moore led the Athletics' scoring attack with three goals. Peter Burge scored two and Wally Dorrans, Jim McNally and Doug Favell added singles. Bob Hanna fired two goals for the Sailors and Dave Hall one.

Record Crowd At Vancouver

Lions Crush Stamps; Saskys Whip Esks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia Lions have turned on the four teams that hammered them for nine years.

Cuffed severely since entering the Western Football Conference in 1954—they won only 28 of 128 league contests and had only one winning season—Lions now share first place with five victories and one defeat.

Victory number five came on Saturday night before 36,650 fans—the biggest crowd in Canadian Football League history—as the Lions trampled Calgary Stampeders 37-31 in Vancouver Empire Stadium.

The Lions and Stamps are two points ahead of Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, tied in third spot with eight points each.

Saskatchewan downed Edmonton Eskimos 23-9 Saturday night while Winnipeg Blue Bombers split a pair of weekend engagements with Eastern Conference teams — shading Toronto Argonauts 25-20 Friday night before being battered 30-1 by Montreal Alouettes Sunday.

The Lions shoot for sole possession of first place when they meet the Roughriders in Regina tonight.

FLEMING STARS

Clutch defensive plays and the explosive running of halfback Willie Fleming carried B.C. past Calgary.

The defensive unit came up with a 13-6 halftime lead and Fleming made sparkling gallops of 63 and 97 yards to spell the difference in the second half.

The Calgary ground game produced only 86 yards. Quarterback Eagle Day of Calgary made 25 of 44 pass attempts for 328 yards.

Quarterback Joe Kapp scored two Lion touchdowns. Fullback Bob Swinarski scored one touchdown and Fleming picked up the others while rookie Peter Kempf booted three field goals and four converts.

End Pete Manning, who gathered in 10 of 11 passes thrown to him, scored one Calgary touchdown and fullback Lowell Coleman the other. Larry Robinson kicked two field goals, a convert, and a single and Jim Furlong booted a single.

Lions collected a total of 16 first downs with 294 yards rushing and 146 yards on eight pass completions by Kapp. Calgary compiled 20 first downs.

The fan turnout eclipsed the existing CFL record of 34,372 set Aug. 31, 1950 when Edmonton visited Empire Stadium.

Roughriders, who have won only 26 of 86 games in the last six seasons, exploded for 23 points in the last 15 minutes to beat Eskimos who now are last in the WFC.

The passing of quarterback Ron Lancaster and the running of fullback Bill Gray and fullback George Reed shot Roughriders to victory after Eskimos had built up a 9-0 margin in the first 44 minutes on two field goals by centre Bill Mitchell, a single by end Aubrey Lane and a safety touch.

Gray scored Roughriders' first touchdown by latching onto an 11-yard pass from Lancaster, then he had set up the six-pointer by nabbing two other passes for 25 yards during a 59-yard march.

Reed did all the work for Saskatchewan's second touchdown, taking a screen pass from Lancaster and rambling 43 yards to the Edmonton one from where he dived over four players later—Roughriders got an extra try for an Edmonton offside.

Safety Bob Ptacek notched the final Saskatchewan touchdown when he intercepted a pass on the Eskimo 35 late in the fourth quarter as Edmonton took to the air in a comeback bid.

Roughriders' other points came on three converts by tackle Reg Whitehouse and a single by end Martin Fahl.

Lions collected a total of 16 first downs with 294 yards rushing and 146 yards on eight pass completions by Kapp. Calgary compiled 20 first downs.

The fan turnout eclipsed the existing CFL record of 34,372 set Aug. 31, 1950 when Edmonton visited Empire Stadium.

Roughriders, who have won only 26 of 86 games in the last six seasons, exploded for 23 points in the last 15 minutes to beat Eskimos who now are last in the WFC.

The passing of quarterback Ron Lancaster and the running of fullback Bill Gray and fullback George Reed shot Roughriders to victory after Eskimos had built up a 9-0 margin in the first 44 minutes on two field goals by centre Bill Mitchell, a single by end Aubrey Lane and a safety touch.

Gray scored Roughriders' first touchdown by latching onto an 11-yard pass from Lancaster, then he had set up the six-pointer by nabbing two other passes for 25 yards during a 59-yard march.

Reed did all the work for Saskatchewan's second touchdown, taking a screen pass from Lancaster and rambling 43 yards to the Edmonton one from where he dived over four players later—Roughriders got an extra try for an Edmonton offside.

Safety Bob Ptacek notched the final Saskatchewan touchdown when he intercepted a pass on the Eskimo 35 late in the fourth quarter as Edmonton took to the air in a comeback bid.

Roughriders' other points came on three converts by tackle Reg Whitehouse and a single by end Martin Fahl.

Jacobs Wins Utah Open Tournament

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Young Tommy Jacobs survived a change by Don January and a near collapse on the final hole Sunday to post an even par 70 and win the $40,000 Utah Open golf tournament with an eight-under-par 272.

The victory was Jacobs first since he won the San Diego Open in January last year. It earned him $8,400, bringing his winnings for the year to $18,818.

January, who started the round tied with South Africa's Gary Player at 265, fired a 35-35—70, finishing one stroke behind Jacobs at 272.

Player, bothered all day by putting troubles, had a 35-35—70 for a 275 total, three strokes off the pace.

Jim Colbert picked up $3,600 and Player $2,500.

All Balding of Toronto won $700 when he finished Sunday with a 74 for a total of 284. George Knudson of Toronto picked up $395 for his 286.

Crackers, Indians In Finals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indianapolis Indians and Atlanta Crackers, the teams that battled in a one-game playoff for the International League southern division championship, meet again tonight in the first game of a best-of-seven series for the Governor's Cup.

Indianapolis won the league's pennant, defeating northern division champion Syracuse 6-5 in 11 innings Sunday and taking the series 4-1. Atlanta won the battle of the second-place clubs, defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 for a 4-0 sweep of their series.

Saturday, Syracuse won its first game with a 4-3 win over Indianapolis and Atlanta downed Toronto 5-2.

Now Indianapolis, which beat Atlanta 1-0 for the southern division title last week, is host to Crackers for the first game of the final series. Crackers, defending champions of the cup, went on to win the Junior World Series last year from Louisville in the now defunct American Association.

QUITE SWIMMING

WINNIPEG (CP) — Claudia McPherson of neighboring St. James said Friday night she has renounced long - distance swimming in favor of a nursing career. A banquet was held at St. James to honor the 17-year-old girl who a month ago became the youngest swimmer to conquer the English Channel.

Sport Snapshots

By PAUL HENSTEAD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A crewcut young man, walking with a slight limp and carrying a battered stickbag, will stroll through the lobby of Montreal's Sun Life Building Monday morning.

He will pass through the doors of the National Hockey League office, shake hands with President Clarence Campbell, his new boss, and head for the nearest pencil sharpener.

Ron Andrews, Toronto's defence statistician, will be starting his first day as the NHL's new publicity director.

And when he opens that brown bag—which bulges at the seams and weighs 20 pounds at mid-season—it could be the last time. Intricate charts and statistics, the result of countless hours of research, will find a new home in spacious steel filing cabinets.

Public at the age of six, which left Andrews with an underdeveloped right leg, made it impossible for him to play hockey. But it helped him make the NHL in another capacity. It was while in hospital for three years that he developed his serious interest in the game.

DETAILED RECORDS

It all started with a scrapbook. Now, at 27, Andrews has the most exhaustive hockey records in existence. He hovers over his charts with an enthusiasm most people reserve for checking figures in their bank books.

He used his statistics as night sports editor of Broadcast News, the Canadian Press affiliate serving the country's privately owned radio and television stations, and he never left.

He also made them available to any sportswriter on request. He left Broadcast News this week and the records now are available to the NHL.

"You know, it's one thing to keep statistics and another thing to be able to interpret them correctly," Andrews says.

He will, for example, have an answer to those who feel the Stanley cup trophy should be awarded to the NHL goaltender who has the best average on shots in relation to shots on goal. At present it is given to the goalie playing the most games for the team with the fewest goals scored against it.

Andrews kept percentages last season and says "it doesn't make any difference."

"The only change the per-centage system would have made would have been to move Gump Worsley (then with New York Rangers) from fifth to fourth place."

GUMP AGREES

Worsley, now with Montreal Canadiens, and Andrews have discussed the system and agree the goaltender for the team allowing the fewest goals should win the Vezina. Worsley particularly questioned whether percentages would be fair anyway.

"Gump's right when he says it might provide a situation for padding shots in some rinks in a close race," says Andrews. "He says you couldn't get a true picture unless six different people counted shots at each game, and that wouldn't be practical."

Andrews says he doesn't want to burden hockey with statistics to the extent of baseball's record books. He will, however, have the NHL name new trophies. For, inside his briefcase are statistics the NHL never bothered to keep.

Last December, Andrews was able to settle that there's a greater chance of a team winning with an opposition defenceman in the penalty box than when it's, a forward.

Andrews' departure from Toronto sports will be felt in pro football here. He was statistician at Toronto Argonauts home games for the Eastern Football Conference and radio station CFRB.

There were 1,700 entries and 25 clubs from Ontario, New York State, Maryland, Ohio and Pennsylvania represented.

Don Smith of Silver Springs, Md. set Canadian records in the 50-yard backstroke, 50-yard butterfly and 100-yard freestyle for boys 13 and 14 years old.

Another Canadian record was set by Randy Martin of St. Catharines in the boys' 13-14 year 50-yard backstroke.

Ontario records were established by Chris Lutton of North York in the girls 11-12 year breast stroke and the St. Catharines boys' 13-14-year medley relay team.

The overall points championship was won by the Hamilton Aquatic Club which finished the afternoon of more than 200 heats and 40 finals with 274½ points. American Football League

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kansas City Chiefs, who won the American Football League championship last year as the Dallas Texans, have proved there's nothing in a name.

When they opened the regular season Saturday, they smashed Denver Broncos 59-7 with Len Dawson leading the way by passing for four Chief touchdowns.

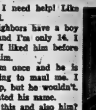
Meanwhile, Houston Oilers, the defending eastern division champions, were shocked 24-13 by Oakland Raiders.

In Sunday's action, the rejuvenated Boston Patriots took advantage of second-half pass interceptions by Nick Buoniconti and Tommy Stephens to defeat New York's renamed Jets—they were the Titans last year—38-14, while San Diego Chargers defeated Buffalo's favored Bills 14-10.

In San Diego, the Chargers survived a first-half penalty plague to defeat the Bills.

The Chargers scored first when linebacker Bob Hilinger stole a Jack Kemp pass on the Buffalo 48. Quarterback Tobin Rote, last year with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, connected with Dave Kocourek on a 32-yarder on the Buffalo one and fullback Bobby Jackson plunged over from there.

Buffalo scored its only touchdown in the fourth period, moving 90 yards in 12 plays in a drive highlighted by the passing of Kemp.



Buffalo's ground game was weakened when all-league fullback Cookie Gilchrist, also a former Argo, suffered an ankle injury and left the game in the second period.

Neighbor Boy Is 'Awful'

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I need help! Like any other teen-age girl.

Our next door neighbors have a boy 23 and he likes me and I'm only 16. I just can't stand him. I liked him before I really got to know him.

I went out with him once and he is so fresh. He kept trying to maul me. I told him to smarten up, but he wouldn't. After this I've even hated his name.

How can I forget this and also him? All I can say is "He's awful". — DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED — Nice going, my pet. The best antidote is some good clean fun with boys your own age.

DEAR DORIS — I quit writing because of personal frustrations and discouragement, but I can't keep the desire out of the back of my mind.

Surely, too, this is a good hobby for a 30-year-old woman. Do writing courses really help, or could my time be better spent with trial manuscripts mailed to possible markets?

RESTLESS PEN.

DEAR RESTLESS — Any study helps. Universities and vocational schools in many Canadian centres run extension courses in article writing and fiction writing.

Discussion seminars about the principles of putting pen to paper; the kind criticisms of a good teacher; some class assignments; all these can help you leap hurdles much more quickly than writing and rewriting on your own, and struggling with material which all too often returns to you with a rejection slip attached!

DEAR DORIS — Couldn't resist writing to "Mixed Up" concerning the age difference and marriage. My dad was 43 and mom 23 when they married.

I war the youngest of five children. Dad was 57 when I was born. By the time I was in high school dad was out of a job and I had to quit to help out. All I remember of dad was being old and lying asleep. I had no home to speak of. Mother and dad had nothing in common any more.

Mom always says the first ten years were fine until he reached the fifties. I remember the arguments. It's no life for children.

So I advised "Mixed Up" to marry someone closer her age and enjoy life. — HOPING TO HELP.

DEAR HOPING — Couldn't agree more. Hope this particular "Mixed Up" will take your advice, don't you?

AT THE PARK — Rock Hudson as the iron-hard electrician who is colonel of a SAC Air Base in the color film "A Gathering of Eagles" . . . the story of men and missiles told against the background of America's massive retaliatory complex. Dramatized is SAC's frightening "Red Phone" which dominates the lives and loves of men and women who live on the base. "A Gathering of Eagles" will have its first Belleville showings at the Park; Theatre starting Thursday.

Viewers Did Not Agree With Miss America Choice

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The annual Miss America pageant arrived on CBS Saturday night and proved, as usual, to be a fascinating and sometimes embarrassing television program.

There is something dramatic and something sad about picking and crowning Miss America. Nowadays, while the judges' votes are final, millions of viewers have their own opinions about beauty and talent.

Viewers at my house were polling for Miss Alabama, mostly because she played the marimba. And it seemed, judging from the sounds coming from the set, that the crowd in Atlantic City was in Miss Hawaii's corner.

But Miss Arkansas won, and she is certainly a pretty, poised and obviously sincere young lady. But her demonstration of talent — singing I Love Paris while snatching on and off a pair of high-heeled shoes and limping a fur scarf around—eluded me.

The oasis is, at long last, in sight: New shows are moving into the heart of summer reruns.

Tonight, for openers, To Tell the Truth and I've a Secret on CBS will finally have some fresh shows. Reruns of game and panel shows, where original spontaneity and audience participation are the most vital elements, are among the most dismal periods in summer schedules.

NBC will have the season premiers of its International Showtime on Friday evening—acts from the Munich Circus.

Latins Win Singles Crowns

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Crafty Rafael Osuna of Mexico Sunday won the United States men's singles tennis title but the most satisfied man was runner-up Frank Froehling III.

The six-foot-three Froehling, unseeded and previously snubbed by Davis Cup selectors, progressed further than any other American before losing to Osuna 7-5, 6-4, 6-2. Immediately after his fine showing, Froehling was named to the U.S. Davis Cup squad.

The women's final also turned up with a Latin American flavor as Maria Bueno of Brazil, regarded the favm she showed before being stricken with hepatitis in 1961, upset the reigning queen of the courts, Margaret Smith of Australia, 7-5, 6-4. Miss Bueno rallied from 1-4 and won the second.

Although Osuna—senior at the University of Southern California, put a crimp in the United States' rising tennis dorifices by crushing first Chuck McKinley, the Wimbledon champion, and then Chuck's Trinity, Tex., University teammate Froehling in straight sets, U.S. tennis officials were generally encouraged by the tournament developments.

IS ENCOURAGING

"Froehling's comeback is very encouraging," said the U.S. Davis Cup captain, Bob Kelleher. "He gives us a strong singles player whom we wouldn't be afraid to use against anybody."

Froehling beat Australia's Roy Emerson and England's Bobby Wilson in the tournament here.

The American Davis Cuppers without McKinley, play Venezuela in the American zone final next weekend in Denver.

Que. Determined To Have Own Pensions Plan

Conference Continues In Complete Harmony

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial pensions conference resumes today in almost complete harmony.

The main chord was struck Monday when Prime Minister Pearson announced the federal government will move in Parliament to start a $10 increase in the basic old age pension three months earlier than it had planned.

A melody was added by Premier Robarts of Ontario announcing his provincial portable pensions plan, already on the statute books and to come into effect on next year, will be amended to remove conflicts with the federal government's Canada Pension Plan.

The only discordant note in the symphony of complete federal - provincial collaboration was Quebec's determination to withdraw its own retirement pension plan. But Quebec said this would not obstruct the federal plans, and the federal government said the two can work together.

Mr. Pearson's announcement, timed for the opening hour of the meeting, said that the basic pension increase to $78 a month for everyone at age 70 will be paid for by increasing taxes. The old age security taxes now are three per cent levies on personal income over $1,000 a year —and on corporation profits and manufacturers' sales.

PAID FROM CHANGE

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said the pensions boost will be paid from a change in this so - called 3-3-3 formula. Higher rates of old age security tax on personal income and corporation profits appeared likely.

It was originally intended that the $10 increase would be paid next year out of contributions to the Canada Pension Plan, which the government hopes to start Jan. 1.

Monday's conference sessions were spent examining a 53-page detailed report on the Canada Pension Plan cost and benefits, prepared by federal government actuaries. The committee compiled cated formulas which will apply to contributors who did not participate in the plan in the fund, either because of an abbreviated period of contributions or because of lower than average incomes.

Basically, the contributor will pay one per cent of his annual income, up to a specified level, and his employer will pay a like amount, into the pay-as-you-go pensions fund. The starting maximum basic annual pension income will be $4,000 a year, but

Banks Given Month

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.), was sentenced to a month in jail Monday for contempt of court but won't serve the sentence pending appeal.

The conviction is in connection with the SIU's running feud with Upper Lakes Shipping Limited of Toronto.

Mr. Justice Andre Sabourin of Quebec Superior Court ruled Monday that the labor union president had failed to do all he could to stop the SIU's violation of a no-picketing injunction in May, 1962.

The union picketed an Upper Lakes ship in Trois-Rivieres, Que., for two days after the company had obtained a Superior Court injunction against "picketing, watching, besetting and intimidation" of its ships at all St. Lawrence River ports.

Judge Sabourin ruled Mr. Banks "had not taken all reasonable steps in his power to prevent the violation of the injunction."

SAID ORDERED STOP

Mr. Banks contended he had ordered picketing stopped immediately after being issued the injunction order.

However, Judge Sabourin ruled "there is no evidence whatsoever that the respondent (Banks) was at variance with what took place at Trois - Rivieres during these two days.

"On the contrary, all the facts show that everybody was in perfect agreement, though it is easy to imagine the disappointment of the respondent when he heard the local police had stepped in and arrested the pickets."

Mr. Banks had contended he transmitted the court's order to Trois-Rivieres through a union officer.

Judge Sabourin ruled the "mere presence" of three other SIU officers in Trois - Rivieres "did not deprive the president of his authority and his initiative.

"Nothing shows that he delegated his power to any particular or discharged his duties so as to exclude his participation."

He held that while a union

MP's Will Not Be Called

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and his cabinet have decided to put off consideration of calling an early session of Parliament to deal with waterfront labor violence.

Mr. Pearson said Monday that the government was awaiting the outcome of steps taken by the United States government to protect Canadian lives and ships in American waters but was ready to call Parliament before its scheduled Sept. 30 opening to pass legislation to deal with the Canadian aspect of the problem.

"We have let them (the Americans) know in no uncertain terms that we expect action to be taken to protect Canadian shipping in American ports," the prime minister said.

He did not know what more could have been done "to make Washington feel this is a very serious matter."

The legislation would put five Canadian maritime unions under government trusteeship—the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC).

The unions are at odds' over the manning of ships on the Great Lakes.

LATEST INCIDENT

In the latest flareup, the Canadian vessel Howard L. Shaw, tied up in Cleveland by summer as longshoremen refused to load her, was damaged by a dynamite blast early Saturday.

The explosion produced diplomatic tremors in Ottawa and Washington where External Affairs Minister Martin raised it with U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk. Mr. Martin then returned here and following a Sunday night conference with Mr. Pearson and Labor Minister Mac-Eachen the cabinet discussed the situation. U.S. justice department and the FBI are investigating.

Meanwhile, U.S. Labor Secretary Wirtz and Mr. MacEachen are to meet here Sept. 18 to discuss the problem.

The Shaw's owners, Upper Lakes Shipping Limited, announced in Toronto that the vessel, tied up since last April 22, will remain in Cleveland until loaded. The dynamite blast Saturday almost holed her at the waterline. She is in no danger of sinking.

HAS TASK FORCE

Canada's ambassador to Washington, Charles Ritchie, said the FBI has "a sort of task force working on the spot." The U.S. justice department "is in touch and will be in increasingly close touch" with local authorities in Chicago to increase as much as it possibly can the efficiency of investigation and the protection of Canadian life and property."

The Upper Lakes company's vessels have been tied up since only ones affected by the maritime union dispute.

J. D. Leitch, Upper Lakes president, said in Toronto Monday he sent telegrams to Mr. Pearson and President Kennedy calling on them to end picketing, boycotting and terror on the lakes.

"It was only by a miracle that this explosion did not result in loss of life and the sinking of the ship," his telegram to the

Revolt of Students Continues in Saigon Overshadowing Significant Defeat of Reds

CP from Reuters-AP

SAIGON — South Vietnamese troops and heavily armed combat police today cleared pupils out of several large high schools in Saigon as anti-government unrest continued in schools.

Most of the children were sent home although police were reported to have taken away about 100 suspected ringleaders.

More than 2,000 pupils have been arrested since Saturday, according to informed sources.

Some are being held for questioning at the Saigon police headquarters. A cost are reported to have been taken out of town to detention camps.

The student trouble overshadowed reports of a big victory over Communist guerrillas in the Mekong Delta.

A Vietnamese armored unit swept through nine padding in the Mekong Delta and killed 80 guerrillas. U.S. advisers called it the most significant victory over the Viet Cong in months.

Disturbances broke out in several high schools this morning.

At the Gia Long, largest girls' high school in Saigon, girls shouted, laughed and banged desks in a two - hour demonstration, while scores of troops sat outside.

The girls were finally sent home. Several were reported arrested.

The city's principal technical college was occupied early today by about 400 paratroopers who sat around in classrooms and the playground while the police sent pupils home.

Technical school students are considered among the most militant.

Several other schools were occupied by troops but there was less show of force today than Saturday and Monday when police stormed schools and carted pupils off by hundreds in trucks.

Meanwhile Ngo Dinh Nhu, powerful brother and adviser to President Ngo Dinh Diem, was reported planning to move out of the presidential palace here in an attempt to halt U.S. criticism that he has too much influence over his brother.

Usually reliable sources said the move was connected with the departure of his almost equally powerful wife Madog night on an overseas trip last ing several weeks. Mrs. Nhu plans to go later to the United States.

OFFICIALS BRIEFED

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson and other top-ranking government officials were briefed Monday by the president of the Inter - American Development Bank on the expanding economic horizons in Latin America. Felipe Herrera, 41-year-old Chilean economist, opened a week-long visit to Canada with a busy round of meetings in the capital to acquaint Canadians with the operations of the bank.

Robarts' Pensions Statement Does Not Quiet Wintermeyer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pensions continued to hog the political spotlight in Ontario Monday as Premier Robarts made a brief detour off the campaign trail for a morning appearance at a federal-provincial conference on the subject in Ottawa.

Later in the day he told a press conference he hopes the portable pension question has been laid to rest as an issue in Ontario's Sept. 25 general election.

But Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer continued his assault on the premier's pension stand, accusing him of using "weasel words" at the Ottawa meeting.

Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, continuing a prolonged swing through Northern Ontario, accused both older parties of using a medical insurance program as a political football and offering only "vague promises."

Premier Robarts told the opening of the conference he is prepared to recommend changes in Ontario's pension scheme to make it conform to an "agreed national system."

But he later campaigned through Mr. Wintermeyer's home riding of Waterloo North, the premier spent most of his time telling audiences what he had said in Ottawa. He said misconceptions of his stand have been "fathered by irresponsible statements."

He has repeatedly during the campaign denied charges by Mr. Wintermeyer that he plans to torpedo the federal pension plan—a pay-as-you-go scheme—in favor of the provincial plan based on investments with insurance companies which was passed at the last legislature.

"I am just interested in getting a pension scheme that will work," he said Monday.

He said the reservations about the Ottawa plan he submitted to the Ottawa conference were not presented as opposition, but as

Orders Wallace To Stop Barring Negro Students

Acts After Troops Used To Block Desegregation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy today ordered Defence Secretary McNamara to call Alabama National Guardsmen into federal service to enforce school desegregation in Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee.

Kennedy signed an executive order allowing federalization of the Alabama guard shortly after issuing a proclamation directing Alabama Governor George C. Wallace and his officials to cease what Kennedy termed conspiracies "wilfully opposing and obstructing the execution of the laws of the United States."

Wallace had deployed Alabama guardsmen into positions to block school desegregation ordered by federal courts. Kennedy's directive to McNamara will permit the defence secretary to bring Wallace and command of these forces and use them to carry out the court orders.

McNamara was instructed to take "all appropriate steps" to enforce federal law in Alabama, and to use "any or all units" of the Alabama guard "as he deems necessary."

Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, said Kennedy signed the proclamation at 7:15 a.m. and, shortly, thereafter, signed the executive order.

The proclamation said Wallace's actions "impair part of the people of Alabama "of rights, privileges, immunities and protections named in the constitution and secured by law."

It added that state authorities refused to protect these rights.

U.S. TAKES OVER

As a first move, McNamara took control of Alabama's 17,000-man National Guard away from Wallace.

The order from McNamara, within a half-hour after the directive from Kennedy, applied to the full Alabama force, but the only troops actually called immediately were the three units Wallace had employed. They were ordered assembled to stand by at their armories.

Salinger said at 9:25 a.m. that the first of the guard units already were being withdrawn from the neighborhood of some schools in Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile.

NEARS COMPLETION

LONDON (Reuters) — Only 1,000 miles now separates the two ends of the 8,700-mile Commonwealth Pacific cable across the Pacific Ocean, it was announced Monday. The British post office said the cable from south from Vancouver to a point 300 miles north of Hawaii.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The federal government took over control of the Alabama National Guard by presidential order today to enforce public school integration despite defiance of Governor George C. Wallace.

Two Negroes, a 17-year-old boy and a 16 - year - old girl, walked into Murphy High School at Mobile for classes just before 7:30 a.m. to become the first high school pupils of their race to desegregate the Alabama public school system.

National Guardsmen who had been drawn up around the school at Wallace's order departed a few minutes before the Negroes entered.

Wallace called the guard into service shortly after midnight to bar Negroes out of white schools at Birmingham, Mobile and Tuskegee. President Kennedy quickly placed the guard under federal jurisdiction to remove control from the governor.

Wallace, who early today used guards and state troopers to chase federal marshals out of the capitol building at Montgomery, declined immediate comment on the White House moves bringing the Alabama school crisis to a showdown.

TOLD TO 'DESIST'

Before directing that the guard be put under federal control Kennedy issued an order calling upon Wallace to "cease and desist" from his manoeuvres to thwart federal court directive for school integration. A similar move preceded desegregation of the University of Alabama in June over Wallace's opposition.

Guardsmen had moved on to the grounds of a high school at Mobile under orders of Wallace before issuance of the presidential directive which removed Wallace as their commander.

They were withdrawn quickly after the Kennedy order was announced.

State Adjutant-General Alfred Harrison had called about 300 guardsmen to duty, replacing state troopers who were sent to 20 Negro pupils at white schools in three cities Monday.

GUARD GOVERNOR

Guardsmen began arriving in Birmingham within hours after the grim-faced Wallace stalked from his Capitol office to the emergency under heavy guard.

For more than eight hours, he had been closeted with key advisers. He left the office at 10:30 a.m. after ordering guardsmen and state police to clear the areas of U.S. marshals.

The state troops had sought to serve Wallace with a restraining order signed by the state's five federal district judges pre-

Gifts Start Arriving for Quints As 17 Have to Live on $11 a Day

MARACAIBO, Venezuela (AP)—With gifts beginning to arrive, the proud parents of quintuplet boys pondered today how to support and rear on their one-bedroom home on $11-a-day income.

The infants, born almost two months prematurely Saturday, were reported doing well.

They passed their first danger period and are healthy, said Dr. Antonio Duarte Herrera, chief obstetrician at University hospital here. Juan Jose, the third born, had the smallest weight at an ounce. But a medical bulletin said all five are in "acceptable condition."

Juan Jose weighed three pounds, 1.4 ounces at birth. So did the fourth born, Fernando. Robinson, the first born, weighed three pounds, 13.5 ounces; Otto, second born, three pounds, 4.9 ounces; and Mario, fifth born, four pounds, three ounces. A mixture of modified cow's milk and water is being fed to the quintuplets with eyedroppers.

The mother, Mrs. Ines Maria Cuervo de Prieto, 36, has left her bed for a short spell on her feet.

She and her husband have 15 other children by previous marriages. They live in their one-bedroom home.

"With only one bedroom it's going to be a little crowded," she said, but added, "my husband and I are very proud."

The father earns 46.70 bolivars ($11) a day as a Creole Petroleum Corporation laborer. He helps support 10 children by two previous marriages.

But help was arriving. The government assured the Prietos of its protection. The organization Friends of University Hospital supplied five basketfuls of diapers and clothing.

Senior Citizens Will Protest

Homes for Aged Plan to Increase Rates

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

While Ontario's senior citizens wonder on what to spend their old-age pension $10 increase, boards for the aged and other institutions are wondering how much they should increase their rates.

Senior Citizens, welfare and political leaders all welcomed Prime Minister Pearson's announcement Monday proposing that the old-age pension would be increased to $75 a month from $65.

The increase will be financed by taxation and has yet to be approved by Parliament.

In Toronto, John Hogben, a past president of the United Ontario Council of Senior Citizens, said the council will prepare a brief asking the Ontario legislature to make sure that the additional money goes to pensioners—not to homes and landlords.

"In the past, every time we got an increase the rent has gone up and pensioners haven't got any benefit at all," he said.

But William McWilliams of Picton, Ont., president of the Association of Superintendents of the Homes for the Aged, said rates in most homes would almost certainly go up.

In Windsor for the association's annual conference, he said that pensioners in most homes would still get 25 per cent of their pension for pocket money, an increase to $11.25 from $9.75 a month.

Leaders of Ontario's three political parties, campaigning for the Sept. 25 provincial election, expressed general delight with the national scheme.

Premier Robarts promised every support, Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer said he was pleased the increase was going to be financed by taxation and Donald MacDonald, leader of the provincial New Democratic Party, reminded that a pension increase was a Liberal campaign platform, described it as "most magnificent news" and "making virtue of necessity."

Mr. Hogben, also president of the Etobicoke Senior Citizens' Club, said pensioners across Canada "will be delighted" with the increase. But he said pressure for additional increases and a better deal for senior citizens will not be eased.

Agreement for Engineers To Complete Plans for New City Barns Referred Back

Belleville city council got down to the second half of its year's work yesterday as the first meeting of the fall session was held at city hall.

Councillors were faced with a big accumulation of summer bills requiring approval and at the same time saw their refurnished council chambers still in progress of completion.

Newly-painted walls, new window drapes in pastel shading, and new stacking chairs for the auditorium are completed or in place. New desks and chairs for the council members are still to come.

Among the by-laws up for approval was one covering an agreement between the city and George L. Tutten and Associates, Ltd. who have been appointed as consulting engineers to bring in plans for a new city works barn.

For their services the firm would receive four per cent of the cost of the building, currently estimated at $175,000.

ISSUE SEEN BACK

But what if the city didn't go ahead with an elaborate building such is planned and instead erected a cheaper steel structure?" asked Ald. R. Bailey.

If such was the case he wanted to know if the firm would still receive its fee.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds felt they would "if they brought in a report such as directed.

"Who would be giving the direction?" asked Alderman Jack Allin.

The city manager said he didn't know as the matter was handled while he was on vacation.

"It couldn't have been the public works department," retorted Ald. Allin. "I'm on the works department committee and I don't know anything about it."

The matter was referred back for more consideration.

Council also had second thoughts on the matter of rural mail boxes parking on both sides of Langham street as had been earlier in the year recommended.

When the covering by-law came up for approval Alderman Enos David asked if it could be amended to bar parking only on one side of the street Alderman Walter Elliott seconded the amendment.

Accordingly council voted to prohibit parking only on the east side of Langham Street.

Two other traffic by-laws, one restricting parking on the east side of Stanley Street from Pine Street south, and one designating Earl Street a through street from Coleman to North Front, were approved.

Beaver Construction Company of Montreal were awarded the tender for the construction of the trunk sewer on the Bell Boulevard extension and on Tracey Street. The amount of the tender was $198,082.25 which was the lowest of five received.

BOARD APPROVES

The Beaver Company was also the low bidder for the North Front Street sanitary sewer and was given the job at $51,825.70.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said municipal board approval for both two projects has been received yesterday (Monday).

A local firm, Lightfoot Construction Company Ltd., was the low bidder for construction of the north east access road leading from No. 37 highway to the city's industrial area south of 401 highway. This road will serve a new transport warehouse which is contemplated for construction in the area.

Flasher Light To Be Installed At Intersection

Victoria Ave. at Church Street, considered as one of the city's most accident prone intersections is to acquire some added protection.

A flasher light has been purchased for the intersection and is expected to be installed within a few days. Cost of the light was in the neighborhood of $300.

Mayor Haig agreed that signal lights would have been more properly referred to a flasher light for this corner, but noted that costs had to be considered.

Charges Paper With Indecency Over Ward Case

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter)—A private citizen has charged a provincial newspaper here with indecency for its publication of reports on the spectacular trial of British society osteopath Stephen Ward.

Two charges under the Indecent Publications Act were laid against Dunstall Newspapers, Ltd., publishers of The Daily News, by Howard Thomas Brock, an assistant municipal engineer.

The charges alleged the newspaper violated the act by publishing front-page reports of the London trial July 25, quoting testimony which deals with perversion and emphasized sex.

At a preliminary submission to court today, Brock's lawyer said the charges were laid as a protest on behalf of parents whose children read newspapers.

He said Brock was supported by at least 20 persons who joined with him to finance the legal action.

Hasty Pees Open Training For Fall Term

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment commenced training in their armoury last night. The new training year has brought in new ideas as well as a heavy syllabus.

One new development is a combined training program for recruits. Before the plan was instituted, recruits were forced to undergo a two-year program before they could qualify for a trades course. Now the two are combined and merged and the recruit now works to qualify as a trained infantryman.

Maj. Arthur Wigen said the quality of the men was getting too good to allow them to spend their long training for the position of trained infantryman.

There will be also courses in Signals, administration, and driver mechanics. All courses will be part of the combined training program.

A contingent of the Canadian Women's Army Corps will also be training at the armoury. Presently this unit is composed of 15 members of the Corps.

The regiment intends to carry out field exercises during the latter part of September. The Unit will then manoeuvre in simulated battlefield conditions.

Maj. Wilcox also said training with the semi-automatic F. N. rifle and the 3.5 inch bazooka rocket launcher is also on this year's training program.

His passing severs another link with the colorful sporting eras of the "twenties and thirties." His memory will linger long with those associated with baseball and hockey in this city and district.

Mr. Gerow was born in Fox-boro the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gerow. He received his education in the Hollowy Street United Church parochial school.

During the first world war years he worked in the munitions factory later joining the Grand Trunk Railway, where he worked for several years in the roundhouse.

MOVED TO NAPANEE

Later he moved to Napanee where he was associated with the Gibbard Furniture Company for some years.

Leaving Napanee he spent two years in Kirkland Lake in a sports and recreation director.

But the love of the south and the Quinte district was strong and he returned to Belleville to accept an offer to come to Belleville to manage the Hume Arena, then just completed by one of the late S. R. "Sandy" Burrows.

He remained in that capacity until 1960 when he was honorably retired but remained for a year in an advisory capacity.

Walter Gerow's name was a household word in the Bay of Quinte baseball circles for several years. He was a player, coach and manager and was prominent early in his baseball life ended active participation in the sport.

Highlights of a highly successful sports career were playing with the Belleville Grand Trunks in 1919 when they won an Ontario title, and piloting the 1928 Belleville Intonals to the city's second provincial championship.

His success followed him to Napanee, where he won intermediate championships with several clubs, in Picton and other district centres he was known as "Mr. Baseball."

Walter Gerow was a quiet-spoken modest man who lived and loved baseball, the fellowship of man and was a devoted husband and father.

He acted as outstanding popularity with not only sports people but with whom he was associated but with all with whom he came in contact. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon from the Jack Bush Funeral Home with the Rev. A. L. Sutherland officiating. Interment will be made in Belleville Cemetery.

Thirty-two persons took part in the tournament. Plans are to continue shooting at the field course until the snow falls.

Council Approves Tentative Plans for Hospital Addition, Seeks Assistance From Fund

Following the example of Hastings County Council at their fall session last week, Belleville city council yesterday approved in principle with tentative plans for a new $7,300,000 addition at Belleville General Hospital.

At the same time, council concurred in a resolution from the joint city - county hospital committee recommending that immediate steps be taken to apply for maximum financial assistance for the project from the Municipal Development Loan Fund.

City council action in both instances followed that of county council last week.

Last week Mayor A. M. Haig as chairman of the joint city county hospital committee told county council that his committee felt the net cost of the proposed hospital addition estimated at $4,500,000 after grants is still too much for the city municipalities to bear without additional assistance through the Municipal Development Fund.

LITTLE DISCUSSION

There was little discussion on the hospital matter by city council which unanimously agreed that maximum assistance from the Municipal Development Fund should be sought.

Alderman Elmer Balley, chairman of finance, told council that he had been received from Queens Park in Toronto stating that provincial legislation in connection with the Federal development fund would be worked out as soon as possible.

Current plans of the hospital board are to construct an addition which with existing beds in the new fireproof sections of the hospital, would provide a total of 446 beds.

The hospital currently is rated at 227 beds but with overcrowding as many as 280 and 290 beds are frequently in use.

48,091 Voters Eligible in Two Ridings

A total of 48,091 voters in the two ridings of East and West Hastings will be eligible to cast their ballot in the September 25th provincial general election.

Returning officer Harry Morrow reports there are 30,833 eligible voters in West Hastings, the number reported by returning Officer Kenneth Virtue is 17,250.

In East Hastings the number is up approximately 1,000 compared to the last provincial election in 1959, while in West Hastings there are 436 more voters.

The rural area in West Hastings showed fewer votes than in 1959.

Four thousand two hundred of the total voters in East Hastings actually live in the city of Belleville. These are residents living east of Herchimer and south of College Street.

Court of revision for the urban areas in both East and West Hastings will be held at the Belleville city hall on Friday and Saturday of this week.

Top Layers of Brick on Three Sides of School Said Unsafe

TRENTON — Queen Elizabeth Public School is "not yet falling down. But it might be soon, Trenton's Board of Education learned last night. The problem is with the brickwork on the 11-year-old auditorium addition, building superintendent W. Pickering told the Board, and it will cost about $1,950 to fix. The price was estimated by the Tatham Co. Ltd., after inspecting the school.

Mr. Pickering first found the trouble, he told the board, when the caretaker showed him a puddle on the floor of the addition. Mr. Pickering thought it might be a hole in the roof, and he went up top to inspect. He found no explanation for the puddle, and he still is not sure where it came from. He did find though, that the top layers of brick on three sides of the addition are unsafe. "We took one corner of the building down with our hands, and we didn't need tools", he said.

MORTAR ROTTING

The bricks are fine, according to the inspection report, but the mortar is rotting away. The report suggested the mortar used in construction might have frozen before it set, if the bricks were laid in freezing weather, or rain might have been driven in between the bricks, and frozen within the wall. In any case, the wall is bulging, and another winter might finish it.

No decision was made, during the board meeting, on letting tenders for the job. One point raised in considering the bids by trustee Ed Gall was the Buildings Committee, is that the Tatham Company, will be hired by them to do preliminary inspection if it does not get the repair job. The report invited the town to call for prices on the job, and to use the Tatham Company's recommendations in their specifications.

High School Staff Composed Of 48 Teachers

TRENTON — Trenton High School staff is up to 48 teachers this year, and the student body is up by about 200 students to 1,230, principal J. C. Garrett told the Board of Education last night. Reporting to the Board's regular meeting, Mr. Garrett commented that about 400 of the students this year are from Middleton Park. Last year, about 330 students lived in the R.C.A.F. community. An extra grade ten and two extra grade eleven have been added to handle the increase in the upper grades, and to keep classes to less than 40 students each, he said.

There are 101 grade 13 students listed at the school this year, 30 of which are added, but only about 70 of these are writing papers other than English, because grade 13 subjects are offered by the school this year, and not by the Trenton Public, all but three of them. There are three English classes though, and one each of Latin, German and Latin. Three full grade 13's may be needed next year, he added.

Reporting on last year's grade 13 results, Mr. Garrett said that the school produced three Ontario Scholars, six winners of Dominion-Provincial Bursaries, and one winner of Ashton Foundation Bursaries. He said the school's aim was for a class average of 80 per cent in grade 13 exams.

Noting that last year's all student average was better than 76 per cent, Board Chairman Ted Kelly offered Mr. Garrett the Board's congratulations.

Board Sees No Need For County Health Unit

TRENTON—Trenton's Board of Education is quite happy with the school nurse system now operative, the board decided last night and sees no need for a county health unit. The board's decision was triggered by a letter from Mrs. Winifred Hall, Trenton, asking the board's support for a county health unit.

Reading the letter, read at last night's meeting, pointed out that a county health unit consisting of one Medical Officer of Health, three Sanitary inspectors, nine nurses and a number of other staff would handle the whole of the county, with the exception of Belleville which has its own staff to look after the town. Mrs. Donaldson's letter explained, would be extra. The staff in the county that this staff would replace 29 municipal health boards throughout the county, and would charge 12 Medical Officers of Health, to serve about 43,000 people. She said $41,000 per year for the health unit would be about $80,000 per year and the province would take half the load.

In Trenton, however, the school board employs its own nurse, who is on duty one in the high school and a full-time and a half-time nurse in the public school system. If the county health unit became operative, it would take over health duties in the schools. And if the board decided the service was not good enough, it would be impossible, Trustee Ed Gall suggested, passed since the Board's own health department was set up, to re-establish the present system.

Main worry about the county health unit, Gall said, is the cost of the Board, was that it would put health in the schools under the control of the town council. The Board has control now, and wants to retain it. Ian Parker Jr., of the Board's Finance Dept. was asked to look into the matter, however, before the Board rejects the idea definitely.

TAXES DUE MONDAY

TRENTON — The third quarterly installment of town taxes is due on Monday, town clerk O. W. Larry warned today. Three days of grace will be granted, then any delinquent installments will be charged an extra one percent, until Oct. 1st. After that, the penalty increases at the rate of one per cent per month, Fourth and final installment of this year's taxes is due November.

PC Candidate In Campaign Visits Plants

TRENTON — Campaigning for votes in the coming provincial election, Elmer Sandercock, Progressive Conservative candidate in Hastings West yesterday visited three factories and a newspaper plant in the town. Starting at the Morton Parker silverware plant, Mr. Sandercock went with Ian Parker Jr. to the Trenton Dyeing and Finishing Co., to Dows Rubber and Gutta Percha Ltd., and to the the Trentonian news paper office. A visit to the town hall, originally planned for yesterday, was put off today for lack of time.

Hunter Safety Awards Made To 33 Qualifiers

TRENTON — Thirty - three Trenton and district residents last night qualified for a Department of Lands and Forests Hunter Safety Certificate. Of 36 people who completed the course, 39 wrote the examination, last night and all but one of those who wrote passed. The one failure was by a narrow margin.

Instruction of the course, by Sgt. G. Steenburg and Const. Garry Davis of Trenton Police, is an assist from Department of Lands and Forests Conservation Officer George Farmer, who conducted for a total of about six hours, last Thursday and yesterday. Some 20 to 25 hours instruction purposes, were loaned by Don Bell's Sport Shop, Trenton.

Only those wrong answers were permitted on the 61-question exam, but the persons who passed, passed well. Trenton's burg said. The ones who failed, he added, failed miserably. Certificates will soon be issued, he added, to people who have not passed the course. Purpose of the course has not yet been decided, but it will probably be near the end of next October. Trenton are only five qualified instructors in the town, and they teach in spare time so the course must be adjusted to the time they have free.

$113 Deficit In Operation Of Gardens

TRENTON — The board of directors of the Community Gardens met Tuesday night and grappled with the problems of renovation and finances.

Although the board ran in the "red" during the summers first year of operation, it was pointed out by Chairman Dan Senik that they had hoped to break even this last year. He commended the financial committee for their efforts in keeping expenditures that cause the enterprise to operate at a loss.

Mr. Senik added that the Community Gardens operates at a gross of approximately $41,000 per season. He said however that all such figures were accepted in the minutes when they were referred to inspection by the auditors.

Overtime Rate For Caretakers Is Adjusted

TRENTON — School caretakers will no longer lose money when they work overtime, according to a new "article 17" of their union contract with the Board of Education. The revision was accepted by the Board of Education last night.

According to the contract as it was written, several years ago, normal overtime rate for caretakers on school days were $1.50 an hour. This was fine for the junior and assistant caretakers, who normally made about $1.40 an hour, but it didn't sit too well with the senior men, who make about $1.73 an hour.

Under the article provides that overtime pay shall be not less than $1.80 an hour — as it was before, but it also provides that the overtime rate shall be not less than the man's regular rate.

Overtime rates for Saturday nights, Sundays, and other specified times remain as before, at higher levels.

Contractor Threatens Legal Action if Bill Not Paid

TRENTON — A Peterborough contractor is threatening to sue the builders on Trenton's Board of Education, the Board learned at its meeting last night. A letter from Frank Ashton, of Ashton, the contractors who built a four-room addition to Queen Elizabeth School back in October of 1961, wrote a letter pressuring legal action if $2,000 still due on his bill is not paid within ten days. The letter was dated Sept. 5 and the Board has no intention of paying the sum.

Board chairman Stan Ketcheson said the bill included $323 for digging deeper foundations than specified, and that the work was done without authorization from the Board. Raunthwaite and Associates, of Toronto, architects on the job, had approved the work, but they were not authorized to do so without consulting the Board. So the Board feels it owes the contractor only about $1,600, and it is waiting for a bill for that amount.

SITUATION COMPLICATED

The situation is complicated slightly, because the contractor owes various sums to local suppliers himself, so there is little chance of the local subcontractors' being paid until the Board has paid the bill that $323. This alone is not reason enough to pay the bill, but it is a complicating factor. Board is willing to recognize the work has been done, but it considers that it was not its principle to refuse payment for unauthorized work.

The deadlock may be resolved, however, by an "authorization to pay" from the architect, with the offending extra deleted. Receipt of this, expected soon, would put the matter to rest, and the $323 in the architect's lap. And that is where the Board thinks it should be.

Board Decides Not to Pay For Eye Glasses

TRENTON — Who pays for Edmond Appleton's glasses? Trenton Board of Education decided last night that that is Alfred Appleton's problem.

Edmond Appleton, a junior student at College St. School, had his glasses broken some time ago, in a school yard accident. School Principal K. H. Hamilton told Alfred Appleton, Edmond's father, that the School Board would pay for the glasses, according to a letter from Mr. Appleton, read the board last night. Also read the board was a copy of a letter from Mr. Hamilton to the father of the boy considered responsible for the breaking of the glasses. The letter described the accident, and suggested the two fathers meet to discuss the problem.

But it's the fathers' problem, not the school board's, the board decided. There was no negligence on the School Board's part, Board chairman Stan Ketcheson said.

Reserve Seats Will Be Placed In Gardens

TRENTON — It was concluded last night at a board meeting of the Community Gardens that a reserved section was needed in its arena.

It was proposed at first to use several tiers of seats completely circulating the rink. It was also decided that attempts to have them on both sides rather than having them all the way around.

Instead of having the section in the same color as the other seats, it was decided to paint them a bright orange. The difficulty in policing this area against persons attempting to gain entrance without a ticket was brought up by one of the directors, who warned of the possibly involve the hiring of extra personnel to act as ushers.

With the aid of ropes two ushers were thought sufficient by the board.

It was made at the regular board meeting last night, but a proposal was made that the matter be considered in the Committee of the Whole.

Bid for $30,000 for New Technological School Near Trenton to Be Studied

A request for the city of Belleville to provide up to $30,000 as its share on a per capita basis for the purchase of a Trenton area site for a proposed new technological school, will be studied by a special committee before it comes in to council.

Yesterday, Prince Edward County council's Edward Weese, outlined his dream before council for a trade and technological school to provide post secondary school education for students in the Quinte district.

He said he had found what he considered was a site north of 401 Highway northeast of Trenton which would make an ideal campus.

Mr. Weese said such a school was urgently needed as in a few short years the number of secondary school graduates in the Quinte area seeking higher education could not hope to be accommodated in present universities or Ryerson Institution.

REFERRED BACK

On the suggestion of Mayor A. M. Haig, Mr. Weese's request was referred to a special committee of Aldermen Stuart Robb, George Wishart and Knox David.

Mayor Haig would want to give this proposal a comprehensive analysis and much consideration," he said. "I think it would be fine to be presented to a committee for first study."

Last week Mr. Weese made a similar request to Hastings county council and a special county committee studied a meeting of district men at Trenton. Another such meeting is scheduled for the near future, Mr. Weese said.

Minor Sports To Get $500 From Fund

Belleville city council yesterday approved a transfer of funds within the recreation committee organization to provide $500 for minor sports in Belleville.

The minor sports program is actually part of the city Recreation Committee, but better part of its funds from the Belleville United Appeal. How to distribute the funds from this source are available and the recreation commission sought authority from council to transfer funds from its program fund.

There was objection from a few councillors who felt the move might establish precedent.

Alderman Bailey said the recreation committee was going about the matter legally in seeking approval of council.

Many times budgets were over spent and council knew nothing about it until the end of the year.

So council approved of the transfer, subject to the city solicitor's definition of whether funds were available in the recreation program account.

Gene Pellerin New President Of Chess Club

Gene Pellerin was elected president of the Belleville Chess Club for the coming year, at the annual meeting of that organization held yesterday evening at the Belleville Recreation Centre. Tim Meens was re-elected secretary-treasurer for his eleventh consecutive term, he having held the post of treasurer since the club's organization in 1952.

The club is meeting Monday evenings at the Recreation Centre and all chess players are invited to attend. Fourteen were present yesterday evening. The club plans to participate in South-Eastern Ontario Chess League play again this year. Terry Silsbury, who is the new club champion, capturing the T. H. Meens Trophy, was named team captain, with Dick Payne as assistant.

The meeting was opened by the retiring president, Dave Batchelor, who called on Past-President Glenn Hall to conduct the election of officers. Mr. Meens reported $33 in the bank. It was decided to follow last year's practice, with no membership fees but with players paying 25 cents a night.

No Injuries In Two Minor Accidents

TRENTON — Two minor accidents in the town last night caused damage totalling more than $200. There were no injuries.

A panel truck, driven by Patrick Donato of Trenton was coming out of a Front St. driveway, about 5.15 yesterday afternoon, when it met with a car driven by Mrs. Harold Thrower of RR 1 Wooler. In the car with Miss Thrower were Mrs. Harold Thrower of Belleville and Miss Gail Margeston, of Belleville. Damage to the car was about $150., to the truck about $25.

Gordon Fritzhaw of Trenton had left his car parked on Catherine St. near the hospital, last night. Meanwhile, back at the hospital's emergency entrance, Frank Vanderwilp of Carrying Place had just dropped off his wife. He drove out the hospital driveway, turned to wave to his wife, and veered into Mr. Fritzhaw's car, denting the bumper. Mr. Vanderwilp's car sustained about $40 damage.

Eleven Cadets Out for First Meeting

TRENTON — Only eleven Air Cadets turned out last night, to the first meeting of No. 407 Squadron, according to F/L R. E. Roulston, commanding officer of the unit. About 20 members are expected at the next meeting however, and total strength of the squadron will be about 55 cadets, during the year. The group meets at Air Station Trenton.

Three of the boys who turned out last night are new recruits, the others are old hands. After a short indoctrination period, the squadron devoted the evening to planning the year's training.

Belleville Retail Merchants Will Retain Present Closing Hours

Belleville retail merchants will continue their present policy of store closing hours which calls for late shopping on the Friday nights.

This was the decision of a well attended merchants' meeting held last night at the YMCA, on the subject of store closing hours was discussed.

Late closing Monday to Saturday by two stores outside the western limits of the city prompted the meeting of the merchants.

The merchants discussed late closing on Thursday evenings but the decision was to retain present closing hours.

"The merchants expressed satisfaction at the support given by the public and turned down the Thursday evening late closing," said Irvine Shulman, chairman of the downtown retail merchants stated this morning.

It was also decided that a shoppers goodwill and full cooperation between the downtown merchants and merchants at The Belleville Plaza.

Although turning down the Thursday night closing, the night closing, the meeting formed a committee to discuss and lay plans for greatly expanded Christmas shopping hours.

Electors Will Vote in Dec. On Bigger Utility Board

Belleville voters next December will have the opportunity of saying whether they think they have enough representation on the city public utilities commission.

City council yesterday gave the green light to such a vote in which they will be asked if they favor increasing the elected membership on the commission from the current two to four members.

At present there are two elected members on the commission (one elected each year for a two year term) and the mayor.

Mayor A. M. Haig said he was fully in support of such an increase in membership, claiming that the volume of business now carried on by the commission warranted such an increase.

"If two elected members were felt necessary when the city had a population of, but 10,000, then it speaks for itself that its membership should now be increased when the population is 30,000" he said.

"The increase of membership would be a healthy thing and would have much merit," he went on.

The mayor felt that a unanimous vote by council authorizing the vote would go a long way toward the move's acceptance by the electorate.

Council approved the December plebiscite with no dissenting votes.

Obsessed With Cuba

Two news items came out of Washington the other day which, taken singly, do little more than confirm a suspicion that some Senators are peculiar, but which, taken together, provide a clue as to one cause of this tendency to be unreasonable.

Senator Barry Goldwater voiced a demand that the effective date of the nuclear test ban treaty be postponed until Russia removes its military forces from Cuba.

Senator Frank Lausche criticized President Kennedy for being willing to discuss possible relaxation of East-West tension with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko.

On the face of it, there may appear to be nothing in common between these two attitudes other than a mistrust of Russia, which is widespread, and an unfortunate tendency to argue that because Russia cannot be trusted it is impossible to do anything to improve relations with her.

There is, however, a third similarity which provides a useful key to understanding the working of the minds of these two Senators. Senator Lausche would have Kennedy refuse to talk with Gromyo because Gromyko last fall lied when he denied that Russia had any offensive missiles in Cuba.

There can be no reasonable doubt that both Senator Goldwater and Senator Lausche are unrealistic in their stands. Senator Goldwater talks as if the test ban would endanger the U.S., as if it would be a favor to Russia for which the U.S. could reasonably demand a return concession. The consensus of U.S. experts is that Russia does not stand to benefit from the ban in any way except that by which all nations will benefit — by the cessation of experiments which have caused radioactive fallout which may be injurious to life and by the creation of an international atmosphere which may result in the easing of the costly and dangerous arms race.

Senator Lausche must be naive, indeed, if he believes that the truth is not often distorted, if not entirely disregarded, in negotiations between nations. He must also believe that President Kennedy is even more naive if he thinks that he will accept everything Gromyko says at face value. There is nothing in Kennedy's record which suggests he will make any concessions to the Russians without safeguards. Under these circumstances, to refuse to consider the possibility of agreements which would be beneficial not only to Russia but to the Western powers and to the world is little short of folly.

But it is not distrust of Russia alone which actuates these Senators. In both cases, their display of this distrust is tied to closely to the Cuban situation. We in Canada, and indeed people in other nations of the Western alliance, under-estimate the shock to U.S. prestige and confidence caused by the establishment of a communist regime in the Western hemisphere, ninety miles off the U.S. coast. The reaction is out of all proportion to the threat.

At the same time, the total effect may not be as undesirable as would appear at first. While Castro has become an obsession with men like Senator Lausche and Senator Lausche, causing them to advocate unreasonable policies, his regime has had precisely the opposite effect on some U.S. statesmen. It has impressed upon them the desirability of reaching some accommodation with Russia which will lessen the likelihood of war, while at the same time in no way lessening the power of the democracies to resist any communistic aggression.

Echoes!

Memory fails to instruct us as to whether the world viewed with alarm Adolf Hitler's first public reference to the herrenvolk's claim to Sudeten Deutschland.

We suspect that it did not.

If this be true, there is a disconforting similarity between the world's inability to detect the shadow of a coming event in the late thirties and the complete disinterest accorded an announcement by Peking that China will re-examine treaties forced upon her by Czarist Russia. This announcement apparently was made last March, but it escaped our attention until mentioned in passing, six months later, in an account of a specific Chinese accusation regarding alleged Russian territorial designs on Sinkiang, China's great "wild west".

The Peking regime referred not only to treaties respecting Sinkiang, but also to pacts regarding areas of Siberia absorbed by Russia.

As far as the preliminaries go, it is Hitler and the Sudetenland all over again. When it comes to talks, however, Russia's H-bomb will probably prove more effective than Chamberlain's umbrella.

Ottawa Offbeat

Statistically Speaking M.P.s Can Wipe Away Their Tears

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Take another look at that MP of yours.

He has become one of the highest paid men in town.

With his $18,000, the National Revenue Department's annual "Census of Taxation Statistics," puts him smack in the highest income echelon of the nation.

Take it at a straight $18,000, and he is in the third highest income bracket, barely scraping under the second level.

But let us be more realistic.

Of that $18,000, he draws $6,000 of it tax free, which in hard "spending money" value, puts his "real" or "purchasing power income" in the very highest $25,000 bracket.

Let us see how he stacks up financially in your own particular community . . . it is all in the "Green Book."

We'll take 12 cities, and for each, from the official Revenue Department figures, list:

A. Total number of income taxpayers.

B. Those in $15,000 to $20,000 bracket (where your MP comes in if you figure his real $6,000 tax-free benefit of his.)

C. Those in the $20,000 to $25,000 level.

D. Those in the over $25,000 strata (where your MP rates if you calculate that tax-free $6,000 plus all his expense account fringe benefits.

BELLEVILLE

Total taxpayers: 9,687.
$15,000 to $20,000: 74.
$20,000 to $25,000: 30.
Over $25,000: 36.

BRANTFORD

Total taxpayers: 12,242.
$15,000 to $20,000: 103.
$20,000 to $25,000: 57.
Over $25,000: 78.

FORT WILLIAM-PORT ARTHUR

Total taxpayers: 17,304.
$15,000 to $20,000: 181.
$20,000 to $25,000: 66.
Over $25,000: 68.

KITCHENER-WATERLOO

Total taxpayers: 35,672.
$15,000 to $20,000: 195.
$20,000 to $25,000: 98.
Over $25,000: 168.

NIAGARA FALLS

Total taxpayers: 12,357.
$15,000 to $20,000: 41.
$20,000 to $25,000: 22.
Over $25,000: 26.

NORTH BAY

Total taxpayers: 10,782.
$15,000 to $20,000: 78.
$20,000 to $25,000: 22.
Over $25,000: 18.

OTTAWA-HULL

Total taxpayers: 5,087
$15,000 to $20,000: 41
$20,000 to $25,000: 18.
Over $25,000: 14.

ST. CATHARINES

Total taxpayers: 33,353.
$15,000 to $20,000: 136.
$20,000 to $25,000: 81.
Over $25,000: 126.

ST. THOMAS

Total taxpayers: 8,924.
$15,000 to $20,000: 30.
$20,000 to $25,000: 15.
Over $25,000: 18.

STRATFORD

Total taxpayers: 7,286.
$15,000 to $20,000: 28.
$20,000 to $25,000: 26.
Over $25,000: 32.

SUDBURY

Total taxpayers: 16,016.
$15,000 to $20,000: 134.
$20,000 to $25,000: 65.
Over $25,000: 318.

VICTORIA

Total taxpayers: 43,758.
$15,000 to $20,000: 318.
$20,000 to $25,000: 102.
Over $25,000: 174.

That MP is suddenly affluent MP in pretty rarified financial company.

How does he stack up nationally:

ALL CANADA

Total taxpayers: 4,389,786
$15,000 to $20,000: 26,879
$20,000 to $25,000: 11,388
Over $25,000: 16,000

So he is one of the 55,956 of the salary aristocrats in the great income taxpaying mob of nearly 4,400,000.

Percentagewise, if you take him where he most really is classed, in the $25,000 and over bracket, he is in the high altitude 3.27 per cent of the total income de la creme.

Finally, in the 12 listed cities, how does his $25,000 or even his $18,000 with that tax-free $6,000 and the corresponding expense account fringe benefits stack up against what the Revenue Department's "Green Book" calculates is the "average income"?

The "average income" is listed: Belleville: $4,360; Brantford: $4,130; Fort William - Port Arthur: $4,236; Kitchener-Waterloo: $4,300; Niagara Falls: $4,313; North Bay: $4,299; Ottawa-Hull: $3,874; St. Catharines: $4,504; St. Thomas: $4,008; Stratford: $3,972; Sudbury: $4,589; Victoria: $4,336.

'Legionary' Opposes 'Distinctive' Flag

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

In view of the recent revival on interest in the matter of a new, distinctive Canadian flag, as evidenced by an article recently appearing in the Intelligencer and by the widespread publicity given a flag contest in one of the large metropolitan dailies I would like to quote an editorial which recently appeared in "The Legionary" official mouthpiece of the Royal Canadian Legion.

"It was a relief to note that the speech from the Throne re. contained no mention of a new, distinctive Canadian flag. But our relief may be only temporary, for there are signs and portents aplenty that strong efforts will be made during the next few years to replace our Canadian Red Ensign. As we have said before, the Legionary can see nothing ahead but bitter feelings, acrimonious debate and intensified disunity throughout the country as a result of such efforts. Surely the time has now come for realistic thinking and corrective action on the part of all those organizations and individuals from coast to coast to whom the replacement of the Canadian Red Ensign would be a major catastrophe, a great national tragedy.

"The Royal Canadian Legion has made known its clear-cut stand on this crucial issue through its Dominion Convention and in its national magazine. Government leaders and members of parliament have read and other communications and media are all aware of the Legion's views. But still more can be done. Legion branches and members should make their elected representatives in the House of Commons by letter or telegram known their views about it. Equally important they can fly the flag themselves — Canadian flag — from their halls and homes and urge that it be flown from public schools, office buildings and business premises in their own localities.

"If we don't fly the flag we already have we may soon have no station loose its effectiveness. If on the other hand a million or more Red Ensigns are flying on every day across the length and breadth of this land the impact and implications would be significant and quite possibly decisive."

The action urged by this editorial applies not only to Legion members but to all patriotic citizens, especially our veterans who have fought under this famous flag in two great world wars. Let's see millions of Red Ensigns flying across the country and the Government will no longer be in doubt about Canada's National Flag.

Yours truly,
George Lawton.

Golf Club Put on Spot

Hamilton Spectator
Fact 1: Walking barefoot is good for the feet.

Fact 2: Walking barefoot on grass feels nice.

Fact 3: Playing golf barefoot improves your foot action and therefore helps your game.

Conclusion: Playing golf barefoot is good for your feet, feels nice, and improves your game.

Fact 4: Walking barefoot on cement makes your feet dirty.

Fact 5: Some bare feet are ugly.

Fact 6: Most golf courses frown on anything except sartorial splendor.

Conclusion: That will be the day when a golf course will allow members to play golf in their bare feet.

(Interesting sidelight: The Green Hills Country Club in Greenville, Conn., has a woman member who claims she knocked 10 strokes off her score because she was more relaxed and comfortable playing in her bare feet. As the by-laws at Green Hills state: "Members playing golf must be suitably attired for the game" the matter has been placed before the board of governors. As yet, no decision.)

(P.S. Greenwich is one of the wealthiest communities in the United States and the Green Hills Club is so elegant that its dog's leg allegedly has a pedigree. If it allows bare feet on its turf, manufacturers of golf shoes will feel terrible.))

For Cats and Dogs

Fort William Times-Journal

It may come as a surprise to a large number of Canadians that their country is a heavy exporter of canned dog and cat foods. According to the department of trade and commerce 14,000,000 pounds of the commodity were exported in 1962, valued at almost $2,000,000. This was a slim about 50 per cent higher than that realized in 1961.

To Your Good Health

Aged Hernia Sufferer Recommended to Use Trusses

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have developed inguinal hernia in the lower right groin.

I am 80 years old and have a serious heart trouble that two specialists me. My doctor advises that little or nothing can be done for this condition except by surgery; however, this may not be successful at my age. He suggests a truss. What do you think? — B. A.

Surgery is the most effective treatment of a hernia.

The sooner it is done, the less misery of contending with the hernia. And, as well, the less danger of it protruding through the abdominal wall and being trapped there — a "strangulated hernia," which is very dangerous and must be treated at once. A hernia does not get better by itself; it can only become worse.

However, in your case I readily agree with your doctor. A truss is the best solution.

Surgery is feasible if we had only your age to contend with. Many surgical patients these days are older than you. But the bad condition adds a considerable risk, and so I say why a truss first.

Your doctor suggests the use of a truss first.

You will not, in any event, be very satisfied with having a physical strain. If a suitable truss can be fitted, the hernia may remain under satisfactory control indefinitely.

Medical care can't be given entirely by the mail. Only doctors have to be weighed and your case is a good example of a situation in which a visual advice — repair a hernia surgically — may not be best.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son and my sister's daughter intend to be married. This is against my wishes both of them are of age. I claim it is illegal for first cousins to marry; they say it is illegal only in some states. What can be done? — Concerned Mother

They are right. It is illegal in some states and not in others. All you (or I) can do is point out that some states prohibit marriages of first cousins because in such case the risk of defective babies is greater. If, as by the law of averages sometimes must happen, both husband and wife have inherited a similar and harmful weakness, the flaw can be reflected in the children. It's a greater risk than the possible but less likely one when unrelated people happy marry. If it's legal in your state be quiet and hope for the best and I do hope with you.

Dear Dr. Molner: I've been told that there is a higher cancer rate among women whose breasts are left undisturbed. Is this true, and why? — Mrs. F. W.

No, there is no reason for referring to cancer of the cervix, and not in general. Some statistics show that Jewish women generally have less cancer of the cervix. Just why has not been determined.

Attention all women! For the pamphlet, "The Pre-Menstrual Blues," write to Dr. Molner, in care of The Daily Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope and a coin to cover the handling. This pamphlet may help you!

Many Rules For Treating Some Injuries

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

This pot - bellied, middle-aged, once-a-week athlete tripped on the tennis court last Sunday, trying to retrieve a ball that your youngster sister could have got without eating an ice cream cone with the other hand, and pulled a muscle in his calf.

The next day, heroically hobbling to the office with a cane, I learned exactly what to do with an ailment of this sort. So far as I can make out, there are 10 infallible rules to follow. These are: Stay off the leg as much as possible; apply heat — the exercise will bring it back into shape, apply cold pack, apply hot packs, apply cold and hot packs alternately, apply only moist heat — stay away from a heating pad, sleep all night with a heating pad on the leg, bandage it tightly to support the muscle, don't bandage it, or you'll stop the circulation and retard recovery, see a doctor, a chiropractor, a physiotherapist, a Swedish masseur, a herbal trainer and a faith healer.

It's surprising that nobody recommended a leg cast to support the injured limb. With this one singular exception, I have been subjected to the entire contending barrage of self-confident advice that the mind of man is capable of.

Of the 26 persons who, in the space of an hour or two, came up solicitously to inquire about the origin of my limp, not one confessed complete ignorance about the therapy of cure.

Everybody had had the same thing — or something very nearly like it, or a brother who was similarly wounded in sportive action, or a family doctor who was powerful "at that sort of thing."

I am convinced that every man believes he can do three things superbly well: Run the country better than the President, edit a newspaper better than the editors, and dispense medical advice better than the doctors.

Of course, the doctors themselves sometimes pretend omniscience when they are ignorant. They have heard of the lady who went to a doctor with a nasty bruise on her thigh. He prescribed hot baths.

She tried them for a day and nothing happened. Finally, her maid suggested cold packs — two applications, and the bruise was gone. She told the doctor and told him the story. "That's odd," he murmured, "My maid told me hot packs."

Electorate Vote On Ward System Is Turned Down

A move on the part of Alderman Jack Allin to have the electorate vote on whether municipal members should be elected by the ward system instead of by general vote failed to receive support of city council as council re-convened following its summer recess.

Alderman Allin introduced his notice of motion at the last June meeting prior to the summer recess.

Yesterday when there was no seconder for his motion, Mayor A. M. Haig declared the motion lost.

But although the motion yesterday was defeated by a complete lack of council support, Alderman Allin indicated that he might still get his question before the electorate.

COULD GET PETITION

One alternative, he said, was for a minimum of 150 ratepayers to place their names to a petition calling for council to take action on the matter.

Such an alternative was provided for in legislation, he said, he said.

Alderman George Wishart, another council member given permission to speak on a "defeated" motion, suggested that what could happen about election of council by ward be brought in.

He referred to the ward system of electing public school trustees in Belleville.

Since the system was brought in many years ago, he said there never had been any difficulty in election for school trustees. Invariably, some of the trustees and sometimes all of them, have been elected by acclamation.

Justice Moorehouse Refuses To Accept List of Prisoners For Inspection by Jury

A minor flurry was caused among Hastings County Assizes court officials yesterday when Ontario Supreme Court Justice E. G. Moorehouse refused to accept for grand jury inspection, the list of county jail prisoners.

Inspection of the jail is an annual duty of the assizes grand jury — to guard against unlawful, or overly - long detention, Crown Attorney Whitney told the presiding Justice and passed to the grand jury.

As he glanced over the document yesterday Mr. Justice Moorehouse said for five years he had been in charge of the assizes and "a proper calendar of prisoners."

"This is not a proper calendar. Is the governor here?"

As jail governor Thomas Cook was called and Mr. Justice Moorehouse queried: "Mr. Governor. There are a number of instances here charged with bail. Are they recommended for trial or remanded for sentence?"

The jail governor replied the list concerned remands for trial, the Justice called on Crown Attorney Whitney and queried: "Are we going to have to deliver the jail?" he demanded.

Mr. Whitney replied a true bill was found against a man and a list of prisoners' charges, including robbery with violence and an assault.

"Ooh, I think he has been in jail over a month," he added.

He ordered a new calendar prepared before he allowed the grand jury to make its inspection.

Later, after the grand jury had filed into the court room with a true bill in a murder charge against Vincent Arnaud Caissie, of Belleville, Mr. Justice Moorehouse, had another comment about the jail inspection.

He ordered the jurors inspect all buildings in the county receiving public funds — another traditional function of the grand jury — but asked they leave inspection of the prisoners until later.

"There may be something I can give you some assistance on," he said.

In past years, the jury usually has inspected the court house, jail and county home.

Chairman of the grand jury is John Hopcroft, a former reeve of Faraday Township. Other jurors are Archie Burley, Deseronto; Gerard Mercy, Madoc; Cecil McConkey, Trenton; George Stock, Belleville; Ernest Thomas Cooper, and Eric Pomeroy, Trenton.

Vincent A. Caissie on Trial On Non-Capital Murder Charge In Death of Wife on April 22

Vincent Arnaud Caissie today was on trial on an indictment charge of non-capital murder in the shooting of his wife.

The 37-year-old unemployed Belleville man was ordered to stand trial late yesterday after a grand jury returned a true bill — signifying there was sufficient evidence to support hearing his case at the Autumn Supreme Court assizes for Hastings County.

Caissie originally was charged with capital murder April 22nd in the Dundas Street home he found dead in the couple's apartment at 46 Gowe Street. The first day of the trial, which has been reduced came yesterday as the bill of indictment was presented to the jury panel. Present Mr. Justice E. G. Moorehouse.

The grand jury left the court room at 11 a.m. to deliberate on the true bill at 4:33 p.m. and the Justice immediately ordered the bell-jury sworn in.

He then adjourned court for the day.

Another murder charge goes before a grand jury at the current Assizes in Belleville — as it was learned this week-end that a Hastings County court docket has listed two cases for trial — one of which is simultaneously.

Facing a charge of capital murder is 22-year-old Toronto parking lot attendant Leonard Joseph Coombs.

He was arrested after Sharon Margaret Frost of Belleville was found dead and stabbed at L'Amable February 14th.

The jury is an all-male panel. Two women selected among those called for jury duty were excused from acting without fee in defence of Caissie, unemployed at the time the charge of his arrest.

Caissie formally pleaded not guilty before the evening adjournment.

This morning the trial got underway shortly after 10 a.m. Caissie was led into the court and seated in the dock behind his counsel. A slight sandy-haired man clad in a charcoal grey suit he sat quietly with his hands clasped in his lap.

Behind him in the front row of the spectators seats sat his parents and brother.

The opening address of John Pringle's opening address for the prosecution was brief and the first witness called was coroner Dr. John Stock.

Dr. Stock told of going to the Caissie apartment at 46 Gowe Street, where he saw Mrs. Caissie's body slumped over a kitchen table.

Later, at Belleville General Hospital morgue, he estimated time of death between 11.30 and 12 midnight.

However he agreed with Mr. Shirley that a variable time factor could exist in his estimate.

He also took a blood alcohol test from Caissie about 2.30 a.m. city police headquarters.

As he prepared to take the blood test, said Dr. Stock, "I told him that it would not hurt very much and he replied to me: "Lwish it would".

Dr. Stock's testimony called was OPP Corporal Harold Howting, Belleville, headquarters identification officer. Corporal Howting presented photographs he had taken at the scene and at city police headquarters.

Mr. Justice Moorehouse is expected to instruct members to return home each night after the trial.

While he said he was exercising his discretion in doing so, the Justice warned the jurors against discussion the case outside their panel.

"If any person persists in discussing the case) with you I ask you to get that person's name and address, give it to the sheriff or the nearest police officer and I will see that that person is dealt with," he admonished the jurors.

The fact Mr. Hurley and Mr. Templeman are acting in Caissie's defence yesterday was noted before the Justice by Crown Attorney Pringle before yesterday's adjournment.

"It is often said (legal) counsel never appear before me," he added.

The Justice agreed, adding both counsel were upholding the highest tradition of the legal profession.

New Location For Garbage Disposal Needed

The Bay Front property on the east side of Bay Bridge Road currently being used for refuse land fill garbage disposal will soon be filled up and the city will have to find a new location.

And Alderman Jack Allin yesterday asked the council now to be taking steps to secure other disposal property.

He said the present area would be filled up by the end of the year and suggested that another 200 or so acres of bay front property should be acquired for this purpose.

Alderman Allin said he was interested in the city's garbage disposal project as it had been at his instigation 15 years ago that the present land fill method had been adopted.

Mayor Haig agreed that acquiring other property for garbage disposal was a matter, which should be surveyed.

He noted that the works department was looking at the east for a site, but agreed the entire bay front area should be reviewed.

Burrell Bateman Winner of Pasture Contest

The Hastings County Soil and Crop Improvement Association announced the winner of the County Pasture Competition is Burrell Bateman, Eldorado. The competition is sponsored by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and the local Crop Improvement Association. This year was judged by the Agricultural Representative, Sidney MacDonald.

Mr. Bateman has a fine herd of Holsteins, and this summer he milked thirty cows. He pastured them on seventeen acres of pasture as well as twenty-one acres now of aftermath. Mr. Bateman's pastures are a mixture of alsalfa, ladino, brome grass and some timothy. This year he installed an irrigation system, which he used during the dry portion in July, with proper fertillization, has helped him keep his milk production consistant.

A close second was Mr. Arnold Empey of Madoc, R. R. 1. Mr. Empey has a Holstein herd of eighteen milking cows on forty acres of pasture, and thirty-six of aftermath. Mr. Empey did not use irrigation but has a good fertility program.

The other contestants were: Malcolm Laister, Corbyville; A. Graham, Stirling; Ross Graham, Shannonville; Morley Chard, Marmora; Donald Wannamaker, Tweed; Frederick son, Moira; Philo Harris, Madoc; Cyril Shaw, Eldorado; Ross Wilson, Madoc; Lorne Detlier, Stirling; James Reynolds, Foxboro; John McFarlane, Shannonville; and Clarke Bates, Shannonville.

Pastures are the cheapest feed for cattle and the competitors, along with others, are making good use of them.

SOVIETS WELL HELP

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Soviet Delegate Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko declared Monday his country would spare no effort to overcome U.S.-Soviet differences at international co-operation in peaceful uses of outer space. Delegates expressed appreciation for what they called Fedorenko's moderate tone, but informed U.S. sources cautioned that major differences on some long-standing issues still remained.

To Disobey Law Is Wrong Both by the Law of Land And Moral Law Says Jurist

Anglican Supreme Court Justice E. G. Moorehouse registered some succinct opinions on society and the law as he opened the Hastings County Assizes in Belleville yesterday.

The Justice, in a lengthy discourse to the Assizes grand jury on what he termed "moral law", laid down this pure definition:

"To disobey the law is wrong, both by the law of the land and by moral law."

His remarks drew added significance coming at a time when the relationship of law and morality appears attracting increasing discussion, if only as a lofty conversational exercise.

However, Mr. Justice Moorehouse balanced the weight of his remarks on the more direct issues of individual moral responsibility to society - - and the law of society.

A private notion of individual moral failure could be attributed among other things to a lack of personal discipline, said the jurist.

"I have yet to find... a serious case against a person who had good training, discipline and a true recognition of moral values."

"On whose shoulders does this responsibility rest? Who shall cast the first stone?

"It is because we are afraid to stand up for morality and justice?

TELLS OF DUTY

"It is your duty to put down immorality," he told the jury, citing statistics that showed a majority of Justice are not provincial institutions; had unsatisfactory family backgrounds.

"Is there anyone who cannot say we can't do something about that?" he asked.

He told the jurors their experiences during the Assizes would enable them to return to their home communities and be examples to others.

"There has never been a time when law has been as important as now."

The Justice described the law as the foundation and cement of moral law while the courts are "to a large extent the execution of the church."

Later in his address he declared: "The foundation of our country is in the church, the tabernacle, the synagogue, the meeting house and the home."

OPPOSES FREEDOMS

"Some misguided persons" aware of the strength of such a social foundation "seek to undermine it in the guise of an encroachment to our freedom", he declared.

But "freedom does not mean the right to do everything one pleases."

He cited by example the problem facing any ancient Athenian who found his exercise of personal freedom contested by the law. He could attempt to prove in law, charges by another jurisdiction, or simply obey the law.

"But he had no right to violate it", commented the Justice.

"To disobey the law is wrong both by the law of the land and by moral law."

Recalling historic precedences that guarantee the independence of the courts he said: "I mention some of these things just to let you know that the judges are independent, and that's necessary in any society as we know it rests on the independence of our judiciary".

"Courts of Justice are not synonymous terms", he added and gave these definitions: "Law is the body of action prescribed by authority, Justice, on the other hand, is the quality of conformity to that law."

The Justice was welcomed on behalf of the County Bar Association by barrister Rod Cameron.

Little Hope of Getting More Access Routes West of City

The city of Belleville has little hope of getting additional access routes from 401 highway, at least before something is done for the east end of the city.

This was the bad news told to city council yesterday by Mayor A. H. Haig in reply to a query from Alderman Les Digby.

Earlier this year Alderman Digby suggested to the works days department be approached with a request for additional access routes to the city including the extension of the Wallbridge Road to No. 2 highway.

Mayor Haig said a committee had met with department officials on the matter but had been given little encouragement to take their request on to the highways minister.

He said that for some time there had been a request for an access road from 401 highway east of the city.

The mayor said it might be much better to continue pressure for an access road on the east than to ask for another west and road and possibly lose out on both.

Council Accepts Tender for Motor For Fire Truck

The tender of the Levy Auto Parts Company of Toronto was accepted by city council yesterday for the installation of a new motor in one of the city fire department trucks.

The new motor was recommended by Fire Chief Gerald Wood as the lowest tender of three.

Mayor Haig said a committee had met with department officials on the matter but had been given little encouragement to take their request on to the highways minister.

He said that for some time there had been a request for an access road from 401 highway east of the city.

The mayor said it might be much better to continue pressure for an access road on the east than to ask for another west and road and possibly lose out on both.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Callery are shown following their recent marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Kathleen A. Burkett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Burkett, Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. M. Callery, Read, and the late Mr. B. Callery.

CALLERY — BURKETT

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding recently when Kathleen A. Burkett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Burkett, Belleville, was united in marriage to Thomas D. Callery, Read, son of Mrs. M. Callery and the late Mr. B. Callery.

Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan officiated before a background of red and white gladioli. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

The organist, Miss Dorothy Grant, accompanied she soloist, Mr. Rod Bowerman in his renditions of "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother".

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a princess styled floor length bridal gown of white peau de soie which flowed to a chapel train at back. The bodice featured long tapered sleeves. Her shoulder length veil of silk illusion fell from a petalled coronet. She carried a cascade bouquet of white feather carnations.

Mrs. J. E. Cassidy, Belleville, as matron of honor, and Mrs. T. R. Hornby, as bridesmaid, both sisters of the bride, were dressed alike in midnight blue peau de soie in princess style with "v" necklines and short sleeves. Their headpieces were small crowns of white lace straw. Each carried a nosegay of white and blue carnations.

Miss Jr. J. Callery, Belleville, attended his brother, while the ushers were Mr. W. A. Burkett, brother of the bride, and Mr. T. Byrne of Oshawa.

Following the wedding a reception was held at Club Canara where the bridal table was prettily appointed and centred with a two-tier wedding cake encircled about the base with white bells and tiny pink rose buds. White tapers in candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting. The bride's mother in a shell pink, silk shantung dress with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses received the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a Dior blue silk shantung dress with matching jacket, pink feathered hat, black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal theme on the Saguenay cruise the bride chose a navy blue suit with pink hat and blue accessories, pink feathered carnations crested on purse.

Guests were present from Montreal, Toronto, North Bay, New York, Read, Oshawa and Belleville.

A shower honoring the bride was held at the home of Mrs. J. E. Cassidy sister of the bride, with Mrs. W. A. Burkett and Mrs. T. R. Hornby as hostesses.

WOMEN STAY HOME

CALGARY (CP)—Two grandmothers who operate an employment bureau for housecleaning help report they now receive an average of 10 calls a day, fewer than three years ago. "I think the number has gone down because fewer women are working and can do their own housework," says Mrs. Winnifred Pemberton.

Pictured here are Mr. and Mrs. John David Bruyea signing the register after their wedding in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel. The bride was formerly Patricia Margaret Pigden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Pigden. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bruyea. Both are from Belleville.

BRUYEA — PIGDEN

A red and white theme was carried out with gladioli in the two colors for the recent wedding of Patricia Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Pigden of Belleville to John David Bruyea, Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bruyea.

The marriage took place in the church of St. Michael the Archangel with Rev. Father Terrence Boyle officiating. The organist was Miss Dorothy Grant, and the soloist was Mr. James McGovern.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of white silk organza, with scoop neckline, elbow length sleeves, and fitted bodice. The skirt was pouffed and belled in banded tiers of shirring to the floor. She wore a bouffant, shoulder length veil of silk illusion, and carried a cluster of white gardenias with long spirals of white stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The bride's sister Monica Pigden was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary Trudeau and Miss Nancy Pigden, also a sister, all of Belleville. The attendants were dresses similar to the bride's but in waltz length. They were fashioned of red silk organza, with matching organza bows as head pieces, and they carried bouquets of white carnations.

Miss Maribeth Jones, niece of the bride was flower girl, dressed in white peau de soie covered in fine net over a shirred crinoline. She wore a crown of red and white carnations, and carried a basket of the same flowers.

Groomsman was Paul J. Bruyea of Oshawa, and the ushers were J. Gregory Bruyea, Belleville; L. Alastair Graham, Toronto; John P. Munro, Napanee; and Kenneth Doig, Belleville.

A reception was held at Tops Motor hotel in the Four Seasons room where the bride's mother received wearing an ensemble of light green patterned silk brocade, sheath dress with coat, brown accessories and yellow roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a navy dress of pure silk, with peplum skirt, a hat of navy French velvet, navy and white accessories, and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

For a wedding trip to Cape Cod and the United States the bride chose a sheath dress and coat of soft blue linen, the coat featuring a Peter Pan collar with three-button closing in Empire style. Her flowered hat was in matching blue and she wore navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Out of town guests who attended the wedding were from Oshawa, Wooler, Toronto, Napanee, and Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruyea will make their home in Chatham, Ontario.

A feature of the wedding was the presence in the Sanctuary of eight altar boys formerly taught by the bride, and a company of Brownies under the leadership of Mrs. Deidre Piwowarski who formed a guard of honor. The servers for the nuptial Mass were Master Peter Jones, nephew of the bride, and Master Richard Farrell.

The bride was honored with several showers and presentations before her marriage. The teachers of Our Lady of Fatima school where the bride taught, entertained at the home of the Principal Mr. Jack Ryan and Mrs. Ryan, and presented her with crystal. Miss Mary Trudeau entertained at a shower where the bride received a variety of gifts. The Sodality of Our Lady presented a stature, and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce where Mr. Bruyea is employed presented the young couple with an electric frypan.

The bursary for a needy student was discussed and voted upon, at which time it was approved. The annual Alumnae dance will be held sometime in October in the auditorium of Education Hall. Full particulars for this event will be given at a later date.

Mrs. D. Taylor adjourned the meeting and coffee was served.

Ex-Servicewomen To Resume Fall Activities

The Col. Flaxy Wills Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion for Ex-servicewomen will resume fall activities by having Dr. D. C. McVicker as guest at the September meeting.

The past two months have been referred to as "summer recess" however the term does not mean the activities ceased. During this period, the president, Mrs. R. Kirby and vice-president, Mrs. G. MacDonald attended the Provincial semi-annual convention of the Royal Canadian Legion held at Peterborough, where Mrs. Kirby was nominated for the position of ladies representative for Ontario. Mrs. Pauline Lowden, of Sarnia, was favored by the vote.

The Branch was also represented at the zone rally held in Madoc and the colors were carried in the Wellington Centennial parade by Doreen Bursey and Ina Rollins.

More recently the annual childrens' picnic, convened by Clara Jamieson, was held at Zwicki's Island and proved just as enjoyable to the parents as the younger set; the event was concluded with a cruise in Dick Kirby's boat.

Ways and means officer, Mrs. B. Rollins has plans underway for an autumn rummage sale; the date of which will be set at this coming meeting.

We are like the chameleon on a plaid — busting trying to make decisions. We have so many good recipes calling for fresh corn that we want to give them all.

SUMMER SUCCOTASH

6 ears fresh corn; 2 cups shelled out fresh lima beans; ¼ to 1 cup cream or rich milk; 1 tablespoon butter; ½ teaspoon salt; ¼ to ½ teaspoon white pepper.

With sharp knife cut the corn kernels from the cobs without cutting too deeply into cobs, then with the back of your knife scrape out the remaining pulp. Cook the lima beans in salted water to barely cover for 8 minutes. Add corn and cook 3 minutes longer. Drain well. Add cream or milk, butter, salt and pepper and heat heartily to boiling. Serve at once.

Dinner Menu

TUESDAY: (Guests)

CORN WITH GREEN PEPPER AND ONION

3 tablespoons minced onion; 3 tablespoons diced green pepper; 3 tablespoons butter or margarine; 3 cups raw corn kernels (or fresh frozen when fresh is not in season); 6 tablespoons light cream or milk; ½ teaspoon salt.

Cook the onion and green pepper in the butter in a saucepan over low heat until just tender. Add the remaining ingredients and cook 3 or 3 minutes longer, or until corn is barely tender.

The next recipe is for a Corn Pudding. I like it especially well because it may be baked while you are roasting the meat for dinner and it takes no place of potatoes.

CORN PUDDING (highly recommended)

2 cups fresh corn kernels (or canned kernel corn); 2 cups scalded milk; 3 eggs, slightly beaten; 1 teaspoon sugar; 1½ tablespoon melted butter or margarine; 1 teaspoon salt; ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Add corn to scalded milk then add them to all remaining ingredients. Pour into buttered casserole or baking dish. Bake in a pan of warm water at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour, or until firm. If desired, ¼ cup minced cooked ham or grated cheese or 2 tablespoons minced onion may be added to pudding mixture before baking, to make this into a more nutritious casserole for a meal that is short on meat.

HOW MUCH DO YOU SPEND FOR YOUR WINTER COAT?

According to Canadian Government statistics, the national average spent on women's winter coats has two price points — $66.79 and $38.73. Even the Government seems to admit that there is no such thing as the average woman) If you spend $66.79 for a winter coat, you will, according to those statistics, be buying a 16 to 18 ounce all-wool coat, of good workmanship, with handstitched details. (The 16 to 18 ounce wool "fall" refers to the fabric content and means that it contains 16 to 18 ounces of wool to the yard. This is a useful bit of information, as most of us still go by the old "touch and feel" or "handle" method of selecting fabrics. If you are in doubt about the wool content of a ready-made coat, insist on specific information at the store. Hang tags, attached to most coats, usually supply this information.

The coat priced at $38.73 is machine made, but the fabric will contain 16 to 30 ounces of wool per yard. Perhaps that extra two ounces accounts for the slightly more bulky look in some of these less expensive models. I think the fact that these coats are cut in larger quantities and from more economical patterns has something to do with their "cheaper" appearance.

MORE CHEAPER QUALITY

According to our survey on money and fashions, most readers spend at least the top national average price for their winter coats. Many reported that they spent over $100 for a cloth coat without a fur trim. Although some women reported that they wore their winter coats for up to seven years, the average length of wearing time was four years. Many readers say that they will wear a new one just two years as a "best" coat for special occasions. Others report that they will buy a dressy coat, supplementing the wear with a sports or car coat for everyday wear. This preserves the "best" coat for as long as possible.

Although many readers report that they make their own dresses and sportswear, only a few said that they had the courage to try to tailor a coat. A good proportion of the women, who make their clothes, employ a tailor for coats because they want a color or fabric not readily available on the ready-to-wear market.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers in care of this paper.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

EXECUTIVES TALK ABOUT TITLES

It took a revolution to remove titles from the American scene. Yet one of the fascinating aspects of the American way of life in 1963, and for many years past, is the creation of high sounding business titles and the importance on using them in correspondence.

Here's what you see on many envelopes:

Mr. Joe Blow, Chairman of the Board."

It's reasonable to assume that any man who has risen to a position of such eminence would be known to his employees in the mailroom without the identifying tag.

Unless, of course, there's another Joe Blow in the company.

If it's the second Joe Blow you're writing to, chances are you know the name of his department or branch of the company. To make sure the letter reaches its target, the title could type in the name of the department in the lower left corner of the envelope and underline it.

How would you address the top Joe Blow in the situation described? Since, presumably, you know there's another of the same name, the phrase "Executive Office" could be used on the corner of the envelope.

Some people just don't like to write anything on corners of envelopes. In that case, the title or department may be dropped to the second line of the address.

If you don't think many executives are annoyed by the use of all titles after their names on envelopes, just ask some, as I did.

"It sets up a psychological block in my mind when I get mail addressed to me by title," one says. "I assume immediately that the writer, whoever he is, doesn't know me at all and probably got my name from a mailing list."

Another said, "I get the feeling that the writer is trying to make me feel important or that he's the type who's impressed by titles."

A third had a novel, but pertinent, comment:

"I cringe when I get an envelope addressed to me as 'vice-president.' For one thing, I am not the vice-president. There are 13 others in my office. None of us takes the title seriously, because the title is bestowed on the old-timers mostly to impress individual clients."

My prize exhibit is the executive who glanced at the question and admitted he has a real problem with stuffy correspondents.

He was, he said, Administrative Assistant to the General Manager of the Chemical Sales Division — and his calling card confirmed it.

See what I mean?

Keller Clan Holds Reunion

The 150-odd members of the Keller family gathered at Tweed Park to hold their second family reunion.

After dinner Herb Keller of Cow Hill welcomed the gathering. After the minutes were read a two minute silence was observed in remembrance of the family who had died during the past year.

Later, prizes were awarded to the eldest man present, John Keller, the oldest woman present, Evelyn Wannamaker, the latest married couple Mr. and Mrs. Kinnear and the youngest baby, Marvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Keller and the largest family present.

The Kellers intend to hold another reunion next year.

Ann Landers

Lives Free of Anxiety, Nightmarish Family Fights

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The letter signed "Unsolved Mystery" could have been written by me many years ago.

My husband and I both come from cruel and punishing families. Like "Unsolved" we, too, were unable to understand why relatives would want to dominate the lives of those around them. Both my husband and I were on the brink of cracking up.

A doctor told us the only solution was to move as far from our relatives as possible. So we did.

We bought a big, old house and I got a license for foster child care. We asked for the difficult and challenging children — the rejected ones who needed our love most. It was the ideal solution. Now there is no time to concern ourselves with what his crazy family — or mine — will do next. All our discussions are about the children. Our lives are free of anxiety and nightmarish family fights.

You gave the right answer to "unsolved," Ann, but I'd like to make it even stronger. "Don't allow yourself to be pulled into someone else's hell. And don't try to educate a nut, because all you have when you are through is an educated nut. If people make you miserable, get away from them and fill your life with useful, constructive things." — UNCHAINED AT LAST.

DEAR AT LAST — Amen.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Can you tell me, please, why mothers allow their young daughters to announce their engagement, and then permit friends to fete them at showers and parties?

I am a woman who gave a shower for a pregnant bride — not knowing it, of course. When the baby was born six months after the wedding I felt like a great big fool. I am furious with this girl's mother. Surely, she must have known. Has the moral standards sunk to such a level that this is now considered acceptable? Please publish my letter and help mothers to start thinking in the right direction.

If something is wrong with my thinking, I'd like to know it. — MITCHELL, S. D.

DEAR MITCHELL — Mothers of pregnant brides, I assure you, are less than elated at the prospect of a "too early" arrival. But they do their best to hold up their heads, hoping against hope that the stork will break a leg and show up late. A girl who is visibly pregnant should not have a large church wedding. And to inspire parties for a pregnant bride-to-be is in the worst possible taste.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'd like to say a word or two to Vincent's mother, Mrs. B.B., who rushed to the summer camp and hauled her son out after three days when he phoned and whimpered, "Come and get me, Ma."

I spent 34 years in the Armed Forces and retired last year as a captain. According to my figures, little Vincent is now 13 years old. In about seven years he will be called into the armed services, and if he hasn't learned something about taking orders by then he's going to have a mighty rough time of it. Instead of doing him a service he won't be able to telephone home and say, "Come and get me, Ma."

Mothers who believe they are raising "Free Thinkers" when they shield their children against "order-taking" are not helping their children to be strong and independent. They are making cripples out of the kids. As you said, Ann, "Nobody can live in this world and do as he darned well pleases."

I hope you will print this letter for the kid's sake. Thanks. — C.A. — U.S.A.R.

DEAR FRIEND — Here's the letter "for the kid's sake." Thanks for writing.

Letchford, District Director introduced Mrs. C. Millard of Mills Silk Screen Printing Industries who gave an interesting resume of the industry from the time Mr. Mills introduced it to Belleville to its present busy production. Members found this progressive, intricate industry most interesting. Mrs. Millard showed many attractive products of the business and a lively discussion followed.

A delightful lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Canada's Charlotte Whitton:

"No Angel, But a Good Mayor"

Her Worship, Mayor Whitton of Ottawa, has held five terms of office during years 1951-1956 and 1960 to present, is also social worker, lecturer, writer, regional historian.

From her five-foot-high eye-level, Charlotte Whitton, five times mayor of Canada's capital city, Ottawa, sees further than many people who stand a full 12 inches taller. Confidently meeting all comers in the rough and tumble of civic politics with a sharp wit that flashes out spontaneously, Dr. Whitton yet charms visitors with disarming candour, a prodigious memory and keen intelligence. Ensconced in the mayoralty seat of office for the best part of a dozen years she has watched carefully over the new Ottawa she has helped build. From the strikingly modern city hall that rises up near the historic meeting place of the Ottawa and Rideau rivers and where the city she loves had its beginnings, her fame as woman and mayor has spread across the world. In Canada, the United States, Europe and more distant countries her picture has been reproduced, her quotes reported. As mayor of the nation's capital, Charlotte Whitton has often vied for attention with the leading figures of the national scene who share Ottawa's international limelight. Miss Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., Master of Arts (Queen's), Doctor of Civil Laws, Doctor of Laws and Jubilant Miss Whitton gives victory sign during closing phase of 1954 civic election. Now two terms she chose retirement, then was re-elected in 1960.

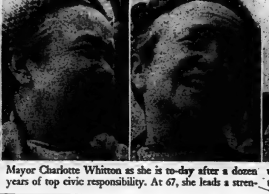
Letters of five universities, entered politics from the welfare field. A reigning champion of her sex, Mayor Whitton, 67, works 16 hours every day, drives herself to work in an eight-year-old car, misses many a meal as the pressure builds up, faces her voters and fellow citizens with a no-favours-asked attitude of "I'm no angel, but I'm a good mayor". Today, as full of zest as ever and invigorated by recent travels to Russia and other European countries, Ottawa's lady mayor faces the future with a hard-to-match mixture of pugnaciousness, serenity, forcefulness and charm.



Mayor's puzzled interest is caught by modern sculpture on Sparks Street Mall in heart of Ottawa.

Recent ceremony was laying of new Geristric Centre cornerstone by Mayor. National Film Board Photostory

HISTORY OF TRENTON

Mrs. J. W. Beswick, a new member gave a fine descriptive account of Trenton. In her address she said, "Though Champlain and his entourage Bay through the present route made their way from Georgian of the Trent Canal to the Bay of Quinte in 1615, it was not until after the American war of Independence and the influx of United Empire Loyalists in 1790 that white settlers moved into what is now the Trenton area. In that year two pioneers James Smith and John Bleecker erected dwellings built of logs.

Mrs. Beswick pictured the "hunger year" in 1787 when the residents met with great privation. At one time "the Carrying Place" three miles south of Trenton was an important spot and during the 18th century it was considered for the capital of Upper Canada, but the plans failed. In 1833 the covered bridge across the Trent River was built and the government commenced construction of the Trent canal.

The first postal system came to Trenton in 1851 by mail coach. The speaker pictured the various modes of transportation from batteau shipping to opening of the Danforth Road and to moonlight excursions by boat, then to bus service.

The lumber industry played an important part in Trenton and when the timber came down the river it was a picturesque sight. Trenton was incorporated as a village in 1853 and in 1890 it was raised to the status of a town. Trenton is a hub of a transportation network with two railroads and the canal systems and it is a Customs port of entry.

In 1929 the R.C.A.F. established a training station at Trenton and Mrs. Beswick gave a comprehensive picture of that large station. She spoke briefly of the film plant operated in 1919 and 1920 by the National Film Board and the establishment of the various churches. She closed with a summary of the "Loyalist Town" which was most interesting.

An exhibit of articles pertaining to Trenton was displayed by several of the members. This included postcards, clippings, old directories and other materials.

Mrs. C. Wilson gave a reading entitled, "The Haunted House."

GUELPH CONFERENCE

Mrs. Ernest Carr who attended the Guelph conference in June gave a vivid account of the various sessions when over 400 women were in attendance. Mrs. Leonard Travers, newly elected president of Federated Women of Ontario gave a special address. Dr. MacLachlan, dean of MacDonald Institute, and Dr. Margaret McCready both gave messages. Mrs. Pearl Isaacq of Ceylon outlined the course of education for women in India and Ceylon.

In her address Miss Helen McKreher said over 300 children had been sponsored in the recent project. She stressed that Home and Country extends all over the globe, and it is important for each Branch to support its own organization.

Mrs. Carr gave a descriptive account of the welcome on June 20th for Mrs. Geerda Van Beekhoff of the Netherlands, President of A.C.W.W. Almost 4000 women were in attendance for that special event and the flags of all nations were carried by 4-H girls and placed on the dais by dignitaries. In her address she outlined the part played by the Lady Aberdeen scholarship to help folks in older lands. F.W.I.O. made the presentation of $2800 for Pennies for Friendship. The conference was enjoyable and educational and Mrs. Carr thanked the River Valley W.I. for providing the $30 for her trip.

Mrs. C. Wilson voiced thanks for hospitality to the hostess and lunch committee and for the program.

DIED IN BONFIRE

BRADFORD, England (AP) —Janet Blair, 14, crouched, too terrified to move, inside a blazing bonfire Sunday and died. Sibs and three other children had made themselves a den underneath a 15-foot pile of wood. When it caught fire, three children got out unhurt. Janet, frightened by the flames, stayed behind calling "I can't, I can't." Police said the fire may have been started by other children.

Prominent among the winds of change and enlightenment blowing across the world during the last half-century has been the capricious breeze of women's emancipation. Starting as a series of localized tornadoes which swept away the main obstacles across their path, the wind soon settled down to a steady blow. As the leaders of male dominance chased their hats wither they had blown and dignity was restored all 'round, the world buttoned its coat again, accepted the new wind as a fair breeze for the future.

Today, with a record of front-line soldiers, aviators, scientists, ship captains, ambassadors, even a lady prime minister and a cosmonaut or two, the place of women in any walk of life is seldom a cause for concern or debate.

Ottawa's Charlotte Whitton, five times mayor of Canada's capital city, newspaper columnist, historian, writer and lecturer, has achieved a prominence much wider than the local scene, far higher than her five-foot stature.

Daughter of an Irish-American mother and an English-Canadian father, Charlotte Whitton entered Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario, in 1914 with six scholarships. Besides editing the college newspaper, she was a leader in sports, won a master of arts degree, became a double-medalist in English and history, gained other honors. Later she entered social work with her customary vigor, then served four years as secretary to the federal minister of Trade and Commerce. As executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council she travelled across Canada, was a representative at the pre-war League of Nations, arranged for the evacuation of thousands of children when need arose, was quoted by a leading magazine as having ". . . elevated social welfare from the abyss of common charity to the standards of a profession."

At Ottawa's City Hall, barely a mile east of Canada's Parliament Buildings, Mayor Charlotte Whitton works a long, arduous day. Arriving in her 1935-model car, she enters her office, forecasts the day's weather to her own satisfaction by noting the lie of the smoke from the cement factory across the Ottawa River ". . . It's the oldest cement plant in eastern Ontario . . . used by Colonel By in 1827 to build the Rideau canal system," then attends to an avalanche of civic duties as mayor of a city of 300,000 people and 48 square miles.

Facing the future with undiminishing energy, Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton will undoubtedly continue to cause local, national and international comment, will be remembered long after the last vestige of sex-discrimination has been laughed into history.

Retirement Party for Houseparent at O.S.D.

On Tuesday, September 3rd, members of the O.S.D. staff met to honor Miss Elizabeth Thomas who retired from the houseparent staff after thirty years of service at O.S.D. A party organized by the houseparents association was held in the auditorium of the Junior School. Present were Miss Thomas and members of her immediate family, a number of retired staff members, members of the houseparent staff, and other senior staff members.

Mr. G. Locklin, Assistant Superintendent welcomed the guests and members of the staff who came to pay tribute to Miss Thomas at the party held in her honor. He paid tribute to Miss Thomas for her many years of conscientious devoted service to the school and to the deaf children who lived in her residence. Mr. Locklin expressed on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Demesa and Mr. and Mrs. Clare their regrets at being unable to attend this event because of previous commitments. Mr. Locklin read a message from Mr. Demesa, Superintendent, to Miss Thomas.

Mr. Demesa expressed appreciation to Miss Thomas for the conscientious and considerate way in which she had managed her building, and for the training given to the children in her residences over the past years. He extended to Miss Thomas his appreciation and that of the Department of Education for excellent service and wished her well in her retirement.

Mr. W. J. Morrison, Superintendent retired, extended his good wishes to Miss Thomas and welcomed her to the ranks of the retired. He pointed out some of the pleasures presently being enjoyed by members of his group. He commented on the many changes which had taken place at the school since he first became acquainted with it. He paid tribute to the service of staff members like Miss Thomas who have devoted so many years to the service of education of the deaf.

Mrs. Moore of the houseparent staff then read an address to Miss Thomas on behalf of the staff members. Mrs. Moore suggested that life had its seasons and that Miss Thomas had reached the season when she might depart from her busy schedule with a great sense of satisfaction in the years well spent in service to others. Mrs. Moore extended best wishes on behalf of the group and asked Miss Thomas to receive the gifts presented by her assembled friends. Miss Thomas was then presented with an attractive platform rocker and a floor lamp.

Miss Thomas expressed appreciation for the lovely gifts and for the many kind words and to the people who had organized the evening.

Mr. Frank Murray, a member of Miss Thomas' family, spoke briefly of his association with the honored guest of the evening and the Ontario School for the Deaf in the past.

The presentation was preceded by an evening of games and visiting. Following the presentation, a delicious lunch was served, the highlight of which was a cake decorated to represent a book entitled "Thirty Years at O.S.D. by Bess Thomas."

Thus O.S.D. staff members said farewell to another member of long service who joins the many active former staff members in this community.

president said.

President Kennedy should threaten two American waterfront unions with the "damnedest investigations they have ever known" unless violence against ships from Upper Lakes Shipping Limited is stopped, he said in an interview.

The threat should be made to Paul Hall, president of the SIU, and Teddy Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's Association (AFL-CIO-CLC).

He said he is sure the relationship between the two unions would not stand up to an investigation.

J. A. Geller, legal counsel for Upper Lakes, said the dynamiting of the Shaw was an attempt by the SIU to make it impossible for the ship to be loaded, in compliance with a Chicago court order.

He said support is being organized on a national front by provincial senior citizens groups for a minimum monthly pension of $85 a month.

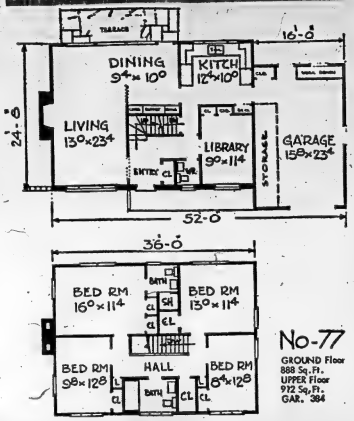
Morris Rosenburg, assistant administrator for the Jewish Home for the Aged in North York, said the increase would help reduce the institution's deficit.

"We will be able to improve the lot of our pensioners slightly and raise their allowance a little, but there is still a long way to go," he said.

Sister Vianney, administrator of the Roman Catholic Providence Villa at Scarborough, said she board has not yet decided what will happen to the increase.

"Our pensioners turn their old age pension over to us and receive $6.50 a month comfort money," she said. "I wouldn't like to raise any hopes falsely at this point and say the allowance would be increased."

Ester Harding, superintendent of the United Church's Ina Grafton Gage Home at Toronto, which charges $90 a month for room and board, said the increase would be of great assistance to the 51 persons in the home. Each is allowed $6 a month spending money, after turning in their full pension.



"Most of them receive some help from their families, but we do have a few who cannot meet our rate," she said.

Crossroads East Africa

Kenya as Viewed Through Eyes of Canadian Student

By James McAuley

ARTICLE 4

East Africa is a beautiful part of the continent. The color of Eastern and African peoples, and the ruins of their ancient civilizations are everywhere. But because of the nature of our daily life and work as Crossroaders, we did not see the country the way that tourists see it. One cannot live and work among Africans, and yet when invited to their homes, see no more than an attractive grouping of mud and grass huts.

There are poverty and disease there, too, and human beings marching to an identity in a difficult, competitive world. These conditions are especially difficult for the human, whom the nation trusts greatly for her future. In the bushlands of Kenya's Coast Province, I found a small girl crying. Her thin legs and swollen abdomen were indications of malnutrition, and her limbs were covered with many infectious sores. In addition, she might have been healthy and playing with her friends, or whispering to her mother. But this frightened African child was crying and alone in a large and impersonal world.

It has been said of the newly independent countries of Africa, that they will be ripe for communism without ever having learned to walk. If they are to survive and find the happy competitive atmosphere, they will need the substantial assistance of the affluent nations of the West. However, more than money and tractors and impersonal CARE packages are needed. They need instructors and medical assistants to administer these forms of aid. More than anything else, they really want our understanding, also. And it is the one thing that white Europeans and North Americans have not really given to Africa.

Such government and private organizations as the U.S. Peace Corps, Commonwealth Services and Canadian University Service Overseas, are beginning to meet this challenge. But the image of wealthy self-interested white people with huge estates and African servants, will not soon be dispelled. The reason for this stigma is that it has a reality in the lives of three generations of East Africans.

Many Europeans came and took the slaves, and later they took the land as well. Early Christ-ian missionaries drained the land made inroads and built schools and churches. But once established, they condemned native tribal traditions as "heathen practices" and often refused to recognize, or even tried to suppress them. I spoke with an African who had been imprisoned in a Mau Mau detention camp. His voice choked with emotion as he told of the cruelties. Finally he broke down and killed themselves to escape them.

In the light of all this, one cannot help being amazed at the tolerance of East Africans. They are beginning to realize the extent of ignorance of their land, and at our attempts to eat their foods and speak their tongues. We must forgave everything because we respected them as human beings, before we really tried to understand them.

We toured East Africa and Ethiopia during the summer. We hunted for game in the bushlands, we visited Zanzibar by night and by day, we dreamed in Jaro. If you start out very early from the last camp and reach the top of the hill in time, you can see the sun rise out of the Indian Ocean; and the Africans rise out of their huts to prepare to the seat. The spectacle is magnificent and it is breathtaking. But there is more to experience in the land by its people, you cannot look at Africa without having a responsibility to them.

There is a saying with Crossroaders, that you may leave Africa, but Africa will never leave you. And if you have seen all the destruction of the past generations and have sensed a responsibility for it, then the saying really is true. In the 1959 Reith-yatts dealt with this in a book which he dedicated "in the firm faith that the future lies living, and the unborn will unite to rebuild the destroyed shrines." With this in the summer, Crossroads were helping to rebuild the destroyed shrines.

This article concludes the series.

LABOR MEMBERS DOWN

LONDON (Reuters) — Membership in Britain's opposition Labor party dropped by 29,900 last year to 4,055,797, it was disclosed Tuesday in the party's annual report prepared for its delegate conference opening at Scarborough, Yorkshire, Sept. 30.

Quebec

this may rise to $8,500 by 1990.

A person who has made contributions at the full rate will draw an annual pension of 30 per cent of the base level at age 70 after a minimum 10 years of contributions. Pensions can also be drawn at reduced rates at age 65, and benefits will be paid to the surviving spouse at age 65 when a pen-sioner dies.

STUDY REPORT

Today's agenda included further study of the actuarial report by the political heads of the delegations and their senior administrative advisers. Then the conference will move on to discuss the integration of provincial plans with the federal proposals.

Mr. Robarts, interrupting his campaigning in the province-wide election contest, attended the conference for about 30 minutes. He said the Ontario portable pensions plan and the federal contributory retirement pensions can be made "complementary and compatible," and added:

"I am prepared to recommend the amendment of the Ontario plan to conform with such an agreed national system, subject to the protection of Ontario workers from double imposts."

Quebec's Labor Minister Carrier Furtin, heading a seven-member delegation that may attended merely as observers. A Quebec retirement fund will be introduced in the next session of the Quebec legislature, better suited to the social and economic conditions in that province than the Canada Pension Plan, he said. It will be "provincial, public and universal."

"The government which I represent feels that there is no question for it to have Quebec participate in the pension plan as contemplated by the agreement, whatever that plan may be."

WON'T HINDER

However, Mr. Fortin added, the Quebec delegation does not intend to block the introduction of the Canada Pension Plan for other provinces.

"All that Quebec asks is that in those spheres which come under provincial jurisdiction it may proceed as it intends to, keeping in mind the particular situation of Quebec in relation to the other provinces."

Prime Minister Pearson's statement, released after the early morning cabinet meeting and read to the conference by Miss Judy LaMarsh, said the Quebec plan "is not an obstacle to the federal government's national objective."

On the $10 increase in basic old age pensions, Mr. Pearson said that was "an undisputed" but the cost must be met. If the people of all provinces are not contributing to the Canada Pension Plan, it would be unfair to pay the cost of the increase to it.

"In view of this possibility, the federal government will propose to Parliament that the additional $10 be paid out of the old age security fund, as the law already is. At the same time, Parliament will be asked to approve the raising of the additional revenues required by the fund for this purpose.

"A measure to amend the Old Age Security Act will be introduced soon after the re-assembly of Parliament (Sept. 30). The government hopes that this measure will be passed quickly so that the increased old age pension can come into effect from October onwards."

MARGARET IS GUEST

ATHENS, Greece (Reuters)—Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdown were the guests of King Paul of Greece and Queen Frederika at a dinner at the Royal Palace Monday night, a court communique said. Later they attended a Beethoven concert by the Vienna Philharmonic conducted by Herbert von Karajan.

Robarts'

"areas of major concern to us for the protection of the people of Ontario."

Opposition Leader Wintermeyer, however, speaking to his largest crowd so far in the campaign, about 800 people at a barbeque in Woodstock, challenged Mr. Robarts to "get out of the pension business."

"There is nothing in the Ontario pension scheme which has not been served in order to put the Canada Pension Plan into operation in Ontario," he said.

"The two pension plans are not compatible nor economically possible," together.

Mr. Wintermeyer went over his party's platform on economic development, education and agriculture, and promised full bargaining rights for civil servants.

PROMISES MEDICARE

NDP Leader MacDonald, meanwhile, promised in Port Arthur that a comprehensive medicare program for Ontario will be introduced within a year if his party is elected.

"Like other parties, he claimed, used the medical care issue as an "election gimmick."

"The Robarts program," he said "merely offers the majority of our people what is already in force through the private insurance companies or the doctor plans, at prices which are beyond the reach of a growing number of our people."

Today Mr. MacDonald will carry his Northern Ontario campaign to Alikokan, while Mr. Robarts and Mr. Wintermeyer continue to stump through heavily-populated southwestern Ontario.

Farmer Breaks With Tradition, Does No Summerfallowing

DELORAINE, Man. (CP) — Gordon Holden has made an almost complete break with the traditions of farming, and in the process is making a good living.

He also is providing ammunition for the experts in their continued fight against the age-old ritual of summerfallowing — leaving fields dormant for one year out of every three — after taking crops from them.

Since 1945, the only areas of the 960-acre Holden farm not producing a paying crop are the buildings, the drainage ditches and three-quarters of an acre held back for raspberries this fall.

Most farmers seek about half their land each year while the other half lies dormant.

MAKES MORE MONEY

Asked why he gave up summerfallow, Mr. Holden says:

"I can make more money cropping the land without exposing it to the weather for a season at a time.

"By breaking the land, my wheat or barley will yield 30 or 40 bushels an acre while the land that is can get 20 bushels an acre at least and every year after that I can at least double that production again.

"If you figure that production against what can be expected if I summerfallow half or one-third the farm, you'll find the total is greater.

"I also good care of the land by returning all stubble and plowing down the sweet clover and alfalfa or clinker legumes. And I fertilize to maintain the productive capacity.

"Also, summerfallow is not as good for weed control as continuous cropping, as long as there is a smog the crops grown.

"Summerfallow just gives the weeds a chance to grow.

"Also, it doesn't conserve much more moisture than my breaking, and it is mainly the fall rains that accumulate on fallow."

Three-quarters of the farm is on a nine-year rotation system while the rest is on an eight-year cycle.

This simply means that on each area, three years of the rotation are given up for grass, grass legumes or pure legumes.

CALCULATED RISK

He also adheres to the right fertilising pattern.

Crawford Jenkins, provincial soils specialist, says Mr. Holden is taking only one calculated risk in his venture, an almost complete dependence on summer rains.

But he has an ace in the hole for insurance.

While most farmers are operating one or at most two-crop farms, Mr. Holden grows a wide variety.

For instance this year he is producing two varieties of wheat, two barleys, two oat-field peas, brome grass, meadow fescue, crested wheat grass, canary seed grass, flax, mustard, sweet clover, alfalfa, lupin and spice coriander.

From these, he gains cereal grains, seed, "hay, fodder and essential nitrogen to return to the ground.

A proud rebel, he says: "Some people may consider me a little crazy, but I'm making a good living by farming this way and I intend to keep it up."

Coroner Left Without Saying If Child Dead

KINGSTON (CP) — A Kingston fire department officer said Monday night Coroner F. M. Macdonnel left the scene where seven-month-old David Riley was drowned Sunday without indicating to the squad whether the child was dead or not.

Commenting on the incident that occurred at a downtown dock here when Mrs. David Riley fell into the water, Captain George Bridgen said he was told by the latter that at the time it was recovered until told by the coroner the child was dead. But he said Dr. Macdonnell said he would have to be summoned a second time to the dock before pronouncing the child dead.

Captain Bridgen appeared at a special meeting of a city council sub - committee called by Mayor William T. Mills.

The sub-committee was not aware whether the 72-year-old coroner had even examined the victim before giving his verdict.

The coroner is supposed to examine a victim with a stethoscope, he said. The boy had been in the water nearly 30 minutes before being recovered.

Dr. Macdonnell said chances were 100 to one the child was dead when he arrived on the scene, but he examined the infant several times. Dr. Macdonnell, who did not attend the special meeting, spoke later in an interview.

A transcript of the meeting is to be sent to Crown Attorney John Sampson of Kingston.

Speed Limit Depends on Direction

BROWNS MILLS, N. J. (AP)—A motorist had better be sure of his sense of direction when he arrives on the Burlington County Road 545 —the speed limit is 50 miles an hour northbound and 35 miles an hour southbound.

The split speed limit applies in a one-mile stretch of the highway bordering Fort Dix. A spokesman for the military installation said Monday the army has jurisdiction over only the road bordering Fort Dix and has posted a 35 m.p.h. speed limit on its half. The half bordering Pemberton Township is being maintained at 50 m.p.h.

That's not the only problem. Local police aren't supposed to care; they ought to ticket traffic violators on the military's half.

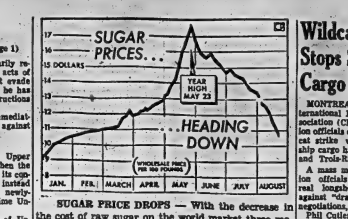
president is not necessarily responsible for the illegal acts of his members, he cannot evade the consequences unless he has made sure that his instructions are followed.

Mr. Bader counsel immediately inscribed an appeal against the sentence.

STARTED IN 1962



The SIU's feud with Upper Lakes started in 1962 when the company refused to renew the contract with the union, instead signing up with the newly-formed Canadian Maritime Union (CLC).

Subsequent harassing of Upper Lakes ships in both Canadian and United States Great Lakes ports resulted in the establishment by the U.S. Supreme Court of the federal government.

The chairman, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, condemned Mr. Bader's unorthodox tactics, calling him a "bully, cruel, dishonest, greedy, power - hungry, contemptuous of the law."

Mr. Banks came to Canada from the United States in 1949 to help set up the old Canadian Labor and Labor Congress—now the CLC—and several shipping companies. He was also presiding Communist-run Canadian Seamen's Union, which he did.

During his 1957 citizenship hearing—which was unsuccessful—Mr. Banks admitted his membership in the Communist party but said he served time in prison at San Quentin, Calif., after a 1939 conviction on a bad-cheque charge, being pardoned by the then governor Earl Warren after serving less than four years.

SUGAR PRICE DROPS — With the decrease in the cost of raw sugar on the world market three major Montreal refineries dropped the price of refined sugar by 20 cents to $10.80 a 100-pound bag Aug. 22.

The sugar price rose from $9.10 Jan. 1 to $17.75 on May 23, the highest since July, 1920 when it was $24 a 100-pound bag. It has decreased 21 times since May 23.

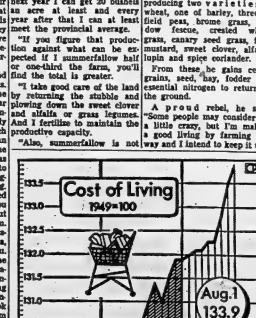
Council Accepts Resignation Of Police Chief

INGERSOLL, Ont. (CP) — Town council accepted the resignation of Leslie J. Pengelly, 44, as chief of the community's nine-man police force at a special meeting Monday night.

The resignation was submitted to the town clerk last Friday. It is understood it was by mail, the day council suspended Mr. Pengelly without pay.

Council Aug. 15 authorized a list of eight charges brought against Mr. Pengelly under the Ontario Police Act. A subsequent closed meeting of council heard the police chief answer the charges, laid under the general heading of "neglect of duty."

Council called Sept. 3 for an Ontario Police Commission inquiry into the performance and conduct of the force.



However, Coun. Robert J. Smith, chairman of the committee chairman, said Monday night the inquiry will be held in advance for the time being, with the hope that "the new chief can straighten things out."

W. R. Poole of London, Mr. Pengelly's lawyer, said Saturday an application for leave to quashed the two council meetings at which the suspension was authorized and the charges preferred, would be heard in weekly High Court here Sept. 26. The application said council acted in contravention of the Police Act.

Mr. Poole said on Monday night the application will not be continued with as a result of the resignation of one of the charges against Mr. Pengelly. He said Mr. Pengelly decided to resign after Mr. Poole said he withdraw the charge, which "affected his integrity."

Mr. Pengelly was voted one month's severance pay at Monday night's meeting.

Council decided to advertise for a new chief to replace Mr. Pengelly. The force was organized under Mr. Pengelly eight years ago.

K. Must Have Been Abused During Yugoslav Visit

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nikita Khrushchev went back to Moscow from Belgrade bearing, but that big smile must have been private doubts.

First of all because the secret of visiting Yugoslavia must have been something of a big illusion. Only a few years ago Khrushchev was using some of the strongest words in the Soviet vocabulary to describe the Yugoslav heresy. Now he welcomes the prodigal Marshal Marshal Tito back to respectability.

Mr. K is an expert at eating his words without giving any indication that he has bad smelt flies in the soup, but his reconciliation with the stubborn man who succeeded Joseph Stalin must have had its gall-ing moments.

And if Khrushchev succeeded in learning anything on his two-week tour of Yugoslavia, the pointers he picked up must have been anything but reassuring.

For the indications are that Yugoslavia's despite economic Western criticisms of Slavic inefficiency seems to have succeeded in finding a formula for economic productivity that makes many Communist systems look woefully backward.

WORKERS HAVE SAY

The Yugoslavs, as this reporter noted after a 1960 visit, put it all down to their much-vaunted "workers' councils." They involve a decentralization rare in Communist regimes and give workers a sense of participation in their own enterprise.

To many Western visitors, the main impression is that what, ever the merit of the councils, much of the credit for Yugoslav vitality must go to a large greater flexibility. In a word, they use incentives. Capitalist techniques are openly employed in a Communist economy.

In 1962, Yugoslavia's national income rose by 14 per cent. In the London magazine The Spectator, Sarah Gainbon wrote after a visit:

Steel planning is quite loose. . . . Businessmen have considerable freedom of action and sometimes they make their own contracts and do their own buying and selling. . . . The directors of factories are not afraid of socialism are fascinating and undeniable."

Footballing perhaps even to Khrushchev, but somewhat revolting as well.

Mr. K's forces, on the other hand, are based on two obsessions. One is his layman's veneration for the height and shining toys of the rocket scientist and the other his passion for productivity. It will be awkward indeed if he has to admit that, lately, that heretical Belgrade has found the fiscal key.

Orders

bibiting further interference by the governor.

Coupled with the judges' action was President Kennedy's warning that whatever steps necessary would be taken to enforce the desegregation decrees. There was no doubt this included the use of federal troops.

Shortly after 1 a.m., Finance Minister Seymore Trammell appeared on a hospital steps surrounded by troopers and guardsmen, uniformed, helmeted and wearing pistols.

"I have given instructions to the federal marshals to leave the area," said Trammell into a microphone. "Now you will search the grounds and clear the area.

"Governor Wallace gave these orders and I will carry them out."

The marshals stood within hearing distance.

MOVE AWAY

They stood their ground momentarily. Then as the 25 marshals began turning lines, the marshals moved toward the back of the Capitol.

Two of them got into a car and drove off. The third hid in some bushes before he was flushed and chased away.

By then there were 40 troopers on duty around the capitol.

Later Trammell said the governor would accept service from the marshals today "if that's the purpose of their being here."

Justice Rules Photo Cannot Be Shown

KITCHENER (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court judge ruled against showing a jury a photograph of a bullet-riddled body Monday in the trial of a man charged with murder.

Crown Counsel Harold Daudlin claimed that the photograph should be submitted to disprove the defence argument that Hudson was intoxicated when the shooting occurred. He said the pattern of bullet wounds would not support the theory that the man firing the gun did not know what he was doing.

Mr. Daufman said the crown contended Hudson's reason for the slaying was the loss of his six - year - old child. In a Kitchener family court on the day of the shooting, Hudson's wife had been given custody of the child.

He added that evidence would show Hudson went to Waterloo on the evening of the slaying and bought 30 bullets.

BA Coded Key Terminal Here Ready Soon

TORONTO (CP)—Within the next two weeks, British American Oil Co. Ltd. and Imperial Oil Ltd. expect to have self-service outlets of oil and gasoline in operation for large-volume customers, it was learned Monday.

BA will complete next week

as operation at its Belleville pipeline terminal which will enable customers with a coded key to get gas themselves from one of several product meters.

The system will dispense a printed invoice and automatically charge the proper account.

Imperial's outlet will open in Ottawa in about two weeks — employing either a coded key or a card system.

The company plans further automatic centres at Welland and Kingston, while BA expects to extend its service to Brit, a small northern Georgian Bay community.

Canada Ltd. already has an automatic distribution centre at Kitchener for domestic fuel and farm truck fuel dealers. Across the country, Imperial operates from Shell's Hamilton office.

Wildcat Strike Stops Ship Cargo Handling

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Longshoremen's Association (CLC) is confident union officials can soon end a wildcat strike which has stopped ship cargo handling in Montreal and Trois-Rivieres, Que.

A mass meeting between union officials and 3,000 Montreal longshoremen, protesting against "dragged out" contract negotiations, is scheduled today.

Phil Cutler, counsel for the ILA, said Monday night he hoped the next would be back to work by this afternoon.

The work stoppage early Monday spread quickly to Trois-Rivieres, 90 miles downstream, although stevedores at Quebec City resisted efforts of a group of 35 of the Montreal men to get them to stop work handling the cargo of the Empress of Britain Monday night.

The Montreal local has been negotiating a new contract with the Shipping Federation of Canada since the old contract expired last Dec. 31.

Paul Asselin, president of ILA Local 375, said he had been aware of impatience on the part of some union members but said little could be accomplished at the moment because the matter was in the conciliation board.

TROUBLE SPREADS

The walkout began at the start of the 8 a.m. shift and spread quickly along the waterfront. By late afternoon, about 20 ships were unable to load or unload. No passenger liners were in port.

However, Quebec City steve-dores aboard the Empress of Britain Monday night, appearing indifferent to the efforts of the Montreal group to get them to stage a sympathy strike.

About 30 harbor and city police milled about the pier where the Cove terminal carrying night-shift men to the next from Montreal stood around the shed, not allowed inside.

Canadian Pacific Steamships announced that 1,200 passengers due in Montreal today would disembark at Quebec and be brought to Montreal by special train.

The vessel itself remained at Quebec pending outcome of the Montreal meeting and planned to embark passengers for the eastbound voyage from there Thursday unless an end to the walkout is reached by then or to sail for Montreal later today.

Found Heroin Worth $45,000 In Apartment

TORONTO (CP)—RCMP officers told magistrate's court Monday they discovered about $45,000 worth of heroin in a Toronto apartment May 14.

They were testifying at the third day of a preliminary hearing of 12 persons charged with conspiring to traffic in narcotics.

Cpl. Donald Docker said a plastic bag containing about six ounces of heroin was proved in laboratory analysis to be heroin, was found in a paper bag behind some boards in the ceiling of a closet.

Det.-Sgt. Frank Smith said the discovery was made when he and four other officers searched the apartment while the residents were away.

At $15 a tablet, Magistrate Addison said, the 170 tablets of heroin could yield $45,000 on the Metropolitan Toronto narcotics market.

Magistrate Addison defended Count. Smith's refusal to tell Mr. Parsons, counsel for two of the accused, the source of a tipoff passed to the apartment. The constable maintained it was confidential information.

He later said the source he had was not given to the RCMP by any of the 12 accused.

Earlier in the day, policemen testified they had observed two of the accused under suspicious circumstances many times before the arrests were made.

They said John James McGrath, 34, and Frank Edgar Piro, 47, both of Toronto, met at several places in the city. The two usually appeared from opposite directions, met briefly, then separated, again in different directions.

Some officers said they observed Piro putting his hand to his mouth immediately after the meetings.

Meetings were also described between McGrath and Charles Joseph Cipollo, 30, of Guelph, and Rudolph Peter Lucas, 29.

After two of these meetings, McGrath was followed to Windsor where he entered the international tunnel to the United States.

The hearing continues today.

Frost Denies He Intervened In Eastview

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Former premier Leslie Frost said Monday he may have discussed an investigation of alleged corruption in Eastview, Ont., with two municipal affairs department officials, but only about the scope of their inquiry.

The discussions would have taken place before the officials had completed their report.

Mr. Frost was commenting in a telephone interview on statements by Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer during the Ontario election campaign that the government had changed the officials' report to protect Gordon Lavergne, mayor of Eastview and Progressive Conservative member of the last legislature for Russell.

Mr. Wintermeyer challenged Mr. Frost to deny that he discussed the report with the investigators—F. G. Blake and C. W. Yates—after they first submitted it.

Replied Mr. Frost: "Anything ever given by me only related to their authority under the act. . . . I didn't intervene whatever. It was as it should be according to the powers given by the legislation."

Mr. Frost added that to have intervened would have been high-handed defiance of the legislature.

ASK OPINION

He said the men had asked the attorney - general's department for an opinion as to their powers under the section of the Municipal Affairs Act empowering their inquiry. The opinion was probably obtained during their hearings — "before they rendered the report, in any event."

Describing the report, which found widespread misuse of funds in the Ottawa suburb, as a "good" one, Mr. Frost added: "There's not one way in which Mr. Wintermeyer's remarks would have any validity: If there were a whitewash. Read it yourself and see if there was a whitewash."

Fierce Price-Cutting Fight By Food Chains in Britain Is Welcomed by Housewives

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Prospect of a fierce cut-price fight among food chains raised a happy glint today in the eyes of bargain-hungry British housewives.

Canadian tycoon Garfield Weston started the uproar recently when his Fine Fare supermarket chain, the biggest in Britain, announced it will experiment with trading stamps in a number of its stores soon.

Today Weston's chain rivals reported they are considering price cuts in the area or areas — not yet announced — where Fine Fare will make its move.

John Butler, secretary of the National Association of Multiple Grocers, indicated that no firm decision had yet been taken but he added:

"The idea is to cut prices wherever Fine Fare introduces these stamps."

The suggestion had won strong support last Friday at a closed-door meeting of 80 of the 100 members of the association, Butler said.

Anti-stamp grocers wanted to convince housewives that the device is not in their best interests and the best way of doing that was to offer price reductions.

AGREEMENT BROKEN

There had been a gentleman's agreement among British supermarkets and other "multiple" grocers not to use the stamps—although they are common in smaller stores—and Fine Fare was the first to break the line.

George Metcalf, chairman of Dicoa, the Canadian company which owns Fine Fare, noted in an Aug. 21 letter to the grocers association that he was observing the courtesy of providing three months notice.

Bread is one of the commodities likely to be offered at a cut price by Weston's rivals. This would be a direct challenge to the Weston group which includes Tip Top Bakeries.

Fine Fare has some 270 supermarkets, with more under construction.

Kingston Man Runs in Lanark

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A meeting attended by eight persons Monday night nominated James Louis Keenlyside of Kingston as the Liberal candidate in Lanark riding for the Sept. 25 provincial election.

Nomination of Mr. Keenlyside, whose home is outside the riding, drew criticism from Mrs. Etha Du Lancy, the only woman at the meeting.

She was called to order when she asked the chairman: "What right has this outsider to run in Lanark County?"

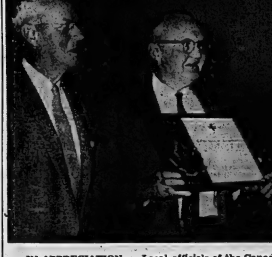
The nomination meeting was called by the provincial Liberal organization after three unsuccessful attempts by the Lanark organization to name a candidate.

Lanark has had a Conservative M.L.A. for the last 22 years.

Norris O'Reilly, chairman of the Smiths Falls Liberal Association, said after the meeting that the provincial body "is trying to bully Lanark into naming a candidate."

The Lanark County organization is to meet Tuesday night to decide if it will support Mr. Keenlyside.

Accused Pleads Guilty to Theft Of $500,000



VANCOUVER (CP) — Douglas Brown, 35, who took $500,000 from his armored car company employers and flew off to Rio de Janeiro, pleaded guilty Monday to the theft and was remanded to Wednesday for sentence.

Two other men charged jointly with Brown in the May 18 robbery are in custody. They will appear in court Friday.

The loot came from receipts picked up during a Loomis Armored Car Service Limited run on which Brown was custodian.

Statements read in court by Prosecutor Stewart McMorran who said Brown made them to police, said Brown carried out the robbery single-handedly.

Mr. McMorran said a total of $543,935 was stolen altogether and the amount outstanding was $22,500.

THROW EGGS AT V-P

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—Two eggs were hurled in Lyndon B. The eggs splattered harmlessly on the plate-glass door of Johnson's hotel as he stepped outside to greet a crowd packing the sidewalks.

Russia Ousts Chinese With Propaganda

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities have booted out the crew and Chinese passengers of the Peking - Moscow express, charging they tried to smuggle in anti-Soviet propaganda and staged a sitdown strike when the literature was seized.

The incident occurred during the weekend at Naushki on the Soviet-Mongolian border about 2,700 miles east of Moscow.

The Soviet foreign ministry in a note handed to the Chinese embassy accused the Chinese of trying to prevent Soviet officials from inspecting the train when it crossed the border Saturday.

The note said the Chinese locked the customs men in the train.

Refusing to continue the trip until the propaganda material was returned, the Chinese staged a sitdown strike, locked hatchways, blocked the entrance to office buildings and grabbed at passing Russians, the Soviets charged.

Government Faces Problem Of Obtaining $116 Million More to Pay Pension Boost

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Where will the government find the $116,000,000 it says it will cost to pay for the proposed $10 increase in old age pensions this fall?

The present $65 monthly pensions paid to everyone at age 70 are drawn from a special treasury account, the old age security fund. This is made up of old age security taxes on personal incomes, corporation profits and manufacturers' sales.

Last year they produced an estimated $691,100,000 and the old age pensions cost an estimated $725,355,000. The deficit was made good by temporary loans to the fund out of general tax revenues.

Prime Minister Pearson said Monday that Parliament will be asked to approve both the increase and the raising of additional revenues required by the fund for the higher pensions.

NOT DECIDED

A spokesman for the prime minister said it had not been decided just how, within the framework of the act, the increased revenues would be obtained. Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said, however, that the extra money would come from "designated taxes."

The sales tax bore the heaviest burden of the old age pensions last year, amounting to $302,200,000 of the $691,100,000.

The lightest burden in the old age security fund was borne by the three-per-cent corporation tax, which yielded $115,300,000.

This was less than half the amount raised in the three-per-cent levy on personal incomes last year—$275,000,000.

In the application of the three-per-cent tax on personal incomes, there is a limitation so that no taxpayer pays more than $30 a year towards the old age security fund.

This makes it impossible to calculate precisely what a one-percentage-point increase in the old age security tax on personal incomes would produce.

The only principle the government has enunciated in paying for the new $75 monthly pensions is that the increased cost should be borne by all Canadians—whether or not individual provinces stand aloof from the contributory retirement pensions plan the government wants to introduce in addition to the basic pension.

Extra Care Needed for Night Driving

By EUGENE S. MILNOR

Although traffic and safety experts continue to stress that the after-dark auto accident rate is double the daytime road toll, the rate remains constant. Perhaps it's because dusk, poor visibility or John Barleycorn are usually given the blame.

Actually, fact also lies with the many 'average' drivers who just do not think about the hazards and limitations involved. Anyone who drives at night should keep in mind that the road ahead is not as clear as in daylight. Even though it may take more than a half mile for the driver to see what lies ahead calls for no more than a 30-35 m.p.h. speed. He should be especially cautious during the dusk hour, the most dangerous time of day. Road and traffic details, distances and speeds can be especially misleading during this period.

In brief, any who drive after dark should keep in mind that it requires maximum and constant alertness, good vision and moderate speeds — plus a clean, clear windshield and a properly aimed pair of headlights. Anything less can prevent a safe view of the traffic ahead, the sides of the road and the roadside roads, potholes and other obstructions that lie awaiting.

Tourist Trade Into Ontario Over Record

TORONTO (CP)—Reports to date from tourist resorts, camp grounds and fairs crossing points indicate Ontario attracted more holidayers — who spent more money—this summer than ever before.

Until August, the number of Ontario visits by residents of United States totalled 4,179,067. Ontario's share was 3,187,221 and its income from tourists was $242,778, was greater than the national increase.

More than 1,000,000 campers used provincial park facilities in July, a 37 per-cent more than last year. Daily vehicle permit sales were up 13 per cent and annual permits rose six per cent.

Comparison of traffic from the United States to that of other years puts estimates of U.S. spending in the province at about $350,000,000 to August. The figure will probably exceed $500,000,000 by the end of the year.

IMF Says Free World Has Sufficient Credit Resources And Facilities at Present

By HAROLD HORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The International Monetary Fund says the free world now has sufficient credit resources and facilities without having to set up new systems.

This appeared to be an outright rejection of Britain's 1963 contention that a new form of international banking should be set up with deposits backed by gold.

At the same time, U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon outlined it may take more than four years to end the foreign drain on U.S. dollars.

The real problem for world liquidity is the deficit in what will come when the U.S. balances its international payments, "because the present liquidity fed into the system by the U.S. deficit will cease."

NOT ALARMING

Dillon aired his view in an interview with The Associated Press just as the fund, in publishing its annual report, took note of the American deficit, which, it stated, should be no cause for alarm.

It is inevitable, the fund maintained, that monetary reserves would sometimes decline — as in the case of countries that built up large gold holdings.

"This has happened in recent years to the U.S. and may well happen in Europe."

The fund estimated that during 1962 there were upward movements in official prices in Europe and Japan "while a considerable degree of price stability prevailed in the U.S. and Canada."

The fund noted also that both the U.S. and Britain are leaning toward expansionary policies. This might worsen the U.S. payments deficit since U.S. expansion could attract more imports.

REDUCE DOLLAR EXPORT

To offset this would be the stimulation that could be provided to the U.S. economy by a proposed U.S. income tax cut. This, together with the indication that European profit margins are declining, might make the dollars drain and reduce the net export of American capital.

In dealing with the question of world credit, the fund noted that there is at its disposal a total of $31,000,000,000 provided by member countries through quota and other arrangements.

In addition, some countries, including Canada and the U.S., are engaged in currency swap and other bilateral arrangements that have tended to ease liquidity or credit to finance world trade and other operations.

BACKED BY GOLD

Britain last year suggested a new look be given to the monetary system, including the possibility of establishing what would be in effect another world bank where countries with monetary surpluses could make deposits. All such deposits would be backed by gold.

The U.S. rejected this on the ground this might lead to development of a new world currency forcing the American dollar to take a back seat as an acceptable world reserve currency.

The fund said it is watching the world situation carefully and, if needed, would be prepared to suggest further improvements. But if changes are required, "these could be accomplished through enlargement of the fund's present facilities rather than establishing new ones, it added.

Dillon, in his interview, said the problem of meeting the liquidity problem likely will do no more seriously when the U.S. balances its international books.

But on his outlook, it would seem that situation will be some years away, perhaps not until after 1967.

INVESTMENT TAX

Meanwhile, the U.S. is continuing to pursue partial measures to reduce the deficit, including a tax on foreign securities which caused alarm in Canada and other countries.

Asked whether the U.S. government had misjudged the Britain reaction to the securities tax proposal now before the House ways and means committee, Dillon answered:

"It probably is a fair statement that the reaction in Canada was more extreme than we had anticipated, though we had known there would naturally be some reaction in countries where they were the big borrowers down here.

"We had felt they (the Canadians) could adjust to this tax and get around it and do it without major disruption in the Canadian economy. They felt otherwise."

The proposed tax of up to 15 per cent of the purchase price would run until the end of 1965. New Canadian issues were exempted from the levy after the Canadian government had protested and official Canadian monetary reserves started to decline.

The Canadian government still hopes to get a complete exemption from the measure which has been under sharp attack from U.S. securities dealers and life insurance companies.

Robarts Hopes Pension Issue Is Eliminated

By JOHN LEBLANC

KITCHENER (CP) — Premier Robarts said Monday night he hopes his statement on old-age pensions to the federal-provincial pension conference at Ottawa has eliminated the question as a political issue in Ontario's general election.

"I am just interested in getting a pension scheme that will work," he told a press conference during resumed campaign tour in southwestern Ontario, after making a brief appearance before the Ottawa meeting earlier in the day.

At three campaign meetings after flying from Ottawa—here and in nearby Galt and Preston—he reiterated willingness to co-operate in a national contributory old-age pension scheme, but emphasized that he wants the interests of Ontario fully guarded.

In the three speeches, the premier stuck almost exclusively to a resume of the submission he made at Ottawa.

AS AREAS OF CONCERN

He told an evening meeting of about 200 persons in a hotel ballroom here that a number of reservations concerning the federal scheme which he submitted at the Ottawa meeting were not presented as opposition but "as areas of serious concern in so far the protection of the people of Ontario."

He said that "misconceptions concerning the Ontario stand have been "fathered by irresponsible statements." He did not name the author of the statements this time, but earlier he attributed them to Liberal Leader Wintermeyer, in whose Waterloo North constituency he was speaking Monday night.

Mr. Robarts said he cannot accept a pension plan on a national scale holus-bolus without the closest examination.

While he was quite certain that solutions would be found to all problems, "we are not prepared to accept proposals of this magnitude blindly."

He also said the pressure of a provincial general election campaign should not constitute an artificial time limitation for action by Ontario on pensions.

Speaking generally of Ontario's dealings with the federal government, he said he has a great hope for their relationships in the future.

'GET ON WITH THIS'

"I think we should get away from bickering and get on with this," he said. And he added:

"This attitude had been manifested in the way Parliament's municipal development loan fund legislation had been adjusted to meet provincial requirements.

Later, at his press conference, the premier said he can see an era of greater co-operation developing between the two levels of government.

"I am encouraging this atmosphere of co-operation and I look forward to more results," he said.

Referring to Quebec's decision to remain out of the proposed national pension scheme, he said this was "a further complication." But one which, could be overcome.

"It will take a lot of working out, but we can work out anything."

ASK WHEN

Mr. Robarts was asked when the Ontario government would bring in its three areas of public assistance under its jurisdiction, increases to match the $10-a-month increase to the federal government's universal old-age pension which was announced Monday.

"When the federal government brings theirs in, we will follow suit and we can do this very quickly indeed," he said.

It might be necessary to pass legislation at a special session of the legislature which he has promised for immediately after the election to authorize Ontario's participation in the municipal loan fund.

Mr. Robarts said the estimated $1,500,000 in costs to Ontario of this type of special assistance would be met by normal budget and would not call for special taxation.

Robarts Accused Of Using 'Weasel Words'

By BILL MacDOUGALL

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer continued his criticism Monday night of Premier Robarts' stand on pensions, accusing him of using "weasel words" at the federal-provincial conference on pensions.

Speaking to about 800 persons, his largest crowd of the campaign for the Sept. 25 election, he criticized Mr. Robarts for trying to mesh Ontario's proposed pension plan with the federal scheme rather than abolishing Ontario's plan.

He said:

"The plain fact is that if Mr. Robarts genuinely supports a Canada Pension Plan, he should announce he will withdraw his own scheme, because it is not only not necessary, it is an impediment to the operation of the Canada Pension Plan in Ontario."

Mr. Wintermeyer quoted Mr. Robarts as saying earlier Monday at the conference in Ottawa that they can be made complementary.

He said Mr. Robarts agreed to a plan embodying the best features of both schemes and was prepared to accept a scheme which has to be saved in order to put the Canada Pension Plan into operation in Ontario.

The Liberal chieftain said the two pension schemes "are not complementary or even reconcilable."

"The Canada Pension Plan does a great many things the Robarts scheme does not do. Instead of nothing the Robarts scheme does which the Canada Pension Plan does not do.

"The plain fact is that Mr. Robarts has for some time been using the question of the private pension plan as a red herring in an effort to stall agreement and confuse the issue.

"Mr. Robarts has put on his little show. Let him now isolate himself from his Cabinet colleagues who have set him answer my question of last week. The question is simple and one it is this: 'If Robarts favors the Canada Pension Plan, why will he not get out of the pension business?'"

SPOKE AT SUPPER

Mr. Wintermeyer, who spoke at a chicken barbecue supper at the farm of Gordon Innes, Liberal member of the last legislature for Oxford. Before he spoke, a group of area farmers entertained the crowd with jokes and a song mimicking election promises.

As he had done earlier in the day, Mr. Wintermeyer went over already spaced ground on agriculture, education and economic development. He promised tax incentives among ways he would use to attract industry equitably throughout the province and promised co-operation of agriculture and industry. He also pledged full bargaining rights for civil servants.

Earlier in the day Mr. Wintermeyer campaigned quietly, spending his time mainly giving brief speeches and maintaining in two Conservative-held ridings.

Both at Hespeler, in Waterloo South riding, and at Stratford, in Perth, he outlined his platform, insisting it is "time for a change."

Travelling from Toronto by chartered bus, the Liberal leader made his first stop at Galt for a coffee party attended by about 30 persons in support of Arthur White, former federal member and now a candidate for the provincial constituency of Waterloo South.

Medicare Plan Within Year NDP Promise

By DAVID DAVIDSON

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — A comprehensive medical care program for Ontario will be introduced within a year if the New Democratic Party is elected in the Sept. 25 provincial election, provincial NDP leader Donald MacDonald said here Monday night.

In an address at an election rally the NDP chief said, that both the old parties are still using medical care as an "election gimmick."

"The best they offer is a vague promise of the kind that has been kicked around as a political football for more than a generation."

He said that today the plan is running smoothly in Saskatchewan and that if that province had bowed to opposition a year ago, medicare now would be a dead issue in Ontario.

Of the Conservative Robarts program," he charged, "merely offers the majority of our people what is already available from the private insurance companies or the doctor plans, at prices they can't afford. It is merely a growing number of our people."

MADE-VAGUE CHARGE

"It is significant that during the past eight months, neither Liberals nor Conservatives have even attempted to debunk the New Democratic proposals, except to take the vague charge that we have seriously underestimated the costs.

His party estimates that a medical care program in Ontario would cost $160,000,000 Mr. MacDonald said. Doctors incomes would be higher.

"I acknowledge that doctors incomes are likely to go up some when medicare is established, and for one don't begrudge doctors being the highest paid profession in this country."

Mr. MacDonald said the New Democrats have pioneered both hospital and medical insurance.

"The vague promises have been translated into reforms that have banished forever the sceptre of heavy medical bills. The New Democrats will do it in Ontario as soon as they get a mandate Sept. 25."

PUBLIC SAID MISLED

Earlier Mr. MacDonald said that Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner was "misleading the public" by equivocating on whether the 1960 report on the Eastview scandal had been rewritten.

A 1960 provincial inquiry into Eastview's finances and administration accused the city's mayor, council and treasurer of mismanaging the city's affairs.

One of the chief targets of the report was the then Mayor Gordon Lavergne, also Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Russell.

The NDP chief also charged that for "over five years now" the Progressive Conservative government has "deliberately attempted to withhold the full story of the NONG scandal from the public."

He said that Attorney-General Fred Cass has the second report of an investigation into the affairs of the Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company.

"But on the excuse that perjury charges have been laid against A. J. NONG's president, Ralph E. Farris, arising out of the testimony in both the 1958 and 1962 investigations, Mr. Cass has argued that the whole NONG affair is now before the courts, and therefore cannot be discussed.

"This is clearly a piece of election trickery," Mr. MacDonald said. The investigations revealed three provincial cabinet ministers and several top Ontario Tories made huge profits from NONG promotional shares.

Bald Eagle, U. S. Emblem, Showing Signs of Decline

By TOM WATT

VICTORIA (CP)—David Hancock, an air - borne Victoria zoologist, believes the bald eagle, spirit of the United States—in danger of becoming extinct in that country.

Some of the causes for the decline of the bird are the use of DDT and other pesticides, the destruction or alteration of the eagle's natural habitat and trigger-happy hunters.

But while the bald eagle is leading a precarious existence in the U.S., it has found a relative paradise in southern Vancouver Island and the nearby Gulf islands, says Mr. Hancock.

He and his assistant, George McKay, are conducting a study of the status of the bald eagle as a preliminary to an investigation of the bird's apparent decline. His work is being carried on under an Audubon Society grant, and under supervision of the zoology department at the University of British Columbia, where he is a graduate student.

FLIES OWN PLANE

He has a definite advantage over other bird watchers in that he pilots his own plane, and can observe them from above. The two zoologists also use more conventional methods of observation from the ground.

Mr. Hancock says there are as many bald eagles on Vancouver Island as in the whole of the United States. (A recent estimate placed the number in the U.S., excluding Alaska, at about 4,000.)

But he is aware they are in danger of declining as their inland cousins are believed to be doing.

"It takes only a few hunters to shoot off a large percentage of the eagle population."

He said he met an Indian boy of 10 years old who had shoes accounted for five.

It is not believed that the eagle breeds every year, and when it does it normally lays only one or two eggs.

PRESERVES MAY HELP

Mr. Hancock said his report will be studied by the Audubon Society along with reports from other regions. He will not necessarily make recommendations, but he said that an obvious solution would be to preserve tracts for bird and animal life.

"Tracts should be set aside with the idea of preserving the whole composite of nature, not only the eagle," said Mr. Hancock.

"The bald eagle is primarily a fish-eating bird and must have tall trees near the coast in which to nest. If the trees are chopped down then it follows that the eagle will have no place to live and breed."

He admitted the eagles could be decreasing due to more subtle means. They might be dying off through malnutrition, or might be unable to cope with changes in their habitat.

It has been proved that eagles in captivity could live "at least the life-span of human beings," said Mr. Hancock.

He not only investigates his birds at a distance, he has all of them as guests on his property.

Two young birds, one of which he raised from a fledgling, are being kept to study plumage and moulting.

Four adults, two males and two larger females, he is holding for breeding purposes.

He expects to continue his study for three years.

U. K. Great Train Robbers "Got Breeze up" Says Yard

LONDON (AP)—When Scotland Yard Deputy Commander George Hatherill told reporters that Britain's great train robbery gang had fled their hideout before the police swooped on it, he said:

"They got the breeze up."

He meant the crooks had become scared. But he used the jargon of the North American "got the wind up." Like most British policemen, Hatherill's conversation is peppered and spiced with such colorful expressions.

Some of it comes from mixing with underworld characters who talk a "slanguage" of their own. In order to communicate with them, the police just talk their lingo.

Hatherill used another slang term when he referred to the search of the hideout.

"We have a drum to turn over," he said. A drum is a house or flat where a lover in cops-and-robbers parlance is to search it.

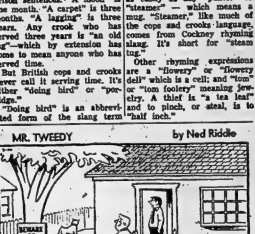
FINE PRISON SLANG

They have slang terms for prison sentences. "A moon" is one month, "a carpet" is three months. "A lagging" is three years. Any crook who has served five years has "an old lag"—which by extension has come to mean anyone who has served time.

British cops and crooks never call it serving time. It's either "doing bird" or "doing ridge."

"Doing bird" is an abbreviated form of the slang term "bird lime," which means doing time. "Porridge" results from the fact that this is the steady prison breakfast diet.

They have names for the prisons, too. "The Ville" is London's Pentonville Jail. "The Island" is Parkhurst on the Isle of Wight. "The Scrubbs" is London's Wormwood Scrubbs Prison. "The Moor" is Dartmoor. Brit a i n's maximum security jail.



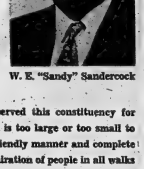
When a crook has pulled a successful job he has, in cops and robbers parlance, "had a tickle," "had it easy," or "had it off." If he's not successful, it means he's "been rumbled," or "been tumbled" and can expect to "have his collar felt"—which means be arrested.

CROOKED IS BENT

Anything that is crooked or illegal is "bent." A "bent cop" is one who, according to the underworld, will "take dropsy" —a bribe.

When a crook is "in the lolly," or in the money, he may go in a "spiel" or gambling den. He can get rid of his cash as easily as any "punter" or "steamer" — which means a mug. "Steamer," like much of the cops and crooks language, comes from modern steaming slang. It's short for "steam tug."

Other rhyming expressions are a "flowery" or "flowery dell" which is a cell; and "tom" or "tom tiddler" means jewelry. A thief is "a tea leaf" and to pinch, or steal, is to "half inch."



"The trouble is, he doesn't like me very much either."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

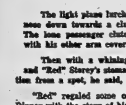
Word from the hard working Legionaires at Tweed says their Celebrities Dinner ticket sale is a complete sell-out. Upwards of 300 district sportsmen will enjoy the function —and meet outstanding sports luminaries tomorrow night.

"Red" Storey an outstanding raconteur and after-dinner speaker is the top guest. Following, re-printed by special request is one of Red's favorite stories as told at the Belleville Celebrities Dinner held here last January.



* * *

The light plane lurched sickeningly and pointed its nose down towards a cluster of lights directly below. The lone passenger clutched the pilot's shoulder and with his other arm covered his eyes.

Then with a whining roar the plane levelled off and "Red" Storey's stomach fell back into normal position from a spot, he said, in the vicinity of his tonsils.

"Red" regaled some of us at the recent Celebrities' Dinner with the story of his most terrifying hours he spent during his tenure as an NHL referee.

While in Montreal he had been requested to referee a game, 'an emergency," at Hershey between the Bears and New Haven. He could fly to New York and from there travel by private plane. Everything had been arranged.

"Red" Storey

At La Guardia Field he walked to where his private plane was waiting. A stringy-looking individual with "a face a mwth down to here," accosted him. "You Storey?" he asked. Red said he was.

Storey walked towards a big two-engine job. "Imagine what I can tell the boys," he said to himself. "Me alone in a job like this."

"Whoop," said the pilot, "Not that—this." Red gasped. It was a knee-high cruiz, he said, that looked like it was patched with fence-wire.

The cabin door would not close, Red said, "but the pilot said the pressure would take care of that when they got upstairs."

In the air the pilot reached down and shifted Red's luggage to the opposite side of the plane. "Can't let all the weight on one side," he drawled. "This kite is liable to turn over."

"I was getting scared," said Red, "but the pilot character finished the job when he asked me, "You know where Hershey is. I've never flown there, and besides I've never flown at night before. We gotta be careful."

He prodded Red with a forefinger. "Kinda keep watch down there, willya, and see if you can see what looks like the landing field."

"Red" wasn't doing any looking. He had head-in-hands awaiting whatever might happen. The light crash bumped and jumped, each lurch bringing "Red's" stomach closer to his throat. "I was praying," he said, "that this guy knew what he was doing."

The pilot spoke again, "See anything down there that looks like the joint. My eyes are getting watzy. I ain't seein' so good."

Suddenly the plane dipped sharply and the pilot made a run over a patch of light. "Red" jumped, grabbed the pilot and yelled "that's not the runway, it's monkey, that's a bunch of gas tanks." The pilot nodded and the plane peeled back upstairs again.

The Storey stomach was by this time on speaking terms with his tonsils, and threatening to take off on a forced vacation.

The plane dipped again. "Red" said "We were playing touch rugby with the tops of houses and other buildings and I thought I would end up with a Santa Claus entry and dive down somebody's chimney."

Then two strings of lights came into view. The pilot shouted, "That's it, Mac," and down they surged. After what seemed like an eternity the wheels bounced on the runway of the airport. "This is as fas as I go," the pilot said. "Red" did not utter a word. He was too busy trying to separate his stomach from his adenoids.

When he could swallow properly he hailed a cab and went to the arena, making himself the solemn promise he would never fly in anything but a scheduled airlined in the future. He kept his word.

Lions Corral Saskys With 8-2 Win

REGINA (CP) — Canadian rookie Peter Kempf kicked British Columbia Lions into sole possession of first place in the Western Football Conference Monday night.

The 23-year-old native of North Burnaby, B.C. accounted for all the points as he lifted Lions, once a tough Saskatchewan Roughriders defence for an 8-3 victory before 18,364 fans.

In notching victory number six in seven outings Lions moved two points in front of Calgary Stampeders and four ahead of Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, tied for third place.

Kempf's footwork was the clincher in two other B.C. wins and his propelled him into first place in individual scoring with 80 points.

Lions gained 113 yards passing and 136 rushing but were thrown back when they threatened to cross Saskatchewan's goal line.

COLLECTS EIGHT POINTS

Kempf stepped in to kick an 18-yard field goal in the last minute of the second quarter, a 32-yard three-pointer in the third frame and two singles in the final 15 minutes on wide field goal attempts.

Saskatchewan's points came on a 35-yard single by end Marin Fatt and a single on a wide field goal attempt by tackle Reg Whitehead in the third.

Second-ranking B.C. star was quarterback Joe Kapp. He carried Lions into Kempf's range with 94 yards on 13 carries and 11 pass completions in 20 attempts for 113 yards. Halfback Ry Baley contributed with two pass interceptions in the final quarter that squelched budding Saskatchewan drives.

Halfback Ray Purdin was Roughriders' offensive spark-plug. He caught four passes for 66 yards and rushed six times for another 20 yards.

WFC teams resume action Saturday when Ottawa Rough Riders visit Winnipeg and Montreal Alouettes invade Edmonton for Canadian Football League interlocking games and Saskatchewan faces Stampeders in Calgary.

Hold Play For TV Shots

Fans Grouse About Commercials

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Some football fans here—like ones who actually attend Ottawa Rough Riders home games—are beginning to grouse about television commercials they don't see.

The Canadian Football League this season has permitted the sponsors of televised CFL games one-minute commercials five minutes before the end of each half.

These are in addition to commercials before and after the game, at each quarter-time and the "reserve" superimposed on the football action.

In the Hamilton-Ottawa game here Saturday, the Riders reached the Tiger-Cats four-yard line on a 43-yard pass-and-run play exactly five minutes before the end of the first half. Play was held up for a minute for a commercial insertion.

Some fans became restive during the pause. There were shouts of "what are you waiting for?" and "get on with the game."

VOICES BRIEF

One fan, who had paid $3.75 for his seat, said: "They don't delay the game for me to get a hotdog. Why should they delay it so the guy watching at home can get a beer?"

Hap Shouldice, eastern representative of football commissioner Syd Halter, said Monday in an interview that the league has made public its television commitments in this regard.

He said there have been "observations" by some fans about the delays, which were bound to occur sometimes at a critical stage in a game.

There were no time-outs in Canadian football and it was "only fair" that the sponsors be given a chance to get in their commercials. There was "nothing like" the number of commercials in telecasts of the National Football League, which had official time-outs.

Officials of the CTV and CBC television networks — the CBC televises Saturday games only —said there had been attempts in previous seasons to insert one-minute commercials during the game but this had resulted on occasion in the camera missing a touchdown or some other key play.

They said the sponsors pay a hefty price for the TV rights to CFL games and are entitled to get some advantage.

They also said that in previous seasons there was little complaint about the 10-minute delay in the start of each game and the 1½-minute pause between the first and second and third and fourth quarters for television purposes.

The new delays this season were on an experimental basis.

May Extend Series

Kenmors, Brockville Tonight

The Belleville Kenmors meet the Brockville Beavers here tonight in what could be the final game of their best-of-five OBA eastern senior finals. Game time, eight o'clock.

Then again it could not be, even if they win.

The Kenmors lead the series 2-0 but may be asked by the OBA to extend the series to a 4-7 affair. The decision lies with the club.

Five clubs remain in the provincial senior baseball championship running. These are: Belleville, Brockville, Galt of the Intercounty League, Amherstburg of the Western Counties League and Campbellville of the Halton County League.

Galt are ready for a series. They were named Intercounty representatives when Brantford the league winners were ruled ineligible because they carried six American imports, three over the OBA limit.

Amherstburg and Campbellville have split a pair of victories but the first-named team won a player protest and the replay is ordered for Saturday next.

OBA past-president Jack Carson, senior series convener, said today that in the event the Kenmors win tonight they play a series with Galt. If they so wish.

Or, if they lose tonight they can extend, if they wish, the Brockville series to four of seven.

"I would rather see them playing ball than sitting around waiting for an opponent" Carson said.

Both decisions, he added, rest with the Kenmors club.

Hurt Ankle Bothers Bobby Hull

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) Skating and brief line plays were the order of the day Monday as Chicago Black Hawks opened their National Hockey League training camp here with 27 of the 28-invited players on hand.

Defenceman Art Erickson, with Buffalo Bisons last year, was the only player not to show and manager Tommy Ivan said Erickson was probably delayed en route from his home in Calgary.

Billy Reay, who succeeds Rudy Pilous as Chicago coach, commented that the players "seem to be in pretty fair shape," although he's not too familiar with them. "We'll know better, though, when we get down to serious scrimmages today.

High scoring left winger Bobby Hull reported he is still suffering slight discomfort from his right ankle, which he twisted while playing softball in Belleville during the summer.

Johnny McKenzie, all - star left winger with Buffalo last season, was the only other player with ugabuma, reporting a "crick in the back" which has bothered him for the last two weeks.

Reay said he has no definite plans for controversial defenceman Howie Young, obtained from Detroit Red Wings in the off season. However, today's tentative schedule of lines has Young as a partner of Dick Van Impie, with Buffalo last year.

Yanks, Cards Dodgers Print Series Tickets

CHICAGO (AP) — New York Yankees of the American League and Los Angeles Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals of the National League were authorized Monday by baseball commissioner Ford Frick to print World Series tickets.

The Yankees lead the American League pennant race. The Cardinals trail Los Angeles by three games.

Frick said the series would open in the American League city Oct. 2. The second game would be played there Oct. 3 and Oct. 4 will be an open date with the third, fourth and fifth game, if necessary, to be played in the National League city Oct. 5-7.

Should the series go beyond five games, Oct. 8 would be an open date with the sixth and seventh games scheduled for the American League city Oct. 9-10.

Simmons Rolls Cards Closer To Top

Three Games Shy

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Curt Simmons, admittedly working on his "second career," has turned another lofty pleasus while moving the challenging St. Louis Cardinals to close to three games of the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 34-year-old left hander posted the 20th shutout of his career Monday night, stopping Chicago Cubs 6-0 on five hits as the streaking Cardinals kept the pressure on Dodgers by rolling to their 12th victory in 13 games.

Cardinals haven't been this close to the leaders since July 4. Dodgers, who were not scheduled Monday night, have 19 games remaining to Cardinals' 17, including a three-game series between the two teams at St. Louis starting next Monday.

Simmons says this is "my second career—this time as a pitcher, not a thrower." The first ended after a fling in the minors, when the former Philadelphia Whiz Kid tried to regain the form that made him a 5-game winner for the pennant-winning Phillies of 1950.

NOW KEY MAN

Released during the 1960 season, Simmons got a second chance with Cardinals — and started career No. 2. He posted a 9-10 record in 1961, was 10-10 last year and this season has become a key man on an 8-man-and-out staff with a 14-7 record and a 3.65 earned run average.

While Simmons took care of the pitching, Bill White took care of the games for Cardinals, becoming the third National League this season to reach the 100-run batted in level by driving in three runs with a double and two singles.

Tonight, Cardinas will again be home to Chicago Cubs, sending Bob Gibson, 16-8, to the mound, against Chicago's Glen Hobbie, 7-9. Dodgers will start Sandy Koufax, 22-4, vs. Pittsburgh against Don Cardwell, 13-13.

In the only other games scheduled Monday, third-place Milwaukee Braves swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and 7-4, and New York Mets defeated Philadelphia 6-3.

Simmons, registering his second consecutive shutout and his fifth of the season, got his win only jam in the sixth inning when he was touched for a double by Steve Boros and Billy Williams' infield hit with two out. Simmons then bore down and got Ron Santo to pop up for the final out of the inning.

JOINS AARON, BOYER

White, joining Milwaukee's Hank Aaron and Cardinal teammate Ken Boyer as a member of the 100-RBI club, drove in Cardinals' two-run first inning against Cal Koonce and wound up the scoring with a two-run double in the seventh. Julian Javier chipped in with a run-scoring single.

Rookie Bob Sadowski won his fourth consecutive game for Milwaukee, limiting Houston Reds to six hits and bringing his record to 5-5. Eddie Mathews drove in three runs with a pair of singles while Gordy Coleman accounted for the Cincinnati runs with two homers.

In the nightcap, Aaron doubled in Braves' first run, then tagged his 30th homer, with a man aboard in the seventh inning, to account for Milwaukee's winning streak to seven games. Bob Hendley got the victory.

Consecutive first-inning homers by Ron Hunt and Jim Hickman started Mets off on their way. Craig managed to hold off the Phillies the rest of the way on seven hits. Craig now is 2-20. Don Hoak hit a homer for Philadelphia.

But Look at the Record Books

Little Change In Gordie Howe

By JERRY GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT (AP)—His hair is peppered with gray and there's a little less of it. Otherwise Gordie Howe isn't changed much from the cocky 18-year-old kid who attended his first National Hockey League training camp—before the end of the Second World War.

The big changes have been made in the record books.

Howe holds most of the important records — except one—after 17 years with the Detroit Red Wings. And that one as the NHL's all - time goal scorer will be his a few weeks after the opening of the 1963-64 season next month.

The Red Wings opened camp Saturday with 68 NHL and farm system players taking exercises under the Olympic Stadium rink. It was the 30th time Howe has started training camp and this will be his 18th season in the NHL.

"My goal is still set to play 20 seasons," said the 35-year-old six-time NHL most valuable player and all-time scoring champion.

LEGS ARE OKAY

"I had a pretty good season last year, you know, and my legs aren't bothering me yet. Of course I'm a bit tired after the first day, but I felt the same way when I was 16."

Last season Howe carried the Red Wings to a fourth-place finish and the finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs. He was the scoring champion and won a record Ninth Hart Trophy that goes to the NHL's most valuable player.

Now the mark he wants most is just five goals away. He finished last season with 540 goals in his career. Howe's greatest rival a player in the post-war period, Maurice (Rocket) Richard of the Montreal Canadiens, retired a few years ago with 544 goals.

Manager-coach Sid Abel said he is considering tampering a little bit with Howe's line. Last year Howe played right wing with Alex Delvecchio at center and Parker MacDonald at left wing.

"I figure we're going to be stronger at center ice with the players we drafted," Abel said. "We first thing we're going to do is move new centers come through is to switch Delvecchio to left wing. He's played it before.

MAY MAKE CHANGE

"Of course, people say it's not good to break a good combination. But I may if I see a player I think is training camp goes along. That's the reason for having training camp anyway, finding things out."

Abel's new centers are Hank Ciesla, Art Stratton and Ted Hampson, all with the Detroit Red Wings last season.

Otherwise Abel doesn't expect to make major changes in his team that was the biggest surprise in the league last season.

He hopes to find another defenseman who, already, finally becomes fed up with Howie Young's bodyc hecks and off the ice. Young was traded to Chicago for goalie Roger Crozier and defenceman Ron Ingram.

Ingram is the likely candidate at the start to replace Young and play with defenceman. And Crozier has a chance to stick with the club as helper to goalie Terry Sawchuk, who had one of his better seasons.

Abel again plans to keep two goalies with the Red Wings.

Dennis Riggin, who held the second goalie job at the start of last season, did not report and Abel expects him to retire.

Twins' Hall Ties Rookie Homer Record

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Working only once every four days makes it tougher for pitchers to win rookie or most valuable player awards.

Gary Peters, one of the three prime candidates for the American League's rookie award and the only pitcher, decided to do something about it.

He pitched and won his 18th game of the year, and 12th in the last 13 decisions, Monday night as Chicago White Sox dumped Baltimore Orioles 9-4.

He also wielded a hot bat, clubbing a double and a single, for his 19th and 19th hits of the year, and drove in runs with each.

Meanwhile, outfielder Jimmie Hall continued his hitting drive in a bid for the rookie award. Hall banged his 30th and 31st home runs for Minnesota Twins in a 7-4 win over Cleveland Indians, tying the league homer record for rookies set by Ted Williams in 1939.

YANKEES SHUTOFFED

New York Yankees blew a 6-0 lead as their pennant-clinching drive stalled in a 7-6 loss to Kansas City Athletics, the Athletics using walks and errors to produce runs in the seventh inning and the winning run in the eighth.

Detroit Tigers swept a doubleheader from Washington Senators, 1-0 and 10-7, and Boston Red Sox defeated Los Angeles Angeles 5-2.

Hall's two—homers ran his batting average to .266 and his runs batted in total to 72. Fencing him is the major league man named homer record of 28 set by Wally Berger and Frank Robinson, both in the National League.

Peters has three home runs, a triple and four doubles in his 19 hits, good for 13 runs batted in and a batting .250 average.

That is much higher than his season run average, which, at 1.95, is the best in the majors for starting pitchers. He has pitched 13 complete games and leads the American League in strikeouts with 179.

WARD RITLESS

Peters' teammate Pete Ward, the third prime candidate for rookie honors, was hitless in three trips Monday against Baltimore, but the Montreal-born third baseman still leads the league with 188 hits. He has a .291 batting average.

Announce 11-Player Trade

Habs, Indians Complete Deal

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League today announced completion of an 11-player trade.

Sam Pollock, Canadiens' director of personnel, said the deal had hinged on Canadiens getting defencemen Ted Harris and winger Gerry Ehrman.

Montreal obtained five Springfield players and gave up six. The five are defencemen John Chasenewski and Harris, rightwingers Bruce Cline and Gray and left-winger Wayne Larkin.

The six who go to Springfield include two highly regarded rookies, Brian Smith and Ron Rodger. The others are Gary Bergman, Wayne Boddy, Fred Hilts and Lorne O'Connell.

Bergman, Boddy and Hilts were all assigned by Montreal to Cleveland in the AHL last season; Smith and Rodger were with Ottawa-Hull of the Eastern Professional League and Cline and O'Donnell was a member of the Peterborough, Ont. junior Petes.

"We have had excellent reports on Harris from many sources," said Pollock. He's a tough, hard - hitting rearguard and we think he has a chance to be of immediate help to our big team. Gray had a fine year at Quebec last season and could be ready for another chance in the NHL."

Cannifton Bows Out Of Series

Cannifton Clippers bowed out of the OBA Intermediate "C" playdowns when they dropped a one-run decision to Little Britain in Fort Hope this past weekend.

Little Britain took a 6-5 win in the game and captured the series 3 games to one.—

Cannifton held a 5-1 lead going into the bottom of the eighth inning but five runs by Little Britain pulled out the tight 6-5 victory and ended the hopes for Cannifton.

Ron Jewell and Hallett pitched for Little Britain, Hallett going the win route and Jewell over in the second frame. They gave up eight hits in all and struck out half a dozen.

Clapp and Crookright toiled for the losers. Clapp was shelled from the hill in the eighth. They gave up 13 hits and fanned five.

Ron Jewel hit a double and two singles to spark the winners' attack. Al McTaggart, Wannamaker, W. McWilliams and pitcher Hallett had two hits apiece.

Clapp hit a pair of singles and Petrie tripled in a losing cause.

Lightfoots Win Over Barriages

Lightfoot Construction cut short a last-inning rally by the losers and chalked up a 7-4 victory over Barriage Landscapers in the second game of the Commercial softball league finale last night.

Lightfoots will thus carry a 2-0 lead into the third game of the four-of-seven set at Prince Charles School tonight, at 6:15. The clubs go right back at it again Wednesday.

The winners plated two runs in the first second, fourth and sixth innings and made it 7-0 with one in the top of the seventh. Landscapers rallied in the bottom of the seventh, loading all their runs before shortstop Rusty Garvin speared a line drive to end the rally and the game.

George Young was the winning pitcher, allowing eight hits over the route. He got out of a bases-loaded jam in the first frame and had little trouble from then until the seventh. He struck out two and walked three.

Jon Chivrey gave up seven hits while going the route in defeat. He nipped a pair on third and second in Lightfoot's two free passes. Loose fielding by his mates made his task a difficult one.

Ron Hull smashed a long home run with one mate aboard to give Lightfoots their first two runs. Hull also had a perfect bunt single. Don Dolan had two singles. Lightfoot's hit with one apiece going to Don Smith, Rich Young and Ken Lacrosse.

Carl Boomhower hit a triple and single. Bob Boyle and Bradley Lee a pair of singles each for Barriages. Hugh Hartwick doubled while Tim Cook had the other base knock.

Closer Competition

Quinte Tennis Tourney

Kingston star L. MacDonnell and David Hurst and Bill Moffatt of Bellleville in the singles and doubles championships at the Quinte Open Tennis Tournament over the weekend.

Twenty entries from Bellleville, Trenton, Campbellford and Kingston provided close exciting competition before the winners were declared.

In the hard-fought singles tournament Doug Grant, veteran Bellleville player was strong for Bill Redquest in one semi-final bracket while MacDonnell was too much for the Bellleville junior champion David Hurst in the other half.

Grant went down to defeat before MacDonnell in the Sunday finals losing 7-5 and 6-4 in a tough court battle.

Gordon Smith defeated Vernon Goodwin in the consolation matches 8-6 and 6-3.

The feature matches provided some upsets with Hurst and Moffatt winning convincingly over the top-seeded pair of Redquest and Tom Woodey, 6-1 and 6-3 in the semi-finals.

Grant and Tom Cook won the other semi-finals over Mike and John Black who had defeated L. McDonnell and G. Bailey, previously.

Hurst and Moffatt turned back the Grant-Cook combination 6-8 and 6-3 for the doubles title.

The Saturday junior tournament matches were cut short by rain leaving the doubles in the semi-finals stages.

However in the 13 and under singles division Michael Allore won over Michael Monthorpe
